Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Indian Extradition Act, 1903, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 17th February, 1913 :—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend the Indian Extradition Act, 1903, was referred, have considered the Bill, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

2. In order to safeguard the interests of persons arrested on warrants issued under section 7 of the Act we have made two amendments in the Bill. The first provides that the statement of the person so arrested shall in all cases be recorded by the District or Chief Presidency Magistrate, and the second specifically authorises the Magistrate to report to the Local Government any case which in his opinion should be brought to the notice of such Government for action under section 15 of the Act.

3. The only other changes that have been made in the Bill are purely verbal.

4. The publication ordered by the Council has been made as follows :—

XV of 1903.

2. (1) In sub-section (1) of section 7 of the Indian Extradition Act, 1903, after the words "such person is believed to be," the words "or if such person is believed to be in any Presidency-town to the Chief Presidency Magistrate of such town" shall be inserted.

(2) In sub-section (2) of the same section after the words "accused person when arrested shall" the words "be produced before the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate as the case may be, who shall record any statement made by him; such accused person shall then" shall be inserted.

(3) In sub-section (3) of the same section after the words "District Magistrate" the words "or Chief Presidency Magistrate" shall be inserted.

3. After section 8 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

Power to report case for orders of Local Government.

"8A. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 7, sub-section (2) or in section 8, when an accused person arrested in accordance with the provisions of section 7 is produced before the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate, as the case may be, and the statement (if any) of such accused person has been recorded, such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, before proceeding further report the case to the Local Government and, pending the receipt of orders on such report, may detain such accused person in custody or release him on his executing a bond with sufficient sureties for his attendance when required."

Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the office and duties of Administrator General was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 17th February, 1913 :—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the office and duties of Administrator General was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

Papers No. 1.—From Retired Senior Superintendent, Accountant-General's Office, dated 16th October, 1912; from Government, Burma, No. 83-L.-26, dated 2nd December, 1912; from Chief Commissioner, Coorg, No. 2850, dated 7th November, 1912, from India Office, London, No. J. & P. 3611, dated 12th November, 1912, and enclosures; from Chief Commissioner, North-West Frontier Province, No. 1533 G., dated 11th November, 1912; from Chief Commissioner, Baluchistan, No. 3069, dated 13th November, 1912; from Chief Commissioner, Assam, No. 3157-J., dated 15th November, 1912; from Government, Punjab, No. 581-Home, dated 25th November, 1912; from Chief Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwara, No. 1467-C., dated 25th November, 1912; from Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 2323 V.-4-4, dated 26th November, 1912; from Government, Bombay, No. 8168, dated 28th November, 1912, and enclosure; from Government, United Provinces, No. 124-L., dated 30th November, 1912, and enclosures.

Papers No. 2.—From Government, Bengal, No. 3379-J., dated 6th December, 1912, and enclosures, and from Government, Bihar and Orissa, No. 432-T., dated 17th December, 1912.

Papers No. 3.—From Government, United Provinces, No. 50—VII-406, dated 8th January, 1913, and enclosure.

Paper No. 4.—From High Court, Calcutta, No. 248, dated 18th January, 1913.

Paper No. 6.—From N. R. Mehta, Esq., dated 1st February, 1913, and enclosure.

2. By an amendment of sub-clause (3) of clause 1 we have postponed the date of the commencement of the Act until a date to be notified by the Government in order to give time for the preparation of the necessary rules and schedules of fees.

3. We have made an amendment of clause 9 and provided that the duty of applying for letters of administration which in certain cases this clause imposes on the Administrator General, shall be subject to any rules made by Government.

4. We have inserted in clause 11 a provision to indicate by whom applications under this clause may be made. We have further amended the clause so as to empower the Administrator General to apply for letters of administration of any estate which may be committed to his charge temporarily, and to retain fees and reimburse himself for expenses lawfully incurred by him on account of such estate. Consequential amendments of clauses 12 and 13 have also been inserted.

5. We have amended clause 16 so as to provide that for the purposes of this clause the value of an estate of a person subject to the Army Act is to be estimated at the date upon which the administration is committed to the Administrator General.

6. We have amended the provisions of clause 19 relating to the Administrator General's costs.

7. In clause 22 we have added a sub-clause which requires the Administrator General when filing an application for letters of administration of an estate to specify particulars of any known liabilities of such estate.

8. In clause 23 we have inserted amendments to provide for probates and letters of administration which were granted by the old Supreme Courts to the Ecclesiastical Registrar as we are informed that some such estates are at present administered by the Administrator General in the Presidency of Bengal.

9. Under clause 26 as originally drafted no notice of a claim disallowed by the Administrator General affected him unless proceedings to enforce it were commenced within one month of the date on which such claim was disallowed. We have provided that the period should run from the date when notice of the rejection or disallowance of his claim has been given to the claimant.

10. We have amended clause 27 so as to bring it more into accordance with the existing law. We have further provided that any appointment of the Official Trustee under this clause shall be made by an instrument in writing.

11. We have added a sub-clause to clause 29 so as to provide that the entry of the Administrator General in the books of a company shall not constitute notice of a trust. This clause has been taken from clause 13 of the Official Trustees Bill.

12. We have amended clause 31 so as to make it clear that certificates can be issued whenever the value of the assets within the presidency does not exceed Rs. 1,000. We have also provided that deposits in Government Savings Banks or in Provident Funds to which the provisions of the Provident Funds Act, 1897, apply should not be taken into account in computing the value of the assets Lastly, we have made an amendment in the clause which has the effect of limiting the power of the Administrator General under this clause to cases in which the value of the assets does not exceed Rs. 1,000 at the date of the death of the deceased. This amendment reproduces the present law.

13. Clause 32 of the Bill as introduced precluded the Administrator General from administering petty estates of exempted persons under the provisions of that clause. It has been pointed out that this limitation has caused considerable inconvenience in presidency-towns, and the Administrator General by the clause as amended is authorised to administer petty estates of exempted persons within the presidency-towns and any other areas notified by Government in this behalf.

14. We have amended clause 40 so as to indicate clearly that this clause is not intended to interfere with the rights of secured creditors.

15. The power of summoning witnesses given to auditors under clause 46 of the Bill and section 47 of the old Act were in our opinion too extensive. We have, therefore, amended the clause so as to give an auditor more limited powers.

16. We have amended clause 47 and provided that the cost of audit of the accounts of the Administrator General and the manner in which such cost is to be recovered shall be determined by rules.

17. In clause 50 we have made two additions to the rule-making power, firstly, so as to give the Government power to make rules referred to in the last paragraph and, secondly, to provide the manner in which summonses issued by auditors are to be served and for the payment of the expenses of any persons so summoned.

18. In clause 53 we have made an amendment to indicate that the clause while providing a summary procedure in the case of claims to assets transferred to Government is not intended to deprive any person claiming such assets of any other remedy he may have.

19. In clause 54 we have made two amendments—the first imposes on a District Judge the duty of including the names and addresses of the surviving next-of-kin of the deceased in the report which he is required under the law to submit. The second amendment authorises the District Judge when he has taken charge of assets under this clause to expend such sums as may be necessary for the proper care and management of such assets. It is clear that in many cases such expenditure must be necessary.

20. We have amended clause 58 so as to provide for the division of the Presidency of Bengal alone as it is not at present contemplated that it will be necessary to divide any other presidency, and we have added a sub-clause to provide for any case in which it is necessary to rescind a notification by which a province was constituted.

21. Finally, we have added a clause which states specifically that the provisions of the Bill are not to be deemed to affect the provisions of the Registration Act. The law on this point is not very clear at present, and is apparently capable of different interpretations.

The remaining changes are of minor importance and do not need any explanation.

THE ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL'S BILL.

CONTENTS.

[AS AMENDED BY SELECT COMMITTEE.]

[Words printed in italics indicate amendments suggested by the Select Committee.]

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the office and duties of Administrator General.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the office and duties of Administrator General; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

[Act II of 1874, s. 1.]

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Administrator General's Act, 1913.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including the Sonthal Parganas and British Baluchistan, and applies also to all British and Indian subjects of His Majesty in the territories of Native States in India.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct.

[Act II of 1874, s. 3.]

Interpretation clause.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,

(1) "assets" means all the property, moveable and immoveable, of a deceased person, which is chargeable with, and applicable to, the payment of his debts and legacies, or available for distribution among his heirs and next-of-kin:

(2) "exempted person" means an Indian Christian, a Hindu, Muhammadan, Parsi or Buddhist, or a person exempted under section 332 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, from the operation of that Act:

(3) "Government" means the Governor General in Council, so far as the Act relates to the Presidency of Bengal and the Local Governments of Madras and Bombay respectively, so far as the Act relates to those Presidencies:

[Act VII of 1901, s. 2.]

(4) "Indian Christian" means a Native of India who is or in good faith claims to be of unmixed Asiatic descent, and who professes any form of the Christian religion:

(5) "Letters of Administration" includes any letters of administration, whether general or with a copy of the will annexed, or limited in time or otherwise:

(6) "next-of-kin" includes a widower or widow of a deceased person, or any other person who by law would be entitled to letters of administration in preference to a creditor or legatee of the deceased:

[New.]

(7) "Official Gazette" means, in the case of the Presidency of Bengal, the Gazette of India, and in the cases of the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay, the Fort St. George and Bombay Government Gazettes, respectively:

(8) "Prescribed" means prescribed by rules under this Act:

(9) (a) "Presidency of Bengal" includes the territories for the time being under the government of the Governor of Fort William in Bengal in Council, the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the provinces of the Punjab, Burma, Bihar and Orissa, the Central Provinces, Assam, the North-West Frontier Province, the province of Delhi, Ajmer and Merwara, the Andaman and Nicobar Islands, and such of the territories of Native States aforesaid as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct:

(b) "Presidency of Bombay" includes the territories for the time being under the government of the Governor of Bombay in Council, the Province of British Baluchistan, and such of the territories of Native States aforesaid as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct:

(c) "Presidency of Madras" includes the territories for the time being under the government of the Governor of Fort St. George in Council, the province of Coorg, and such of the territories of Native States aforesaid as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct.

(10) "Presidency" means any of the Presidencies mentioned in clause (9).

PART II.

THE OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL.

Appointment and designation of the Administrators General in the three Presidencies.

[Act II, 1874, ss. 4, 5.]

3. (1) In each of the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras and Bombay, the Government shall appoint an Administrator General.

(2) No person shall be appointed to the office of Administrator General of any of the said Presidencies who is not—

(a) a Barrister; or

(b) an advocate, Attorney or Vakil enrolled by a High Court; or

(c) a person holding the office of Deputy Administrator General at the commencement of this Act.

(3) The said Administrators General shall be called respectively the Administrator General of Bengal, the Administrator General of Madras, and the Administrator General of Bombay.

Appointment and powers of Deputy Administrators General.

[Act V of 1902, s. 2 (1).]

4. The Government may appoint a Deputy or Deputies to assist the Administrator General; and any Deputy so appointed shall, subject to the control of the Government and the general or special orders of the Administrator General, be competent to discharge any of the duties and to exercise any of the powers of the Administrator General, and when discharging such duties or exercising such powers shall have the same privileges and be subject to the same liabilities as the Administrator General.

[Cf. Public Trustee Act, 1906, s. 1(2).]

Administrator General to be a corporation sole, to have perpetual succession and official seal, and to sue and be sued in his corporate name.

5. The Administrator General shall be a corporation sole by the name of the Administrator General of the Presidency for which he is appointed and, as such Administrator General, shall have perpetual succession and an official seal, and may sue and be sued in his corporate name.

PART III.

RIGHTS, POWERS, DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF THE ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL.

[Act II, 1874, s. 14.]

As regards Administrator General, High Court at Presidency-town to be deemed a Court of competent jurisdiction for the purpose of granting probate or letters of administration.

6. So far as regards the Administrator General of any Presidency, the High Court at the Presidency-town shall be deemed to be a Court of competent jurisdiction for the purpose of granting probate or letters of administration under any law for the time being in force wheresoever within the Presidency the estate to be administered is situate.

[Ibid, s. 15.]

Administrator General entitled to letters of administration, unless granted to next-of-kin.

7. Any letters of administration, which are granted after the commencement of this Act by the High Court at any Presidency-town, shall be granted to the Administrator General of the Presidency, unless they are granted to the next-of-kin of the deceased.

Administrator General entitled to letters of administration in preference to creditor, non-universal legatee or friend.

8. The Administrator General of the Presidency shall be deemed by all the Courts in the Presidency to have a right to letters of administration other than letters pendente lite in preference to that of—

(a) a creditor; or

(b) a legatee other than an universal legatee; or

(c) a friend of the deceased.

[Ibid, s. 16.]

When Administrator General is to administer estates of persons other than exempted persons.

9. If any person, not being an exempted person, has died leaving within any Presidency assets exceeding the value of one thousand rupees, and if no person to whom any Court would have jurisdiction to commit administration of such assets has, within one month after his death, applied in such Presidency for probate of his will, or for letters of administration of his estate, the Administrator General of the Presidency in which such assets are shall, subject to any rules made by the Government, within a reasonable time after he has had notice of the death of such person, and of his having left such assets, take such proceedings as may be necessary to obtain from the High Court at the Presidency-town letters of administration of the estate of such person.

Power to direct Administrator General to apply for administration.

10. Whenever any person has died leaving assets within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court at a Presidency-town, the Court, on being satisfied that danger is to be apprehended of misappropriation, deterioration or waste of such assets unless letters of administration of the estate of such person are granted, may upon the application of the Administrator General or of any person interested in such assets or in the due administration thereof, make an order, upon such terms as to indemnifying the Administrator General against costs and other expenses as the Court thinks fit, directing the Administrator General to apply for letters of administration of the estate of such person:

Provided that, in the case of an application being made under this section for letters of administration of the estate of an exempted person, the Court may refuse to grant letters of administration, if it is satisfied that such grant is unnecessary for the protection of the assets; and in such case the Court shall make such order as to the costs of the application as it thinks fit.

Power to direct Administrator General to collect and hold assets until right of succession or administration is determined.

11. (1) Whenever any person has died leaving assets within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of any of the said High Courts, and such Court is satisfied that there is no person immediately available, who is legally entitled to the succession to such assets, or that danger is to be apprehended of misappropriation, deterioration or waste of such assets, before it can be determined who may be legally entitled to the succession thereto, or whether the Administrator General is entitled to letters of administration of the estate of such deceased person,

the Court may, upon the application of the Administrator General or of any person interested in such assets, or in the due administration thereof, forthwith direct the Administrator General to collect and take possession of such assets, and to hold, deposit, realize, sell or invest the same according to the directions of the Court, and in default of any such directions according to the provisions of this Act so far as the same are applicable to such assets.

(2) Any order of the Court made under the provisions of this section shall entitle the Administrator General,

(a) to maintain any suit or proceeding for the recovery of such assets, and

(b) if he thinks fit to apply for letters of administration of the estate of such deceased person, and

(c) to retain out of the assets of the estate any fees chargeable under rules made under this Act, and to reimburse himself for all payments made by him in respect of such assets which a private administrator might lawfully have made.

12. If, in the course of proceedings to obtain letters of administration under the provisions of section 9, section 10, or section 11, any person appears and establishes his claim—

Grant of probate or letters of administration to person appearing in the course of proceedings taken by Administrator General under sections 9, 10 and 11.

(a) to probate of the will of the deceased ; or

(b) to letters of administration as next-of-kin of the deceased, and gives such security as may be required of him by law, the Court shall grant probate of the will or letters of administration accordingly, and shall award to the Administrator General the costs of any proceedings taken by him, under those sections to be paid out of the estate as part of the testamentary or intestate expenses thereof.

[Act II, 1874, s. 20.]

13. If, in the course of proceedings to obtain letters of administration under the provisions of section 9, section 10 or section 11, no person appears and establishes his claim to probate of a will, or to a grant of letters of administration as next-of-kin of the deceased, within such period as to the Court seems reasonable, or if a person who has established his claim to a grant of letters of administration as next-of-kin of the deceased fails to give such security as may be required of him by law,

Grant of administration to Administrator General in certain cases.

the Court may grant letters of administration to the Administrator General.

[Ibid., s. 23.]

14. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to preclude the Administrator General from applying to the Court for letters of administration in any case within the period of one month from the death of the deceased.

Administrator General not precluded from applying for letters within one month after death.

[& 56 Vict., 7.]

15. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect the provisions of the Regimental Debts Act, 1893.

[Ibid., s. 21.]

16. It shall not be necessary for the Administrator General to take out letters of administration of the estate of any deceased person which is being administered by him in accordance with the provisions of the Regimental Debts Act, 1893, if the value of such estate does not on the date when such administration is committed to him exceed rupees one thousand, but he shall have the same power in regard to such estate as he would have had if letters of administration had been granted to him.

Letters of administration not necessary in respect of small estates administered by Administrator General in accordance with the Regimental Debts Act, 1893.

17. If the Administrator General applies, in accordance with the provisions of the Regimental Debts Act, 1893, for letters of administration of the estate of any person subject to the Army Act, the Court may grant to him letters of administration limited to the purpose of dealing with such estate in accordance with the provisions of the Regimental Debts Act, 1893.

Power to grant Administrator General letters limited to purpose of dealing with assets in accordance with the Regimental Debts Act, 1893.

(c) Revocation of Grants.

18. If an executor or next-of-kin of the deceased, who has not been personally served with a citation or who has not had notice thereof in time to appear pursuant thereto establishes to the satisfaction of the Court a claim to probate of a will or to letters of administration in preference to the Administrator General, any letters of administration granted in accordance with the provisions of this Act to the Administrator General may be revoked, and probate or letters of administration may be granted to such executor or next-of-kin as the case may be :

[Act II, 1874, s. 26.]

Recall of Administrator General's administration, and grant of probate, etc., to executor or next-of-kin.

Provided that no letters of administration granted to the Administrator General shall be revoked for the cause aforesaid, except in cases in which a will of the deceased is proved in the Presidency, unless the application for that purpose is made within six months after the grant to the Administrator General and the Court is satisfied that there has been no unreasonable delay in making the application, or in transmitting the authority under which the application is made.

19. If any letters of administration granted to the Administrator General in accordance with the provisions of this Act are revoked, the Court may order the costs of obtaining such letters of administration, and the whole or any part of any fees which would otherwise have been payable under this Act, together with the costs of the Administrator General in any proceedings taken to obtain such revocation, to be paid to or retained by the Administrator General out of the estate:

[Act II, 1874, s. 27.]

Cost of obtaining administration, etc., may, on revocation, be ordered to be paid to Administrator General out of assets.

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of clause (b) of sub-section 2 of section 12.

20. If any letters of administration granted to the Administrator General in accordance with the provisions of this Act are revoked, the same shall, so far as regards the Administrator General and all persons acting under his authority in pursuance thereof, be deemed to have been only voidable, except as to any act done by any such Administrator General or other person as aforesaid, after notice of a will or of any other fact which would render such letters void :

After revocation, letters granted to Administrator General to be deemed as to him to have been voidable only.

Provided that no notice of a will or of any other fact which would render any such letters void shall affect the Administrator General or any person acting under his authority in pursuance of such letters unless, within the period of one month from the time of giving such notice, proceedings are commenced to prove the will, or to cause the letters to be revoked, and such proceedings are prosecuted without unreasonable delay.

21. If any letters of administration granted to the Administrator General in accordance with the provisions of this Act are revoked, upon the grant of probate of a will, or upon the grant of letters of administration with a copy of the will annexed, all payments made or acts done by or under the authority of the Administrator General in pursuance of such letters of administration, prior to the revocation, which would have been valid under any letters of administration lawfully granted to him with a copy of such will annexed, shall be deemed valid notwithstanding such revocation.

[Act II, 1874, s. 25.]

Payments made by Administrator General prior to revocation.

Administrator General's petition for grant of letters of administration.

22. Whenever any Administrator General applies for letters of administration in accordance with the provisions of this Act, it shall be sufficient if the petition required to be presented for the grant of such letters states,

(i) the time and place of the death of the deceased to the best of the knowledge and belief of the petitioner,

(ii) the names and addresses of the surviving next-of-kin of the deceased if known,

(iii) the particulars and value of the assets likely to come into the hands of the petitioner.

(iv) particulars of the liabilities of the estate if known.

Probates or letters to be granted to Administrator General by his name of office, and powers of that officer in cases in which probate or letters of administration have been granted to the Ecclesiastical Registrar.

23. (1) All probates or letters of administration granted to any Administrator General shall be granted to him by that name, and all probates or letters of administration heretofore granted to the Ecclesiastical Registrar, or to the Administrator General of any Presidency shall authorise the Administrator General of the same Presidency to act as executor or administrator, as the case may be, of the estate to which such probate or letters relate.

(2) All probates and letters of administration granted to the Ecclesiastical Registrar of any of the late Supreme Courts shall have the same effect in all respects as to any act hereafter done or required to be done under this Act as if they had been granted to the Administrator General.

Effect of probate or letters granted to Administrator General.

24. Probate or letters of administration granted by the High Court at any Presidency-town to the Administrator General of any Presidency shall have effect over all the assets of the deceased throughout such Presidency, and shall be conclusive as to the representative title against all debtors of the deceased and all persons holding such assets, and shall afford full indemnity to all debtors paying their debts and all persons delivering up such assets to such Administrator General:

Provided that the High Court may direct, by its grant, that such probate or letters of administration shall have like effect throughout one or more of the other Presidencies.

Whenever a grant is made by a High Court to the Administrator General with such effect as last aforesaid, the Court shall send to the other High Courts a certificate that such grant has been made, and such certificate shall be filed by the Courts receiving the same.

Transfer by private executor or administrator of interest under probate or letters.

25. (1) Any private executor or administrator may, with the previous consent of the Administrator General of the Presidency in which any of the assets of the estate, in respect of which such executor or administrator has obtained probate or letters of administration, are situate, by an instrument in writing under his hand notified in the official Gazette, transfer the assets of the estate vested in him by virtue of such probate or letters to the Administrator General by that name or any other sufficient description.

(2) As from the date of such transfer the transferor shall be exempt from all liability as such executor or administrator, as the case may be, except in respect of acts done before the date of such transfer, and the Administrator General shall have the rights which he would have had, and be subject to the liabilities to which he would have been subject, if the probate or letters of administration, as the case may be, had been granted to him by that name at the date of such transfer.

Distribution of assets.

26. (1) When the Administrator General has given the prescribed notice for creditors and others to send in to him their claims against the estate of the deceased, he shall, at the expiration of the time therein named for sending in claims, be at liberty to distribute the assets or any part thereof in discharge of such lawful claims as he has notice of.

(2) He shall not be liable for the assets so distributed to any person of whose claim he had not notice at the time of such distribution.

(3) No notice of any claim which has been sent in and has been rejected or disallowed in part by the Administrator General shall affect him unless proceedings to enforce such claim are commenced within one month after notice of the rejection or disallowance of such claim has been given in the prescribed manner and unless such proceedings are prosecuted without unreasonable delay.

(4) Nothing in this section shall prejudice the right of any creditor or other claimant to follow the assets or any part thereof in the hands of the persons who may have received the same respectively.

(5) In computing the period of limitation for any suit, appeal or application under the provisions of any law for the time being in force, the period between the date of submission of the claim of a creditor to the Administrator General and the date of the final decision of the Administrator General on such claim shall be excluded.

[Ibid, s.

Appointment of Official Trustee as trustee of assets after completion of administration.

27. (1) When the Administrator General has, so far as may be, discharged all the liabilities of an estate administered by him, he shall notify the fact in the official Gazette, and he may, by an instrument in writing, with the consent of the Official Trustee and subject to any rules made by the Government, appoint the Official Trustee to be the trustee of any assets then remaining in his hands.

(2) Upon such appointment such assets shall vest in the Official Trustee as if he had been appointed trustee in accordance with the provisions of the Official Trustees Act, 1913, and shall be held by him upon the same trusts as the same were held immediately before such appointment.

28. (1) The High Court at the Presidency-town may, on application made to it, give to the Administrator General of the presidency any general or special directions as to any estate in his charge or in regard to the administration of any such estate.

Power for High Court to give directions regarding administration of estate.

(2) Applications under sub-section (1) may be made by the Administrator General or any person interested in the assets or in the due administration thereof.

29. (1) No Administrator General shall be required by any Court to enter into any administration-bond, or to give other security to the Court, on the grant of any letters of administration to him by that name.

No security nor oath to be required from Administrator General.

(2) No Administrator General or Deputy Administrator General shall be required to verify, otherwise than by his signature, any petition presented by him under the provisions of this Act, and, if the facts stated in any such petition are not within the Administrator General's own personal knowledge, the petition may be subscribed and verified by any person competent to make the verification.

Manner in which petitions to be verified by Administrator General and his Deputy.

(3) The entry of the Administrator General by that name in the books of a Company shall not constitute notice of a trust, and a Company shall not be entitled to object to enter the name of the Administrator General on its register by reason only that the Administrator General is a corporation, and in dealing with assets the fact that the person dealt with is the Administrator General shall not of itself constitute notice of a trust.

Entry of Administrator General not to constitute notice of a trust.

30. The Administrator General may, whenever he desires, for the purposes of this Act, to satisfy himself regarding any question of fact, examine upon oath (which he is hereby authorised to administer) any person who is willing to be so examined by him regarding such question.

Power to examine on oath.

31. Whenever any person has died leaving assets within any Presidency, and the Administrator General of such Presidency is satisfied that such assets, excluding any sum of money deposited in a Government Savings Bank, or in any Provident Fund to which the provisions of the Provident Funds Act, 1897, apply, did not at the date of death exceed in the whole one thousand rupees—in value, he may, after the lapse of one month from the death if he thinks fit, or before the lapse of the said month if he is requested so to do by writing under the hand of the executor or the widow or other person entitled to administer the estate of the deceased, grant to any person, claiming otherwise than as a creditor to be interested in such assets, or in the due administration thereof, a certificate under his hand entitling the claimant to receive the assets therein mentioned left by the deceased, within the Presidency to a value not exceeding in the whole one thousand rupees:

In what case Administrator General may grant certificate.

Provided that no certificate shall be granted under this section—

(i) where probate of the deceased's will or letters of administration of his estate has or have been granted, or

(ii) in respect of any sum of money deposited in a Government Savings Bank or in any Provident Fund to which the provisions of the Provident Funds Act, 1897, apply. IX of 1897.

32. If, in cases falling within section 31, no person claiming to be interested otherwise than as a creditor in such assets or in the due administration thereof obtains, within three months of the death of the deceased a certificate from the Administrator General under the same section, or probate of a will or letters of administration of the estate of the deceased, and such deceased was not an exempted person, or was an exempted person who has left assets within the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court, or within any area notified by the Government in this behalf in the official Gazette, the Administrator General may administer the estate without letters of administration, in the same manner as if such letters had been granted to him; and if he neglects or refuses to administer such estate, he shall, upon the application of a creditor grant a certificate to him in the same manner as if he were interested in such assets otherwise than as a creditor, and such certificate shall have the same effect as a certificate granted under the provisions of section 31, and shall be subject to all the provisions of this Act which are applicable to such certificate;

Grant of certificate to creditors and power to take charge of certain estates.

Provided that the Administrator General may, before granting such certificate, if he thinks fit, require the creditor to give reasonable security for the due administration of the estate, of the deceased.

33. The Administrator General shall not be bound to grant any certificate under section 31 or section 32, unless he is satisfied of the title of the claimant and of the value of the assets left by the deceased within the presidency, either by the oath of the claimant, or by such other evidence as he requires.

Administrator General not bound to grant certificate unless satisfied of claimant's title, etc.

34. The holder of a certificate granted in accordance with the provisions of section 31 or section 32 shall have in respect of the assets specified in such certificate the same powers and duties, and be subject to the same liabilities as he would have had or been subject to if letters of administration had been granted to him:

Effect of certificate.

Provided that nothing in this section shall be deemed to require any person holding such certificate,

(a) to file accounts or inventories of the assets of the deceased before any Court or other authority, or

(b) save as provided in section 32 to give any bond for the due administration of the estate.

35. The Administrator General may revoke a certificate granted under the provisions of section 31 or section 32 on any of the following grounds, namely:—

[Cf. s. 234 Act X, 1865.]

Revocation of certificate.

(i) that the certificate was obtained by fraud or misrepresentation made to him,

(ii) that the certificate was obtained by means of an untrue allegation of a fact essential in law to justify the grant though such allegation was made in ignorance or inadvertently.

36. (1) When a certificate is revoked in accordance with the provisions of section 35, the holder thereof shall, on the requisition of the Administrator General, deliver it up to such Administrator General, but shall not be entitled to the refund of any fee paid thereon.

(2) If such person wilfully and without reasonable cause omits to deliver up the certificate, he shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to three months or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

Administrator General not bound to take out administration on account of assets for which he has granted certificate.

37. The Administrator General shall not be bound to take out letters of administration of the estate of any deceased person on account of the assets in respect of which he grants any certificate, under section 31 or section 32, but he may do so if he revokes such certificate under section 35 or ascertains that the value of the estate exceeded one thousand rupees.

Transfer of certain assets from British India to executor or administrator in country of domicile for distribution.

38. Where a person not having his domicile in British India has died leaving assets in any Presidency and in the country in which he had his domicile at the time of his death, and proceedings for the administration of his estate with respect to assets in any such Presidency have been taken under section 31 or section 32, and there has been a grant of administration in the country of domicile with respect to the assets in that country, the holder of the certificate granted under section 31 or section 32, or the Administrator General, as the case may be, after having given the prescribed notice for creditors and others to send in to him their claims against the estate of the deceased, and after having discharged, at the expiration of the time therein named, such lawful claims as he has notice of, may, instead of himself distributing any surplus or residue of the deceased's property to persons residing out of British India who are entitled thereto, transfer, with the consent of the executor or administrator, as the case may be, in the country of domicile, the surplus or residue to him for distribution to those persons.

Liability of Government.

39. (1) The revenues of the Government of India shall be liable to make good all sums required to discharge any liability which the Administrator General, if he were a private administrator, would be personally liable to discharge, except when the liability is one to which neither the Administrator General nor any of his officers has in any way contributed, or which neither he nor any of his officers could, by the exercise of reasonable diligence have averted, and in either of those cases the Administrator General shall not, nor shall the revenues of the Government of India, be subject to any liability.

[Act V, 1902, s. 3 (2).]

(2) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to render the Government of India or the Administrator General liable for anything done before the commencement of this Act, by or under the authority of the Administrator General.

[Act II, 1874.

Creditors' suits against Administrator General.

40. (1) If any suit be brought by a creditor against any Administrator General, such creditor shall be liable to pay the costs of the suit unless he proves that not less than one month previous to the institution of the suit he had applied in writing to the Administrator General, stating the amount and other particulars of his claim, and had given such evidence in support thereof as, in the circumstances of the case, the Administrator General was reasonably entitled to require.

(2) If any such suit is decreed in favour of the creditor, he shall, nevertheless, unless he is a secured creditor, be only entitled to payment out of the assets of the deceased equally and rateably with the other creditors.

Notice of suit not required in certain cases.

41. Nothing in section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, shall apply to any suit against the Administrator General in which no relief is claimed against him personally.

V of 1908.

PART IV.

FEES.

Fees.

42. (1) There shall be charged in respect of the duties of the Administrator General such fees, whether by way of percentage or otherwise, as may be prescribed by the Government:

[Cf. s. 9 (1) and (4), Public Trustee Act, 1906.]

Provided that, in the case of any estate, the administration of which has been committed to the Administrator General before the commencement of this Act, the fees prescribed under this section shall not exceed the fees leviable in respect of such estate under the Administrator General's Act, 1874, as subsequently amended:

II of 1874.

Provided further that, in respect of the duties of the Administrator General under the Regimental Debts Act 1893, the fees prescribed in this section shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of that Act.

55 & 56 Vict., c. 57.

(2) The fees under this section may be at different rates for different estates or classes of estates or for different duties, and shall, so far as may be, be arranged so as to produce an amount sufficient to discharge the salaries and all other expenses incidental to the working of this Act (including such sum as Government may determine to be required to insure the revenues of the Government of India against loss under this Act).

Disposal of fees.

43. (1) Any expenses which might be retained or paid out of any estate in the charge of the Administrator General, if he were a private administrator of such estate, shall be so retained or paid and the fees prescribed under section 42 shall be retained or paid in like manner as and in addition to such expenses.

[Cf. s. 9 (2) and (3) of the Public Trustee Act, 1906, s. 54, Act II, 1874.]

(2) The Administrator General shall transfer and pay to such authority, in such manner and at such time as the Government may prescribe, all fees received by him under this Act, and the same shall be carried to the account and credit of the Government of India.

PART V.

AUDIT OF THE ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL'S ACCOUNTS.

Audit of Administrator General's accounts.

44. The accounts of every Administrator General shall be audited at least once annually, and at any other time if the Government so direct, by the prescribed person and in the prescribed manner.

[Act II, 1874, s. 45.]

45. The auditors shall examine the accounts and forward to the Government a statement thereof in the prescribed form, together with a report thereon and a certificate signed by them showing—

Auditors to examine accounts and report to Government.

[Cf. Ibid, s. 46.]

(a) whether they contain a full and true account of everything which ought to be inserted therein,

(b) whether the books which by any rules made under this Act are directed to be kept by the Administrator General, have been duly and regularly kept, and

(c) whether the assets and securities have been duly kept and invested and deposited in the manner prescribed by this Act, or by any rules made thereunder,

or (as the case may be) that such accounts are deficient, or that the Administrator General has failed to comply with this Act or the rules made thereunder, in such respects as may be specified in such certificate.

46. (1) Every auditor shall have the powers of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908,

Power of auditors to summon and examine witnesses, and to call for documents.

V of 1908.

(a) to summon any person whose presence he thinks necessary to attend him from time to time; and

(b) to examine any person on oath to be by him administered; and

(c) to issue a commission for the examination on interrogatories or otherwise of any person; and

(d) to summon any person to produce any document or thing the production of which appears to be necessary for the purpose of such audit or examination.

(2) Any person who when summoned refuses, or without reasonable cause, neglects to attend or to produce any document or thing or attends and refuses to be sworn, or to be examined, shall be deemed to have committed an offence within the meaning of, and punishable under, section 188 of the Indian Penal Code, and the auditor shall report every case of such refusal or neglect to Government.

47. The costs of and incidental to such audit and examination shall be determined in accordance with rules made by the Government, and shall be defrayed in the prescribed manner.

Costs of audit, etc.

PART VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

[Act V, 1902, s. 7.]

48. The Administrator General may, in addition to, and not in derogation of, any other powers of expenditure lawfully exerciseable by him, incur expenditure—

General powers of administration.

(a) on such acts as may be necessary for the proper care and management of any property belonging to any estate in his charge; and

(b) with the sanction of the High Court at the Presidency-town on such religious, charitable and other objects, and on such improvements, as may be reasonable and proper in the case of such property.

49. Any person interested in the administration of any estate, which is in the charge of the Administrator General shall, subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be prescribed, be entitled at all reasonable times to inspect the accounts relating to such estate and the reports and certificates of the auditor, and on payment of the prescribed fee, to copies thereof and extracts therefrom.

Power of person beneficially interested to inspect Administrator General's accounts, etc., and take copies.

50. (1) The Government shall make rules for carrying into effect the objects of this Act and for regulating the proceedings of the Administrator General.

Power to make rules.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for—

(a) the accounts to be kept by the Administrator General and the audit and inspection thereof,

(b) the safe custody, deposit and investment of assets and securities which come into the hands of the Administrator General,

(c) the remittance of sums of money in the hands of the Administrator General, in cases in which such remittances are required,

(d) subject to the provisions of this Act, the fees to be paid under this Act, and the collection and accounting for any such fees,

(e) the statements, schedules and other documents to be submitted to the Government or to any other authority by the Administrator General, and the publication of such statements, schedules or other documents,

(f) the realization of the cost of preparing any such statements, schedules or other such documents,

(g) the manner in which and the person by whom the costs of and incidental to any audit under the provisions of this Act are to be determined and defrayed,

(h) the manner in which summonses issued under the provisions of section 46 are to be served and the payment of the expenses of any persons summoned or examined under the provisions of this Act and of any expenditure incidental to such examination, and

(i) any matter in this Act directed to be prescribed.

(3) All rules made under this Act shall be published in the official Gazette and, on such publication, shall have effect as if enacted in this Act.

51. Whoever, during any examination authorised by this Act, makes upon oath a statement which is false, and which he either knows or believes to be false or does not believe to be true, shall be deemed to have intentionally given false evidence in a stage of a judicial proceeding.

[Act II, 1874, s. 61.]

[Ibid, s. 63.] 52. All assets in the charge of the Administrator General which have been in his custody for a period of twelve years or upwards whether before or after the commencement of this Act without any application for payment thereof having been made and granted by him shall be transferred, in the prescribed manner, to the account and credit of the Government of India :

Assets unclaimed for twelve years to be transferred to Government.

Provided that this section shall not authorise the transfer of any such assets as aforesaid, if any suit or proceeding is pending in respect thereof in any Court.

[Act II, 1874, s. 63.] 53. (1) If any claim is hereafter made to any part of the assets transferred to the account and credit of the Government of India under the provisions of this Act, or any Act hereby repealed, and if such claim is established to the satisfaction of the prescribed authority, the Government of India shall pay to the claimant the amount of the principal so transferred to its account and credit or so much thereof as appears to be due to the claimant.

Mode of proceeding by claimant to recover principal money so transferred.

(2) If the claim is not established to the satisfaction of the prescribed authority, the claimant may, without prejudice to his right to take any other proceedings for the recovery of such assets, apply by petition to the High Court at the Presidency-town against the Secretary of State for India in Council, and such Court, after taking such evidence as it thinks fit, shall make such order in regard to the payment of the whole or any part of the said principal sum as it thinks fit, and such order shall be binding on all parties to the proceeding.

(3) The Court may further direct by whom the whole or any part of the cost of each party shall be paid.

[Ibid, s. 61.] 54. (1) Whenever any person, other than an exempted person, dies leaving assets within the limits of the jurisdiction of a District Judge, the District Judge shall report the circumstance without delay to the Administrator General of the Presidency, stating the following particulars so far as they may be known to him :—

District Judge in certain cases to take charge of property of deceased persons, and to report to Administrator General.

(a) the amount and nature of the assets,

(b) whether or not the deceased left a will and, if so, in whose custody it is,

(c) the names and addresses of the surviving next-of-kin of the deceased, and, on the lapse of one month from the date of the death,

(d) whether or not any one has applied for probate of the will of the deceased or letters of administration of his estate.

(2) The District Judge shall retain the assets under his charge, or appoint an officer under the provisions of section 239 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, to take and keep possession of the same until the Administrator General has obtained letters of administration, or until some other person has obtained probate or such letters or a certificate from the Administrator General under the provisions of this Act, when the assets shall be delivered over to the holder of such probate, letters of administration or certificate :

Provided that the District Judge may, if he thinks fit, sell any assets which are subject to speedy and natural decay, or which for any other sufficient cause he thinks should be sold, and he shall thereupon credit the proceeds of such sale to the estate.

(3) The District Judge may cause to be paid out of any assets of which he or such officer has charge, or out of the proceeds of such assets or of any part thereof, such sums as may appear to him to be necessary for all or any of the following purposes, namely :—

(a) the payment of the expenses of the funeral of the deceased and of obtaining probate of his will or letters of administration of his estate or a certificate under this Act,

(b) the payment of wages due for services rendered to the deceased within three months next preceding his death by any labourer, artizan or domestic servant,

(c) the relief of the immediate necessities of the family of the deceased, and

(d) such acts as may be necessary for the proper care and management of the assets left by the deceased, and nothing in section 279, section 280 or section 281 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, or in any other law for the time being in force with respect to rights of priority of creditors of deceased persons shall be held to affect the validity of any payment so caused to be made.

X of 1865.

[Act II, 1874, s. 66.] 55. (1) Nothing contained in the Indian Succession Act, 1865, or the Indian Companies Act, 1882, shall be taken to supersede or affect the rights, duties and privileges of any Administrator General.

Succession Act and Companies Act not to affect Administrator General, and saving of provisions of Presidency Police Acts as to petty estates.

X of 1865. VI of 1882.

(2) Nothing contained in the Indian Succession Act, 1865, or in this Act, shall be deemed to affect, or to have affected, any law for the time being in force relating to the moveable property under two hundred rupees in value of persons dying intestate within any of the Presidency-towns or in the town of Rangoon, which shall be or has been taken charge of by the police for the purpose of safe custody.

X of 1865.

[Ibid, s. 60.] 56. Any order made under this Act by any Court shall have the same effect as a decree.

Order of Court to be equivalent to decree.

[Act, V, 1902, s. 8.] 57. Notwithstanding anything in this Act, or in any other law for the time being in force, the Governor General in Council may, by general or special order, direct that, where a subject of a foreign State dies in British India, and it appears that there is no one in British India, other than the Administrator General, entitled to apply to a Court of competent jurisdiction for letters of administration of the estate of the deceased, letters of administration shall, on the application to such Court of any Consular Officer of such foreign State, be granted to such Consular Officer on such terms and conditions as the Court may, subject to any rules made in this behalf by the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India, think fit to impose.

Provision for administration by Consular Officer in case of death in certain circumstances of foreign subject.

[Act II, 1874, s. 68.]

Division of Presidency into Provinces.

58. (1) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Act, the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India,—

(a) remove any of the territories included in the presidency of Bengal from such presidency, and constitute the same into provinces for the purposes of this Act;

(b) direct that for the purposes of this Act any of the territories of any Native State in India shall be included in any province so constituted ; and

(c) appoint any person qualified in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 3, or who holds office under Government to be an Administrator General for any such Province to be called the Administrator General of the Province, and, subject to the provisions of this section, the following consequences shall thereupon ensue, namely :—

(i) the Administrator General of a Province shall by that name have the like rights, powers, privileges and liabilities, and perform the like duties, in the Province as the Administrator General of the Presidency within which such territories were included had and performed as Administrator General therein and shall be deemed to be his successor in office :

(ii) the powers and duties of the Government under this Act shall, as regards the Province, be exercised and discharged by the Governor General in Council or by such Local Government as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, appoint in this behalf ; and the Gazette of the Government exercising and discharging such powers and duties shall be the official Gazette of the Province for the purposes of this Act :

(iii) the powers and duties assigned by the foregoing provisions of this Act to the High Court shall be exercised and discharged in respect of such Province by such Court as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, appoint in this behalf ; and probate or letters of administration granted to the Administrator General of the Province by the Court so appointed shall have the same effect throughout the Province, or, if the Court so directs, throughout the Presidencies of Bengal, Bombay and Madras, or any part thereof, as probate or letters of administration granted to the Administrator General by the High Court at a Presidency-town would or might have had :

(iv) in the foregoing provisions of this Act the word "Presidency" shall be deemed to include a Province, and the expression "Presidency-town" the place of sitting of the Court appointed by the Governor General in Council under clause (iii) of this sub-section :

(v) generally, the provisions of the foregoing sections of this Act with respect to the High Court at a Presidency-town and the provisions of those sections or of any other enactment with respect to the Administrator General of a Presidency shall, in relation to a Province, be construed, so far as may be, to apply to the Court and Administrator General, respectively, appointed for the Province under this section.

(2) Any proceeding which was commenced before the publication of the notification constituting the Province and, to or in which the Administrator General of any Presidency within which any of the territories constituted into a Province were situate was a party or was otherwise concerned, shall be continued as if the notification had not been published.

(3) If, by reason of the constitution of Provinces for the purposes of this Act, it appears to the Governor General in Council that any property vested in the Administrator General of any Presidency should be vested in the Administrator General of a Province, he may direct that the property shall be so vested, and thereupon it shall vest in the Administrator General of the Province as fully and effectually for the purposes of this Act as if probate or letters of administration had been granted to him originally.

(4) If in accordance with the provisions of this section territories have been removed from the Presidency of Bengal and constituted a Province for the purposes of this Act, the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct that as regards the Presidency of Bengal excluding the territories so removed, the powers and duties of the Government under this Act shall be exercised and discharged by the Local Government of Bengal, and that the official Gazette shall be the Calcutta Gazette.

(5) Upon the rescission of a notification constituting a Province under sub-section (1), the territories comprised therein shall again form part of the Presidency within which they were originally included, the office of Administrator General of the Province shall determine and all properties vested in and all proceedings by or against such Administrator General pending at the date of the rescission shall vest in and be carried on by or against such Administrator General or Administrators General as the Governor General in Council may direct.

Saving of provisions of Indian Registration Act, 1908.

59. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect the provisions of the Indian Registration Act, 1908. XVI of 1908.

Repeals.

60. The enactments specified in the Schedule are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column thereof :

Provided that any administration, by or in pursuance of any Act hereby repealed, committed to any Administrator General at the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to be committed to the Administrator General under this Act.

2. We have introduced a new clause (clause 3) into the Bill to make it clear that the High Court at a Presidency-town has jurisdiction for the purposes of this Act over the whole presidency as defined.

3. We have amended clause 7 (clause 6 of the Bill as introduced) so as to empower the Official Trustee to take over trusts for religious purposes and trusts involving the management of business in cases in which the Government by rules authorises him so to do. The amendment follows the provisions of the Public Trustee Act, 1906.

By an amendment of sub-clause (6) of the same clause, we have further provided that the Official Trustee may act as administrator of an estate if he is expressly appointed sole executor and sole trustee under a will.

4. We have made an addition to clause 8 (clause 7 of the Bill as introduced) providing for the manner in which the consent of the Official Trustee is to be recorded in cases in which he is appointed a trustee under that clause.

Similar amendments have been made in clauses 9, 11 and 12.

5. We have amended clause 9 (clause 8 of the Bill as introduced) of the Bill so as to avoid any possibility of conflict with the rights of an executor or administrator under the provisions of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, or the Probate and Administration Act, 1881.

6. We have amended clause 10 (clause 9 of the Bill as introduced) by omitting the sub-clause which authorised the High Court to remove existing trustees and appoint the Official Trustee in their place.

The Act as in force at present contains no provision of this kind, and there is no evidence that any change in the law in this respect is required.

To the same clause we have added a new sub-clause to make it clear that this clause does not affect the provisions of the Trustees' and Mortgagees' Powers Act, 1866, or the Trusts Act of 1882 where those Acts are in force.

7. In clause 12 we have made an addition to provide that any transfer to the Official Trustee under this clause shall be made by an instrument in writing.

8. We have amended clause 22 (clause 21 of the Bill as introduced) so as to provide that the right of inspection conferred by this clause is given in substitution of any rights conferred by the Indian Trusts Act, 1882.

9. Several amendments have been made which are common to this Bill and the Bill to consolidate and amend the law constituting the office of Administrator General, and as the reasons for those amendments have already been explained in the Report on the latter Bill, we have not thought it necessary to repeat them here.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the Law constituting the Office of Official Trustee.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law constituting the office of the Official Trustee; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Official Trustees Act, 1913.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas, and applies also to all British and Indian subjects of His Majesty in the territories of Native States in India.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council, by notification in the Gazette of India, may direct.

Interpretation clause.

[Act XVII, 1864, s. 1.]

2. In this Act unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "Government" means the Governor General in Council, so far as the Act relates to the Presidency of Bengal, and the Local Governments of Madras and Bombay, respectively, so far as the Act relates to those Presidencies:

(2) "High Court" means His Majesty's High Courts of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, Madras and Bombay, respectively, in the exercise of their original civil jurisdiction:

(3) "Official Gazette" means, in the case of the Presidency of Bengal, the Gazette of India, in the case of the Presidency of Madras, the Fort St. George Gazette, and in the case of the Presidency of Bombay, the Bombay Government Gazette:

(4) "Prescribed" means prescribed by rules under this Act:

(5) (a) "Presidency of Bengal" includes the territories for the time being under the government of the Governor of Fort William in Bengal in Council, the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the Provinces of the Punjab, Burma, Bihar and Orissa, the Central Provinces, Assam, the North-West Frontier Province, the Province of Delhi, Ajmer and Merwara, the Andaman and Nicobar Islands, and such of the territories of any Native State as the Governor General in Council may by notification in the Gazette of India direct,

(b) "Presidency of Bombay" includes the territories for the time being under the government of the Governor of Bombay in Council, the Province of British Baluchistan, and such of the territories of any Native State as the Governor General in Council may by notification in the Gazette of India direct,

"Presidency of Madras" includes the territories for the time being under the government of the Governor of Fort St. George in Council, the Province of Coorg, and such of the territories of any Native State as the Governor General in Council may by notification in the Gazette of India direct.

(6) "Presidency" means any of the Presidencies mentioned in clause (5).

Extent of jurisdiction of High Courts.

3. For the purposes of this Act the High Court at a Presidency town shall have jurisdiction throughout the Presidency.

PART II.

THE OFFICE OF OFFICIAL TRUSTEE.

[Act XVII, 1864, s. 4.]

4. (1) In each of the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras and Bombay, the Government shall appoint an Official Trustee.

(2) No person shall be appointed to the office of Official Trustee of any of the said Presidencies who is not—

(a) a Barrister or

(b) an Advocate, Attorney or Vakil enrolled by a High Court; or

(c) a person holding the office of Deputy Administrator General at the commencement of this Act.

(3) The said Official Trustees shall be called respectively, the Official Trustee of Bengal, the Official Trustee of Madras and the Official Trustee of Bombay.

Appointment and powers of Deputy Official Trustee.

[Act V, 1902, s. 2 (1).]

5. The Government may appoint a Deputy or Deputies to assist the Official Trustee; and any Deputy so appointed shall, subject to the control of the Government and the general or special orders of the Official Trustee, be competent to discharge any of the duties and exercise any of the powers of the Official Trustee, and when discharging such duties or exercising such powers shall have the same privileges and be subject to the same liabilities as the Official Trustee.

Official Trustee to be corporation sole, to have perpetual succession and official seal, and to sue and be sued in his corporate name.

[Cf. Public Trustee Act 1906, s. 1.]

6. The Official Trustee shall be a corporation sole by the name of the Official Trustee of the Presidency for which he is appointed and, as such Official Trustee, shall have perpetual succession and an official seal, and may sue and be sued in his corporate name.

PART III.

RIGHTS, POWERS, DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF OFFICIAL TRUSTEE.

General powers and duties of Official Trustee.

7. (1) Subject to, and in accordance with, the provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder, the Official Trustee may, if he thinks fit,—

(a) act as an ordinary trustee;

[Ibid, s. 2 (2).] (2) Save as hereinafter expressly provided, the Official Trustee shall have the same powers, duties and liabilities and be entitled to the same rights and privileges and be subject to the same control and orders of the Court as any other trustee acting in the same capacity.

[Cf. Public Trustee Act, 1906, s. 2(3).] (3) The Official Trustee may decline, either absolutely or except on such conditions as he may impose, to accept any trust.

[Ibid, s. 2 (4).] (4) The Official Trustee shall not accept any trust under any composition or scheme of arrangement for the benefit of creditors, nor of any estate known or believed by him to be insolvent.

[Act XVII, 1864, s. 8.] (5) The Official Trustee shall not, save as provide d by any rules made under this Act, accept any trust for a religious purpose or any trust which involves the management or carrying on of any business.

(6) The Official Trustee shall not administer the estate of a deceased person, unless he is expressly appointed sole executor of, and sole trustee under, the will of such person.

[Ibid, s. 13.] (7) The Official Trustee shall always be sole trustee, and it shall not be lawful to appoint the Official Trustee to be trustee along with any other person.

[Act XVII, 1864, s. 8.] 8. (1) Any person intending to create a trust other than a trust which the Official Trustee is prohibited from accepting under the provisions of this Act may by the instrument creating the trust and with the consent of the Official Trustee, appoint him by that name or any other sufficient description to be the trustee of the property subject to such trust:

Official Trustee may with consent be appointed trustee of settlement by grantor.

Provided that the consent of the Official Trustee shall be recited in the said instrument and that such instrument shall be duly executed by the Official Trustee.

(2) Upon such appointment the property subject to the trust shall vest in such Official Trustee, and shall be held by him upon the trusts declared in such instrument.

[New.] 9. When the Official Trustee has by that name or any other sufficient description been appointed trustee under any will, the executor of the will of such testator or the administrator of his estate shall, after obtaining probate or letters of administration, notify in the prescribed manner the contents of such will to such Official Trustee; and, if such Official Trustee consents to accept the trust, then upon the execution by such executor or administrator of an instrument in writing transferring the property subject to the trust to the Official Trustee, such property shall vest in such Official Trustee, and shall be held by him upon the trusts expressed in the said will:

Appointment of Official Trustee as trustee by will.

Provided that the consent of the Official Trustee shall be recited in the said instrument and that such instrument shall be duly executed by the Official Trustee.

[Act XVII, 1864, s. 10.] 10. (1) If any property is subject to a trust other than a trust which the Official Trustee is prohibited from accepting under the provisions of this Act, and there is no trustee within the local limits of the ordinary or extraordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court willing or capable to act in the trust, the High Court may on application make an order for the appointment of the Official Trustee by that name with his consent to be the trustee of such property.

Power of High Court to appoint Official Trustee to be trustee of property.

(2) Upon such order such property shall vest in the Official Trustee and shall be held by him upon the same trusts as the same was held previously to such order, and the previous trustee or trustees (if any) shall be exempt from liability as trustees of such property save in respect of acts done before the date of such order.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the provisions of the Trustees' and Mortgagees' Powers Act, 1866, or the Indian Trusts Act, 1882. [XXVIII of 1866. II of 1882.]

11. (1) If any property is subject to a trust other than a trust which the Official Trustee is prohibited from accepting under the provisions of this Act, and all the trustees or the surviving or continuing trustee or trustees and all persons beneficially interested in the trust are desirous that the Official Trustee shall be appointed in the room of such trustee or trustees, it shall be lawful for such trustee or trustees, by an instrument in writing to appoint the Official Trustee by that name or any other sufficient description with his consent to be the trustee of such property:

Power of private trustees to appoint Official Trustee to be trustee of property.

Provided that the consent of the Official Trustee shall be recited in the said instrument and that such instrument shall be duly executed by him.

(2) Upon such appointment such property shall vest in the Official Trustee and shall be held by him upon the same trusts as the same was held previously to such appointment, and the previous trustee or trustees shall be exempt from all liability as trustees of such property save in respect of acts done before the date of such appointment.

12. (1) If any infant or lunatic is entitled to any gift, legacy or share of the assets of a deceased person, it shall be lawful for the person by whom such gift is made, or executor or administrator by whom such legacy or share is payable or transferable, or any trustee of such gift, legacy or share, to transfer the same by an instrument in writing to the Official Trustee by that name or any other sufficient description with his consent: [Act XVII, 1864, s. 32.]

Executor or administrator may pay to Official Trustee legacy, share, etc., of infant or lunatic.

Provided that the consent of the Official Trustee shall be recited in the said instrument and that such instrument shall be duly executed by the Official Trustee.

(2) Any money or property transferred to the Official Trustee under this section shall vest in him and shall be subject to the same provisions as are contained in this Act as to other property vested in such Official Trustee.

13. (1) No Official Trustee shall be required by any Court to enter into any bond or security on his appointment in any capacity under this Act. [Act II, 1874, s. 12.]

Official Trustee not to be required to give bond or security.

(2) No Official Trustee or Deputy Official Trustee shall be required to verify otherwise than by his signature any petition presented by him under the provisions of this Act, and if the facts stated in any such petition are not within the Official Trustee's personal knowledge, the petition may be verified and subscribed by any person competent to make the verification.

Entry of Official Trustee name in the books of a company shall not constitute notice of a trust.

14. The entry of the Official Trustee by that name in the books of a company shall not constitute notice of a trust; and a company shall not be entitled to object to enter the name of the Official Trustee on its register by reason only that the Official Trustee is a corporation; and, in dealing with property, the fact that the person dealt with is the Official Trustee shall not of itself constitute notice of a trust.

[Cf. Public Trustee Act, 1906, s. 7.]

Liability of Government.

15. (1) The revenues of the Government of India shall be liable to make good all sums required to discharge any liability which the Official Trustee, if he were a private trustee, would be personally liable to discharge, except when the liability is one to which neither the Official Trustee nor any of his officers has in any way contributed or which neither he nor any of his officers could by the exercise of reasonable diligence have averted, and in either of those cases the Official Trustee shall not, nor shall the revenues of the Government of India, be subject to any liability.

(2) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to render the revenues of the Government of India or any Official Trustee appointed under this Act liable for anything done by or under the authority of any Official Trustee before the commencement of this Act.

V of 1908.

Notice of suit not required in certain cases.

16. Nothing in section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, shall apply to any suit against the Official Trustee in which no relief is claimed against him personally.

PART IV.

FEES.

[Cf. Public Trustee Act, 1906, s. 9]

Fees.

17. (1) There shall be charged in respect of the duties of the Official Trustee such fees, whether by way of percentage or otherwise, as the Government may prescribe:

Provided that in the case of a trust accepted by the Official Trustee before the commencement of this Act the fees prescribed under this section shall not exceed the fees leviable in respect of such trust under the Official Trustees Act, 1864, as subsequently amended.

(2) The fees under this section may be at different rates for different properties or classes of properties or for different duties, and shall, so far as may be, be arranged so as to produce an amount sufficient to discharge the salaries and all other expenses incidental to the working of this Act (including such sum as Government may determine to be required to insure the revenues of the Government of India against loss under this Act).

Disposal of fees.

18. (1) All expenses which might be retained or paid out of the trust fund, if the Official Trustee were a private trustee, shall be so retained or paid, and any fees leviable under this Act shall be retained or paid in like manner as and in addition to such expenses.

(2) The Official Trustee shall transfer and pay to such authority and in such manner and at such times as the Government may prescribe, all fees received by him under this Act, and the same shall be carried to the account and credit of the Government of India.

PART V.

AUDIT.

Auditors to be appointed to examine Official Trustee's accounts, etc., and to report to Government.

[Act XVII, 1864, ss. 23 and 24.]

19. (1) The accounts of the Official Trustee shall be audited at least once annually and at any other time if the Government so direct by the prescribed person and in the prescribed manner.

(2) The auditor shall examine such accounts, and shall forward to Government a statement thereof in the prescribed form, together with a report thereon and a certificate signed by him showing—

(a) whether the accounts contain a full and true account of everything which ought to be contained therein, and

(b) whether the books, which by any rules made under this Act are directed to be kept by the Official Trustee, have been duly and regularly kept, and

(c) whether the trust funds and securities have been duly kept and invested and deposited in the manner prescribed by this Act or any rules made thereunder;

or (as the case may be) that such accounts are deficient, or that the Official Trustee has failed to comply with this Act or the rules made thereunder, in such respects as may be specified in such certificate.

Auditor's power to summon witnesses and to call for documents.

[Act XVII 1864, s. 25.] V of 1908.

20. (1) Every auditor shall have the powers of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908,

(a) to summon any person whose presence he may think necessary to attend him from time to time, and

(b) to examine any person, on oath to be by him administered, and

(c) to issue a commission for the examination on interrogatories or otherwise of any person; and

(d) to summon any person to produce any document or thing the production of which appears to be necessary for the purposes of such audit or examination.

(2) Any person who, when summoned, refuses, or without reasonable cause neglects to attend or to produce any document or thing or attends and refuses to be sworn, or to be examined, shall be deemed to have committed an offence within the meaning of, and punishable under, section 188 of the Indian Penal Code, and the auditor shall report every case of such refusal or neglect to Government.

XLV of 1860.

Costs of audit, etc., how paid.

[Act XVII, 1864, s. 26.]

21. The cost of and incidental to every such audit and examination shall be determined in accordance with rules made by the Government and shall be defrayed in the prescribed manner.

Right of beneficiary to inspection and copies of accounts.

[Public Trustee Act, 1906, s. 13 (3).]

22. Every beneficiary under a trust which is being administered by the Official Trustee shall, subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be prescribed, be entitled, at all reasonable times, to inspect the accounts of such trust, and the report and certificate of the auditor and, on payment of the prescribed fee, to be furnished with copies thereof or extracts therefrom and nothing in the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, shall affect the provisions of this section.

II of 1882.

PART VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Transfer to Government of accumulations in the hands of Official Trustee.

23. When any moneys payable to a beneficiary under a trust have been in the hands of any Official Trustee for a period of twelve years or upwards whether before or after the commencement of this Act in consequence of the Official Trustee having been unable to trace the person entitled to receive the same, such moneys shall be transferred in the prescribed manner to the account and credit of the Government of India:

Provided that no such moneys shall be so transferred if any suit or proceeding is pending in respect thereof in any Court.

Mode of proceeding by claimant to recover money so transferred.

24. (1) If any claim is made to any moneys so transferred and such claim is established to the satisfaction of the prescribed authority, the Government of India shall pay to the claimant the amount in respect of which the claim is established.

(2) If such claim is not established to the satisfaction of the prescribed authority, the claimant may, without prejudice to his right to take any other proceedings for the recovery of such moneys, apply by petition to the High Court against the Secretary of State for India in Council, and, after taking such evidence as it thinks fit, such Court shall make such order on the petition in regard to the payment of such moneys as it thinks fit, and such order shall be binding on all parties to the proceedings.

(3) The Court may further direct by whom all or any part of the costs of such proceedings shall be paid.

Power of High Court to make orders in respect of property vested in Official Trustee.

25. The High Court may make such orders as it thinks fit respecting any trust property vested in the Official Trustee, or the interest or produce thereof.

[Act XVII, 1864, s. 31.]

Who may apply for order under Act.

26. Any order under this Act may be made, on the application of any person beneficially interested in any trust property or of any trustee thereof.

[Act XVII, 1864, s. 30.]

Order of Court to have effect of a decree.

27. Any order made by a High Court under this Act shall have the same effect as a decree.

[Act V, 1903, s. 7.]

General powers of administration.

28. The Official Trustee may, in addition to and not in derogation of any other powers of expenditure lawfully exercisable by him, incur expenditure—

(a) on such acts as may be necessary for the proper care and management of any property belonging to any trust administered by him; and

(b) with the sanction of the High Court on such religious, charitable and other objects and on such improvements as may be reasonable and proper in the case of such property.

Transfer of trust property by Official Trustee to original trustee or any other trustee.

29. (1) Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent the transfer by the Official Trustee of any property vested in him to—

[Act 1864.]

(a) the original trustee (if any); or

(b) any other lawfully appointed trustee; or

(c) any other person if the Court so directs.

(2) Upon such transfer such property shall vest in such trustee, and shall be held by him upon the same trusts as those upon which it was held prior to such transfer, and the Official Trustee shall be exempt from all liability as trustee of such property except in respect of acts done before such transfer:

Provided that, in the case of any transfer under this section, the Official Trustee shall be entitled to retain out of the property any fees leviable in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Rules.

30. (1) The Government shall make rules for carrying into effect the objects of this Act and for regulating the proceedings of the Official Trustee in the discharge of his duties.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for—

(a) the accounts to be kept by the Official Trustee and the audit and inspection thereof;

(b) the safe custody, and deposit of the funds and securities which come into the hands of the Official Trustee;

(c) the remittance of sums of money in the hands of the Official Trustee in cases in which such remittances are required;

(d) the statements, schedules and other documents to be submitted by the Official Trustee to Government or to any other authority and the publication of such statements, schedules or other documents;

(e) the realization of the cost of preparing any such statements, schedules or other documents;

(f) subject to the provisions of this Act, the fees to be paid thereunder and the collection and accounting for any fees so fixed;

(g) the manner in which and the person by whom the costs of and incidental to any audit under the provisions of this Act are to be determined and defrayed;

(h) the manner in which summonses issued under the provisions of section 20 are to be served and the payment of the expenses of any persons summoned or examined under the provisions of this Act and of any expenditure incidental to such examination;

(i) the acceptance by the Official Trustee of trusts for religious purposes and trusts which involve the management or carrying on of business; and

(j) any matter in this Act directed to be prescribed.

(3) Rules made under the provisions of this section shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have effect as if enacted in this Act.

[Act XVII, 1864, s. 34.]

Division of Presidency into Provinces.

31. (1) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Act, the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India,—

(a) remove any of the territories included in the Presidency of Bengal from such Presidency and constitute the same

into provinces for the purposes of this Act;

(b) direct that for the purposes of this Act any of the territories of any Native State in India shall be included in any Province so constituted; and

(c) appoint any person qualified in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 4, or who holds office under Government to be an Official Trustee for any such Province, to be called the Official Trustee of the Province, and subject to the provisions of this section the following consequences shall thereupon ensue, namely:—

(i) the Official Trustee of a Province shall by that name have the like rights, powers, privileges and liabilities, and perform the like duties in the Province as the Official Trustee of the Presidency within which such territories were included had and performed as Official Trustee therein, and shall be deemed to be his successor in office:

(ii) the powers and duties of the Government under this Act shall, as regards the Province, be exercised and discharged by the Governor General in Council, or by such Local Government as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, appoint in this behalf; and the Gazette of the Government exercising and discharging such powers and duties shall be the official Gazette of the Province for the purposes of this Act:

(iii) the powers and duties assigned by the foregoing provisions of this Act to the High Court shall be exercised and discharged in respect of such Province by such Court as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, appoint in this behalf:

(iv) in the foregoing provisions of this Act, the word "Presidency" shall be deemed to include a province; and

(v) generally, the provisions of the foregoing sections with respect to the High Court and the provisions of this Act and of any other enactment for the time being in force with respect to the Official Trustee of a Presidency shall, in relation to a Province, be construed so far as may be to apply to the Court and the Official Trustee respectively appointed for the Province under this section.

(2) Any proceeding which was commenced before the publication of the notification constituting the province and to or in which the Official Trustee of any Presidency within which any territories constituted into a Province are situate was a party or was otherwise concerned shall be continued as if the notification had not been published.

(3) If by reason of the constitution of provinces for the purposes of this Act it appears to the Governor General in Council that any property vested in the Official Trustee of any Presidency should be vested in the Official Trustee of a Province he may direct that the property shall be so vested and thereupon it shall vest in the Official Trustee of the Province as fully and effectually for the purposes of this Act as if it had originally been vested in him under this Act.

(4) If in accordance with the provisions of this section territories have been removed from the Presidency of Bengal and constituted a Province for the purposes of this Act, the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct that as regards the Presidency of Bengal excluding the territories so removed the powers and duties of the Government under the Act shall be exercised and discharged by the Local Government of Bengal, and that the official Gazette shall be the Calcutta Gazette.

(5) Upon the rescission of a notification constituting a Province under sub-section (1), the territories comprised therein shall again form part of the Presidency within which they were originally included, the office of Official Trustee for the Province shall determine and all properties vested in and all proceedings by or against such Official Trustee pending at the date of the rescission shall vest in and be carried on by or against such Official Trustee or Official Trustees as the Governor General in Council may direct.

Saving of provisions of Indian Registration Act, 1908.

32. Nothing contained in this Act shall be deemed to affect the provisions of the Indian Registration Act, 1908. XVI of 1908

Repeals.

33. The enactments specified in the Schedule are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the fourth column thereof:

Provided that any property subject to a trust by or in pursuance of any such enactment vested in any Official Trustee at the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to be vested in the Official Trustee under this Act to be held by him upon the same trusts as those upon which such property was held before such commencement.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 17th February, 1913 :—

No. 1 of 1913.

A Bill for settling certain properties belonging to Sir Currimbhoy Ebrahim, Baronet, so as to accompany and support the title and dignity of a Baronet lately conferred on him by His Majesty King George V to hold to him and the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten and to be begotten, and for other purposes connected therewith.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of the Bill is to settle the endowment of the Baronetcy conferred on Sir Currimbhoy Ebrahim of Bombay.

It has been framed generally on the lines of Acts VI of 1893 and XIX of 1911, and has been settled in concert with Sir Currimbhoy Ebrahim's legal advisers and the Government of Bombay.

As, however, the income of the properties proposed to be settled by the Bill may prove inadequate in future for the purpose of maintaining the dignity of the title, clause 25 of the Bill proposes to take power to add to the settlement immoveable property to a limited extent. The power, it should be observed, is made exerciseable only once. Further, the Bill provides that the bulk of the properties for the time being included in the settlement will be periodically set free and replaced by other properties of an equal value.

No 25. The Governor General has been pleased, under Rule 23 of the Rules for the conduct of the Legislative Business of the Council of the Governor General, to order the publication in the Gazette of India in English of the following Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, and the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons are accordingly hereby published for general information :—

No. 2 of 1913.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

XLV of 1860. V of 1898.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1913.

Amendment of section 40, Indian Penal Code.

2. In section 40 of the Indian Penal Code, after the word and figures "Chapter IV", the word, figure and letter "Chapter VA" shall be inserted.

Insertion of new Chapter in the Indian Penal Code.

3. After Chapter V of the said Code, the following Chapter shall be inserted, namely :-

"CHAPTER VA.

CRIMINAL CONSPIRACY.

Definition of criminal conspiracy.

120A. When two or more persons combine and agree to do or cause to be done—

(1) an illegal act; or

(2) an act which is not illegal by illegal means,

such an agreement is designated a criminal conspiracy :

Provided that no agreement except an agreement to commit an offence shall amount to a criminal conspiracy unless some act besides the agreement is done to effect the object thereof by one or more parties to such agreement.

Explanation.—It is immaterial whether the illegal act is the ultimate object of such agreement, or is merely incidental to that object.

Punishment of criminal conspiracy.

120B. (1) Whoever is a party to a criminal conspiracy to commit an offence punishable with death, transportation or rigorous imprisonment for a term of two years or upwards shall, where no express provision is made in this Code, for the punishment of such a conspiracy, be punished in the same manner as if he had abetted such offence.

(2) Whoever is a party to a criminal conspiracy other than a criminal conspiracy to commit an offence punishable as aforesaid, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term not exceeding six months, or with fine or with both."

Amendment of Schedule II of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 189 .

4. In Schedule II of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 after the entries relating to Chapter V, the entries contained in the Schedule hereto annexed shall be inserted.

"CHAPTER VA.

Conspiracy.

120B.	Criminal conspiracy to commit an offence punishable with death, transportation or rigorous imprisonment for a term of two years or upwards.	May arrest without warrant if arrest for the offence which is the object of the conspiracy may be made without warrant, but not otherwise	According as a warrant or summons may issue for the offence which is the object of the conspiracy.	According as the offence which is the object of the conspiracy is bailable or not.	Not compoundable.	The same punishment as that provided for the abetment of the offence which is the object of the conspiracy.	The Court by which the offence which is the object of the conspiracy is triable.
	Any other criminal conspiracy.	Shall not arrest without a warrant.	Summons .	Bailable .	Ditto .	Imprisonment of either description for six months and fine or both.	Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE sections of the Indian Penal Code which deal directly with the subject of conspiracy are those contained in Chapter V and section 121A of that Code. Under the latter provision it is an offence to conspire to commit any of the offences punishable by section 121 of the Indian Penal Code, or to conspire to deprive the King of the sovereignty of British India or of any part thereof, or to overawe, by means of criminal force or the show of criminal force, the Government of India or any Local Government, and to constitute a conspiracy under this section it is not necessary that any act or illegal omission should take place in pursuance thereof. Under section 107 abetment includes the engaging with one or more person or persons in any conspiracy for the doing of a thing, if an act or illegal omission takes place in pursuance of that conspiracy, and in order to the doing of that thing. In other words, except in respect of the offences particularized in section 121A, conspiracy per se is not an offence under the Indian Penal Code.

On the other hand by the common law of England if two or more persons agree together to do anything contrary to law, or to use unlawful means in the carrying out of an object not otherwise unlawful, the persons who so agree commit the offence of conspiracy. In other words conspiracy in England may be defined as an agreement of two or more persons to do an unlawful act or to do a lawful act by unlawful means, and the parties to such a conspiracy are liable to indictment.

Experience has shown that dangerous conspiracies are entered into in India which have for their object aims other than the commission of the offences specified in section 121A of the Indian Penal Code, and that the existing law is inadequate to deal with modern conditions. The present Bill is designed to assimilate the provisions of the Indian Penal Code to those of the English law with the additional safeguard that in the case of a conspiracy other than a conspiracy to commit an offence some overt act is necessary to bring the conspiracy within the purview of the criminal law. The Bill makes criminal conspiracy a substantive offence, and when such a conspiracy is to commit an offence punishable with death, transportation or rigorous imprisonment for a term of two years or upwards, and no express provision is made in the Code, provides a punishment of the same nature as that which might be awarded for the abetment of such an offence. In all other cases of criminal conspiracy the punishment contemplated is imprisonment of either description for a term not exceeding six months or with fine or with both.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of matches made with white phosphorus was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 25th February, 1913 :—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of matches made with white phosphorus was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

Papers No. 1 – Endorsement by Department of Commerce and Industry, dated 27th January, 1913, forwarding letter from the Secretary, Karachi Chamber of Commerce, No. 38, dated 18th January, 1913.

2. We have amended clause 6 of the Bill so as to provide that orders under this clause shall only be made by Presidency Magistrates, Sub-divisional Magistrates and Magistrates of the first class; otherwise save for one purely verbal change, the Bill has not been amended.

3. We have considered the question as to whether sub-clause (3) of clause 1 should be amended so as to postpone the date upon which the Act will come into operation, but we do not think that sufficient reasons have been given for any amendment in the Bill in this respect.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to declare the rights of mussalmans to make settlements of property by way of "wakf" in favour of their families, children and descendants was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 25th February, 1913 :—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to declare the rights of Mussalmans to make settlements of property by way of wakf in favour of their families, children and descendants was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

2. We have restricted the provisions of the Bill so as to confine it to a measure specifically declaring the rights of Mussalmans to create wakfs of the character referred to in clause 3.

PAPERS No. 22.—From Secretary, Anjuman-i-Zeal Islam, Bombay, dated May, 1912, and enclosure.

3. The clauses which deal with the manner in which wakfs may be created and with the registration of deeds creating wakfs have been omitted as they make important changes in the personal law governing Mussalmans, and the avowed object of the Bill is not to make any change in this law but to restore it to the position which it is believed by many competent authorities to have occupied prior to the decisions of the Privy Council referred to in the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

4. The omission of these clauses has made it possible to omit many of the definitions and to shorten the Bill considerably.

5. We have added a clause to make it clear that no wakf is to be deemed to be invalid merely because the ultimate dedication to the poor or other charitable object of a permanent nature is postponed until after the extinction of the family of the person creating the wakf.

6. We have further provided that nothing in the Bill shall affect any sectarian or local custom or usage.

* I do not wish to raise any objection to the Bill as it now stands on the distinct assurance that it does not make any change in the Mussalman Law of wakfs, but merely restores it to the position which it occupied prior to the recent decisions of the Privy Council. In my opinion a declaratory form would have been preferable.

[BILL AS AMENDED BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.]

A Bill to declare the rights of Mussalmans to make settlements of property by way of "wakf" in favour of their families, children and descendants.

WHEREAS doubts have arisen regarding the validity of wakfs created by persons professing the Mussalman faith in favour of themselves, their families, children and descendants and ultimately for the benefit of the poor or for other religious, pious or charitable purposes; and whereas it is expedient to remove such doubts; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Mussalman Wakf Validating Act, 1913,

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

Definitions.

2. In this Act unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,

(1) "Wakf" means the permanent dedication by a person professing the Mussalman faith of any property for any purpose recognized by the Mussalman law as religious, pious or charitable.

(2) "Hanafi Mussalman" means a follower of the Mussalman faith who conforms to the tenets and doctrines of the Hanafi school of Mussalman law.

Power of Mussalmans to create certain wakfs.

3. It shall be lawful for any person professing the Mussalman faith to create a wakf which in all other respects is in accordance with the provisions of Mussalman law, for the following among other purposes :—

(a) for the maintenance and support wholly or partially of his family, children or descendants, and

(b) where the person creating a wakf is a Hanafi Mussalman, also for his own maintenance and support during his lifetime or for the payment of his debts out of the rents and profits of the property dedicated :

Provided that the ultimate benefit is in such cases expressly or impliedly reserved for the poor or for any other purpose recognised by the Mussalman law as a religious, pious or charitable purpose of a permanent character.

Wakfs not to be invalid by reason of remoteness of benefit to poor, etc.

4. No such wakf shall be deemed to be invalid merely because the benefit reserved therein for the poor or other religious, pious or charitable purpose of a permanent nature is postponed until after the extinction of the family, children or descendants of the person creating the wakf.

Saving of local and sectarian custom.

5. Nothing in this Act shall affect any custom or usage, whether local or prevalent, among Mussalmans of any particular class or sect.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE sections of the Indian Penal Code which deal directly with the subject of conspiracy are those contained in Chapter V and section 121A of that Code. Under the latter provision it is an offence to conspire to commit any of the offences punishable by section 121 of the Indian Penal Code, or to conspire to deprive the King of the sovereignty of British India or of any part thereof, or to overawe, by means of criminal force or the show of criminal force, the Government of India or any Local Government, and to constitute a conspiracy under this section it is not necessary that any act or illegal omission should take place in pursuance thereof. Under section 107 abetment includes the engaging with one or more person or persons in any conspiracy for the doing of a thing, if an act or illegal omission takes place in pursuance of that conspiracy, and in order to the doing of that thing. In other words, except in respect of the offences particularized in section 121A, conspiracy per se is not an offence under the Indian Penal Code.

On the other hand by the common law of England if two or more persons agree together to do anything contrary to law, or to use unlawful means in the carrying out of an object not otherwise unlawful, the persons who so agree commit the offence of conspiracy. In other words conspiracy in England may be defined as an agreement of two or more persons to do an unlawful act or to do a lawful act by unlawful means, and the parties to such a conspiracy are liable to indictment.

Experience has shown that dangerous conspiracies are entered into in India which have for their object aims other than the commission of the offences specified in section 121A of the Indian Penal Code, and that the existing law is inadequate to deal with modern conditions. The present Bill is designed to assimilate the provisions of the Indian Penal Code to those of the English law with the additional safeguard that in the case of a conspiracy other than a conspiracy to commit an offence some overt act is necessary to bring the conspiracy within the purview of the criminal law. The Bill makes criminal conspiracy a substantive offence, and when such a conspiracy is to commit an offence punishable with death, transportation or rigorous imprisonment for a term of two years or upwards, and no express provision is made in the Code, provides a punishment of the same nature as that which might be awarded for the abetment of such an offence. In all other cases of criminal conspiracy the punishment contemplated is imprisonment of either description for a term not exceeding six months or with fine or with both.

R. H. CRADDOCK.

The 26th February, 1913.

W. H. VINCENT,

Secretary to the Government of India.

17TH FEBRUARY, 1913.] [Mr. Ghuznavi; Malik Umar Hayat Khan; Mr. Syed Ali Imam.]

As regards the elaborate provisions relating to the registration of wakfnama, I feel that a great deal of it may be omitted with advantage. The enormous powers that are proposed to be given to the officers registering the deed are, to my mind, absolutely unsafe and injudicious. The power to consider whether a wakfnama has been duly drawn up in terms of this measure should be vested in the hands of a judiciary. The provisions for safeguarding the interests of the creditors should also be revised carefully, and care should be taken that the perpetration of frauds of the kind may not be possible.

"There are many points in this Bill to which I should like to refer, and to which I should like to draw the attention of my Hon'ble friend, but as the Bill is about to be referred to a Select Committee in which my friend has given me a place, I propose to refer to them when it comes up for consideration before it, and I therefore do not wish to take up the time of the Council any further. But there is one matter which, with your permission, Sir, I should like to mention before I have done. Property is either lawful or unlawful. No Mussalman, as I understand our laws, can make a wakf of any description of unlawful property. In clause 2, sub-section (7) the words 'moveable property' are made to include stocks, shares, securities, etc., which necessarily also include interests or may include lands acquired by money accrued from interests which is not lawful. Under the circumstances, I would urge upon my friend to consider the advisability of excluding these from the scope of this Bill. Finally, I should like to call the attention of my friend to the necessity of making a provision in his Bill for the validity of wakfs already created and existing. I would suggest that wakfs of immoveable property which fulfil the requirements of the proposed legislation should be recognised as valid."

The Hon'ble Malik Umar Hayat Khan:—"Sir, this is too early a stage to make any remarks on the Bill. As I represent the Muhammadans of the Punjab, who predominate in the province, I will be accused of keeping silent, when a measure for the benefit of the Muhammadans is in the process of going to the Select Committee. Though I have gone through the whole correspondence on this Bill, yet I may have to wait till I ask the opinion of the Punjab Muhammadans further, as I do not want to commit myself before then. Personally I am in accord with the principle of the Bill. If all the aulad, that is, the children in the true sense of the word were treated in every way according to the division of property laid down by Holy Koran, I think then no Muhammadan could differ on the subject. This law came to us thirteen hundred years ago, and has since then continued unaltered. There may be misapprehensions to the effect that it is now brought forward against the present money-lender, but there was no money-lender of the present type at the time, as interest was not allowed, as well as underhandedness of the opposing parties. If any transaction was carried on by both the parties, it was governed by the same law which was devised to safeguard the interests of both who belonged to the same country and same nation. I hope from this it will be seen that there is not much to be feared in this direction. I have not gone into the details of the question purposely as I want to reserve my opinion till I get further directions from the Punjab Muhammadans whom I represent. This Bill will be sifted in the Select Committee which will provide for all the safeguards necessary. I hope there will be no difficulty or opposition in its reaching that stage."

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam:—"In supporting the motion that the Wakf Bill be referred to Select Committee I wish, with your permission, Sir, to explain to the Council what the attitude of the Government of India is towards this legislative measure. We have known for long that the Muhammadans of India as a community have held strong views on the Privy Council decisions which this Bill is intended to overcome. Representations in various forms have reached us clearly indicating that Muhammadan opinion in this country has been gathering in volume and strength against what it considers to have been an innovation on Islamic jurisprudence. Opinions of Muhammadan lawyers of considerable repute have mostly ranged themselves on the side of the popular view. The Right Hon'ble Mr. Amir Ali and Dr. Abdul Majid in England,

[Mr. Syed Ali Imam.] [17TH FEBRUARY, 1913.]

Shamsul-Ulama Md. Yusuf of Calcutta, the well known savant Shamsul-Ulama Shibli Nu'mani of Lucknow and many others of much learning in Islamic jurisprudence do not accept, I put it most deferentially, the correctness of the case-law as it stands at present on the basis of the decisions in question. Apart from individuals of such distinction, public bodies and institutions, like the Moslem League and various others have pronounced strongly in favour of restoring the Muhammadan law in this country to the position which, in their opinion, it occupied before these decisions were given. Then, again, an examination of the texts and authorities largely relied upon by Muhammadans all over the world seems to favour the view that the cry raised against a narrow interpretation of the law of wakf is not without justification. These authorities obviously support the contention that the doctrine dealing with the creation of a wakf in favour of one's own family or descendants forms an integral portion of the Muhammadan law, and that wakf as a family settlement is recognised by all the schools of that law. There appears to be agreement in the principle with some variations as to the mode of creating such trusts. In fact Muhammadan jurists of eminence have not only recognised the validity of such a settlement, but also its merit as an act of grace in the eyes of God from which sanction to the creation of such a wakf has been deduced. A reference in the original of such high authority as the Fatawa Alamgiri, Raddul Mukhtar and Hedaya will leave no room to doubt that the principle of the Bill before the Council as contained in its clause 3 is based on a correct juridical notion of the Mussalmans. In short, the practice which the Bill is intended to validate is, to the best of my information, not only commonly in vogue in Turkey, Egypt, portions of Africa and Persia, but has also received State recognition in those countries whose law Courts accept the question as a settled principle of Muhammadan jurisprudence. Since the introduction of the Bill by Mr. Jinnah, it has been before the country and been favourably received by Muhammadans so far as its main principle goes. I may congratulate the Hon'ble Member on the large consensus of opinion that is in favour of the main principle of his Bill. It may be that wakf-alal-aulad is repugnant to the critical sense of the modern lawyer as an encouragement to the creation of perpetuities, but if we are to allow the Muhammadans in this country the enjoyment of their personal law, their liberation from the restraints imposed by the decisions of the Privy Council is a measure which the Government of India is not disposed to oppose. In the circumstances, we are willing to give our support to a short declaratory Act validating wakfs of the character and under the conditions contained in clause 3 of the Bill which also safeguards the position of the Mussalmans of the Hanafi sect in the matter of creating a wakf.

"As regards the rest of the clauses of the Bill I confess that I consider them not only unnecessary but open to objection. Clause 4, for instance, imposes certain obligations which in some cases may be considered as unreasonable restrictions on the powers of a Muhammadan to create a wakf. Under the existing law it is not necessary to execute a deed or register it for certain forms of wakf by a Muhammadan. The dedication of a prayer carpet to a mosque or a pair of silver lamps to a shrine will be invalid if the provisions of clause 4 are not complied with; but this will clearly be an encroachment on the Muhammadan law which may be considered hardly justifiable. Similarly, these clauses of the Bill are unnecessarily restrictive and cumbrous. The principal reason why the Hon'ble Member has embodied them in his Bill is to prevent fraud on creditors, but one may be permitted to urge that the question of registration and the matter of the fraud on creditors are sufficiently protected by the existing law. There is also safety in the very clear provision of the Muhammadan law itself as regards wakfs that are fraudulent. The Fatawa Alamgiri on the authority of Nahrul Faek has laid it down beyond any cavil that a wakf with a view to defeat or delay creditors will be avoided to the extent of the debt existing at the time of the creation of the endowment, provided there is no other property to satisfy the debt in question. The same principle is emphasised by the Raddul Mukhtar and other authorities. Then, again, some of the very weighty and

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 22nd February 1913.

Burma.—Light showers fell in sixteen districts. The Northern Shan States report 80 cents, the Chin Hills 90 cents and the Pakokku hill tracts 57 cents. Threshing and winnowing of winter rice are nearly completed. Cultivation of spring crops in Upper Burma is progressing. Standing crops are doing well. The price of unhusked rice has fallen at Rangoon.

Assam.—Rain fell in all districts and is favourable to cultivation. Ploughing for early and late rice and jute continues. Transplantation of spring rice is finished in Sylhet. Gathering of mustard, crushing of sugarcane and pruning of tea are in progress. Cattle disease is reported from three districts. The average price of common rice has risen by 2 per cent.

Bengal.—During the week rain fell throughout the Province except in Bogra, Malda and Cooch Behar. The fall was moderate in the Burdwan and Presidency divisions and generally light in the rest of the Province. The recent rain has facilitated ploughing operations for autumn crops. Harvesting of spring crops and pressing of sugarcane are in progress. Prospects of standing crops are generally good. The average price of common rice for the Province has risen by about 1·3 per cent. as compared with that of the previous week. Cattle disease is reported from parts of Nadia, Burdwan, Mymensingh, Tippera and Noakhali.

Bihar and Orissa.—Light to moderate rain fell in all districts of the Province except in Singhbhum. Preparation of lands and harvesting of oilseed crops are going on. Pressing of sugarcane continues. The recent heavy rainfall has done considerable damage to standing oilseed crops in Hazaribagh. Slight damage to wheat and oilseeds is also reported from some districts of Bihar. Standing crops are otherwise doing well. The price of common rice has risen slightly in Bihar and has remained almost stationary in Orissa and Chota Nagpur. The condition of cattle is on the whole good. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Prospects of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa are reported to be good.

United Provinces.—Good and well distributed rain fell throughout the Provinces. The fall was heaviest in the north and west averaging about 1½ inches in the western sub-montane tract and the upper Doab and about an inch in the central Doab and north central and central sub-montane tracts. The rain has been of great value to standing crops especially in the uplands of Mirzapur and has greatly improved the situation. Some damage by hail is reported. Pressing of sugarcane, harvesting of peas and preparation of land for the next crop continue. Crops are ripening. Fodder and water are sufficient. In Mirzapur there are 2,322 persons on test works and 10,140 on ordinary canal works and water works, while in the Chakia district of the Benares State there are 2,950 persons on regular works and 2,512 in receipt of gratuitous relief. Cattle disease is still severe in Bundelkhand but has greatly abated in other parts of the Provinces. Prices are fluctuating with an upward tendency.

Punjab.—The weather has been unsettled throughout the week. Sufficient rain has fallen in all except a few districts. Pressing of sugarcane continues and the outturn is average to good. The condition of irrigated spring crops is average to good, while that of unirrigated crops, which has much benefited by recent rain, is now generally fair. Sowing of extra spring crops continues. Cattle are generally healthy but fodder is insufficient in places. Prices remain high.

North-West Frontier Province.—Good rain fell all over the Province improving standing crops. The weather is cool and still cloudy. Pressing of sugarcane continues and the outturn is normal. Planting of sugarcane is proceeding in Bannu. The condition of cattle is generally good. The water supply is sufficient. Fodder is scarce in Dera Ismail Khan but will soon become available. Prices are high but show a tendency to fall.

Jammu.—The rain during the week was fairly good. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 9 to 10 and maize from 11¼ to 20 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is below average. Cattle disease of mild type prevails in some tahsils of the Province. Fodder is insufficient.

Kashmir.—Good rain fell six times during the week and was beneficial to crops. Ploughing and sowing operations for spring crops are in progress. Prices are normal. Cattle disease prevails in some villages of the Kulgam tahsil. Fodder is average.

Rajputana.—The weather was cold. The rainfall in cents was:—Jaisalmer 2 to 53, Bikaner 10 to 276, Bharatpur 22, Dholpur 39, Karauli 16 to 30 and Alwar 92. There was slight rain in Jaipur and in the Ajmer district. Spring crops are being irrigated and are in normal condition. Some damage to crops from hailstorm is reported from Jaipur, Mewar, Bharatpur, Kotah and the Ajmer district. Prospects are generally fair. Cattle disease is reported in a few places. Fodder and water are sufficient. Prices are generally high and stationary. The opium crop in Kishangarh is doing well.

Central India.—The rainfall was partial in Gwalior and Bhopal, general in Baghelkhand and slight in Bundelkhand with hail-stones. The weather is clear and cool. The outturn of spring crops is good. Cattle disease is reported in parts of Gwalior, Indore, Bhopal and Bundelkhand. The fodder supply is ample. Prices are normal in Bhopal, above normal in Baghelkhand and steady elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—During the week twelve districts received rain, nowhere exceeding 75 cents, accompanied by hail in ten districts which caused serious damage to crops in parts of Jubbulpore, Narsinghpur and Nagpur. In the other districts the damage caused was inconsiderable. Cutting and threshing of spring crops were in progress. Fodder is dear in Akola, Amraoti and Buldana, scarce in Saugor and Wardha and both scarce and dear in the Sausar tahsil of the Chhindwara district. Prices remained fairly steady.

Feudatory States.—During the week ten States received rain, Kanker, Sirguja and Jashpur receiving a heavy shower of about 5 inches. In Nandgaon crops lying unthreshed were damaged slightly. The condition of spring crops is otherwise generally good. Variations in prices are unimportant.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in parts of Sind, the Karnatak and Kolhapur. Standing crops are suffering owing to deficiency of water in parts of Nawabshah. Corps are withering in Ahmednagar and are generally in good condition elsewhere. Harvesting of spring crops is in progress in parts of the Deccan, the Karnatak, Baroda, Rewa Kantha and Kolhapur. Cotton picking continues in parts of Nawabshah, Gujarat, Bijapur, Cutch and Rewa Kantha. The fodder supply is deficient in Ahmednagar. Agricultural stock is generally in good condition and sufficient except in parts of Cutch. The condition of stock is deteriorating in Ahmednagar. Drinking water is generally adequate except in parts of Ahmednagar and Sholapur. Water for Irrigation is deficient in parts of Nawabshah, Ahmedabad, West Khandesh, Ahmednagar, Sholapur and Bijapur. Prices are high but stationary. The public health is generally good. Grain stocks are sufficient.

The weekly report on the famine and scarcity is as follows:—Distress is deepening in Ahmednagar. Emigrants are returning in small numbers. There is no wandering or emaciation. Two kitchens and five poor-houses have been opened. People on relief are generally in good condition. Steps are being taken to organise special measures for weavers and artizans. The public health is generally good. Land revenue suspensions have been granted and takavi advanced freely for fodder and wells. Government grass finds ready sale. Measures for the improvement of the water supply from Government and Local Board grants continue. Four cattle kitchens have been opened from charitable funds. The numbers in receipt of gratuitous relief for the week ending the 22nd February were:—Ahmednagar 18,928, Poona and Sholapur 1,231, total 20,159.

Hyderabad.—The rainfall during the week was slight and isolated except in the Aurangabad, Bir and Raichur districts. The highest fall (1·43 inches) was in Karimnagar. The average was 19 cents. The spring crop is generally fair to good except in parts of the Usmanabad, Aurangabad and Bir districts where it has failed. The spring crop is being generally harvested. The crop was damaged during the recent rain. Late rice is being weeded and irrigated in parts. The crop is thriving. Fodder is being imported into affected talukas. Distribution of takavi continues and ordinary works have been increased for those seeking employment. The daily average number on works during the week ending the 15th February was 8,043. The total number was 56,302. Cattle disease is reported in 8, fodder scarcity in 19 and water scarcity in 14 talukas. Prices:—wheat 6¼, coarse rice 5¼ and juar 11 seers per rupee. White juar is selling in Hyderabad City at 12 seers per rupee. The highest price in districts is 7 seers in Karimnagar and the lowest 24½ seers in Adilabad.

Mysore.—Prices of food grains are steady. Markets are well supplied. Standing crops are in good condition. Prospects of the season are good. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—Threshing of rice continues. Prices of food grains are stationary. The public health is fair. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Madras.—The rainfall was good in the Vizagapatam littoral and in Travancore, and light to fair in the Nilgiris, parts of the Circars and the southwest-coast. There was no rain elsewhere. Standing crops are fair to good. Harvesting of dry crops, paddy and sugarcane is proceeding with outturn fair to normal. Sowings of dry crops and paddy are proceeding normally in parts. The condition of cattle is generally good. Fodder and water are generally sufficient. Prices are almost stationary.

RESOLUTION.

QUESTION WHETHER PERSONS ATTENDING HOSPITALS AND DISPENSARIES MAINTAINED OR ASSISTED FROM PUBLIC FUNDS SHOULD BE CONSIDERED TO BE ENTITLED TO GRATUITOUS MEDICAL ADVICE AND TREATMENT, IRRESPECTIVE OF THEIR CIRCUMSTANCES.

The following Resolution is published for general information :—

No. 1211-C/1222-C.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

MEDICAL.

Delhi, the 19th February 1913.

RESOLUTION.

The Governor-General in Council has recently had occasion to examine, in consultation with local Governments, the question whether persons attending hospitals and dispensaries maintained or assisted from public funds should be considered to be entitled to gratuitous medical advice and treatment, irrespective of their circumstances, or whether payment should be required in the case of those who are not actually poor. The replies received indicate a considerable divergence of practice in the several provinces, as also distinct differences of opinion regarding the policy which it is expedient to adopt, but while recognising that the varying conditions prevailing in different parts of the country render it impossible and undesirable to prescribe any one course for universal adoption, the Government of India are of opinion that it would be useful to set forth the considerations which have been urged on either side and to make known briefly the systems which are now followed, in order that action may be taken to enforce the principle of discrimination which, to their mind, the time has now come to accept.

2. The provinces which are averse from the introduction of a general requirement of payment by those who can afford to do so are Madras, Bengal, Eastern Bengal and Assam * and Burma, and the reasons which have been urged in support of this view may be summarised as follows :—

(a) The really well-to-do do not, as a matter of fact, resort to public hospitals (or at least to an extent likely to interefere seriously with the prospects of private practitioners), being deterred therefrom by prejudices (especially in the case of the ladies of the family), the discomfort of waiting along with others, and the smaller degree of personal attention which can inevitably be given to each case at a public institution as compared with a private home.

(b) The resort of as many people as possible to the public hospitals assists in the spread of a knowledge of the benefits of western medical science, which it is not desirable in any way to discourage, looking to the fact that the existing facilities for efficient medical treatment are admittedle inadequate for the needs of the country. To prevent the access of any class to such hospitals as there are might mean that they were debarred from proper medical advice.

(c) It would be difficult to draw a dividing line between rich and poor without enquiries which would be resented, and which would place an undesirable power in the hands of subordinates.

(d) The flow of private subscriptions (already in many places meagre) might be interrupted by any interference with the charitable aspect of medical relief.

It is not the case, however, that even in the provinces named medical assistance is at present given entirely free. In Madras, medicines as distinct from advice, are generally paid for, both in public and municipal institutions (though not in those maintained by Local Boards), by persons possessing more than a defined minimum income, while charges are recovered in the Presidency hospitals. A similar procedure as regards medicines is followed in Assam. In Burma, and Eastern Bengal, persons of reasonable means are supposed, in theory, to make some return for attendance in the shape of voluntary subscriptions.

3. On the other hand the local Governments of Bombay, the Punjáb, and the Central Provinces are in favour of some system of payment by those in a position to do so for the benefits conferred by public medical institutions. In Bombay rules directed towards this end are under preparation, while in the Central Provinces experiments are being tried with the view of arriving at a satisfactory solution of the difficulty. In the Punjab the Lieutenant-Governor has made a public pronouncement in favour of the imposition of small fees, but it is reported that opposition from municipal committees has been encountered. The local Government of the United Provinces, while conscious of the obstacles which have hitherto been regarded as rendering inexpedient the levy of any charge, considers that these are weakening and that the time has now come to review the position. The arguments upon which reliance is placed by those who advocate some insistence upon a pecuniary return from those capable of making it without hardship are, briefly, as follows :—

(i) The field to be covered before the provision of medical aid in this country can be regarded as sufficient is enormous, and it is therefore all the more necessary that the burden upon public and local funds shall be confined to the cases of the poor who are unable to help themselves. The abuse of charity by those who can afford to pay merely retards the extension of facilities to localities where they are at present unknown.

(ii) The complaint that public institutions unduly hamper private practitioners is not unfounded, and to the extent that the growth of an independent medical profession trained in western methods is thereby hindered, this competition is to be deprecated. Government can never hope to do all that is needed in the matter of medical relief in this country, and it owes it to the men now passed out of its colleges and schools that they shall have a fair opportunity of establishing themselves.

(iii) The difficulties anticipated in the way of the differential treatment of patients of means have in fact been surmounted in some places and should not prove to be insuperable.

4. From the evidence at their disposal the Government of India are convinced that resort is at present had to the public hospitals by persons who are in a position to pay for such benefits, and they consider that it is only fair to the growing private medical profession that an effort should be made to prevent this practice. That these hospitals help greatly to spread the popularity of western medicine they have no doubt, but except, perhaps, in the less developed parts of the country, an appreciation of European methods is already extending, and the efforts of the men trained in the Government colleges and schools are all helping towards this result. With the exception of the more backward areas it should be possible to avoid the pauperisation of the people in the matter of medical relief, without preventing the treatment at the public expense of the poor who are willing to avail themselves of the opportunity, and as the figures show the number of these is yearly increasing. In so far as more funds can be secured from the contributions of those in easier circumstances, the extension of medical aid will be facilitated, and the fear that the refusal of gratuitous treatment to those who cannot be described as indigent will prejudice the progress of western science is apt to be exaggerated. Persons in comfortable circumstances have to be educated up to the recognition of the fact that they have no claim to free medical relief at the cost of the State. The introduction of an efficient system of discrimination must be governed by local conditions; it is mainly a matter of method and supervision, and the efforts which have been made to improve the status of the subordinate establishments should lessen the risk of the harassment of the people at their hands. Moreover, as the people themselves become better educated they should be more capable of protecting themselves. In Madras the limits of income entitling persons to free medicine or otherwise appear to have been fixed by Government, and this also is the intention in Bombay; in the Central Provinces the agency of the dispensary committees is made use of either to prepare lists of those who are considered able to pay, according to a scale laid down by the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals, or to certify as to the suitability of those who can reasonably claim exemption. Another possible method is the requirement of a minimum contribution from a locality before a dispensary is opened in its midst. The immediate treatment of urgent cases in all circumstances can be prescribed without difficulty, but for the rest no hard and first rules can be framed for adoption everywhere, and the local knowledge of those controlling these institutions must be trusted to devise whatever method may best suit the particular conditions to be dealt with.

5. It is sufficient that the Governor-General in Council should make it known that the principle of discrimination is that towards which all provinces should work. Obviously the more important urban centres where supervision is strongest, and the supply of private practitioners adequate, afford the best opportunity for an early move in this direction, and specially is this the case with reference to private wards in the larger hospitals. In fact any patient who can afford to pay for separate accommodation should be charged a reasonable sum in addition for attendance and medicines; and care should be taken not to undersell private nursing homes and chemists' shops or to compete with private medical men. In rural areas progress may be less rapid and it must be adapted to local conditions, but it is the wish of the Government of India that the object to be secured, namely that persons should not be treated at the public expense who can afford to pay, should be consistently kept in view and action gradually taken as circumstances permit to attain this end.

ORDER—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to local Governments and Administrations for information and guidance.

RESOLUTION.

PROCEDURE REGARDING THE SUBMISSION TO THE ROYAL COMMISSION ON THE PUBLIC SERVICES IN INDIA OF THE VIEWS OF THE SERVICES OTHER THAN THE INDIAN CIVIL AND PROVINCIAL CIVIL SERVICES.

Delhi, the 27th February 1913.

The Royal Commission on the Public Services have informed the Government of India that in the course of their enquiries during the cold weather of 1913-14, while not desiring to restrict any individual member of a Service from placing before the Commission such evidence as he may wish to give, it would be more convenient to them if some means could be found of giving expression to the corporate opinion of various Services as a whole, or of sections of them representative of different views. They accordingly ask that the members of the Services noted in the margin may be allowed to take such steps as will enable them to submit, through representatives, to the Commission memoranda under the following nine heads:

1. Indian Finance Department.
2. Mint and Assay Department.
3. Military Finance Department.
4. Railway Department.
5. Survey of India Department.
6. Postal Department.
7. Telegraph Department.
8. Customs Department.
9. Northern India Salt Revenue Department.
10. Indian Mines Department.
11. Geological Survey Department.

I. Methods of recruitment.
II. System of training and probation.
III. Conditions of service.
IV. Conditions of salary.
V. Conditions of leave.
VI. Conditions of pension.
VII. Such limitations as may exist in the employment of non-Europeans, and the working of the existing system of division of Services into Imperial and Provincial.
VIII. Relations of the Service with the Indian Civil Service and other services.
IX. Any other points within the terms of reference to the Royal Commission not covered by the preceding heads.

2. The Royal Commission state that they would be glad to obtain these memoranda by the 10th April before they leave India, but would accept them if posted to them at the India Office, London, by the mail leaving Bombay on the 3rd May. It would meet their convenience if such memoranda were printed and if 50 copies of each were sent.

3. The Government of India have no objection to action being taken on the lines proposed by the members of the Services mentioned, and intimation to this effect will be given through the Heads of the different Departments concerned.

Ordered that a copy of the above Resolution be communicated to all Departments of the Government of India (except the Army Department) with the request that the necessary instructions may be issued in respect of the Services with which each Department is concerned. The details of any facilities to be given to the members of the various Services in order to enable them to comply with the wishes of the Commission may be left to the Head of each Department to arrange.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

PART VI.

Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India, assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE INDIAN COUNCILS ACTS, 1861 to 1909 (24 & 25 Vict., c. 67, 55 & 56 Vict., c. 14, AND 9 Edw. VII, c. 4).

The Council met at the Council Chamber, Imperial Secretariat, Delhi, on Tuesday, the 25th February, 1913.

PRESENT :

The Hon'ble SIR GUY FLEETWOOD WILSON, G.C.I.E., K.C.B., K.C.M.G., Vice-President, presiding, and 58 Members, of whom 51 were Additional Members.

OATH OF OFFICE.

The President: "Members who have to take the oath will please come up to the table in the order named by the Secretary."

The following Additional Members made the prescribed oath or affirmation of allegiance to the Crown:—

The Hon'ble Mr. Gopal Krishna Gokhale, C.I.E.
" Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee.
" Mr. J. C. Arbuthnott, C.I.E.
" Major J. C. Robertson, I.M.S.
" Raja Kushalpal Singh, M.A., LL.B., of Kotla.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. R. Pandit asked:—

"With reference to the statement made by the Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler on the 8th March, 1912, during the discussion on the Hon'ble Mr. Mudholkar's

[Rao Bahadur V. R. Pandit; Sir Harcourt Butler; Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis; Mr. Gillan; Maharaja Manindra Chandra Nandi; Sir Reginald Craddock; Mr. Fuzulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim.] [25TH FEBRUARY, 1913.]

Resolution relating to the Department of Archæology, to the effect that the Government of India were about to forward to the Secretary of State proposals for the creation of an Oriental Research Institute, will the Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether any, and if so what, progress has been made with the scheme for the creation and establishment of such an Institute?

(b) and whether it is a fact that such an Institute located in some central locality in India will meet a long-felt want in this country?"

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied :—

"The Hon'ble Member is referred to paragraph 58 of the Government of India (Education) Resolution No. 301 C. D., dated the 21st February 1913."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis asked :—

"Will the Government of India be pleased to state whether they propose to publish the official correspondence which passed between the Government of India and the Secretary of State relating to the suspension of sales of certified opium and reduction of uncertified opium?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Gillan replied :—

"The Government do not propose to publish the correspondence referred to, which is of a confidential nature."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis asked :—

"Is Government aware that Indian trade is greatly hampered on account of the present opium policy, and that a large amount of Indian money has been locked up in opium warehouses in Chinese ports?

"Will Government be pleased to state if it will relieve the strain on the money market by lending money in Banks or their surplus funds to Bankers on Indian Government securities?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Gillan replied :—

"The answer to my Hon'ble friend is in the negative."

The Hon'ble Maharaja Manindra Chandra Nandi asked :—

"Will the Government be pleased to state what scheme, if any, is in contemplation to give some right of representation to the Indian population of the Province of Delhi in the Legislative Council of the Governor General?"

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock replied :—

"In the Imperial Legislative Council, as at present constituted, having regard to the maximum membership permissible and the claims of the other parts of the country, it is impossible to allot any seat to an electorate to be created at Delhi. While the Council sits at Delhi, the Chief Commissioner of Delhi is an ex-officio member, and he is in a position to advise upon any questions of particular interest to his charge."

The Hon'ble Mr. Fuzulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim asked :—

"Will Government be pleased to say whether they propose to publish the correspondence, if any, that has taken place between the Government of India and His Majesty's Secretary of State for India on the subject of the Moslem University?

"Has any despatch been received from the Secretary of State on the subject of the Moslem University subsequently to the letter addressed by the Hon'ble Member for Education to the President of the Moslem University Constitution Committee in August, 1912?"

[25TH FEBRUARY, 1913.] [Sir Harcourt Butler; Mr. Fuzulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim; Sir Reginald Craddock.]

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied:—

"The Government of India do not propose to publish the correspondence alluded to and are unable to make any statement on the matter which is still under discussion."

The Hon'ble Mr. Fuzulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim asked:—

"Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the total expenditure from State revenues,

(b) the total number of students, and

(c) the number of Moslem students, with reference to—

(a) Government Arts Colleges,

(b) Non-Moslem Grant-in-aid Arts Colleges, and

(c) Each of the Moslem Grant-in-aid Arts Colleges?"

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied:—

"The information as regards Government Arts Colleges is:—

(a) Rs. 11,64,967; (b) 6,178; (c) 2,803. These figures are for the year 1910-11.

"Reliable information cannot be given regarding non-Moslem and Moslem grant-in-aid colleges, the great majority of such colleges being undenominational and open to Hindus, Muhammadans and Members of other communities alike. It was however reported in 1909 that the Muhammadan Anglo-Oriental College, Aligarh, would be in receipt of grants aggregating Rs. 26,400 a year when the Professor of Arabic reached his maximum salary. This was exclusive of a further fixed recurring grant of Rs. 8,760 for the collegiate school, and of capital grants. Grants have likewise been made for an Islamia College at Peshawar. Local Governments will shortly be addressed on the subject of Muhammadan education."

THE INDIAN EXTRADITION (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Indian Extradition Act, 1903, be taken into consideration. He said:—

"Hon'ble Members will have seen that the Select Committee have proposed a few small additions to the amendment of the law which the Bill was intended to effect, and I will presently explain those proposed additions to the Council; but before doing so, as many members of the Council were not at Simla when the Bill was introduced, I should like to say a few words about the genesis of this Bill. The Bill, as it was introduced, was merely intended to remove a doubt as to the legality of the proceedings of a Presidency Magistrate acting under section 7 of the Act. The Presidency Magistrate had not been specifically mentioned in this section, but it was believed that, since a Presidency-town is a district under section 7, sub-section 4, of the Criminal Procedure Code, the term 'the District Magistrate of a District,' used in this Act, would include the Presidency Magistrate. Recently, however, a case arose in Madras in which the Advocate General of that Presidency expressed his opinion that the point was open to some doubt, and although Presidency Magistrates have all these years acted on the belief that they had jurisdiction under section 7 of the Act, it was considered advisable to remove, by specific amendment, any doubts on the subject that may exist, or might hereafter arise. The amendment was thus a purely formal one. It was not intended to introduce any new practice, but merely to legalise the practice already followed. It was therefore no small surprise to the Government of India to find that this harmless little amendment was apparently exciting opposition in Bombay.

[Sir Reginald Craddock.] [25TH FEBRUARY, 1913.]

"The Government are quite unable to admit that there is the slightest ground for any apprehension as to the working of this section as amended. During the triennium 1909-11 there were over 3,000 warrants issued by Political Agents and executed by Magistrates in British India. Twenty-one of these warrants were executed by the Presidency Magistrate of Bombay, and since the Act came into force, no less than 144 warrants of this kind have been executed in Presidency-towns. No case of hardship or of improper use of such warrants has ever come to light. All the Local Governments, the Agents to the Governor General and Residents are unanimous on this point.

"The fact that a Presidency Magistrate in Bombay has exercised these powers from time to time without apparently the good citizens of Bombay being actually aware of the fact seems to us to dispel completely all fear of the terrible consequences which the Bombay people seem to imagine would follow the passing of this little amendment. Sir, we are accustomed, when new legislation is under contemplation, to hear all sorts of dire prophesies as to what will ensue; and it is difficult and perhaps impossible to disprove alleged hardships, or rather anticipated hardships that will occur under any law before the law has come into force; but general experience is that, if difficulties arise in carrying out an Act, those difficulties refer generally not to matters which were foreseen, but to matters which were not foreseen. In this case, however, we have nine years' evidence before us to show that these consequences have not occurred and do not occur, and the presumption therefore that they will not occur in future is a very strong one.

"I will turn now to the amendments specifically recommended by the Select Committee which have been accepted by the Government. They are not designed to introduce anything new into the Act. They merely include specifically in the law a procedure which could at any time have been followed by the Magistrates under the Act as it stands. Under the existing section 15 the Government of India or the Local Governments have the power to stay proceedings and to cancel any warrant issued by a Political Agent. It has therefore always been open to a Magistrate who executes a Political Agent's warrant to refer any case that presents special features to the Local Government if he considered that this course was advisable. Clearly a Magistrate who sent up a case under that section would only do so either if there was something on the face of the warrant which indicated a mistake or irregularity, or if when the accused person was brought before him, before being made over to the authority issuing the warrant, he made some representation which led the Magistrate to think that the case was of an exceptional nature, and that it should be brought to the notice of the Local Government. Every accused person who was arrested in this way would, in the ordinary course, have been brought before the Magistrate before he was made over, and it was always open to him, and he always had the chance, to make any statements that he pleased. The only thing about the Act was that it was certainly laconic on these points and it left this procedure to be taken for granted as the ordinary kind of precaution which a Magistrate would adopt and the ordinary method by which a case could be brought to the notice of the Local Government for action under section 15 if it thought fit; but we have thought it advisable, as apprehensions exist, to include specifically this procedure in the Act, and I hope that it will relieve all the anxieties of our Bombay friends. Further than that the Government is not prepared to go.

"I should like to remind Hon'ble Members, however, that the procedure regulating the issue of warrants by Political Agents is governed by rules framed under section 22 of the Act. I do not propose to take up the time of the Council now in explaining those rules, but if any Hon'ble Member should still, by any chance, have any hesitation regarding the procedure that will be followed in giving effect to section 7 of the Act, I feel sure that the Hon'ble Sir Henry McMahon will be only too ready to explain to Hon'ble Members what very ample safeguards these rules contain against any arbitrary and unreasonable procedure under the Act, or any hasty issue of warrants without due precaution.

[25TH FEBRUARY, 1913.] [Mr. Fuzulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim; Malik Umar Hayat Khan.]

"I therefore move that the Report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration."

The Hon'ble Mr. Fuzulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim:—"Sir, we owe it to the conciliatory attitude of the Hon'ble Member in charge, the Hon'ble the Law Member and the Hon'ble Foreign Secretary that the Bill now before the Council contains provisions which, though not meeting the arguments put forward by the Bombay memorialists, are demonstrative of the earnest desire of Government to minimise the chances of abuse of the large powers given to Feudatory States under the Bill. Judging from the spirit shown by Government, the hope is not extravagant that any such abuse in future will move them to undertake a more equitable amendment of the Extradition law. Government are perhaps justified in evincing a reluctance to take seriously alarmist apprehensions of injurious consequences; and when State considerations appear to counsel the extension of the application of the Extradition Act to the Presidency-towns, we should accept the change for the time being, and be thankful for the concessions made. Our acquiescence on the present occasion will give point to our future appeal to Government for a thorough overhauling of the whole law on production of any proof of injustice under the amended Act.

"Sir, the Bill has emerged from the Select Committee with improvements equitable and important enough to secure for it the support of the Council. Hon'ble Members will be pleased to note that sub-clause (2) of clause 2 and clause 3 of the Bill effect a material change in the preliminary procedure. They are intended to be safeguards. Whether their practical effect will be much is another matter; but they are inserted in the Bill by way of compromise. Government is obviously convinced of the necessity of checks, and that is a point gained. I wish more comprehensive changes could have been made in Select Committee, but in the peculiar situation I have had to be content with what I could get

"I have further been assured in Select Committee that Government will, by rule, expunge the words 'or otherwise' in rule 4 of the rules framed under the Extradition Act of 1903, and make it obligatory upon the Political Agent to satisfy himself that there is a primâ facie case after a regular judicial inquiry, although it would certainly have been better if provision to that effect had been made in the Bill itself. This is a substantial concession to public opinion for which we are indebted to the Hon'ble Member in charge, the Hon'ble Law Member and the Hon'ble Foreign Secretary.

"But, Sir, after all the safeguards inserted in Select Committee will, in my humble opinion, provide but little protection. In the first place, accused persons, as a rule, hesitate to make statements at the initial stages of proceedings, and that for the best and soundest of reasons. The fact that such statements may be used in subsequent trials outside British India will only inspire greater caution. Few people will in the result avail themselves of the opportunity of submitting explanations before extradition to enable the British Magistrate to move the Local Government for their release. In the next place, it is too much to hope that the British Magistrate will be inclined to go up to Government on behalf of an accused person merely on an examination of the facts as stated by the prosecution and the statement recorded by him under clause 2, sub-clause (2) of the Bill. I have little hope clause 3 will be invoked successfully by the accused to any large extent. All the same, as pointed out above, we must watch developments and allow time to show the reality of the fears entertained by the Bombay memorialists. I accordingly support the motion that the Bill as amended be passed."

The Hon'ble Malik Umar Hayat Khan:—"Sir, with your permission, I should like to offer a few remarks on the Bill under consideration. It was introduced into the Council merely with the intention of removing doubts as to the legality of certain methods of procedure under the Extradition Act in Presidency-towns, and in fact the principle which the Bill enunciates has been followed in practice without any question in at least two Presidency-towns. It has also worked fairly and equitably throughout the rest of British India. When it was referred to Select Committee it was opposed by certain members on the ground that it might operate severely in the Presidency-town of Bombay, and although the Committee were unable to see why residents in Presidency-towns should be vested with any special privileges, yet, in deference to the wishes of the opponents of the Bill, amendments have been introduced which provide ample safeguards in the case of any accused arrested under a warrant under the Act. Personally I hesitated for some time before I signed the Report, because I was of opinion that the safeguards were not necessary, and that the amendments made in the Bill might cause delay, expense and inconvenience, but as I was willing to meet the wishes of the rest of the Committee as far as possible I finally decided that it was not necessary for me to record a minute of dissent. I desire to say, however, that in my opinion the apprehensions of the Hon'ble Member appear to be groundless, and this Council has no evidence before it to justify them in supposing that the provisions of the Bill will be improperly used, nor, as I have said before, is there any reason why residents in Presidency-towns should receive different treatment from other Indian subjects of His Majesty the King-Emperor. The inquiries made show that the law at present has not in any way proved inequitable to those affected by it, and that it has been of use in providing an expeditious procedure for the extradition of criminals. The rules framed by the Foreign Department effectually prevent any abuse of the section, and the fact that warrants are issued by Political Agents is in itself a guarantee that they will only be issued after careful investigation into the facts. It is not correct to say that Political Agents have no judicial training. They are officials who have great experience in sifting evidence and have, further, considerable knowledge of all that goes on in the Native States to which they are appointed. In these circumstances, in my opinion, they might safely be entrusted with the duty of issuing warrants and are more competent judges as to whether a case is one in which extradition should be granted than many magistrates in British India. In these circumstances, my own view was, as I have stated before, that the Bill should have been passed as introduced, but with the amendments now inserted it is certainly not open to the objection raised to it. I therefore desire to support the motion now before the Council.

"Now, Sir, supposing certain witnesses were ordered to go to Bombay which is very very far away. First, one has to go by tonga, then one has to go by train—and the expenses of sending eleven or twelve witnesses to Bombay or to some other Presidency-town are great and have to be borne by some State. It will be very inconvenient for the man who is there, because he will be in the lock-up uselessly, and also for these witnesses, supposing it was at a time when they had to sow their crops or to cut them. If at such a time they were sent to a place thousands of miles away, they would simply be ruined. And that is again one of the causes why it will be exceedingly awkward if these men are made to go to one of these Presidency-towns. So I hope that the motion of before the Council will be passed."

The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah:—"Sir, I have listened to the speech of the Hon'ble Member in charge of this Bill with very great attention. I am sorry to say that I was not present when this Bill was introduced at Simla, and also that I was not present when the Bill was referred to Select Committee; therefore I do not know the stages through which the Bill has gone, and my position is somewhat difficult. That position is made still more difficult by the remark that fell from the Hon'ble the Home Member that the Government had agreed to certain amendments in Select Committee and that further than that they are not prepared to go, so what little hope I had when I entered this Council-hall this morning, is, if I may say so, almost shattered; but I still venture, Sir, to put my views before this Council, and I particularly appeal to the Government and the Hon'ble Member in charge of this Bill. I still hope that after what I shall presently make clear to the Council, he will please consider those points which I want very earnestly to bring to his attention. No doubt, Sir, this Bill, as it was introduced, was certainly not liked in Bombay and the people of Bombay felt that they proposed a change which certainly revolutionized the position of Presidency-towns.

"The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill said that when the old Bill was passed into law in 1903, it was intended to apply to the whole of British India, but by some kind of slip which we in Bombay thought to be providential the Presidency-towns did not come under the purview of that Bill. The advantage was, this: that if a man happened to be in any Presidency-town and if any Foreign State or Native State wanted to extradite that man from any Presidency-town, then a primâ facie case had to be made out before the Presidency Magistrate. That was an advantage which I can understand any man may well prize before he is taken away under arrest by virtue of the warrant into a Foreign State, and before he is handed over to be tried by the judiciary of a Foreign State. And here I may point out this with very very great respect for the Native States: there are Native States and Native States; there are judiciaries and judiciaries. Therefore, Sir, it was a very great advantage to the Presidency-towns. Now it is said: 'But it applies to the districts, and why should a British subject in a Presidency-town have better advantages than other subjects of the British Empire in districts in British India?' Is that any argument, Sir, that because British subjects in the districts labour under certain disadvantages, therefore you must bring those disadvantages into Presidency-towns that are labouring under no such disadvantages? That is an argument that does not appeal to me. But, says the Hon'ble Malik of Tiwana, why should the people in Presidency-towns enjoy better advantages than people not in Presidency-towns. My answer would be that they can put that right in the districts, but that is no reason why you should put people in the Presidency-towns under a similar disadvantage. That is hardly an argument. The question really is this. It may be that owing to certain exigencies, owing to certain reasons, the Government may desire to introduce this measure, but it seems to me that on principle, and on principle alone, the effect of this measure will be, so far as the Presidency-towns are concerned, to withdraw the security that we have had hitherto, namely, that before a man is taken away to be tried by any foreign judiciary a primâ facie case must be made out before a competent, fully qualified and efficient judiciary in any of the Presidency-towns. That privilege is going to be taken away from us. Therefore I regret to say that I do not feel satisfied with this measure. But as I said before I am somewhat late in entering this protest here to-day. Therefore, not being satisfied with this Bill as it stands, I would appeal to Government and the Member in charge to alter the Bill so as not to take away any possible advantage given to us before this Bill was introduced. As the Hon'ble Member pointed out, under section 15 of the Extradition Act, Government—either the Government of India or the Local Government—had the power to stay the proceedings and cancel the warrant. That section 15 did not provide the methods or the kind of inquiry which should be made before the Government took that step. Under that section 15 it seems to me that the Government had ample power to deal with this case; but as the Hon'ble the Home Member has pointed out, that power could have also been exercised by the Presidency Magistrate in this way: he could have made such inquiry himself as he may have thought proper and section 15 being quite silent on the point, he could have drawn the attention of Government to the particular case. Under that state of things, it seems to me, Sir, that the Magistrate had much greater powers than the powers given to the Magistrate to-day; because by this amended section 8 A the only power that you are giving to the Magistrate is to record a statement of the accused, if any is made by him, and nothing more: whereas, if I understand the Hon'ble the Home Member correctly, under section 15 there was an implied power, an implied authority given to the Magistrate to make such inquiries as to him seemed proper and to report to Government. It seems to me therefore, Sir, that if that is the correct interpretation of section 15—about which I personally am very doubtful—then by this amendment which is apparently made with a view to improve the position you are cutting down the discretion and the power of the Magistrate only, and cutting it down and reducing it so that he cannot do anything more than record the statement of the accused person.

"Now Sir, if you are reducing the functions of the Magistrate only to one point, that is to recording the statement of the accused and doing nothing more, I ask, Sir, how is the Magistrate to be in a position to decide whether these cases are to be reported to Government or not. Will the statement of the accused give sufficient material for the Magistrate to make up his mind? Now Sir, what would happen is this. First of all the inquiry will be made in a Native State that wishes this accused person extradited. That inquiry will consist of nothing else but depositions taken down I will say by the Political Agent himself. The depositions will be ex parte without having gone through the test of cross-examination and I will take for example that you have half a dozen men who will go and swear on oath before the Political Agent personally and swear to this effect that A has committed a certain offence, namely, Criminal breach of trust. The Political Agent has nothing else before him except the depositions of half a dozen men on oath. The chances are hundred to one I venture to say that the Political Agent will be bound to issue a warrant, because you have the sworn testimony of half a dozen men before you, nothing to contradict it, nothing to test it. And therefore in ordinary cases the odds are a hundred to one the Political Agent will issue a warrant. That warrant now I take it for the purposes of my example goes to Bombay for execution. The accused person, I am calling him A is arrested in Bombay and placed before the Presidency Magistrate, he is arrested under warrant and placed before the Presidency Magistrate to be dealt with under section 7 of the Act. When he is placed before the Magistrate under section 8A, namely that section which is before the Council, the Magistrate will then record the statement of the accused person and that statement, Sir, I venture to say in 999 cases out out of 1,000 would be that he is not guilty, that the charge is a false one. How is the Magistrate to decide whether these cases ought to be reported to Government or not? Is he to rely on the mere ipse dixit of the accused person and take the responsibility upon himself to report the case to the Government for inquiry? Therefore, Sir, it seems to me that you are not only restricting the powers of the Magistrate which are vested in him under the old Act but I say that you are restricting the powers of the Magistrate in such a way that it will be impossible for him to make up his mind whether a particular case should be reported to Government or not. You must give him something more than the mere ipse dixit of the accused person, so as to enable him as a reasonable man, as a Judicial Official, to make up his mind whether this is a case that ought to be reported to Government or not. For this reason, I am not at all satisfied. As regards the concession, namely, that the Magistrate shall record the statement of the accused person, I say 'leave it out,' I would rather be without it. If you wish to give a proper concession, if you really wish to have a proper safeguard then I say give the Magistrate further powers to record not only the statement of the accused person but such evidence as he may wish to produce. In that case the Magistrate will not only have the statement of the accused person which, remember, is not on oath which, remember is always discounted and remember Sir, that the accused person is so interested that his statement is always discounted. The accused person is not likely to make a statement and say 'I am guilty.' The accused person in each case will say that "the Political Agent is my enemy, that the Durbar are maliciously proceeding against me, that the charge is a false one.

"Therefore I say give the accused person an opportunity if he likes to call such evidence as he may be advised to corroborate his statement. This will give the Magistrate some materials and also provide an opportunity for the accused to argue before the Magistrate those cases that are to be reported to Government for further enquiry. Therefore I would appeal to the Hon'ble Member and I would suggest this amendment of the clause. It would run as follows:—

'8A. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 7, sub-section (2) or in section 8, when an accused person arrested in accordance with the provisions of Section 7 is produced before the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate, as the case may be, after the statement (if any) of such accused person has been recorded, and after taking such evidence as may be tendered on behalf of the accused, such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, before proceeding further, report the case to the Local Government and, pending the receipt of orders on such report, may detain such accused person in custody or release him on his executing a bond with sufficient sureties for his attendance when required.'

"I say that the adoption of that would not do any harm to anybody.

"That is my suggestion Sir, and I hope it will be considered and approved by the Council."

The Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. R. Pandit :—"Sir, I desire to associate myself with every word that has fallen from my Hon'ble friend Mr. Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim, and to pay a warm tribute to the Hon'ble the Home Member and his official and non-official colleagues on the Select Committee for the sympathetic consideration given by them to the various objections raised in connection with this little but far-reaching measure.

"As Hon'ble Members know the introduction of this Bill was due to the necessity of placing it beyond doubt that a warrant issued by the Political Agent could under section 7 be executed in a Presidency-town against a British Indian subject or a Native State subject resident there. It caused alarm among this class of persons who having been accustomed to the protection of a highly-developed judicial system probably on account of some bitter experience of the practice hitherto followed and referred to by the Hon'ble the Home Member felt grave apprehensions that the process might be abused and they might be subjected to trial under systems in varying stages of development and by probably less independent and more biassed tribunals. The provision made in the rules framed under section 22 of the existing law whereby any gross abuse of the Political Agent's process may be prevented by his refusing to grant it unless he had previously satisfied himself that there was a primâ facie case, was felt to be inadequate. It must be admitted that these apprehensions were not wholly unfounded.

"It will serve no useful purpose to consider at present whether the complaints frequently heard of the impatience of law and of the procedure obtaining even in the more expeditious trials of the British Courts in the districts displayed not only by Government officers in Native States having no judicial training, but even by those with long training are well-founded and whether the deficiencies are due to the prejudices imbibed in the course of an unduly prolonged connection with a State—which is unfortunately sometimes the case—or to the small regard entertained for judicial work by reason of the concentration of energies on executive and administrative work. In any case, and particularly in view of the remarks of the Hon'ble and gallant member who has just spoken, it is of great importance that before any person is surrendered, an unbiassed and efficient judicial tribunal should satisfy itself on such materials as are placed before it that a primâ facie case exists against the accused, and it is satisfactory to find that the Select Committee have introduced such a safeguard and left to the British Courts the discretion of reporting the matter to the Local Government in the event of their not being satisfied on the point.

"I agree with the Hon'ble Mr. Ebrahim that the occasions for the exercise of the discretion allowed to the British Courts by clause 3 of the present Bill as amended will be rare, as they could only arise, for example, when the allegations of the prosecution fail to constitute an extradition offence or when the material before the Court is hopelessly inadequate to make out a primâ facie case, or in the extremely rare case when the accused is able to adduce unimpeachable documentary evidence which without further evidence will suffice to demolish the prosecution case. Be that as it may, the insertion of the new provisions coupled with the assurance that in the Rules framed under section 22 modifications will be made to ensure that the Political Agent will apply his judicial mind to such cases, make it evident that the Government have been desirous of reducing as far as possible the risks of any possible gross abuse of the power given to the Political Agent.

"The form which the Bill has now assumed shows that the safeguards now for the first time introduced apply equally to the residents in the districts and to those in the Presidency-towns, and for this even handed justice, the Government has earned the gratitude of the silent, less opulent, but no less respectable residents of the districts even more than the enterprising, rich and respectable residents of the Presidency-towns whose cause has been so ably advocated in the Council.

"With these remarks I support the motion before the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. Madhu Sudan Das:—"Sir, I did not intend at all to associate myself with the discussion in connection with this Bill. During the discussion it has struck me that there is an assumption that the judiciary employed in the Native States is not up to the mark. Whether that is so or not, whatever may be said with regard to individual Native States, it is too broad a proposition, too general a proposition, to assume such a state of things with regard to all Native States. It has been suggested that there is a difference with regard to the safety of an accused person when he is a resident of a district, and when he is a resident of a Presidency-town. The question before the Council is not one of equalising advantages or disadvantages. The question is really whether an accused person, when he is residing for the time being in a Presidency-town, is placed in a more disadvantageous position when there is a charge brought against him in any Native State than is any person who is a British subject and is residing in any other part of British India. We have no materials before us to assume that a Political Agent, in every instance, must be a person who is innocent of all law. As a matter of fact, Political Agents mostly are members of the Indian Civil Service, and they are appointed to these posts very often after an experience in India covering a much longer period than is the experience of a person who takes up the position or the office of Joint Magistrate. Now, Sir, a person comes and makes a statement before a Joint Magistrate accusing a person of certain offences. Let us suppose, for instance, that the person thus charged is residing in a Presidency-town at the time. If the Joint Magistrate, on the mere statement of the complainant, is satisfied that process ought to be issued against the person, the process is issued, and if the man be a resident of a Presidency-town, he does not complain of labouring under a disadvantage. Then, Sir, why should we suppose that there is actually, as a rule, miscarriage of justice in these Native States. In doing so, perhaps we are losing sight of the fact that these Native States are to a certain extent under a kind of supervision of Government. Though it is not before this Council, or though it may not be before this Council in the form of evidence, it is well known that the judiciary of Native States are selected or appointed very often with the knowledge and oftener with the permission and consent of Government officials.

"As regards the suggestion that the Magistrate should be allowed to take such evidence as the accused may produce before him, I would submit, Sir, that an accused is as little likely to make a statement as he is likely to show an inclination to produce evidence in support of his defence. I do not think that any lawyer would advise an accused to enter into a defence before he knows what the charge against him is.

"A warrant simply goes for execution. The warrant would not mention anything further than the fact—that the man has been charged with a certain offence. The accused is not in a position to know what evidence there is before the Court to substantiate that charge, and as a matter of fact, in the ordinary state of things, there will be no evidence at that time for the prosecution before the Court. I think the accused who is advised to produce evidence for defence in that state of things would be perhaps putting a halter round his own neck.

"I should not be justified in suggesting any amendment, for I know that I should at once be told I was not in order. I first put in my appearance in this Council when this Bill was introduced for reference to the Select Committee, and considering the withering remarks that the Hon'ble Member in charge made with regard to Orissa—from where I come—my heart sank within me and I thought I should not be justified in taking any part in the discussion; but certain points have been raised, and we are assured that Government is inclined. to see that there will be in future no justification for the alarm which has been raised in introducing this Bill in its present form. Let us hope, at any rate, that now that Government is in a position to know that there is a certain amount of alarm, and also in a position to know in what direction that alarm is, and as the States which are mostly concerned in these matters are Native States, let us sincerely hope that measures will be taken not to give any occasion that would give the least justification for the alarm now expressed."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry McMahon:—"Sir, with regard to the various other points that have been mentioned by Hon'ble Members relating to the Bill itself, I leave to the Hon'ble the Home Member to dispose of, and I will only deal with those which treat of Political Agents, the Native States, their Judiciaries, and the rules framed in the Foreign Department under the Extradition Act.

"It has been said by the Hon'ble Mr. Pandit - and we have heard it also hinted at in correspondence and in the remarks made elsewhere on this Bill—that Political Agents have no judicial knowledge or experience. I am glad to have had the support and co-operation of my Hon'ble friend the Hon'ble Mr. Das, who says that Political Agents are of matured judicial experience, that is a correct statement of facts. Political Agents are seldom if ever officers of less than 15 years' Civil service; they have had all the training of Civilian officers; they have gone through the same tests, and in most cases they have had very wide judicial experience. They are in regard to these States to which they are accredited, Sessions Judges, in all matters relating to the residuary and other jurisdiction of Government in those States.

"Then, as the Hon'ble Member has said, there are States and States, Judiciaries and Judiciaries; but he has quite forgotten the fact that Political Agents and Judiciaries are each complementary one to the other. In States where Judiciaries are strong and efficient the Political Agent as a judicial officer exercises his judicial powers very little. The weaker the Judiciary in a State the more the Political Agent has to exercise judicial powers. Each balances the other and thus maintains a constant standard in regard to matters external to the State, such as in respect to the Extradition Act.

"I now come to the rules under the Act, which I regret to say have not received the attention or the mention which they deserve from the Hon'ble Members who have been discussing this Bill. These rules, I need hardly say—under section 22 of the Act—have the force of the Act, and these rules are full of very strong safeguards. I will just allude briefly to one or two of the principal safeguards and I will begin with Article 4.

'4. The Political Agent shall, in all cases, before issuing a warrant under section 7 of the said Act, satisfy himself, by preliminary inquiry or otherwise, that there is a primâ facie case against the accused person.'

"Now these words or otherwise have been adversely criticised, and as part of this arrangement that we are now making in connection with this Bill, the words 'or otherwise' will be omitted.

'Rule 5. (I) The Political Agent shall, before issuing a warrant under section 7 of the said Act, decide whether the warrant shall provide for the delivery of the accused persons'

(a) to the Political Agent or to a British officer subordinate to the Political Agent with a view to his trial by the Political Agent, or (b) to an authority of the State with a view to his trial by the State Courts!

"Many cases are tried under (a) by the Political Agent himself, but if he decide that the case is one to be tried by the State Courts, such decision on his part is further safeguarded by what follows:—

'(2) Before coming to a decision, the Political Agent shall take the following matters into consideration:—

(i) the nature of the offence charged;

(ii) the delay and trouble involved in bringing the accused person before himself;

(iii) the judicial qualifications of the Courts of the State;

[Sir Henry McMahon; Sir Reginald Craddock.] [25TH FEBRUARY, 1918.]

(iv) whether the accused person is a British subject or not; and if he is a British (other than European British) subject, whether the Courts of the State, either by custom or by recognition, try such British subjects surrendered to them.'

That is a very important provision. Several States do not try British subjects, either by custom or recognition, and these are therefore tried by the Political Agent.

'(v) whether the Courts of the State have by custom or by recognition power to inflict the punishment which may be inflicted under the Indian Penal Code for an offence similar to that with which the accused person is charged.'

"There are States which have no power to inflict the sentences which may be inflicted under sections under which the extradition is asked for. There again the Political Agent must try the case.

"Then we come to another very important safeguard which has not been given the mention it deserves.

'7. In the case of an accused person made over for trial to the Court of the State, the Political Agent shall satisfy himself that the accused receives a fair trial—I have seen no reference by Hon'ble Members to this—and that the punishment inflicted on conviction is not excessive or barbarous; and if he is not so satisfied, he shall demand the restoration of the prisoner to his custody, pending the orders of the Governor General in Council.'

And there is yet another safeguard which comes earlier in the rules and that is that in each case the Political Agent shall consider whether he ought not to certify the case as one suitable for trial in British India.

"Thus it will be seen that the Political Agent has the option of trying each case himself, or allowing it to be tried by the State's Judiciary under those safeguards I have mentioned, or of certifying it as one to be tried in British India.

"I think you will all admit that these are very strong safeguards, and at the risk of repetition, I reiterate the fact that although this Act has been in force for just under ten years, we have not had, and there is not on our records, one single case of complaint of any abuse under this Act.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah is kind enough to state his appreciation of what has been done now in the amendments to this amending Bill—but he says the future working of the Bill should be carefully watched. There have been no less than 144 cases of warrants executed without any protest in the Presidency-towns, and in not one of these 144 cases has there been any cause of complaint or instance recorded of abuse, and I feel confident that however closely the Hon'ble Members may watch the working of this Bill, there is not likely to be any greater cause of complaint against its working in the future than there has been of that of the Extradition Act in the past."

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock:—"Sir, the motion before the Council is merely that the Report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration. The only opposition to the amendments which have been recommended by the Select Committee have come from the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah who, somewhat I must confess, to my surprise, endeavoured to show that instead of adding something to the law, we were taking away something from it. This to me appeared to be an entirely novel treatment of the case, for if, as he appeared to contend, the law as it existed already provided for an inquiry before the Magistrate, it seems very strange that all this opposition should have been started in Bombay. The procedure that he contended for — he put it forward as a suggestion — was that the accused might also claim to bring evidence before the Magistrate. But the whole of this Act and the whole of the procedure in such cases are based on the supposition that an accused person is going to be tried by a competent Court which has jurisdiction in the place where the offence is committed, and all that is necessary is that a primâ facie case should be made out against him. Where such an offence has been committed in a foreign State over the officers of which Government have no supervision, no means of regulating, and no power to control their actions, it may be necessary that the evidence to establish the primâ facie case should be brought before the Magistrate who is to grant the extradition; but where, as in the case of Native States in India, the rules and regulations under which extradition is to be obtained are within the control and powers of the Government and a British officer is specially accredited to see that all due precautions are observed, then it is no more necessary for the Presidency Magistrate to take evidence in the case which comes from a Political Agent, than it would be if he were merely executing a warrant which had issued from any District Magistrate or any other Magistrate in India. It appears to me, Sir, that there has been a good deal of being late in connection with this case. To begin with, the citizens of Bombay have been nine years before they submitted any representation, and Mr. Jinnah quite overlooks the point in his speech that this procedure has already been in force all this time; that from time to time accused persons have been arrested in Bombay and have been handed over to the authority mentioned in the warrant; that no untoward consequences have arisen and no complaint has ever been made, and that none of those hardships upon which so much stress is laid have ever occurred. The Presidency Magistrates have regularly executed warrants issued under this section when they received them.

"Then when this Bill was put forward, it was published and again no representation was made. It was only at the eleventh hour that Sir Vithaldas Thackersey came post-haste to inform us that it was causing great excitement. From that time to this no memorial was received, until a few days ago, and even that memorial does not contain reference to a single case of hardship which has ever arisen under these proceedings. In the present instance, the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah put forward a suggestion, but again he has given no notice of any specific amendment: and under these circumstances, I must maintain the position that the amendments which the Government have agreed to are the utmost that they are willing to concede. To do otherwise would be to destroy the whole procedure of the Act and to run in complete conflict with the principles on which that procedure is based.

"Under these circumstances, Sir, I have nothing further to say except to ask that the motion be put."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock:—"It seems to me hardly necessary to make any more remarks upon these amendments. They have been sufficiently discussed, and, as far as I have been able to gather the opinion of the Council, there is no serious opposition to them. The Hon'ble Mr. Fuzalbhoy, who, upon Select Committee, put forward strongly the opinions of the citizens of Bombay, has expressed his satisfaction that the additions made to the Bill will remove at least some of his apprehensions. The Hon'ble Sir Henry McMahon has explained to the Council what careful precautions exist for the guidance of Political Agents, and those members who have spoken, with the exception of the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah, who had merely some suggestions to make, all appear to me to be in favour of the Bill. In these circumstances, I will merely move that the Bill to amend the Extradition Act, 1903, as amended, be passed."

The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah:—"Sir, I quite agree with the Hon'ble the Home Member that I have not given the notice that is usually given under the rules. But the simple reason why I have not done so is quite clear. There is no use giving notice of an amendment when it is entirely in the hands of Government to accept it or not to accept it, and under the rules also I am entitled to move an amendment at any time, provided no member has any objection at all to it, and I shall point out that rule Sir, with your permission. Therefore, really it is entirely a question now for the Government to consider whether it is an amendment which ought or ought not to be accepted in the interests of Justice.

"Under the rule to which I have just drawn the attention of Council,—I think it is rule 28,—when a Bill is taken into consideration by the Council, any Member may propose any amendment to such Bill."

[The President; Malik Umar Hayat Khan; Mr. Jinnah; Sir William Vincent; Sir Reginald Craddock.] [25TH FEBRUARY, 1913.]

The President:—"I am not challenging the Hon'ble Member's statement with regard to the rules, and I think it is unnecessary for him to read the rules. It is undoubtedly open to him to move an amendment, and it is open to anybody to oppose the amendment. It is for me to state the rules."

The Hon'ble Malik Umar Hayat Khan:—"I as a Member object to his moving the amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah:—"Well, Sir, this is rather a surprise to me. However, I am not going to stand on my rights; but I appeal to Government and I do maintain—I still maintain in spite of what the Hon'ble the Home Member has said—that the point is this; if you give a specific power to the Magistrate and stop there, you certainly debar him from any other power. He can exercise that power and no more. Whereas under section 15 as it stood no specific power is given: therefore he has got general powers. Once you have a Statute giving specific power to the Magistrate he cannot go beyond that. The clause runs in this way: 'as the case may be and the statement (if any) of such accused person has been recorded such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit,' etc., etc.

"Therefore he will have no power to do anything more except to record the statement of the accused. All I suggest is this., that my amendment should be accepted by Government as a suggestion."

The Hon'ble Sir William Vincent:—"I rise to a point of order. The Hon'ble Member is moving an amendment. Another Member has objected to it, and unless the rules are suspended, he is not entitled to move the amendment."

The President:—"I do not understand that the Hon'ble Member is moving an amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah:—"I am not, Sir, at present. I am only pointing out this suggestion for acceptance. With regard to the objection of the Hon'ble Malik Umar Hayat and the point of order raised by the Hon'ble Sir William Vincent, I entirely agree that the ruling stands in this way: if any Member objects to my amendment being moved, then certainly it is out of order. It is entirely for you Sir, to exercise your power in any way that is proper; but I do not ask or invoke the ruling that rules should be suspended and I once more appeal to Government and ask them to consider my suggestion that I have made."

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock:—"Sir, I must take exception to any amendment being moved without due notice. As I before stated, there has been ample opportunity for any persons interested in this measure to move any amendments they liked and to give due notice of them. It is therefore unnecessary for me to discuss the suggestions that the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah has made. But viewing the matter merely as a suggestion and not as an amendment, I would like to point out that the power of the Magistrate to make a reference to the Local Government remains as it was, and the sole effect of this amendment is that it gives an accused person, if he so desires, the option of making a statement. Some Hon'ble Members have suggested that it is very likely that an accused person would prefer to reserve everything he has to say until he comes to be tried before a Court. That is a matter entirely for him to consider. The point of the amendment was that, if an accused person wanted to make any representation on his own behalf before the Magistrate who was executing the warrant, the law should specifically provide that such an opportunity should be given; and, as I have explained already, this added nothing to what a Magistrate would ordinarily do when an accused person was brought before him, but it did specifically include this provision in the law. I ask therefore that the motion that the Bill be passed should now be put."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE OFFICIAL TRUSTEES BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr Syed Ali Imam moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law constituting the office of Official Trustee be taken into consideration He said :—

"When moving for leave to introduce the Bill, I drew attention to its main principles and at the time of its reference to Select Committee I placed before the Council some of the more important criticisms that this measure has received Since then it has been carefully considered in the Select Committee which has made some alterations but not of such a character as to require re-publication The material alterations have been fully explained in the Report of the Committee, which was presented at the last sitting of the Council and has, I have no doubt, been examined by Hon'ble Members. The Committee may congratulate itself on its efforts, as I find that no proposals suggesting any amendments of the Bill as altered by that Committee are entered on the List of Business to-day I do not, therefore, propose to enter into the details of the changes made by the Committee, and will rest contented with alluding to a few that may call for notice.

"Clause 3 has been added to clearly set forth the jurisdiction of the High Court at a Presidency-town over the whole of the presidency for the purposes of the Bill Under clause 7 (5), we have made it possible for the Official Trustee to accept a trust for a religious purpose under such conditions as may be provided by any rules made under the Act Similarly, under sub-clause 6, he may administer the estate of a deceased person if expressly appointed sole executor of, and sole trustee under, the will of such a person. Clause 10 has been amended by the omission of a sub-clause conferring certain powers on the High Court to remove existing trustees and appoint the Official Trustee in their place. We have in this respect made no change in the existing law, but have added a provision that the Trustees and Mortgagees' Powers Act of 1866 and the Trusts Act of 1882 remain unaffected by the Bill. There are some other changes which need not be pointed out just at present I should, however, like to draw attention to a few alterations that are common to this Bill and the one that deals with the office and duties of Administrator General. Hon'ble Members are aware that the Select Committee Report of the other Bill is also to be taken up for consideration to-day It will perhaps save repetition if I mention some of these changes that are common to both the measures As the preparation of the necessary rules and schedule for fees may take some time, the date of the commencement of both the Acts is left to be notified by the Government. The powers of Auditors to summon witnesses, the determination of the cost of audit, the amendment of clause 58 so as to restrict it to the Presidency of Bengal and the saving of the provisions of the Indian Registration Act of 1908 are some of the common features

"The motion, Sir, is a motion that deals with a Bill that is not likely to arouse that amount of criticism that has been bestowed upon the measure that the Council has just passed Therefore in all modesty I put forward these observations. I have placed before the Council a measure that will be of the utmost use to India and arouse no excitement."

THE ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL'S BILL

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the office and duties of Administrator General be taken into consideration He said :—

"The history of this Bill is very much the same as of the one that has just been passed, and to which it bears a strong family resemblance. The Report of the Select Committee explains the various alterations that have been effected. Some only of these I propose to notice at present. The duty of the Administrator General to apply for letters of administration for the estate of persons other than exempted persons under clause 9 has been made subject to any rules framed by Government.

"This is a useful provision as there may well be cases in which application to the Court would serve no useful purpose. These cases will be provided for under the rules. Under clause 16 as amended the valuation of the estate of a person subject to the Army Act is to be made on the date on which its administration is handed over to the Administrator General. In clause 23, provision has been made for probates and letters of administration granted by the Old Supreme Court to the Ecclesiastical Registrar, as our information is that some estates of that kind are still administered by the Administrator General in the Presidency of Bengal. Clause 21 has been so amended as to bring it into greater accord with the existing law, and a further provision has been made for the appointment of the Official Trustee to be under an instrument in writing. A sub-clause to clause 29 has been borrowed from clause 13 of the Official Trustees Bill, and makes the important provision that the entry of the name of the Administrator General in the books of a company shall not constitute notice of a trust. In clause 31, a useful and important change has been effected by removing deposits in Government Savings Banks, or such as are governed by the provisions of the Provident Funds Act of 1897 from the calculation of the value of the assets for the grant of certificates under that section. Another important change falls under clause 32 where authority is given to the Administrator General to administer petty estates of exempted persons within the Presidency-towns and any other areas notified by the Government in this behalf. This provision is particularly necessary in the case of deaths that occur in the suburbs of Calcutta, but outside the original civil jurisdiction of the High Court. Clause 40 of the Bill has been amended so as to remove all doubts as regards the right of secured creditors under the operation of that clause. Clause 53 has been modified to give effective protection to persons claiming assets transferred to Government by leaving option to the claimant to move the High Court by a petition without prejudice to his right to take any other proceedings for the recovery of the assets claimed by him under the said clause. I consider it unnecessary to take any more time of the Council in detailing more changes, as some of them have already been noticed to-day when the Official Trustees Bill was considered and passed."

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy Bahadur:—"Sir, I desire to make an amendment in section 3 (2) (b) of the Bill. I beg to add after the words 'High Court' the words 'a banker or merchant.' I think that the field of selection should not be confined to the members of the legal profession alone. Some of them have not the necessary qualifications and experience required in the management of large estates as, for instance, zemindaris in the mofussal. What I humbly beg to suggest is that there may be provision in the Act whereby merchants and bankers might occasionally be appointed as Administrators General, and it is for this that I suggest the addition of the words which I have proposed. The selection will be in the hands of the Government, and if Government thinks fit, it may, if necessary, appoint a banker or merchant as Administrator General. That is what I have to suggest, and it is for the Council to say whether it will accept the amendment or not."

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam:—"The Hon'ble Mr. Sita Nath Roy was a little too late when the last Bill was passed. He will permit me to say that in regard to the present Bill he is a little too soon. The motion before the Council is that the Report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration."

"This is the stage when the Hon'ble Member would be perfectly justified in making any comments that may strike him as useful, so far as the Select

[25TH FEBRUARY, 1913.] [Mr. Syed Ali Imam; Mr. Sita Nath Roy.]

Committee's Report goes. But any suggestion in the form of a definite amendment I venture to think is, at this stage, premature. Therefore, with your permission, Sir, at this stage I do not propose to meet the suggestion that has been put forward, as I have no doubt, if the Hon'ble Member is in time, he will put forward his amendment later on but before I move the motion that stands in my name next. With that reservation, I pray that the motion that the Select Committee's Report be taken into consideration be put to the Council."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam moved that the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the office and duties of Administrator General, as amended, be passed.

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy, Bahadur:—"I beg to move that in clause 3, sub-section (2), after the words 'High Court', the words 'a banker or merchant' may be added.

"I believe it is not necessary for me to reiterate the few arguments that I have just now adduced. I therefore request that the Council will be pleased to accept the amendment. I do not see that there can be any reasonable objection to the acceptance of this little amendment, as the selection will be entirely in the hands of Government. What I beg to suggest is, that these words should be added in order that the Government may not be shut out from appointing, if it thinks fit, a banker or merchant as Administrator General."

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam:—"Sir, I find that the Hon'ble Member, Mr. Sita Nath Roy, stands in the same difficult position that was occupied not long ago by the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah. Mr. Jinnah did not give notice under rule 29 of the amendment that he proposed in reference to the Extradition Bill and the Hon'ble Member, the gallant Tiwana, at once objected as soon as the amendment was considered as a possible evasion of the rules. I find that such an objection as this has not been raised by any Hon'ble Member as against the amendment that has been proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Sita Nath Roy. As a member of the Government I consider it an exceedingly painful thing to put forward any technical objection to the moving of amendments on behalf of any member who chooses to do so. But whereas I have no desire whatsoever that, in the present circumstances, any observation that I am putting forward on the subject may be considered as an objection on technical ground, I do wish to express before the Council my earnest desire that, as far as it is possible, we should all adhere to the strict observance of the rules of business. Disregard of the ordinary rules can only be allowed where any extraordinary circumstances arise. I do not for a moment think that those circumstances are existent in the present case. At the same time, out of deference to the Hon'ble Mr. Sita Nath Roy who wishes his amendment to be considered, I do not propose to take protection under rule 29 of the Rules of Business.

"I will, therefore, Sir, proceed at once to put forward the reasons why it was that in the Select Committee we unanimously rejected the insertion of the words that have been suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Sita Nath Roy. The suggesstion is that the appointment of Administrator General may be thrown open to bankers and merchants. The Hon'ble Member who so worthily represents a commercial community has, I have no doubt, some plausible ground for putting forward his amendment. But on the other hand, Sir, I have got my own reasons for saying why it is almost impossible for Government to open the door of selection so wide as is implied in the amendment of the Hon'ble Member. The Council is aware that the field of selection has already been enlarged by the amendment that we have proposed. Originally the appointment could go only to a Barrister. We have extended that field of selection by including Advocates, Vakils of the High Court and Attorneys. But beyond that we have found ourselves unable to go, and the reason is that those who are acquainted with the work of the Administrator General are fully aware how necessary it is for him to have a close acquaintance with law. His work is not of a kind in which the genius of commerce necessarily comes in, but to a very large extent he has to be a man who has a knowledge of the law, and I think that on reflection the Hon'ble Member, Mr. Sita Nath Roy, will see that it is not the desire to keep bankers and merchants out of this office which has prompted us to limit the selection to lawyers. On the contrary, it is a necessity of the case. The duties of that office demand that he should be a lawyer, and therefore I regret that I find myself on behalf of Government absolutely unable to accept the amendment that has been proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Sita Nath Roy."

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy, Bahadur:—"Sir, I beg to express my thankfulness to the Hon'ble the Law Member for kindly permitting me to move this amendment and for not having raised any objection to it. At the same time I beg to remark that I do not see anything unreasonable in the amendment that I have brought forward. Very often big zemindaris and other large estates are placed in the hands of the Administrator General or Official Trustee for management. In such cases the Government ought not to be shut out from the advantage of having the benefit of trained men like bankers or merchants. The selection will be entirely in the hands of Government No one can force Government to give preference to any one in particular. While you have been good enough to admit a Vakil or Attorney, I do not see any reason why bankers or merchants should be shut out altogether. I therefore beg to suggest that these two words might be taken in and added to this sub-clause."

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam:—"I do not desire to make any further remarks. I have already spoken on the amendment which I am unable to accept."

The motion was put and negatived.

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam moved that the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the office and duties of Administrator General, as amended, be passed.

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE WHITE PHOSPHORUS MATCHES PROHIBITION BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of matches made with white phosphorus. He said:—

"The Council will observe that the Hon'ble Sir Charles Armstrong's name does not appear among the signatories to the Report. I should explain that Sir Charles Armstrong was unable to attend the meetings, and the Report consequently was not submitted to him for consideration and signature."

THE SIR CURRIMBHOY EBRAHIM BARONETCY BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam moved that the Bill to settle the endowment of the Baronetcy conferred on Sir Currimbhoy Ebrahim be taken into consideration. He said:—

"At the time I introduced this Bill I placed before the Council the various points involved in that Bill, and therefore do not feel justified in taking the time of the Council any more in detailing the provisions of that Bill now."

The Hon'ble Mr. Ghuznavi:—"Sir, I have much pleasure in according my whole-hearted support to the Bill to settle the endowment of the baronetcy conferred on Sir Currimbhoy Ebrahim which has been just placed before this Council by the Hon'ble the Law Member for our consideration. Since we met last, some of us have been very actively engaged in considering in Committee a certain other Bill relating to endowment for Mussalman families, I mean the Wakf Bill, which my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah is trying to pilot skilfully over shoals and reefs to a safe harbour. Our labours in Committee with regard to that Bill on the question of endowment have put some of us into such a happy frame of mind that we do not feel the least difficulty in giving our unstinted support to another Bill for endowment such as this. If the Declaratory Act with regard to Mussalman family wakfs which it is proposed to enact had already been in existence I do not know whether there would have been much need for a Bill of this kind. But since it has not yet been passed and our own law of endowment was still in a precarious condition it is only meet and proper that a Bill of this nature should be passed, to uphold the dignity of the hereditary title so graciously conferred by His Majesty on our illustrious co-religionist Sir Currimbhoy Ebrahim; and I therefore feel bound to offer my sincere congratulations to Government for bringing in this measure. Any community would be proud to possess within its ranks a member such as Sir Currimbhoy; the more so our community as it cannot boast at the present day of an abundance of merchant princes as it could in days of yore. Apart from the distinct impetus that Sir Currimbhoy has given to commerce and industry in this country, his large-hearted munificence and princely donations are a household word throughout the length and breadth of India. A Bill of this nature, therefore I presume, cannot but enlist our unanimous support.

[25TH FEBRUARY, 1913.] [Mr. Ghuznavi; Mr. Syed Ali Imam; Mr. Jinnah; Mr. Gokhale.]

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam moved that the Bill be passed.

THE MUSSALMAN WAKF VALIDATING BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to define the rights of the Mussalman subjects of His Majesty to make settlements of property by way of wakf in favour of their families and descendants. He said :—

"At this stage, Sir, I do not wish to say anything at all in regard to this Bill, and I merely present the Report of the Select Committee to the Council."

RESOLUTION REGARDING EXTENSION OF PRIMARY EDUCATION IN INDIA.

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale moved the following Resolution :—

"That this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that all papers, including correspondence between the Government of India and the Secretary of State on the one hand and between the Government of India and Provincial Governments and Administrations on the other, relating to the scheme outlined by the Under Secretary of State for India in the House of Commons last July, on the subject of the extension of Primary Education in this country, be laid on the table of the Council." He said :—

"Sir, under the rules of this Council notice of this motion had to be sent to the Secretary more than a fortnight ago, and therefore, when I drafted that motion, I had not before me the Resolution on the subject of Education which the Government of India have just issued. If I had had that advantage at that time, I should probably have worded the motion somewhat differently, though in essence it would have come to the same thing. Before I proceed to deal with this motion, I would like to take this opportunity to offer my sincere congratulations to the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Education Department and to the Government of India on this Resolution. It is a declaration of educational policy which to my mind is easily the most important that has been made in the course of the last 30 years. Of course education is a subject that bristles with controversial points, and on such a subject no one can expect absolute unanimity of opinion, and I am sure the Hon'ble Member himself will not be surprised if he finds that some parts of the policy which he has enunciated encounter serious criticism, and even opposition, in the country. Some of us may also consider that his policy, even where it is free from objection, is not adequate. But whatever our views may be on these points, I am sure all will be united in recognising the high purpose, the clear and comprehensive gaze and the enthusiasm for education which are displayed in this Resolution. And I go further and say that, if this policy is adequately financed and if it is carried out in the right spirit, by which I mean in a purely educational spirit only, without importing into it political considerations or political bias—and this is a matter which does not rest with the Hon'ble Member alone, it is a matter which rests even more largely with Local Governments, and in the last resort with the various officers through whom Local Governments have to work—if, I say, these two conditions are fulfilled, namely, if the policy is adequately financed, and if it is carried out in the right spirit, I have no doubt it will have far-reaching results, and this Resolution will come to be regarded as the third great land-mark in the educational history of our country, the despatch of 1854 being the first and the Educational Commission's Report of 1883 being the second. It is a curious coincidence that these pronouncements should have come after an interval of 30 years in each case. The Education Commission's Report was submitted about 30 years after 1854, and this comes 30 years after 1883.

"Sir, this is a new Council. It is a new Council not only in name, but very largely in reality, for I find that of those non-officials who sat in the last Council, only six or seven have come back to this Council. I think therefore that I may be permitted to refer very briefly to the important discussions on this subject of primary education that took place in the last Council in the three successive years from 1910 to 1912. The first discussion took place when a Resolution suggesting that elementary education should be made compulsory and free or rather that a beginning should be made in that direction, was submitted to the judgment of this Council in the year 1910. I well remember the surprise with which some of the proposals that were then elaborated were regarded by the official member in charge of Education. There was no separate Minister for Education then, and Education rubbed shoulders with Police and Jails and various other departments in the comprehensive charge of the Home Member. And I well remember the surprise with which the Home Member of that time, Sir Harvey Adamson, regarded some of the proposals which were then elaborated in the course of the discussion. That was the first discussion that took place on the subject in the last Council. The second discussion took place when a private Bill was introduced in 1911 embodying the principal proposals that were brought forward in the year 1910.

"The Bill was allowed to be introduced by the Hon'ble Member in charge of Education. By that time the Education Department had come into existence, and the present Member was then in the Council as the Member of Government responsible for education. He allowed the Bill to be introduced: he was in no hurry to slay it and he referred it to Local Governments and to local bodies for their opinion. During the whole of 1911 there was a continuous discussion in the country on the principles of that Bill. And the Bill came up again before the Council last year, 1912, for its next stage, namely, the reference to Select Committee. By that time, however, the Hon'ble Member had made up his mind to oppose the Bill and of course at his instance the Bill was thrown out. But it was not all labour lost, because we had from the Hon'ble Member on the occasion a declaration, which in many respects was a striking declaration coming from a Member of Government. It committed the Government for the first time in the history of education in this country to a policy which ultimately would lead to free and compulsory education for the country. This is what the Hon'ble Member said at that time:—

'I say at once, My Lord, that I am really sorry to find myself in opposition to the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale and those who support his motion. We are all really working for the same object. I should rejoice no less than they to see a condition of things in India in which elementary vernacular education could be free and compulsory. The Government of India are deeply concerned to bring about such a condition of things. We are convinced of the necessity of breaking down illiteracy in the country; ' and he closed his speech with a statement which evoked great enthusiasm among many non-official members of this Council. He said:—

'Though our views may differ as to means, we are all united as to the end—the Government of India, the Local Governments, the Departments of Public Instruction and enlightened public opinion are single-eyed as to the end in view. We are determined, resolutely determined, to combat ignorance through the length and breadth of this ancient land, up and down, and to and fro, and though the struggle may be long and arduous, I do believe, My Lord, with all my heart I do believe, we shall prevail.'

"After this we naturally expected that an early opportunity would be taken to publish the definite proposals which the Government had in their mind when the Member in charge of Education made that statement. Nothing further was however heard in the matter till the Indian Budget came up for discussion before the House of Commons, when a further stage was reached and some indication was given to us as to what those proposals were, and that was in the speech of Mr. Montagu, the Under Secretary of State for India. Mr. Montagu endorsed for the most part the arguments of the Hon'ble Member against the Bill which had been thrown out. I will not trouble the Council with that, but he also endorsed the view expressed by Sir Harcourt Butler, that education was bound to be free and compulsory in this country as it had been free and compulsory elsewhere, only he said, the time for that is not yet. This is what he said:—

'Universal and free education in India must come as it has come in all other countries, but the time is not yet, and I am confident that the Government of India has a policy dictated for the present by the same hopes and aims as the hopes and aims of Mr. Gokhale. We have no attitude of hostility towards the principles which inspire his Bill. We and he are working for the same end, the breaking down of illiteracy in India; ' and he proceeded, in his speech, to give an idea as to what the Government had in view as their policy. He spoke of it as the alternative plan of Government, and he concluded as follows:—

'The programme which we hope to work up to in time is as follows. We desire to increase the total number of primary schools by 90 thousand, or 75 per cent., and to double the school-going population. The schools will cost £25 each per year, and they will be placed in villages and other centres of population which are at present without schools. We are going to improve the existing schools which now only cost about £10 a year, and the cost of these will probably have to be doubled.'

"Briefly speaking, the scheme of the Government, as announced by Mr. Montagu, came to this. There was to be both expansion and improvement. The expansion was to be with £25 schools. The improvement was to work up the £10 schools that existed in the country to about £20 schools. There were to be trained teachers as far as possible, and no teacher was to receive less than Rs. 12. This, however, was in two important respects quite vague. There were two essential gaps, and a prominent member of the Opposition, Lord Ronaldshay, asked the question in what time the Government proposed to carry this out—a most pertinent question; to that Mr. Montagu merely replied:—

'I cannot give the period. As I am going on to say, it must take very considerable time.'

"Well, Sir, one expected that after this statement by Mr. Montagu in the House of Commons the Government of India would lose no time in publishing their proposals in this country. We however waited and waited; but, till the time I had to send notice of my motion, nothing had appeared. I thought, therefore, that the best thing to do was to ask for these papers, namely the correspondence between the Secretary of State and the Government of India on the one hand, and between the Government of India and the Local Governments on the other. I did this because it was quite clear from the speech of Mr. Montagu that a programme of expansion had been definitely drawn up, though its details were carefully withheld from the public. Now if there was a programme, it must have received the sanction of the Secretary of State, which meant that it must have been sent up by the Government of India to the Secretary of State; if it was, therefore, to be found anywhere, it must be in the correspondence between the Government of India and the Secretary of State. At the same time I thought that such a programme as this would not be submitted by the Government of India to the Secretary of State without consulting the Local Governments, because education is a charge which has been made over to Local Governments and Administrations. Therefore, it appeared to me to be the best plan to ask for correspondence between the Government of India and the Secretary of State on the one side, and the Government of India and the Local Governments on the other. Since notice of this motion was given, however, as I have already observed, the new Resolution of the Government on the subject of education has been given to the public. When I saw this Resolution in the train the other day on my way here from Calcutta, I turned naturally with the utmost eagerness to the portion referring to primary education in the hope that the gaps, the most important gaps in the speech of Mr. Montagu, would be found supplied in this Resolution. And I must say that I was greatly disappointed. Precisely the same reticence that characterised Mr. Montagu's speech on those points also characterises this Resolution. In certain respects the Resolution is undoubtedly fuller. In enunciating the principles underlying the policy of the Government in regard to primary education, this Resolution is fuller than the speech of Mr. Montagu, but in regard to the programme to be worked up to, it goes no further than Mr. Montagu. It repeats the figures which Mr. Montagu gave but keeps us still in the dark as to how those figures have been arrived at, and in what period the proposed results are to be achieved. Now, Sir, I want this programme. I think the country is entitled to know what it is. This is a matter in regard to which we are entitled to be taken into confidence. If the programme is to be carried out, let us know really how the Government mean to carry it out. Let us know what are the resources which the Government propose to devote to this programme so that it might be achieved. If the Hon'ble Member will give us this programme and point out how he proposes to achieve it, I shall not press him for the publication of the correspondence between the Secretary of State and the Government of India, or between the Government of India and the Local Governments. Sir, during my 25 years' study of public questions, I have had to wade through piles and piles of official correspondence, and I have not much appetite left for it. I am not unduly curious about official correspondence: it is not always interesting reading; it is not always even profitable reading, and, therefore, I am not particular whether this correspondence is published or not. If only the Hon'ble Member will give us the programme and we are entitled to have this programme, if he will tell us in what time he will carry it out, well I will not press for the publication of these official papers. Sir, let the Council look at the language which the Hon'ble Member employs in this Resolution as regards the time in which this programme is to be achieved. He says that it is the hope of the Government of India that in the not distant future the number of schools and of the school-going population will be doubled. He does not put it any stronger than that it is the hope of the Government.

"Now, it is obvious that unless you definitely say in what time you are going to double your schools and your school-going population, the declaration may conceivably come to nothing. Sir, this country is advancing and will continue to advance, and in 40, 50, 80, or 100 years, the school-going population may double itself and even more than double itself, even if no special efforts are made. Therefore, if you merely say that at some future time—the exact words are 'in the not distant future' but they are perfectly vague—if you say that at some time not far removed from the present the school-going population will be doubled, those who are keen on the spread of education in India will not find much comfort in that. Sir, this is an ancient land, with its roots going far back into the past, and in the opinion of some, a few decades one way or the other may not matter. I therefore want to know what the idea of the Hon'ble Member is as to this not very distant future. What is this not very distant future of which the Hon'ble Member speaks? I think we are entitled to be told what it is. Whether the policy of Government is adequate or not will really depend on what is the period in which the Government proposes to accomplish this object. It is the same about the finance of the scheme. No-where do we find any definite statement. Here and there there are no doubt hints as to what the cost of this scheme is going to be. These hints I have pieced together, and I have been able to form some idea of what must be in the mind of Government as to the cost. It seems that the cost of the programme will be at least about 6 crores a year for the primary education of boys and girls. I arrive at that in this way. Mr. Montagu speaks of doubling the cost of existing schools, the average cost being raised from £10 a school to about £20 a school. The present cost of boys' primary schools from all sources is roughly a million. This is to be doubled, which means two millions—that is, another extra million or a crore and a half must be found for existing schools. Again as to new schools; there are to be 90,000 more at a cost of £25 each school That comes to 3½ crores for new schools and 1½ crores for the existing schools, or 5 crores in all. Then there must be some provision for training teachers for inspectors, etc. There must also be the increased cost in connection with the improvement and expansion of girls' schools. I do not know what figures are contemplated under these heads, but if we put all that at a crore at the least it comes to about 6 crores and probably more. If I am wrong in this, I hope the Hon'ble Member will correct me. Thus so far as the cost of the programme is concerned, one can form some idea. But the most important question is in what time are you going to reach this expenditure of 6 crores a year? If you propose to reach it in 40, 30 or even 20 years, I say there is not much in that. If you are going to reach it, say, in ten years, that I admit, will be something. I tried to calculate this morning how long it would take at the present rate of progress to have our schools and school-going population doubled, and the results were very depressing. Taking the figures on which the Hon'ble Member and his Department have been priding themselves most, namely, the figures for the last four years, we find that the progress of education has been at the rate of about (taking boys' schools only) 130,000 boys a year—not 240,000 as the Hon'ble Mr. Sharp incorrectly said last year and as Mr. Montagu, following Mr. Sharp, stated in the House of Commons. In 1906-07 there were 34 lakhs of boys in primary schools. In 1910-11 there were 39·2 lakhs. The increase was 5·2 in four years. That means an annual increase of a lakh and thirty thousand. Now, the hope of the Hon'ble Member is to see the present school-going population doubled, that is, instead of 4½ millions he would like to have 9 millions—another 4½ millions. This will require more than 30 years if the annual rate of increase is 130,000 which is the rate for the last four years. Again, if we turn to the number of schools, we find the number has risen at the rate of about 1,250 schools a year during the last four years, and if we are to wait for the 90,000 additional schools to be reached at this rate, we shall have to wait for 75 to 80 years. There is not much comfort to be found in these figures, and I once again earnestly ask the Hon'ble Member to publish his programme to the country. Sir, I ask that this should be done because I feel strongly on the subject. I feel, that, unless the Hon'ble Member and his Department definitely commit themselves and commit the Government to a programme published in the full face of the country, this scheme, promising as it is, may come to very little after all. We have experience of this kind of thing happening in the past. When Lord Ripon's Government issued their famous Resolution in passing orders on the recommendations of the Education Commission of 1882, we all thought there was going to be an immense expansion of education. And yet in a very short time there was a complete change of policy. Frontier affairs assumed a threatening aspect, increased military preparations, the invasion and conquest of Upper Burma—fall in the exchange value of the rupee—all these things followed in quick succession, with the result that instead of increased subventions to Local Governments which Lord Ripon's Government had promised for the extension of education Lord Dufferin's Government actually issued orders calling upon Local Governments to cut down their educational expenditure. Unless therefore the Hon'ble Member definitely secures growing resources for education, unless the educational expenditure of the country is put on the same level as say, military expenditure, so that money must be found for it whether finances are good or bad, whether there is famine or no famine, whether the opium revenue is in existence or not in existence, unless the Government are prepared to find this money for education in the same way as they find money for military expenditure, I am afraid that it will not be possible for us to place much reliance on the scheme. I of course mean no offence to the Hon'ble Member or his Department in saying this, and I am sure the Hon'ble Member knows I mean no offence; but the Hon'ble Member will not be in charge of this Department always, and more than that, there are changes in so many directions taking place that unless the thing is actually put down in black and white, and the Government accept it as a definite responsibility in the face of the public, I fear the Government may find itself unable in spite of its wishes to carry out this programme. My request therefore to the Hon'ble Member is to definitely give us information on four points. First of all, what are the revenues that the Hon'ble Member has secured, or, if he has not actually secured them, he expects to be able to secure from the Government. If he says he only expects to be able to get certain revenues, that of course will not be so satisfactory as if he said that he had got them, but still it would be something. But he must tell us what the financial provision is going to be. It is clear it must be a growing provision—something like a series in an arithmetical progression, because you are going to cover the field in a certain number of years. And I want to know how the Hon'ble Member is going to find this money. With the opium revenue nearing extinction, he certainly will have very considerable difficulty in doing so.

[Mr. Gokhale.] [25TH FEBRUARY, 1913.]

"The second point on which I want information is the period in which the programme is to be carried out. What is to be the period—the two things—period and finance—really go together—what is to be the period? The Hon'ble Member may say this is in no man's hands. You may take a horse to the stream but you cannot make him drink. You may open schools, but you may not necessarily be able to fill them. That, however, only confirms my view, namely, that without a resort to compulsion in some form, you cannot push on elementary education very far in this country. But we are just now considering the Hon'ble Member's policy of increased efforts on a voluntary basis. If you want to try that policy, by all means try it; but then be definite about it and tell us in how many years you expect to be able to achieve your programme.

"The third point on which I want information is in what proportion are you going to distribute the funds that may be available between expansion and improvement? Sir, that is a very important point. The figures I have estimated for boys' schools are, roughly, 1½ crores for improvement and 3¼ crores for expansion. Well, in what proportion are you going to devote the additional revenues? Do you propose to take in hand improvement first? If you do that, the additional funds may be swallowed up by improvement for several years to the practical exclusion of expansion. Personally I am more anxious for expansion than for improvement in the present state of the country, but in any case I should like to know in what proportion the Hon'ble Member proposes to allot funds to these two objects.

"Lastly, what are the actual steps you have taken or are going to take to overcome the difficulty which was so often brought up against the Bill of last year, namely, the absence of trained teachers? In this Resolution mention is made of the fact that at the present moment about 11,000 teachers are being annually trained, and that the supply is not adequate for existing requirements. At the Allahabad Conference which was held at the beginning of 1911 under the presidency of the Hon'ble Member which I was invited to attend as a member, the question was carefully considered and certain suggestions were made and adopted. I should like to know whether effect has been given to those suggestions, and if so, to what extent.

"Sir, these are the four points on which definite information is necessary. These four points must be provided for in your programme, if the programme is of any value. I ask the Government therefore to publish the programme. The only reason I can think of for the withholding of the programme from the public is the fear that you may not be able to carry it out. But that, if I may be permitted to say so, would be a somewhat half-hearted way of proceeding about the business. I know that description does not apply to my Hon'ble friend, for he has his whole heart in the scheme. Perhaps there is a difficulty in his path, which he cannot remove. Can it be the dragon of another department or is it the dragon of a higher authority? I do not know; but if some such difficulty exists, the country is entitled to know what that difficulty is.

"One word more and I have done. You have stated that 'in the not distant future,' it is your hope to see some 91,000 more primary schools for boys added. That figure again, by the way, shows that there is a programme, for if you had expressed yourselves merely in a way, you would have mentioned the figure 100,000, and not 91,000, which must be the total of smaller figures. You say it is your hope to have 91,000 more schools in some indefinite time. But since it is a matter of merely hoping and no definite time is mentioned, why not go further? Why not make an announcement that will cover the whole field? Sir, I rejoice that in the very forefront of this Resolution have been placed the words, the gracious words of the King-Emperor—words, warm with life and hope, which stirred all hearts in the country when they were first uttered. I rejoice that these words have been placed in the forefront of the Resolution. But your programme, even when fully worked up to, will fulfil those words only partially, for you will then have reached only 40 to 50 per cent. of the population. Now the King-Emperor does not say that he wants the homes of only 40 to 50 per cent. of his subjects to be brightened by education; he wants the homes of all his people to be so brightened. Then why stop where you do? Why not have a scheme that will cover the whole area? What I would suggest is, set aside certain steadily increasing revenues for education, and then leave it to time to work the thing out. This is the only way to tackle the problem on your own lines. The Hon'ble Member cannot hope to tackle it successfully, unless he starts on his mission fully and not partially equipped. And he will never be fully equipped unless he has resources at his disposal which are independent of chance and circumstance. If a definite programme is announced to the country, it would go to strengthen the Government in moments of weakness. If a time of difficulty arose and they were likely to feel that this expenditure was somewhat inconvenient and that it should be cut down, a definite promise given would stop them from yielding to the temptation and they would have to go on with the work just the same, even by resorting to increased taxation, if necessary. And then only will the programme have a proper chance of being realized. I trust that the Hon'ble Member will consider all this and see his way to publishing the programme which he undoubtedly has submitted to the Secretary of State. If he will offer to do this, I will not press for the publication of the correspondence. If not, I shall have to press my motion to a division."

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee:—"Sir, I desire to associate myself with the appeal which has been made by my Hon'ble friend for the production of papers set forth in the Resolution. In matters educational I take it there can be no secrets and diplomatic issues are altogether out of place. In the sacred Temple of learning political considerations are well kept out of sight. Sir, the watchword of the present Government is co-operation, and it is a policy which has been acclaimed with enthusiasm by the people. I venture to say that no Department of the State save and except perhaps in the case of Sanitation, in no Department of the State is co-operation so indispensable to success as in the Department of Education. But co-operation presupposes confidence, and I have no hesitation in asserting that public confidence is likely to receive a rude shock by the non-publication of the papers which my Hon'ble friend wants and not laying before the public the programme of work which he insists upon. My friend has referred to the history of compulsory education as discussed in this Council. Sir, his motion for reference of his Bill to the Select Committee was rejected last year. That does not mean, however, that the supporters of the Bill or the public have abandoned the measure, or that they have lost sight of the great and important issues which it has raised. The principles of that Bill have struck a firm root in the public mind, and the advocates of mass education resolutely adhere to them in the firm confidence that sooner or later, and perhaps sooner than later, the Government will be converted and the Bill will be placed among the Statutes of the land. Sir, we are sufficiently familiar with the evolution of parliamentary measures to know that even projects of enduring beneficence do not always receive prompt and immediate acquiescence.

"They have again and again to be brought forward in one form or another, again and again pressed upon the attention of the public and of legislative bodies. The public is very slow to move, and legislative bodies are even slower in their movements. Sir, I beg to invite attention in this connection to what Sir Henry Maine has told us with regard to the duties and functions of legislative bodies. That great authority says that it should be their aim and their endeavour to bridge the distance between law and public opinion and make legislation more and more conformable to the requirements of an advancing public opinion. Our appeal to this Council is that it should act in accordance with this principle, so far as this matter is concerned. Sir, I claim for Mr. Gokhale's Bill—in fact this is a side issue of that Bill—that, barring a note of dissent here or a note of dissent there, it has received the unanimous and enthusiastic support of public opinion,—not a manufactured public opinion, but a real and genuine public opinion."

The President :—"I am sorry to interrupt the Hon'ble Member, but the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale's Bill is not before the Council. What is actually before the Council is the motion for papers. Therefore I do not think the Hon'ble Member can discuss the merits or demerits of Mr. Gokhale's Bill."

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee :—"I bow to your decision, Sir. Well, if Mr. Gokhale's Bill is not before the Council, at any rate it is very clear that the information which the Hon'ble the Minister for Education may have to lay before us will perhaps enable us to decide the question as to whether it is necessary that compulsion should be an indispensable instrument in the diffusion of mass education; and it was because I was anxious to elucidate that point that I was making the observations, which you, Sir, have ruled out of order.

"I once again associate myself with my Hon'ble friend Mr. Gokhale in the request that the programme which the Government wants to carry out in this connection be laid before us, and that the papers which he has called for should be submitted for consideration to this Council. We could then be in a position to know what progress the Government want to make, and if further pressure of public opinion is needed, we shall not be wanting in our duty."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis :—"Sir, I beg to support the motion. The expansion of Primary Education, I gather from the Hon'ble mover's speech, might raise questions of taxation. The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhâle has referred to the financial aspect of the question. Irrespective of my views about the unsuitability of compulsion in the present stage of our development, I, as one of the public, naturally feel interested in the inquiry as to how Government proposes to raise the additional revenue required for any large expenditure. I therefore support the Resolution."

The Hon'ble Sree P. Rama Rayaningar Venkataranga Bahadur :—"Sir, I do not wish to record a silent vote on this occasion. The motion before the Council is in the form of a simple request—a request intended to enable Hon'ble Members to have access to the papers relating to the scheme outlined by the Under Secretary of State for India anent Primary Education. I have therefore no doubt that the motion will find ready acceptance with the Council. It is true there is difference of opinion as to the merits of the Hon'ble mover's scheme for mass education. Of course, Hon'ble Members reserve to themselves full liberty of criticism on the subject. But to my mind, Sir, it seems a difficult position to maintain even for the most uncompromising critic that the adoption of the Resolution before the Council would be prejudicial either to Government or the public. Neither party can be adversely affected by a course which by its reasonableness cannot fail to command the support of all interested in the cause of education. Sir, I do not wish to embarrass the Government, but I feel sure the Government has no secrecy to maintain in a matter like this. On the contrary, the publication of the correspondence will ensure to it a moral advantage. It is the best and most effective way of silencing uncharitable criticism of Government policy. The recent publication of the Government Resolution cannot be a reason for rejecting the motion. The Resolution of the Government is certainly an elaborate statement of their proposed benevolent educational policy. The statement is welcome and we feel deeply grateful to Government, but the people are left to speculate about the reasons and considerations underlying that policy. The conclusions are there without the premises, and this course is least calculated to relieve the anxiety of those interested in the subject. Hence I am of opinion that, notwithstanding the recent publication of the Government Resolution, the motion before the Council has its own importance. I, therefore, cordially support the motion."

The Hon'ble Mr. Madhu Sudan Das :—"Sir, I rise to associate myself with the motion by the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale. The Government Resolution which has just been published mentions His Gracious Majesty's name, and it is also said there that it was in furtherance and pursuance of His Gracious Majesty's wish that the Government adopted this Resolution. During His Majesty's visit to this country there was evidence, unmistakably clear evidence, to show the feelings of the people towards their King-Emperor. The Indian has been brought up and accustomed to look upon his King as God's Vicegerent on earth. The Resolution associates the programme laid down with the King's wish. It is a Resolution which touches the interests of hundreds of millions, and especially the mass population. I have not the slightest doubt that the information with regard to mass education contained in that Resolution will soon filter down to the masses, and it will raise very high hopes of an improved state of things amongst the poor dumb millions, and this hope will associate itself naturally in the minds of these dumb millions with their ideas of divinity which they attach to their King-Emperor. Those being the circumstances under which the Resolution has been published, I think it is very desirable that the people should know exactly how Government wishes to give effect to the promises made in this Resolution. I saw this Resolution in the train. I must confess that I have not been able to study it with the attention which the Hon'ble mover has devoted to it and which perhaps is characteristic of his public life, but this much is clear that it is a Resolution which requires actually a definite statement on the part of Government. I have just learnt from the Hon'ble mover's speech that expressions such as 'at no distant date,' and other similar expressions have been used with reference to the time when the Resolution will be given effect to.

"Time Sir, always flies and carries on its wings even Government officials from their offices. Consequently it would be much better if we did not depend upon time, but had dates and years to depend upon. Mortal as we are, we like to have more definite things. Then Sir, Education is a subject which embraces the most important questions that are of interest to a foreign Government. Sir, very often measures started with the most benevolent motives by Government are misunderstood by the common masses, and this is simply due to their ignorance ; and unless this darkness of ignorance is penetrated by the light of knowledge, I fear there will not be that co-operation between the Government and the people which is certainly desirable, most desirable and essential, in the interests of good government—in the interests both of the Government and of the people. If anything is likely to bridge the gulf between the two races or nations, and if India is ever to realize fully the benevolent intentions of a foreign Government, it must be at a time when mass education has permeated throughout this land; and consequently, being such an important matter as this, it ought not to be left indefinite, and the people ought to be in a position to know when their hopes are actually to be realized. As it is, it would be much better if the Hon'ble Member, or if Government would tell us (and it is a very happy circumstance that the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Revenue and the Hon'ble Member in charge of Education are sitting together and consequently it can be easily settled) how much of the local revenue can be earmarked for this purpose. On these grounds I beg to support the motion."

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler :—" Sir, I must first of all thank the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale for his kindly references to myself and to my Department, and for the warm terms in which he spoke of the Resolution on educational progress and policy that appeared in last Saturday's Gazette. I value those words the more because we are separated on a cardinal principle of policy. Mr. Gokhale would rely for the progress of education on the introduction of the principle of compulsory attendance. We think that it is premature to consider the introduction of such a policy, and we prefer to rely on the extension of the principle of voluntary attendance.

"I look upon the Hon'ble gentleman as an ally, a rather troublesome, I may say a prodding and a goading ally, but an ally and I am very sorry that I have on this occasion to refuse him the information, or most of the information, for which he asks. What he asks is this : He says, 'if the programme is to be achieved, tell us how and when it is to be achieved, and he asks—what do you mean by such expressions as 'a not distant future.' Bad finance or good finance, he says, we must have money for Education.

"I do not think that I need argue at any very great length on the financial difficulties of laying down a policy now which will commit posterity. That, Sir (to President), would be your province; but I must make some general observations on the points which would render any such action imprudent from the financial point of view. By a merciful dispensation of Providence, we have had a succession of good years. But fat years are often succeeded in India by lean years, and occasionally a bad famine devastates the land, and all the energies of Government have then to be devoted to the rescuing of human life and to the mitigation of human suffering. The country is still in the main dependent on agriculture. In your words, Sir, 'the Budget is a gamble on rain.' Hon'ble Members have sometimes short memories in matters of finance, but only in the year 1908-09, that is five years ago, the Budget anticipated a surplus, and we had to face a deficit of 3½ millions sterling. Again, there are very special reasons at the present time why it is not possible to commit posterity. We have sitting at Simla Field Marshal Lord Nicholson's Committee on military expenditure. The recommendations of that Committee we do not yet know. Then there is sitting in Delhi at the present moment a very important Commission presided over by Lord Islington, of which the Hon'ble Member is a member—and I may say how very glad we all have been, the Government of India have been, to meet that Commission at Delhi. It is impossible for us to disregard the possibility that the recommendations of that Commission may eventuate in a demand for a very considerably increased expenditure on the public services of India. Then we have an obviously ambitious, but wholly undeveloped, sanitary policy ahead. We hear from other sides large demands for increasing expenditure on railway development ; and I should like to say that I look upon the railways as one of the greatest educators of the country. They cause a stir of ideas and a protest against illiteracy which is hardly inferior to the provision of schools.

[25TH FEBRUARY, 1913.] [Sir Harcourt Butler; Mr. Gokhale.]

"Also, as practical men, we must recognise that the extension of organization takes time. We have not the staff at present to carry out any very rapid extension of education. At the present moment I think I am correct in saying that of the grants given for the last two years, some 71 lakhs, or £500,000 sterling have not yet been disposed of. Now, of course, the Government of India and the Local Governments are looking to the matter, and are preparing for a great advance; but, at the present moment, we cannot really spend at once all the money that we can get. It does not mean that the Education Department has abated its zeal or its demand one jot or tittle; it does not mean that the Finance Department under you, Mr. Vice-President, will not do all it can to assist the Education Department in carrying out the policy. But we must recognise that we have a right to ask for a little time before we elaborate a definite policy, and that we cannot as prudent financiers commit posterity to a scale of expenditure which the reformers with whom I sympathise, with whom we all sympathise, desire.

"I may say incidentally that the progress of education is really more rapid than Right Hon'ble gentlemen would have us believe, and I shall be giving figures to the Council within a few days which will show that in the year 1911-12 there was an increase of 335,252 children in primary schools in India. I think that that is a figure of annual increase much higher than any which has yet been realized, and I hope that members of this Council will believe that that is the beginning of a period of progress. The Hon'ble Member has referred to the statement made by His Most Gracious Majesty the King-Emperor. His Excellency the Viceroy who has returned to-day to Delhi—and you will all be glad to hear that he is now convalescent—has charged me to tell you that his interest in Education is unabated and insistent. The Government of India and all the Local Governments now fully appreciate the need for a great move forward. The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjee makes an appeal for the publication of papers, because, he says, if these papers are not published, there would be a feeling of want of confidence on the part of the educated public. I am sorry that so ordinary an official procedure as the refusal to publish papers with another and a higher authority should leave the Government open to any suspicion of want of confidence. I can only assure the Hon'ble gentleman that there is no want of confidence, and I can only refer him to the Resolution which states the results of the correspondence in a form which, I think, is clearer than you could get out of the correspondence itself. But I do not rest the refusal on that. I rest it on the ordinary official ground, that such correspondence is not usually published. There is no secrecy in the matter. I hope before very long—in the course of next year or so—to be able to publish definite proposals from Local Governments for a course of expansion in primary education over the next three years. A good deal of material has been collected, but so far it is not in a form in which it can be recorded. The Government of India are anxious to carry the public with them. They consider that that Resolution, issued on Saturday last, shows a desire to co-operate with the people. It was certainly in that spirit that it was written. I ask the Council, and outside the Council I ask the parents in India, to believe that that is an honest and sincere Resolution, and that the Government is determined, is anxious and earnestly and intently desirous to make a big move forward with steadfast gaze and unfaltering footsteps until they are able, in the distant future, it may, but in the future—and we keep our eyes upon the goal, to provide for the sons and daughters of India, the same opportunities and facilities for education as are available for the sons and daughters of the Western world."

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale:—"Sir, I had hoped to hear that the Hon'ble Member was prepared to meet my request in a more substantial manner than he has chosen to do, and I must say that, on the whole, I am greatly disappointed with what has fallen from him. Why, Sir, what was only a faint suspicion in my mind before has been confirmed into a strong suspicion by the Hon'ble Member's remarks. I did fear that there was no definite finance behind the scheme, and when the Hon'ble Member proceeded to mention the difficulties of the Finance Department,—not his own,—when the Hon'ble Member mentioned the difficulties of the Finance Department which had to be taken into consideration in considering this question, he made it quite clear that nothing definite had yet been secured in the matter of resources. The Hon'ble Member mentioned three or four circumstances which, in his opinion, advised caution. He said the country was liable to periodical famines; the Nicholson Committee which had lately sat to consider the question of military expenditure had not yet submitted its report; an important Royal Commission on the Public Services in India was taking evidence, and how he came to have the idea I do not know, but he somehow seems to anticipate that its recommendations will result in a large increase of expenditure; and, lastly, he spoke of the necessity of pushing on railways which, from the educational standpoint, he thought to be quite as important as schools. Well, Sir, if the expansion of primary education is to depend upon all these factors, then I for one have not much hope that anything very substantial will be achieved.

"Unless the Government are going to find the money for education in good years and bad years alike, I decline to have much faith in this scheme. The Government does not proceed in this manner when it wants more money for the Army. During the last thirty years the expenditure on the Army has been increased from 15 to 31 crores,—an increase of 16 crores,—and whenever an increase in the expenditure on the Army was required, the Commander-in-Chief simply said,—'I want so much more money' and the money had to be found and provision had to be made. If the existing revenue of the country was insufficient for the purpose, increased taxation was resorted to. When Lord Kitchener introduced his reorganization scheme, we had to find special sums of money required for several years running. Unless the Hon'ble Member is going to fight for his scheme in the same spirit and with the same determination,—I do not know what is passing behind the curtains,—but unless he is going to take up his stand like that publicly, I do not know that much will come from the scheme. Sir, the Hon'ble Member spoke of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Public Services resulting in a large increase of expenditure. As I have already said, I do not know how he knows this, but are we seriously to believe that in the opinion of the Hon'ble Member the demands of the Civil Service for increased pay, better prospects and higher pensions are to take precedence of educational expansion in the country, that the expansion of primary education is to be subordinated to the satisfaction of those demands? Sir, the cause of primary education, which is all-important, cannot be made and must not be made subsidiary to such claims, and I certainly am surprised that the Hon'ble Member should say that the provision that has to be made for education will have to depend upon what this Royal Commission recommends. Again, as regards railways, railway expenditure is met out of borrowings and I do not know that that has any connection, as long as there is no net loss, with the current revenues out of which provision for primary education has to be made. Of course if the railway finance results in losses, then the losses have to be made good out of current revenues; but that is now a somewhat remote contingency, and, therefore, I think, for our present purposes, we may well put railway expenditure out of account.

"As regards the Nicholson Committee, if that Committee's labours are going to lead to an increase of military expenditure instead of leading to its reduction, as we had all hoped it would, that, again, is a matter which will have to rest on its own basis. My contention is that the question of primary education is second to no other in importance, and if you are firm in your desire to find money for it you must do so independently of the money you may require for the Army, and for other purposes. Lastly, as to the country being liable to periodical famines. Of course we are constantly liable to famines in this country. And we never can say when there will be no famine. We never can have that sense of security, but that does not prevent the Government from pledging the country to expenditure in advance in other directions. If the Government do not wish to publish their programme because that would commit them definitely to certain expenditure, I say they had no right and I say they had no business to make public use of that programme for their own purposes. I say Mr. Montagu had no right to make use of this programme in his budget speech, and the Hon'ble Member had no right to put all those figures in the Resolution that has just been issued. The result of the procedure adopted has been to produce a misleading impression. Men in England are easily satisfied about Indian affairs. They do not much and I fear they care even less They will now think that the Government of India has embarked on a policy which will soon result in doubling the school-going population. This is quite enough for their purposes. There are many men in this country too who do not understand the deeper intricacies of public affairs, and who too will now merely repeat the same cry and feel satisfied. I must confess that I am disappointed that the Hon'ble Member has declined to publish the programme. He offers us instead some details for the next three years. That will not suffice, and I have therefore no option but to divide the Council."

The Council divided:

Ayes—19.

NOTICES.

THE PATENT OFFICE, 1, COUNCIL HOUSE STREET, CALCUTTA.

Public room, open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

1. All communications relating to applications for patents and for registration of designs under the Indian Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911), or in continuation of applications under the Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888) should be addressed to the Controller of Patents and Designs, 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. Documents sent by post should be carefully packed.

2. Directions for the guidance of inventors and others are given in the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911 (price, 10 annas), and in the Indian Patents and Designs Rules, 1912 (price, 2 annas). These should be consulted before an application is made to the Controller.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs or on their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. Applications for patents in countries other than India should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

4. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

3. Advice. The Patent Office cannot undertake (1) to give opinions on the interpretation of Patent Law, or on the advisability of protecting inventions and designs or on their infringement; (2) to make searches in respect of information available in the public room; (3) to recommend any particular agent; or (4) to assist in the disposal of inventions. Applicants are warned that the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, is in force in British India only, and patents granted under it do not extend to the United Kingdom or any of the British possessions. The International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property does not include India. Applications for patents in countries other than India should be made to the patent offices in the countries concerned.

4. Fees are payable in cash and must be received in the Patent Office within the time allowed by the Acts. When cheques are offered in payment of fees, it must be clearly understood that the office cannot hold itself responsible for any delay that may occur in the collection of cash on the cheques; any cheque not payable in Calcutta is subject to commission. In cases where it is not possible to have the fees handed in at the Patent Office, it is preferable to send them by money-order or postal order payable at Calcutta to the Controller of Patents and Designs, and to advise him that they have been so sent. Stamps will not be received in payment of fees.

5. Trade and property marks are not registered and medicines are not patented under the Indian Patents and Designs Act. There is no provision of Law in British India for their registration.

6. Printed Specifications of applications, which have been accepted, are published within about [illegible] after acceptance has been notified in the Gazette of India. OFFICIAL HISTORY OF THE CORONATION DURBAR AND OF THE VISIT OF THEIR IMPERIAL MAJESTIES THE KING-EMPEROR AND QUEEN EMPRESS TO INDIA, 1911-12.

To meet the repeated demands of the public, the Government of India have decided to publish a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911.

This book will be compiled from the official records, and will contain lists of all persons taking part in the celebrations and ceremonies. There will also be numerous illustrations, portraits, maps, plans, etc.

It will be published in two editions, a popular one in a cloth binding at a cost not exceeding Rs. 7-8, and a very limited edition de luxe, which will contain a list of the subscribers, at a cost of about Rs. 250.

A translation of the popular edition will be made in Urdu and possibly in other languages also if the demand is sufficient.

It is expected that the work will be ready for publication in about six months' time, names are still being registered for the various editions and application should be made to the Superintendent, Official History of the Durbar, Foreign Department, Simla.

PART VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law constituting the office of Official Trustee.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law constituting the office of the Official Trustee; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Official Trustees Act, 1913.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas, and applies also to all British and Indian subjects of His Majesty in the territories of Native States in India.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council, by notification in the Gazette of India, may direct.

Interpretation clause.

2. In this Act unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "Government" means the Governor General in Council, so far as the Act relates to the Presidency of Bengal, and the Local Governments of Madras and Bombay, respectively, so far as the Act relates to those Presidencies:

(2) "High Court" means His Majesty's High Courts of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, Madras and Bombay, respectively, in the exercise of their original civil jurisdiction.

(3) "Official Gazette" means, in the case of the Presidency of Bengal, the Gazette of India, in the case of the Presidency of Madras, the Fort St. George Gazette, and in the case of the Presidency of Bombay, the Bombay Government Gazette:

(4) "Prescribed" means prescribed by rules under this Act:

(5) (a) "Presidency of Bengal" includes the territories for the time being under the government of the Governor of Fort William in Bengal in Council, the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the Provinces of the Punjab, Burma, Bihar and Orissa, the Central Provinces, Assam, the North-West Frontier Province, the Province of Delhi, Ajmer and Merwara, the Andaman and Nicobar Islands, and such of the territories of any Native State as the Governor General in Council may by notification in the Gazette of India direct,

(b) "Presidency of Bombay" includes the territories for the time being under the government of the Governor of Bombay in Council, the Province of British Baluchistan, and such of the territories of any Native State as the Governor General in Council may by notification in the Gazette of India direct,

(c) "Presidency of Madras" includes the territories for the time being under the government of the Governor of Fort St. George in Council, the Province of Coorg, and such of the territories of any Native State as the Governor General in Council may by notification in the Gazette of India direct.

(6) "Presidency" means any of the Presidencies mentioned in clause (5).

Extent of jurisdiction of High Courts.

3. For the purposes of this Act the High Court at a Presidency-town shall have jurisdiction throughout the Presidency.

PART II.

THE OFFICE OF OFFICIAL TRUSTEE.

Official Trustees.

4. (1) In each of the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras and Bombay, the Government shall appoint an Official Trustee.

(2) No person shall be appointed to the office of Official Trustee of any of the said Presidencies who is not—

(a) a Barrister; or

(b) an Advocate, Attorney or Vakil enrolled by a High Court; or

(c) a person holding the office of Deputy Administrator General at the commencement of this Act.

(3) The said Official Trustees shall be called respectively, the Official Trustee of Bengal, the Official Trustee of Madras and the Official Trustee of Bombay.

Appointment and powers of Deputy Official Trustee.

5. The Government may appoint a Deputy or Deputies to assist the Official Trustee; and any Deputy so appointed shall, subject to the control of the Government and the general or special orders of the Official Trustee, be competent to discharge any of the duties and exercise any of the powers of the Official Trustee, and when discharging such duties or exercising such powers shall have the same privileges and be subject to the same liabilities as the Official Trustee.

Official Trustee to be corporation sole, to have perpetual succession and official seal, and to sue and be sued in his corporate name.

6. The Official Trustee shall be a corporation sole by the name of the Official Trustee of the Presidency for which he is appointed and, as such Official Trustee, shall have perpetual succession and an official seal, and may sue and be sued in his corporate name.

PART III.

RIGHTS, POWERS, DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF OFFICIAL TRUSTEE.

General powers and duties of Official Trustee.

7. (1) Subject to, and in accordance with, the provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder, the Official Trustee may, if he thinks fit,—

(a) act as an ordinary trustee;

(b) be appointed trustee by a Court of competent jurisdiction.

(2) Save as hereinafter expressly provided, the Official Trustee shall have the same powers, duties and liabilities and be entitled to the same rights and privileges and be subject to the same control and orders of the Court as any other trustee acting in the same capacity.

(3) The Official Trustee may decline, either absolutely or except on such conditions as he may impose, to accept any trust.

(4) The Official Trustee shall not accept any trust under any composition or scheme of arrangement for the benefit of creditors, nor of any estate known or believed by him to be insolvent.

(5) The Official Trustee shall not, save as provided by any rules made under this Act, accept any trust for a religious purpose or any trust which involves the management or carrying on of any business.

(6) The Official Trustee shall not administer the estate of a deceased person, unless he is expressly appointed sole executor of, and sole trustee under, the will of such person.

(7) The Official Trustee shall always be sole trustee, and it shall not be lawful to appoint the Official Trustee to be trustee along with any other person.

Official Trustee may with consent be appointed trustee of settlement by grantor.

8. (1) Any person intending to create a trust other than a trust which the Official Trustee is prohibited from accepting under the provisions of this Act may by the instrument creating the trust and with the consent of the Official Trustee, appoint him by that name or any other sufficient description to be the trustee of the property subject to such trust:

Provided that the consent of the Official Trustee shall be recited in the said instrument and that such instrument shall be duly executed by the Official Trustee.

(2) Upon such appointment the property subject to the trust shall vest in such Official Trustee, and shall be held by him upon the trusts declared in such instrument.

Appointment of Official Trustee as trustee by will.

9. When the Official Trustee has by that name or any other sufficient description been appointed trustee under any will, the executor of the will of such testator or the administrator of his estate shall, after obtaining probate or letters of administration, notify in the prescribed manner the contents of such will to such Official Trustee; and, if such Official Trustee consents to accept the trust, then upon the execution by such executor or administrator of an instrument in writing transferring the property subject to the trust to the Official Trustee, such property shall vest in such Official Trustee, and shall be held by him upon the trusts expressed in the said will:

Provided that the consent of the Official Trustee shall be recited in the said instrument and that such instrument shall be duly executed by the Official Trustee.

Power of High Court to appoint Official Trustee to be trustee of property.

10. (1) If any property is subject to a trust other than a trust which the Official Trustee is prohibited from accepting under the provisions of this Act, and there is no trustee within the local limits of the ordinary or extraordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court willing or capable to act in the trust, the High Court may on application make an order for the appointment of the Official Trustee by that name with his consent to be the trustee of such property.

(2) Upon such order such property shall vest in the Official Trustee and shall be held by him upon the same trusts as the same was held previously to such order, and the previous trustee or trustees (if any) shall be exempt from liability as trustees of such property save in respect of acts done before the date of such order.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the provisions of the Trustees' and Mortgagees' Powers Act, 1866, or the Indian Trusts Act, 1882.

XXVIII of 1866. II of 1882.

Power of private trustees to appoint Official Trustee to be trustee of property.

11. (1) If any property is subject to a trust other than a trust which the Official Trustee is prohibited from accepting under the provisions of this Act, and all the trustees or the surviving or continuing trustee or trustees and all persons beneficially interested in the trust are desirous that the Official Trustee shall be appointed in the room of such trustee or trustees, it shall be lawful for such trustee or trustees, by an instrument in writing to appoint the Official Trustee by that name or any other sufficient description with his consent to be the trustee of such property:

Provided that the consent of the Official Trustee shall be recited in the said instrument and that such instrument shall be duly executed by him.

(2) Upon such appointment such property shall vest in the Official Trustee and shall be held by him upon the same trusts as the same was held previously to such appointment, and the previous trustee or trustees shall be exempt from all liability as trustees of such property save in respect of acts done before the date of such appointment.

Executor or administrator may pay to Official Trustee legacy, share, etc., of infant or lunatic.

12. (1) If any infant or lunatic is entitled to any gift, legacy or share of the assets of a deceased person, it shall be lawful for the person by whom such gift is made, or executor or administrator by whom such legacy or share is payable or transferable, or any trustee of such gift, legacy or share, to transfer the same by an instrument in writing to the Official Trustee by that name or any other sufficient description with his consent:

Provided that the consent of the Official Trustee shall be recited in the said instrument and that such instrument shall be duly executed by the Official Trustee.

(2) Any money or property transferred to the Official Trustee under this section shall vest in him and shall be subject to the same provisions as are contained in this Act as to other property vested in such Official Trustee.

Official Trustee not to be required to give bond or security.

13. (1) No Official Trustee shall be required by any Court to enter into any bond or security on his appointment in any capacity under this Act.

(2) No Official Trustee or Deputy Official Trustee shall be required to verify otherwise than by his signature any petition presented by him under the provisions of this Act, and if the facts stated in any such petition are not within the Official Trustee's personal knowledge, the petition may be verified and subscribed by any person competent to make the verification.

14. The entry of the Official Trustee by that name in the books of a company shall not constitute notice of a trust; and a company shall not be entitled to object to enter the name of the Official Trustee on its register by reason only that the Official Trustee is a corporation; and, in dealing with property, the fact that the person dealt with is the Official Trustee shall not of itself constitute notice of a trust.

Entry of Official Trustee not to constitute notice of a trust.

15. (1) The revenues of the Government of India shall be liable to make good all sums required to discharge any liability which the Official Trustee, if he were a private trustee, would be personally liable to discharge, except when the liability is one to which neither the Official Trustee nor any of his officers has in any way contributed or which neither he nor any of his officers could by the exercise of reasonable diligence have averted, and in either of those cases the Official Trustee shall not, nor shall the revenues of the Government of India, be subject to any liability.

Liability of Government.

(2) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to render the revenues of the Government of India or any Official Trustee appointed under this Act liable for anything done by or under the authority of any Official Trustee before the commencement of this Act.

V of 1908.

16. Nothing in section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, shall apply to any suit against the Official Trustee in which no relief is claimed against him personally.

Notice of suit not required in certain cases.

PART IV.

FEES.

17. (1) There shall be charged in respect of the duties of the Official Trustee such fees, whether by way of percentage or otherwise, as the Government may prescribe:

Fees.

Provided that in the case of a trust accepted by the Official Trustee before the commencement of this Act the fees prescribed under this section shall not exceed the fees leviable in respect of such trust under the Official Trustees Act, 1864, as subsequently amended.

XVII of 1864.

(2) The fees under this section may be at different rates for different properties or classes of properties or for different duties, and shall, so far as may be, be arranged so as to produce an amount sufficient to discharge the salaries and all other expenses incidental to the working of this Act (including such sum as Government may determine to be required to insure the revenues of the Government of India against loss under this Act.)

18. (1) All expenses which might be retained or paid out of the trust fund, if the Official Trustee were a private trustee, shall be so retained or paid, and any fees leviable under this Act shall be retained or paid in like manner as and in addition to such expenses.

Disposal of fees.

(2) The Official Trustee shall transfer and pay to such authority and in such manner and at such times as the Government may prescribe, all fees received by him under this Act, and the same shall be carried to the account and credit of the Government of India.

PART V.

AUDIT.

19. (1) The accounts of the Official Trustee shall be audited at least once annually and at any other time if the Government so direct by the prescribed person and in the prescribed manner.

Auditors to be appointed to examine Official Trustee's accounts, etc., and to report to Government.

(2) The auditor shall examine such accounts, and shall forward to Government a statement thereof in the prescribed form, together with a report thereon and a certificate signed by him showing—

(a) whether the accounts contain a full and true account of everything which ought to be contained therein, and

(b) whether the books, which by any rules made under this Act are directed to be kept by the Official Trustee, have been duly and regularly kept, and

or (as the case may be) that such accounts are deficient, or that the Official Trustee has failed to comply with this Act or the rules made thereunder, in such respects as may be specified in such certificate.

20. (1) Every auditor shall have the powers of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, Auditor's power to summon witnesses and to call for documents.

V of 1908.

(a) to summon any person whose presence he may think necessary to attend him from time to time, and

(b) to examine any person, on oath to be by him administered, and

(c) to issue a commission for the examination on interrogatories or otherwise of any person, and

(d) to summon any person to produce any document or thing, the production of which appears to be necessary for the purposes of such audit or examination.

(2) Any person who, when summoned, refuses, or without reasonable cause neglects to attend or to produce any document or thing or attends and refuses to be sworn, or to be examined, shall be deemed to have committed an offence within the meaning of, and punishable under, section 188 of the Indian Penal Code, and the auditor shall report every case of such refusal or neglect to Government.

XLV of 1860.

21. The cost of and incidental to every such audit and examination shall be determined in accordance with rules made by the Government and shall be defrayed in the prescribed manner.

Costs of audit, etc., how paid.

22. Every beneficiary under a trust which is being administered by the Official Trustee shall, subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be prescribed, be entitled, at all reasonable times, to inspect the accounts of such trust, and the report and certificate of the auditor and, on payment of the prescribed fee, to be furnished with copies thereof or extracts therefrom and nothing in the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, shall affect the provisions of this section.

Right of beneficiary to inspection and copies of accounts.

II of 1882.

PART VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

23. When any moneys payable to a beneficiary under a trust have been in the hands of any Official Trustee for a period of twelve years or upwards whether before or after the commencement of this Act in consequence of the Official Trustee having been unable to trace the person entitled to receive the same, such moneys shall be transferred in the prescribed manner to the account and credit of the Government of India:

Transfer to Government of accumulations in the hands of Official Trustee.

Provided that no such moneys shall be so transferred if any suit or proceeding is pending in respect thereof in any Court.

24. (1) If any claim is made to any moneys so transferred and such claim is established to the satisfaction of the prescribed authority, the Government of India shall pay to the claimant the amount in respect of which the claim is established.

Mode of proceeding by claimant to recover money so transferred.

(2) If such claim is not established to the satisfaction of the prescribed authority, the claimant may, without prejudice to his right to take any other proceedings for the recovery of such moneys, apply by petition to the High Court against the Secretary of State for India in Council, and, after taking such evidence as it thinks fit, such Court shall make such order on the petition in regard to the payment of such moneys as it thinks fit, and such order shall be binding on all parties to the proceedings.

(3) The Court may further direct by whom all or any part of the costs of such proceedings shall be paid.

25. The High Court may make such orders as it thinks fit respecting any trust property vested in the Official Trustee, or the interest or produce thereof.

Power of High Court to make orders in respect of property vested in Official Trustee.

26. Any order under this Act may be made, on the application of any person beneficially interested in any trust property or of any trustee thereof.

Who may apply for order under Act.

27. Any order made by a High Court under this Act shall have the same effect as a decree.

Order of Court to have effect of a decree.

28. The Official Trustee may, in addition to and not in derogation of any other powers of expenditure lawfully exerciseable by him, incur expenditure—

General powers of administration.

(a) on such acts as may be necessary for the proper care and management of any property belonging to any trust administered by him; and

(b) with the sanction of the High Court on such religious, charitable and other objects and on such improvements as may be reasonable and proper in the case of such property.

29. (1) Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent the transfer by the Official Trustee of any property vested in him to—

Transfer of trust property by Official Trustee to original trustee or any other trustee.

(a) the original trustee (if any); or

(b) any other lawfully appointed trustee; or

(c) any other person if the Court so directs.

(2) Upon such transfer such property shall vest in such trustee, and shall be held by him upon the same trusts as those upon which it was held prior to such transfer, and the Official Trustee shall be exempt from all liability as trustee of such property except in respect of acts done before such transfer:

Provided that, in the case of any transfer under this section, the Official Trustee shall be entitled to retain out of the property any fees leviable in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

30. (1) The Government shall make rules for carrying into effect the objects of this Act and for regulating the proceedings of the Official Trustee in the discharge of his duties.

Rules.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for—

(a) the accounts to be kept by the Official Trustee and the audit and inspection thereof;

(b) the safe custody, and deposit of the funds and securities which come into the hands of the Official Trustee;

(c) the remittance of sums of money in the hands of the Official Trustee in cases in which such remittances are required;

(d) the statements, schedules and other documents to be submitted by the Official Trustee to Government or to any other authority and the publication of such statements, schedules or other documents;

(e) the realization of the cost of preparing any such statements, schedules or other documents;

(f) subject to the provisions of this Act, the fees to be paid thereunder and the collection and accounting for any fees so fixed;

(g) the manner in which and the person by whom the costs of and incidental to any audit under the provisions of this Act are to be determined and defrayed;

(h) the manner in which summonses issued under the provisions of section 20 are to be served and the payment of the expenses of any persons summoned or examined under the provisions of this Act and of any expenditure incidental to such examination;

(i) the acceptance by the Official Trustee of trusts for religious purposes and trusts which involve the management or carrying on of business; and

(j) any matter in this Act directed to be prescribed.

(3) Rules made under the provisions of this section shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have effect as if enacted in this Act.

31. (1) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Act, the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India,—

Division of Presidency into Provinces.

(a) remove any of the territories included in the Presidency of Bengal from such Presidency and constitute the same

into provinces for the purposes of this Act;

(b) direct that for the purposes of this Act any of the territories of any Native State in India shall be included in any Province so constituted; and

(c) appoint any person qualified in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 4, or who holds office under Government to be an Official Trustee for any such Province, to be called the Official Trustee of the Province, and subject to the provisions of this section the following consequences shall thereupon ensue, namely:—

(i) the Official Trustee of a Province shall by that name have the like rights, powers, privileges and liabilities, and perform the like duties in the Province as the Official Trustee of the Presidency within which such territories were included had and performed as Official Trustee therein, and shall be deemed to be his successor in office:

(ii) the powers and duties of the Government under this Act shall, as regards the Province, be exercised and discharged by the Governor General in Council, or by such Local Government as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, appoint in this behalf; and the Gazette of the Government exercising and discharging such powers and duties shall be the official Gazette of the Province for the purposes of this Act:

(iii) the powers and duties assigned by the foregoing provisions of this Act to the High Court shall be exercised and discharged in respect of such Province by such Court as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, appoint in this behalf:

(iv) in the foregoing provisions of this Act, the word "Presidency" shall be deemed to include a province; and

(v) generally, the provisions of the foregoing sections with respect to the High Court and the provisions of this Act and of any other enactment for the time being in force with respect to the Official Trustee of a Presidency shall, in relation to a Province, be construed so far as may be to apply to the Court and the Official Trustee respectively appointed for the Province under this section.

(2) Any proceeding which was commenced before the publication of the notification constituting the province and to or in which the Official Trustee of any Presidency within which any territories constituted into a Province are situate was a party or was otherwise concerned shall be continued as if the notification had not been published.

(3) If by reason of the constitution of provinces for the purposes of this Act it appears to the Governor General in Council that any property vested in the Official Trustee of any Presidency should be vested in the Official Trustee of a Province, he may direct that the property shall be so vested, and thereupon it shall vest in the Official Trustee of the Province as fully and effectually for the purposes of this Act as if it had originally been vested in him under this Act.

(4) If in accordance with the provisions of this section territories have been removed from the Presidency of Bengal and constituted a Province for the purposes of this Act, the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct that as regards the Presidency of Bengal excluding the territories so removed the powers and duties of the Government under the Act shall be exercised and discharged by the Local Government of Bengal, and that the official Gazette shall be the Calcutta Gazette.

(5) Upon the rescission of a notification constituting a Province under sub-section (1), the territories comprised therein shall again form part of the Presidency within which they were originally included, the office of Official Trustee for the Province shall determine and all properties vested in and all proceedings by or against such Official Trustee pending at the date of the rescission shall vest in and be carried on by or against such Official Trustee or Official Trustees as the Governor General in Council may direct.

Saving of provisions of Indian Registration Act, 1908.

32. Nothing contained in this Act shall be deemed to affect the provisions of the Indian Registration Act, 1908. XVI of 1908.

Repeals.

33. The enactments specified in the Schedule are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the fourth column thereof:

Provided that any property subject to a trust by or in pursuance of any such enactment vested in any Official Trustee at the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to be vested in the Official Trustee under this Act to be held by him upon the same trusts as those upon which such property was held before such commencement.

(b) "Presidency of Bombay" includes the territories for the time being under the government of the Governor of Bombay in Council, the Province of British Baluchistan, and such of the territories of Native States aforesaid as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct:

(c) "Presidency of Madras" includes the territories for the time being under the government of the Governor of Fort St. George in Council, the province of Coorg, and such of the territories of Native States aforesaid as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct.

(10) "Presidency" means any of the Presidencies mentioned in clause (9).

PART II.

THE OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL.

Appointment and designation of the Administrators General in the three Presidencies.

3. (1) In each of the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras and Bombay, the Government shall appoint an Administrator General.

(2) No person shall be appointed to the office of Administrator General of any of the said Presidencies who is not—

(a) a Barrister; or
(b) an Advocate, Attorney or Vakil enrolled by a High Court; or
(c) a person holding the office of Deputy Administrator General at the commencement of this Act.

(3) The said Administrators General shall be called respectively the Administrator General of Bengal, the Administrator General of Madras, and the Administrator General of Bombay.

Appointment and powers of Deputy Administrators General.

4. The Government may appoint a Deputy or Deputies to assist the Administrator General; and any Deputy so appointed shall, subject to the control of the Government and the general or special orders of the Administrator General, be competent to discharge any of the duties and to exercise any of the powers of the Administrator General, and when discharging such duties or exercising such powers shall have the same privileges and be subject to the same liabilities as the Administrator General.

Administrator General to be a corporation sole, to have perpetual succession and official seal, and to sue and be sued in his corporate name.

5. The Administrator General shall be a corporation sole by the name of the Administrator General of the Presidency for which he is appointed and, as such Administrator General, shall have perpetual succession and an official seal, and may sue and be sued in his corporate name.

PART III.

RIGHTS, POWERS, DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF THE ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL.

(a) Grants of Letters of Administration and Probate.

As regards Administrator General, High Court at Presidency-town to be deemed a Court of competent jurisdiction for the purpose of granting probate or letters of administration.

6. So far as regards the Administrator General of any Presidency, the High Court at the Presidency-town shall be deemed to be a Court of competent jurisdiction for the purpose of granting probate or letters of administration under any law for the time being in force wheresoever within the Presidency the estate to be administered is situate.

Administrator General entitled to letters of administration, unless granted to next-of-kin.

7. Any letters of administration, which are granted after the commencement of this Act by the High Court at any Presidency-town, shall be granted to the Administrator General of the Presidency, unless they are granted to the next-of-kin of the deceased.

Administrator General entitled to letters of administration in preference to creditor, non-universal legatee or friend.

8. The Administrator General of the Presidency shall be deemed by all the Courts in the Presidency to have a right to letters of administration other than letters pendente lite in preference to that of—

(a) a creditor ; or

(b) a legatee other than an universal legatee ; or

(c) a friend of the deceased.

When Administrator General is to administer estates of persons other than exempted persons.

9. If any person, not being an exempted person, has died leaving within any Presidency assets exceeding the value of one thousand rupees, and if no person to whom any Court would have jurisdiction to commit administration of such assets has, within one month after his death, applied in such Presidency for probate of his will, or for letters of administration of his estate,

the Administrator General of the Presidency in which such assets are shall, subject to any rules made by the Government, within a reasonable time after he has had notice of the death of such person, and of his having left such assets, take such proceedings as may be necessary to obtain from the High Court at the Presidency-town letters of administration of the estate of such person.

Power to direct Administrator General to apply for administration.

10. Whenever any person has died leaving assets within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court at a Presidency-town, the Court, on being satisfied that danger is to be apprehended of misappropriation, deterioration or waste of such assets unless letters of administration of the estate of such person are granted, may upon the application of the Administrator General or of any person interested in such assets or in the due administration thereof, make an order, upon such terms as to indemnifying the Administrator General against costs and other expenses as the Court thinks fit, directing the Administrator General to apply for letters of administration of the estate of such person :

Provided that, in the case of an application being made under this section for letters of administration of the estate of an exempted person, the Court may refuse to grant letters of administration, if it is satisfied that such grant is unnecessary for the protection of the assets; and in such case the Court shall make such order as to the costs of the application as it thinks fit.

Power to direct Administrator General to collect and hold assets until right of succession or administration is determined.

11. (1) Whenever any person has died leaving assets within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of any of the said High Courts,

and such Court is satisfied that there is no person immediately available, who is legally entitled to the succession to such assets, or that danger is to be apprehended of misappropriation, deterioration or waste of such assets, before it can be determined who may be legally entitled to the succession thereto, or whether the Administrator General is entitled to letters of administration of the estate of such deceased person,

the Court may, upon the application of the Administrator General or of any person interested in such assets, or in the due administration thereof, forthwith direct the Administrator General to collect and take possession of such assets, and to hold, deposit, realize, sell or invest the same according to the directions of the Court, and in default of any such directions according to the provisions of this Act so far as the same are applicable to such assets.

(2) Any order of the Court made under the provisions of this section shall entitle the Administrator General,

(a) to maintain any suit or proceeding for the recovery of such assets, and

(b) if he thinks fit, to apply for letters of administration of the estate of such deceased person, and

(c) to retain out of the assets of the estate any fees chargeable under rules made under this Act, and to reimburse himself for all payments made by him in respect of such assets which a private administrator might lawfully have made,

12. If, in the course of proceedings to obtain letters of administration under the provisions of section 9, section 10, or section 11, any person appears and establishes his claim—

Grant of probate or letters of administration to person appearing in the course of proceedings taken by Administrator General under sections 9, 10 and 11.

(a) to probate of the will of the deceased ; or

(b) to letters of administration as next-of-kin of the deceased, and gives such security as may be required of him by law,

the Court shall grant probate of the will or letters of administration accordingly, and shall award to the Administrator General the costs of any proceedings taken by him, under those sections to be paid out of the estate as part of the testamentary or intestate expenses thereof.

13. If, in the course of proceedings to obtain letters of administration under the provisions of section 9, section 10 or section 11, no person appears and establishes his claim to probate of a will, or to a grant of letters of administration as next-of-kin of the deceased, within such period as to the Court seems reasonable, or if a person who has established his claim to a grant of letters of administration as next-of-kin of the deceased fails to give such security as may be required of him by law,

Grant of administration to Administrator General in certain cases.

the Court may grant letters of administration to the Administrator General.

14. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to preclude the Administrator General from applying to the Court for letters of administration in any case within the period of one month from the death of the deceased.

Administrator General not precluded from applying for letters within one month after death.

(b) Estates of Persons subject to the Army Act.

15. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect the provisions of the Regimental Debts Act, 1893.

Act not to affect Regimental Debts Act, 1893. [55 & 56 Vict., c. 57.]

16. It shall not be necessary for the Administrator General to take out letters of administration of the estate of any deceased person which is being administered by him in accordance with the provisions of the Regimental Debts Act, 1893, if the value of such estate does not on the date when such administration is committed to him exceed rupees one thousand, but he shall have the same power in regard to such estate as he would have had if letters of administration had been granted to him.

Letters of administration not necessary in respect of small estates administered by Administrator General in accordance with the Regimental Debts Act, 1893. [55 & 56 Vict., c. 57.]

17. If the Administrator General applies, in accordance with the provisions of the Regimental Debts Act, 1893, for letters of administration of the estate of any person subject to the Army Act, the Court may grant to him letters of administration limited to the purpose of dealing with such estate in accordance with the provisions of the Regimental Debts Act, 1893.

Power to grant Administrator General letters limited to purpose of dealing with assets in accordance with the Regimental Debts Act, 1893. [55 & 56 Vict., c. 57.]

(c) Revocation of Grants.

18. If an executor or next-of-kin of the deceased, who has not been personally served with a citation or who has not had notice thereof in time to appear pursuant thereto establishes to the satisfaction of the Court a claim to probate of a will or to letters of administration in preference to the Administrator General, any letters of administration granted in accordance with the provisions of this Act to the Administrator General may be revoked, and probate or letters of administration may be granted to such executor or next-of-kin as the case may be :

Recall of Administrator General's administration, and grant of probate, etc., to executor or next-of-kin.

Provided that no letters of administration granted to the Administrator General shall be revoked for the cause aforesaid, except in cases in which a will of the deceased is proved in the Presidency, unless the application for that purpose is made within six months after the grant to the Administrator General and the Court is satisfied that there has been no unreasonable delay in making the application, or in transmitting the authority under which the application is made.

19. If any letters of administration granted to the Administrator General in accordance with the provisions of this Act are revoked, the Court may order the costs of obtaining such letters of administration, and the whole or any part of any fees which would otherwise have been payable under this Act, together with the costs of the Administrator General in any proceedings taken to obtain such revocation, to be paid to or retained by the Administrator General out of the estate :

Cost of obtaining administration, etc., may, on revocation, be ordered to be paid to Administrator General out of assets.

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of clause (c) of sub-section (2) of section 11.

20. If any letters of administration granted to the Administrator General in accordance with the provisions of this Act are revoked, the same shall, so far as regards the Administrator General and all persons acting under his authority in pursuance thereof, be deemed to have been only voidable, except as to any act done by any such Administrator General or other person as aforesaid, after notice of a will or of any other fact which would render such letters void :

After revocation, letters granted to Administrator General to be deemed as to him to have been voidable only.

Provided that no notice of a will or of any other fact which would render any such letters void shall affect the Administrator General or any person acting under his authority in pursuance of such letters unless, within the period of one month from the time of giving such notice, proceedings are commenced to prove the will, or to cause the letters to be revoked, and such proceedings are prosecuted without unreasonable delay.

21. If any letters of administration granted to the Administrator General in accordance with the provisions of this Act are revoked, upon the grant of probate of a will, or upon the grant of letters of administration with a copy of the will annexed, all payments made or acts done by or under the authority of the Administrator General in pursuance of such letters of administration, prior to the revocation, which would have been valid under any letters of administration lawfully granted to him with a copy of such will annexed, shall be deemed valid notwithstanding such revocation.

Payments made by Administrator General prior to revocation.

Administrator General's petition for grant of letters of administration.

22. Whenever any Administrator General applies for letters of administration in accordance with the provisions of this Act, it shall be sufficient if the petition required to be presented for the grant of such letters states,

(i) the time and place of the death of the deceased to the best of the knowledge and belief of the petitioner,

(ii) the names and addresses of the surviving next-of-kin of the deceased if known,

(iii) the particulars and value of the assets likely to come into the hands of the petitioner,

(iv) particulars of the liabilities of the estate if known.

Probates or letters to be granted to Administrator General by his name of office, and powers of that officer in cases in which probate or letters of administration have been granted to the Ecclesiastical Registrar.

23. (1) All probates or letters of administration granted to any Administrator General shall be granted to him by that name, and all probates or letters of administration heretofore granted to the Ecclesiastical Registrar, or to the Administrator General of any Presidency shall authorise the Administrator General of the same Presidency to act as executor or administrator, as the case may be, of the estate to which such probate or letters relate.

(2) All probates and letters of administration granted to the Ecclesiastical Registrar of any of the late Supreme Courts shall have the same effect in all respects as to any act hereafter done or required to be done under this Act as if they had been granted to the Administrator General.

Effect of probate or letters granted to Administrator General.

24. Probate or letters of administration granted by the High Court at any Presidency-town to the Administrator General of any Presidency shall have effect over all the assets of the deceased throughout such Presidency, and shall be conclusive as to the representative title against all debtors of the deceased and all persons holding such assets, and shall afford full indemnity to all debtors paying their debts and all persons delivering up such assets to such Administrator General:

Provided that the High Court may direct, by its grant, that such probate or letters of administration shall have like effect throughout one or more of the other Presidencies.

Whenever a grant is made by a High Court to the Administrator General with such effect as last aforesaid, the Court shall send to the other High Courts a certificate that such grant has been made, and such certificate shall be filed by the Courts receiving the same.

Transfer by private executor or administrator of interest under probate or letters

25. (1) Any private executor or administrator may, with the previous consent of the Administrator General of the Presidency in which any of the assets of the estate, in respect of which such executor or administrator has obtained probate or letters of administration, are situate, by an instrument in writing under his hand notified in the official Gazette, transfer the assets of the estate vested in him by virtue of such probate or letters to the Administrator General by that name or any other sufficient description.

(2) As from the date of such transfer the transferor shall be exempt from all liability as such executor or administrator, as the case may be, except in respect of acts done before the date of such transfer, and the Administrator General shall have the rights which he would have had, and be subject to the liabilities to which he would have been subject, if the probate or letters of administration, as the case may be, had been granted to him by that name at the date of such transfer.

Distribution of assets.

26. (1) When the Administrator General has given the prescribed notice for creditors and others to send in to him their claims against the estate of the deceased, he shall, at the expiration of the time therein named for sending in claims, be at liberty to distribute the assets or any part thereof in discharge of such lawful claims as he has notice of.

(2) He shall not be liable for the assets so distributed to any person of whose claim he had not notice at the time of such distribution.

(3) No notice of any claim which has been sent in and has been rejected or disallowed in part by the Administrator General shall affect him unless proceedings to enforce such claim are commenced within one month after notice of the rejection or disallowance of such claim has been given in the prescribed manner and unless such proceedings are prosecuted without unreasonable delay.

(4) Nothing in this section shall prejudice the right of any creditor or other claimant to follow the assets or any part thereof in the hands of the persons who may have received the same respectively.

(5) In computing the period of limitation for any suit, appeal or application under the provisions of any law for the time being in force, the period between the date of submission of the claim of a creditor to the Administrator General and the date of the final decision of the Administrator General on such claim shall be excluded.

Appointment of Official Trustee as trustee of assets after completion of administration.

27. (1) When the Administrator General has, so far as may be, discharged all the liabilities of an estate administered by him, he shall notify the fact in the official Gazette, and he may, by an instrument in writing, with the consent of the Official Trustee and subject to any rules made by the Government, appoint the Official Trustee to be the trustee of any assets then remaining in his hands.

(2) Upon such appointment such assets shall vest in the Official Trustee as if he had been appointed trustee in accordance with the provisions of the Official Trustees Act, 1913, and shall be held by him upon the same trusts as the same were held immediately before such appointment.

Power for High Court to give directions regarding administration of estate.

28. (1) The High Court at the Presidency-town may, on application made to it, give to the Administrator General of the presidency any general or special directions as to any estate in his charge or in regard to the administration of any such estate,

(2) Applications under sub-section (1) may be made by the Administrator General or any person interested in the assets or in the due administration thereof.

No security nor oath to be required from Administrator General.

29. (1) No Administrator General shall be required by any Court to enter into any administration-bond, or to give other security to the Court, on the grant of any letters of administration to him by that name.

Manner in which petitions to be verified by Administrator General and his Deputy.

(2) No Administrator General or Deputy Administrator General shall be required to verify, otherwise than by his signature, any petition presented by him under the provisions of this Act, and, if the facts stated in any such petition are not within the Administrator General's own personal knowledge, the petition may be subscribed and verified by any person competent to make the verification.

Entry of Administrator-General not to constitute notice of a trust.

(3) The entry of the Administrator General by that name in the books of a Company shall not constitute notice of a trust, and a Company shall not be entitled to object to enter the name of the Administrator General on its register by reason only that the Administrator General is a corporation and in dealing with assets the fact that the person dealt with is the Administrator General shall not of itself constitute notice of a trust.

Power to examine on oath.

30. The Administrator General may, whenever he desires, for the purposes of this Act, to satisfy himself regarding any question of fact, examine upon oath (which he is hereby authorised to administer) any person who is willing to be so examined by him regarding such question.

In what case Administrator General may grant certificate.

31. Whenever any person has died leaving assets within any Presidency, and the Administrator General of such Presidency is satisfied that such assets, excluding any sum of money deposited in a Government Savings Bank, or in any Provident Fund to which the provisions of the Provident Funds Act, 1897, apply, did not at the date of death exceed in the whole one thousand rupees in value, he may, after the lapse of one month from the death if he thinks fit, or before the lapse of the said month if he is requested so to do by writing under the hand of the executor or the widow or other person entitled to administer the estate of the deceased, grant to any person, claiming otherwise than as a creditor to be interested in such assets, or in the due administration thereof, a certificate under his hand entitling the claimant to receive the assets therein mentioned left by the deceased, within the Presidency to a value not exceeding in the whole one thousand rupees:

IX of 1897.

Provided that no certificate shall be granted under this section—

(i) where probate of the deceased's will or letters of administration of his estate has or have been granted, or

(ii) in respect of any sum of money deposited in a Government Savings Bank or in any Provident Fund to which the provisions of the Provident Funds Act, 1897, apply.

IX of 1897.

Grant of certificate to creditors and power to take charge of certain estates.

32. If, in cases falling within section 31, no person claiming to be interested otherwise than as a creditor in such assets or in the due administration thereof obtains, within three months of the death of the deceased a certificate from the Administrator General under the same section, or probate of a will or letters of administration of the estate of the deceased, and such deceased was not an exempted person, or was an exempted person who has left assets within the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court, or within any area notified by the Government in this behalf in the official Gazette, the Administrator General may administer the estate without letters of administration, in the same manner as if such letters had been granted to him;

and if he neglects or refuses to administer such estate, he shall, upon the application of a creditor, grant a certificate to him in the same manner as if he were interested in such assets otherwise than as a creditor, and such certificate shall have the same effect as a certificate granted under the provisions of section 31, and shall be subject to all the provisions of this Act which are applicable to such certificate:

Provided that the Administrator General may, before granting such certificate, if he thinks fit, require the creditor to give reasonable security for the due administration of the estate of the deceased.

Administrator General not bound to grant certificate unless satisfied of claimant's title, etc.

33. The Administrator General shall not be bound to grant any certificate under section 31 or section 32, unless he is satisfied of the title of the claimant and of the value of the assets left by the deceased within the presidency, either by the oath of the claimant, or by such other evidence as he requires.

Effect of certificate.

34. The holder of a certificate granted in accordance with the provisions of section 31 or section 32 shall have in respect of the assets specified in such certificate the same powers and duties, and be subject to the same liabilities as he would have had or been subject to if letters of administration had been granted to him:

Provided that nothing in this section shall be deemed to require any person holding such certificate,

(a) to file accounts or inventories of the assets of the deceased before any Court or other authority, or

(b) save as provided in section 32 to give any bond for the due administration of the estate.

Revocation of certificate.

35. The Administrator General may revoke a certificate granted under the provisions of section 31 or section 32 on any of the following grounds, namely:—

(i) that the certificate was obtained by fraud or misrepresentation made to him,

(ii) that the certificate was obtained by means of an untrue allegation of a fact essential in law to justify the grant though such allegation was made in ignorance or inadvertently.

Surrender of revoked certificate.

36. (1) When a certificate is revoked in accordance with the provisions of section 35, the holder thereof shall, on the requisition of the Administrator General, deliver it up to such Administrator General, but shall not be entitled to the refund of any fee paid thereon.

(2) If such person wilfully and without reasonable cause omits to deliver up the certificate, he shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to three months, or, with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

Administrator General not bound to take out administration on account of assets for which he has granted certificate.

37. The Administrator General shall not be bound to take out letters of administration of the estate of any deceased person on account of the assets in respect of which he grants any certificate, under section 31 or section 32, but he may do so if he revokes such certificate under section 35 or ascertains that the value of the estate exceeded one thousand rupees.

Transfer of certain assets from British India to executor or administrator in country of domicile for distribution.

38. Where a person not having his domicile in British India has died leaving assets in any Presidency and in the country in which he had his domicile at the time of his death, and proceedings for the administration of his estate with respect to assets in any such Presidency have been taken under section 31 or section 32, and there has been a grant of administration in the country of domicile with respect to the assets in that country, the holder of the certificate granted under section 31 or section 32, or the Administrator General, as the case may be, after having given the prescribed notice for creditors and others to send in to him their claims against the estate of the deceased, and after having discharged, at the expiration of the time therein named, such lawful claims as he has notice of, may, instead of himself distributing any surplus or residue of the deceased's property to persons residing out of British India who are entitled thereto, transfer, with the consent of the executor or administrator, as the case may be, in the country of domicile, the surplus or residue to him for distribution to those persons.

(f) Liability.

Liability of Government.

39. (1) The revenues of the Government of India shall be liable to make good all sums required to discharge any liability which the Administrator General, if he were a private administrator, would be personally liable to discharge, except when the liability is one to which, neither the Administrator General nor any of his officers has in any way contributed, or which neither he nor any of his officers could, by the exercise of reasonable diligence have averted, and in either of those cases the Administrator General shall not, nor shall the revenues of the Government of India, be subject to any liability.

(2) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to render the Government of India or the Administrator General liable for anything done before the commencement of this Act, by or under the authority of the Administrator General.

Creditors' suits against Administrator General.

40. (1) If any suit be brought by a creditor against any Administrator General, such creditor shall be liable to pay the costs of the suit unless he proves that not less than one month previous to the institution of the suit he had applied in writing to the Administrator General, stating the amount and other particulars of his claim, and had given such evidence in support thereof as, in the circumstances of the case, the Administrator General was reasonably entitled to require.

(2) If any such suit is decreed in favour of the creditor, he shall, nevertheless, unless he is a secured creditor, be only entitled to payment out of the assets of the deceased equally and rateably with the other creditors.

Notice of suit not required in certain cases.

41. Nothing in section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, shall apply to any suit against the Administrator General in which no relief is claimed against him personally. V of 1908.

PART IV.

FEES.

Fees.

42. (1) There shall be charged in respect of the duties of the Administrator General such fees, whether by way of percentage or otherwise, as may be prescribed by the Government:

Provided that, in the case of any estate, the administration of which has been committed to the Administrator General before the commencement of this Act, the fees prescribed under this section shall not exceed the fees leviable in respect of such estate under the Administrator General's Act, 1874, as subsequently amended: II of 1874.

Provided further that, in respect of the duties of the Administrator General under the Regimental Debts Act, 1893, the fees prescribed in this section shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of that Act. 55 & 56 Vict., c. 57.

(2) The fees under this section may be at different rates for different estates or classes of estates or for different duties, and shall, so far as may be, be arranged so as to produce an amount sufficient to discharge the salaries and all other expenses incidental to the working of this Act (including such sum as Government may determine to be required to insure the revenues of the Government of India against loss under this Act).

Disposal of fees.

43. (1) Any expenses which might be retained or paid out of any estate in the charge of the Administrator General, if he were a private administrator of such estate, shall be so retained or paid and the fees prescribed under section 42 shall be retained or paid in like manner as and in addition to such expenses.

(2) The Administrator General shall transfer and pay to such authority, in such manner and at such time as the Government may prescribe, all fees received by him under this Act, and the same shall be carried to the account and credit of the Government of India.

PART V.

AUDIT OF THE ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL'S ACCOUNTS.

Audit of Administrator General's accounts.

44. The accounts of every Administrator General shall be audited at least once annually, and at any other time if the Government so direct, by the prescribed person and in the prescribed manner.

45. The auditors shall examine the accounts and forward to the Government a statement thereof in the prescribed form, together with a report thereon and a certificate signed by them showing—

Auditors to examine accounts and report to Government.

(a) whether they contain a full and true account of everything which ought to be inserted therein,

(b) whether the books which by any rules made under this Act are directed to be kept by the Administrator General, have been duly and regularly kept, and

(c) whether the assets and securities have been duly kept and invested and deposited in the manner prescribed by this Act, or by any rules made thereunder,

or (as the case may be) that such accounts are deficient, or that the Administrator General has failed to comply with this Act or the rules made thereunder, in such respects as may be specified in such certificate.

46. (1) Every auditor shall have the powers of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908,

Power of auditors to summon and examine witnesses and to call for documents.

V of 1908.

(a) to summon any person whose presence he thinks necessary to attend him from time to time; and

(b) to examine any person on oath to be by him administered; and

(c) to issue a commission for the examination on interrogatories or otherwise of any person; and

(d) to summon any person to produce any document or thing the production of which appears to be necessary for the purpose of such audit or examination.

(2) Any person who when summoned refuses, or without reasonable cause, neglects to attend or to produce any document or thing or attends and refuses to be sworn, or to be examined, shall be deemed to have committed an offence within the meaning of, and punishable under, section 188 of the Indian Penal Code, and the auditor shall report every case of such refusal or neglect to Government.

XLV of 1860.

47. The costs of and incidental to such audit and examination shall be determined in accordance with rules made by the Government, and shall be defrayed in the prescribed manner.

Costs of audit, etc.

PART VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

48. The Administrator General may, in addition to, and not in derogation of, any other powers of expenditure lawfully exerciseable by him, incur expenditure—

General powers of Administration.

(a) on such acts as may be necessary for the proper care and management of any property belonging to any estate in his charge; and

(b) with the sanction of the High Court at the Presidency-town on such religious, charitable and other objects, and on such improvements, as may be reasonable and proper in the case of such property.

49. Any person interested in the administration of any estate, which is in the charge of the Administrator General shall, subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be prescribed, be entitled at all reasonable times to inspect the accounts relating to such estate and the reports and certificates of the auditor, and on payment of the prescribed fee, to copies thereof and extracts therefrom.

Power of person beneficially interested to inspect Administrator General's accounts, etc., and take copies.

50. (1) The Government shall make rules for carrying into effect the objects of this Act and for regulating the proceedings of the Administrator General.

Power to make rules.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for—

(a) the accounts to be kept by the Administrator General and the audit and inspection thereof,

(b) the safe custody, deposit and investment of assets and securities which come into the hands of the Administrator General,

(c) the remittance of sums of money in the hands of the Administrator General, in cases in which such remittances are required,

(d) subject to the provisions of this Act, the fees to be paid under this Act, and the collection and accounting for any such fees,

(e) the statements, schedules and other documents to be submitted to the Government or to any other authority by the Administrator General, and the publication of such statements, schedules or other documents,

(f) the realization of the cost of preparing any such statements, schedules or other such documents,

(g) the manner in which and the person by whom the costs of and incidental to any audit under the provisions of this Act are to be determined and defrayed,

(h) the manner in which summonses issued under the provisions of section 46 are to be served and the payment of the expenses of any persons summoned or examined under the provisions of this Act and of any expenditure incidental to such examination, and

(i) any matter in this Act directed to be prescribed.

(3) All rules made under this Act shall be published in the official Gazette and, on such publication, shall have effect as if enacted in this Act.

51. Whoever, during any examination authorised by this Act, makes upon oath a statement which is false, and which he either knows or believes to be false or does not believe to be true, shall be deemed to have intentionally given false evidence in a stage of a judicial proceeding reference the numbering of the clauses in the Bill as introduced is also shown in square brackets.

3. In clause 2 [2] we have amended the definition of "Court" so as to make this definition cover any Court having jurisdiction under the Act. This, in view of subsequent changes in the Bill, is a necessary addition. We have inserted a definition of "manager," following very closely, mutatis mutandis, the definition of "director" already in the Bill. We have also added a definition of "officer," which has enabled us to shorten and make uniform the language of the various penalty clauses in the Bill. We have amended the definition of "private company" to meet the decision in the case of Royalties Syndicate, 1912, I. K. B. 330 which, as has been pointed out by the Board of Trade, has rendered the existing definition unworkable.

4. We have inserted a new clause 3 prescribing the Court which is to exercise jurisdiction under the Act. Under the existing law certain powers of the Court can only be exercised by the High Court. As regards winding up proceedings, unless there is a special provision in the articles of the company, the Court having jurisdiction to wind up is the principal Court having original civil jurisdiction in the place in which the registered office of the company [illegible] situate. The company can, however, by its articles stipulate that [illegible]e company if wound u[illegible] shall be wound up in the Calcutta, Madras or Bombay High Courts or by the Chief Court o[illegible] the Punjab. (Section 130 of the Indian Companies Act, 1882). It seems to us obvious[illegible] desirable to define "the Court" if possible in such general terms as will necessitate no fu[illegible] reference to the matter in the body of the Bill. In the second place, we are not satisfied [illegible] the arrangements provided by the existing law are altogether suitable. We think [illegible] primâ facie some objection to an arrangement by which parties should be able by con[illegible] to determine their tribunal in regard to proceedings by which the rights of third parties [illegible]e affected. In the third place, some of the opinions which have reached [illegible] lead to [illegible]nclusion that it may be undesirable that District Courts in all parts of Ind[illegible]vested with jurisdiction under the Act, regard being had to the fact that [illegible] provisions are considerably more complicated than those of the existing Act. We have, therefore, provided that the Court having jurisdiction under the Bill shall be the High Court of the place in which the registered office of the company is situate, while we have at the same time provided that the Local Government may empower District Courts to exercise all or any jurisdiction under the Act. We are fortified in this conclusion by the reflection that, making necessary allowances for differences of conditions, our amendment approximates the position as regards the exercise of jurisdiction to that provided by the English law.

5. In clause 6 [5] we have substituted the word "province" for "part" thus drawing the definition in the General Clauses Act, and we have made consequential alterations throughout the Bill.

6. We have amplified the language of sub-clause (3) of clause 11 [10] so as to give that clause a somewhat more extended scope.

7. In clause 15 [14] and throughout the Bill we have used the word "filed" and its variants thus reconciling the numerous expressions of the same meaning which, following the English Act, occur in different parts of the Bill as introduced.

8. We have amended clause 24 [23], sub-clause (2), so as to restrict the legal practitioners who may make a declaration under that section to persons entitled to appear before a High Court. We have amended clause 26 [25] so as to cover the case of existing associations.

9. We have struck out certain words in clause 28 (1) [27 (1)] which are superfluous, having regard to the definition of "immoveable property" in the General Clauses Act, 1897.

10. We have amended clause 32 (2) (i) [31 (2) (i)] so as to provide for the inclusion in the particulars required thereby of the names of the managers of the company. We think this important in view of the peculiar position which managing agents occupy in this country.

11. We have altered the date up to which the list and summary required by clause 32 [31] is to be prepared. We are of the opinion that the day of the general meeting is the most suitable date from every point of view. We have amended sub-clause three of the same clause so as to require a certificate only of the fact that the list and summary are as they stood on the day of the general meeting.

12. It has been represented to us that the copying charges allowed by the Bill are too small, and we have therefore throughout the Bill raised the rate from two to six annas per hundred words.

13. We have amended clause 41 [40] so as to require that notice of the facts required to be given by that clause should be given within one month, and we have added a penalty for failure to observe its provisions. We have struck out the reference to rules in clause 42 (6) [41 (6)] as it is not intended to make any rules on this matter.

14. We have returned to the drafting of the English Act in regard to special resolutions and have made the necessary alterations in clause 53 [52] and other places where the Bill has departed from the English Act in this respect. In doing so, we have been guided by the fact that, although the English drafting may be open to question, its language is very familiar to the legal profession and to the general public, and, in these circumstances, it seems to us undesirable to depart from it merely for the sake of a questionable improvement in form.

15. We have slightly re-drafted clause 55 (1) [54 (1)] and retained it in the Bill in view of section 249 of the present law (the Indian Companies Act, 1882). It seems to us to be desirable that no possible room should be left for the suggestion that by omitting this provision we intend to change the law.

16. We have required the copy required to be filed by clause 61 (1) [60 (1)] to be a certified copy, as it has been represented to us that administrative inconvenience has been caused by the absence of this requirement.

17. We were much pressed by one of our members to restore the provision as to re-registration in clause 67 (1) [66 (1)], and we have done so in deference to his wishes though we are doubtful whether this provision has much operative scope.

18. We have changed the drafting in clause 70 [69] and clause 71 [70] where the word 'manager' is used as a synonym for 'director', a matter which is sufficiently provided for by the definition of 'director' in the Act.

19. We have amended clause 73 [72] so as to make it clear that the name of the company need not be translated into the English language, and that it will suffice if it is in English characters. We do not think it necessary to require that the name of a company should be recorded on its seal in more than one language, and we have amended clause 73 (b) [72 (b)] accordingly. We have amended clause 73 (c) [72 (c)] by the addition of the words 'bill-heads and letter paper.'

20. After clause 74 [73] we have inserted a new clause 75 requiring a company which publishes a statement of its authorised capital to mention in an equally conspicuous manner its subscribed and paid-up capital, and have annexed a penalty for failure to comply with its provisions. It is analogous to the provision in the existing law relating to Life Assurance. We regard this as an important safeguard to prevent the deception of the more ignorant class of [illegible]stors.

21. Our attention has been drawn to the fact that the articles of certain companies [illegible] quorum for a general meeting at so large a figure as to render it almost impossible for [illegible]meeting to be held, and that this practice has led to grave irregularities. We have a[illegible]ingly inserted a new clause 77 providing that notwithstanding anything in the articles the ma[illegible] quorum that may be prescribed shall not exceed ten members present in person or, where [illegible] 20 members in person or by proxy.

22. We have amended clause 79 (3) [82 (3)] so as to make it clear that the meeting is to be called within twenty-one days and to provide that, whether held by the managers or by the requisitionists, it must be held within three months from the date of the deposit of the requisition.

23. We have amended clause 80 [83] extending the period of notice from seven to fourteen days, as the circumstances of this country seem to require a longer notice than is necessary in England.

24. We have amended clause 83 [86] by permitting the copy to be filed with the registrar to be a type-written copy.

25. That part of the Bill which deals with the internal manangement of a company, a question of peculiar importance in this country owing to the special position of managing agents, has received our very careful consideration. While, on the one hand, we recognise that the protection of shareholders is a very important matter, on the other hand, it is obvious that any excessive restriction on the powers either of directors or managing agents, however laudable from that point of view, would certainly check legitimate commercial development. There is a point beyond which it is impossible for the ordinary civil law to intervene to protect persons who fail to exercise their powers as shareholders to control the conduct of the company of which they are members; but whilst fully recognising this, we are convinced that there is room for the imposition of certain wholesome restrictions in connection with the management of companies by managing agents in this country. In the light of these principles we have very carefully considered the draft clauses laid before us by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, which were aimed generally at the provision of a reasonably independent body of directors and at the definite provision in the law for a greater measure of disclosure of the acts of directors or managing agents than is at present, we understand, the usual practice. We think that these clauses provide a reasonable measure of disclosure and secure to a reasonable extent the principle that the directors of a company should be independent from the managing agents, and, on the other hand, we see no ground to suppose that they would lay any undue restrictions on legitimate transactions. We do not discuss them now in greater detail, because we consider that, in view of their intrinsic importance and as they have not yet been formally before the country, they should be circulated before taking their place in the company law of the land.

26. We do not propose, as the last paragraph of this Report will show, that the passage of this important measure as a whole should be delayed pending circulation of these clauses, and we do not, therefore, now include them in the Bill; but we take this opportunity of recording our view that the ultimate incorporation in the law of such provisions is highly desirable.

27. We have amended clause 85 [88] and made consequential alterations in clauses 101 [102] and 106 [107] by exempting the case of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital from certain requirements of these clauses which cannot apply in such a case, following in this respect a suggestion received from Somerset House.

28. We have amended clause 89 [92] by the omission of the requirement which renders it necessary for companies to contract under seal in cases in which they are required so to contract by English law. In view of the fact that contracts under seal are not required by Indian law, we can see no special reason for this restriction on contracts made by companies. It seems to us that the provision in the present law is a survival from times when such a restriction did exist in some parts of India in regard to contracts by corporations.

29. We have made a slight amendment in clause 92 [95] to make it clear that the clause applies where the objects of the company comprise the transaction of business beyond the limits of British India.

30. In view of the special importance of managers in this country, we have required the names of managers or proposed managers, if any, to be stated in the prospectus, and have amended clause 94 [97] accordingly which involves consequential alterations in other parts of the Bill.

31. We have decided to rely on case-law and to omit proviso (ii) clause 94 (1) (f) [97 (1) (f)] which has excited considerable criticism.

32. It has been represented to us by those familiar with commercial transactions that the provisions of clause 100 [103] are not sufficiently restrictive, and that it is not sufficient to provide that an alteration of terms mentioned in the prospectus should only be made subject to the approval of the statutory meeting. It is urged that this provision permits immediate alteration after such a meeting has been held, and we have amended the Bill requiring the sanction of a general meeting to such a change in any case.

33. After full discussion we considered it distinctly advisable that the word 'misleading' should be retained in clause 101 [104] of the Bill, and we have made slight verbal alterations to provide for this addition throughout the clause.

34. We were urged that having regard to the local conditions of this country the period allowed by clause 103 (1) [105 (1)] were insufficient, and we have raised them to 120 and [illegible] days, respectively. It has also been represented to us that the rate of interest fixed by [illegible] clause is too low when considered in relation to the normal rate in this country, and [illegible] so as the period allowed by the clause has been considerably extended. We have accordingly raised the rate of interest from 5 to 7 per cent.

35. We have adopted a suggestion which we received from the B[illegible] of [illegible] regard to clause 105 [108], and have made that clause apply to all compan[illegible] capital. It was very strongly represented to us that the requirement in sub-clause (1) (b) of this clause, by which the contracts, therein referred to, have to be filed with the registrar, was a cause of great practical inconvenience. We had some hesitation in departing from the English practice, but considered that in these circumstances we should be justified in allowing certified copies to be filed, and have therefore amended the Bill accordingly.

36. The Hon'ble Mr. Meugens was strongly of the opinion that we should amend clause 106 [109] of the Bill which reproduces section 89 of the English Companies Act. Although had we been dealing with the matter entirely without the precedent of English legislation, we might have been tempted to adopt a different view from that which we have taken, we think we shall be on safe ground in adhering to the English provisions. The main point which he pressed upon our notice was that we ought to make it quite clear that section 106 [109] refers to all classes of commission paid for under-writing shares whether paid from capital or from profits. We have examined the question to the best of our ability, and have come to the conclusion that there is nothing in the clause as it stands which prevents the payment of commission out of profits without the disclosure required by that section. We are not altogether satisfied that it is necessary to insert such a prohibition in the law. The matter was the subject of exhaustive investigation when the amendment of the Company Law was undertaken in England, and we naturally feel considerable hesitation in departing from the result that was then arrived at. Any alteration of the law is not unlikely to lead to litigation in the Courts here, and we are disinclined to disturb the course of English judicial decisions in connection with so intricate a matter.

37. It has been represented to us that clause 108 [111] might place a company in a very difficult position as it may be necessary after the lapse of a considerable period of time to show that the shares of the company were issued for one of the purposes specified in the clause, and that this might be an almost impossible matter. We have, therefore, made the sanction of the Local Government conclusive evidence on this point for the purposes of this clause.

38. We have raised the period provided by clause 109 [112] within which certificates of shares, debentures or debenture-stock must be ready for delivery after allotment from two to three months.

39. Clause 110 [113] and the following clauses were the subject of our careful consideration. We gave our best attention to the question whether the conditions of India required any substantial modification of the English law. Our attention was also drawn by the representatives of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce to the case of Ladenburg & Co. vs. Ferreira, 1912, 2 K. B. D. 275. They represented to us that this recent judicial pronouncement might seriously impede the course of business in this country. We gave all possible weight to the opinions which were advanced in support of these contentions, but, on the whole, we came to the conclusion that the substantial protection afforded to creditors by these clauses was too important a matter to allow the arguments against them to prevail. We were, moreover, of the opinion that the importance of the decision in question had perhaps been exaggerated, and it was not likely to be so far reaching in its effects as had been suggested. We have, therefore, retained with slight verbal amendments the clauses in question as they appeared in the Bill submitted for our consideration.

40. In clauses 111 [114] and 112 [115] we have made slight drafting amendments, and we have made it clear by amending clause 113 [116] that the registrar must return documents filed with him for registration.

41. We have amended the wording of clauses 119 [122] and 120 [123] as we think that the word "manager" is not necessary in the context and in view of the definition of "manager" and its use throughout the Act is calculated to cause some misapprehension.

42. We have amended clause 125 (1) [128 (1)] to make it clear that the copies referred to are those required by clause 118 [121] to be kept at the registered office of the company.

43. We have inserted, as a separate title under the heading "Statements, Books and Accounts", a redraft of clauses 75—80 of the Bill as introduced. The principal changes which we have made are to require every company other than a private company to forward a copy of the balance-sheet to all its members. We have removed the balance-sheet from Table A where it is out of place and placed it as a separate form in the Third Schedule. By being placed in this Schedule it falls into the category of forms which can be modified by notification of the Governor General in Council.

44. We have thoroughly revised the form of balance-sheet and desire in this connection to express our great indebtedness to our colleague the Hon'ble Mr. Meugens for his assistance and advice in this matter.

45. We have provided for the case where owing to the absence of directors from British [illegible]ia the requisite numb[illegible] required by clause 134 (1) [77] to sign the balance-sheet is not [illegible]tainable and we have exempted private companies from the obligation to file a copy of their [illegible]lance-sheet with the registrar.

46. We very carefully considered the question whether it was desirable that the copy of [illegible]ditor's report should be forwarded to the registrar. Some of our members considered this [illegible] dangerous provision, while, on the other hand, it was argued that it was a necessary one in [illegible] of the power of investigation conferred by the Bill upon that officer. We, however, rec[illegible]ed on the one hand the danger of allowing inspection by the general public of such a do[illegible] and on the other hand, the difficulty of requiring the registrar to preserve a large number of [illegible]ntial [illegible]ments. On the whole we came to the conclusion that, in the absence of unanimity, [illegible] make so considerable an alteration in the present law.

47. We have amended clause 138 [135] so as to render it obligatory on past officers of the company to furnish information or explanation when called upon by the registrar, and we have made consequential alterations to give the same power to inspectors appointed under the Act.

48. We gave our most careful consideration to the question whether private companies should be exempted from the obligation to appoint auditors with special qualifications, and have come to the conclusion there is no sufficient reason why they should not be allowed to appoint such persons as they think fit. The question of the appointment of a person in the employment of a director or other officer of a company as auditor of the company was considered, and we think it desirable that this should be prohibited subject, however, to an exception in the case of private companies.

49. We have slightly re-drafted clause 145 (6) [142 (6)] which as it stands in the Bill, following the English Act, is very difficult to construe.

50. It has been urged upon us that it would be a more convenient and suitable arrangement if the provisions in the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, were made applicable to arbitrations by companies. It is suggested that the provisions in clauses 151 to 177 of the Bill as introduced in this respect are neither satisfactory nor as well drafted as those in the Indian Arbitration Act. The ordinary objection to referential legislation, moreover, does not apply in the present case as the provisions are part of the general law of arbitration rather than of company law. We think there is considerable force in these contentions and have embodied the amendment in the Bill as revised by us.

51. We have slightly amended clause 155 [179] and have made it clear that the registrar must enter in his books the change in the status of the company.

52. We have carefully considered the question of the omission of sub-clause (2) of clause 167 [192.] This clause is very difficult to construe as it stands in the Bill, and although it reproduces existing law we think there is no sufficient reason for retaining the provision and have therefore struck it out.

53. We have amended clause 197 [221] to provide that the Court shall act on an application from the official liquidator, and we have amended sub-clause (7) of this clause so that there

Act, and a few not even in the English Act, which this Bill has followed with slavish exactitude, as the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill was pleased to observe. I also regret to have to observe that unnecessarily severe penalties by way of fine should have been provided for all kinds of laches and defaults, however trivial, which will make the life of every responsible officer of the company from directors downwards somewhat uncomfortable, and that much longer terms of imprisonment should have been provided even for those offences which are amply provided for in the Indian Penal Code.

I beg to point out some of the provisions which seem to be unnecessarily hard and which, in my opinion, may go to handicap promotion of joint-stock companies specially small ones with small capitals.

Clause [23] sub-clause (2). This sub-clause is superfluous, nobody gains anything by a declaration as required here.

Clause [81]. Provisions made in this clause are somewhat hard. They may not appear hard in England where there is superabundance of capital awaiting investment. There any conditions imposed and howsoever hard they may be cannot have serious consequences, but, here in India, where money is so scarce and so shy that it has to be coaxed, nothing should be done and no burdensome conditions should be imposed which may go to hamper the promotion of joint-stock companies. All these provisions from sub-clause (2) downwards had no place in the existing Act.

Clause [88] (1) (1) —I beg to substitute the following: "signified his consent in writing to act as such director to a responsible officer of the company."

Clause [97].—Very hard. It will throw too heavy a burden upon the promoters and directors, and it will be difficult to comply with the requirements of this section. I would omit all the additions made here over and above those contained in the old Act.

Clause [105].—In my humble opinion this clause is unworkable and will render the floatation of a company in several cases not only a difficult but almost an impossible task. This is new and I would omit it.

Clause [108]. —This is another unnecessary clause. I would omit it.

The provision made in clause [187] (2) is particularly hard. Here instead of penalising the default by mere fine, the default may lead to the winding up of the company and as such, all the trouble and labour taken in floating a company might be lost on the happening of a single contingency. Company promoting is yet in its infancy and as such, hard conditio[illegible] should not in the beginning be imposed which may go to discourage or handicap the promotio[illegible] of joint-stock companies.

There are other clauses equally hard, and it will take time to comment on each of t[illegible] I reserve my right of moving amendments on such clauses of the Bill as I may deem fit.

In conclusion, I beg to point out that the present Bill, though on the lines of the [illegible] Act, contains so many innovations and some of them are so hard that in practice they w[illegible] be found unworkable. I beg to submit that promoters of joint-stock companies will [illegible] it extremely hard, if not well nigh impossible, to promote a new enterpri[illegible] and the [illegible]sons are these : that India being comparatively poor and the standard of [illegible] being very low, there is not that superabundance of money here as is to be found in England and other European countries. There is no such thing as hoarded money in India; here capital is shy and has to be coaxed, added to all these disadvantages, if promoters and managing agents are fettered by hard and impossible conditions, then promotion and development of commercial enterprises would be at an end. Further, I beg to point out that what suits such a wealthy country as England may not suit India, here the people are shy and do not know and have not yet come to appreciate the blessings of joint-stock enterprises, and the people here are not yet accustomed to work under the conditions which the Bill proposes to impose. In England, if the promoters be well known and reliable, any amount of money can be had for any enterprise, whereas in this country no amount of coaxing can secure money for a new enterprise. Company floatation is yet in its infancy in this country; unless some latitude is allowed here, company promoting would be at a discount. Moreover the present Bill being a voluminous one, and most of the provisions drawn on the analogy of the English law being new to this country, it would be inexpedient to take up the Bill for consideration at the fag end of the session.

I therefore humbly pray that the consideration of the Bill may be postponed and it be re-circulated for eliciting fresh public opinion.

I need not go into further details. I reserve my right of moving amendments (if need be) in Council. I am really glad that some of the clauses introduced by the Select Committee have been temporarily withdrawn from the Bill, and I beg to thank the official members for the same.

In conclusion, I beg to tender my thanks to the Hon'ble the Law Member and the Hon'ble Member for Commerce and Industry for the courtesy and attention shown to us and more particularly for the patience shown in listening to our arguments.

SITA NATH ROY.

[AS AMENDED BY SELECT COMMITTEE.]

[Words printed in italics indicate amendments suggested by the Select Committee.]

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Trading Companies and other Associations.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Trading Companies and other associations; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, commencement and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Companies Act, 19*13*.

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of April 19*14*; and

(3) It extends to the whole of British India including British Baluchistan and the Santhal Parganas.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

[S. 285, Companies Act, 1908.] (1) "articles" means the articles of association of a company as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, including, so far as they apply to the company, the regulations contained (as the case may be) in Table B in the Schedule annexed to Act No. XIX of 1857, or in Table A in the First Schedule annexed to the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or in Table A in the First Schedule annexed to this Act:

VI of 1882.

[Ibid.] (2) "company" means a company formed and registered under this Act or an existing company:

[Ibid.] (3) "the Court" means the Court having jurisdiction under this Act:

[Ibid.] (4) "debenture" includes debenture stock:

[Ibid.] (5) "[illegible]" includes any person occupying the position of a director by whatever name called:

[S. 3, Indian Companies Act, 1882.] (6) "District Court" means the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in a district, but does not include a High Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction:

[Ibid.] (7) "existing company" means a company formed and registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1866, or under any Act or Acts repealed thereby, or under the Indian Companies Act, 1882:

X of 1866.

VI of 1882.

[Cf. s. 108 (5), Companies Act, 1908; S. 3, Indian Companies Act, 1882.] (8) "Insurance company" means a company that carries on the business of insurance either solely or in common with any other business or businesses:

(9) "manager" includes any person occupying the position of a manager by whatever name called and whether under a contract of service or not:

(10) "memorandum" means the memorandum of association of a company as originally framed or as altered in pursuance of the provisions of this Act:

(11) "officer" includes any director, manager or secretary but, save in sections 236, 237, and 238, does not include an auditor.

(12) "prescribed" means, as respects the provisions of this Act relating to the winding up of companies, prescribed by rules made by the High Court, and as respects the other provisions of this Act, prescribed by the Governor General in Council:

[S. 121 (1) and (8), Companies Act, 1908.] (13) "private company" means a company which

(i) by its articles—

(a) restricts the right to transfer its shares; and

(b) limits the number of its members (exclusive of persons who are in the employ of the company) to fifty; and

(c) prohibits any invitation to the public to subscribe for any shares or debentures of the company: and

(ii) continues to observe such restrictions, limitations and prohibitions:

Provided that, where two or more persons hold one or more shares in a company jointly, they shall, for the purposes of this definition, be considered as a single member:

[S. 285, Companies Act, 1908.] (14) "prospectus" means any prospectus, notice, circular, advertisement or other invitation, offering to the public for subscription or purchase any shares or debentures of a company:

[Ibid.] (15) "the registrar" means a registrar or assistant registrar performing under this Act the duty of registration of companies: and [Ibid.] (16) "share" means share in the share capital of the company, and includes stock except when a distinction between stock and shares is expressed or implied.

Jurisdiction of the Courts.

3. (1) The Court having jurisdiction under this Act shall be the High Court having jurisdiction in the place at which the registered office of the company is situate:

Provided that the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette and subject to such restrictions and conditions as it thinks fit, empower any District Court to exercise all or any of the jurisdiction by this Act conferred upon the Court, and in that case such District Court shall, as regards the jurisdiction so conferred, be the Court in respect of all companies having their registered offices in the district.

[Clause (2) of Bill.] (2) For the purposes of jurisdiction to wind up companies, the expression 'registered office' means the place which has longest been the registered office of the company during the six months immediately preceding the presentation of the petition for winding up.

(3) Nothing in this section shall invalidate a proceeding by reason of its being taken in a wrong Court.

PART II.

CONSTITUTION AND INCORPORATION.

Prohibition of partnerships exceeding certain number.

[S. 1, Companies Act, 1908; S. 4, Indian Companies Act, 1882.] 4. (1) No company, association or partnership consisting of more than ten persons shall be formed for the purpose of carrying on the business of banking unless it is registered as a company under this Act, or is formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or some other Act of the Governor General in Council, or of Royal Charter or Letters Patent.

(2) No company, association or partnership consisting of more than twenty persons shall be formed for the purpose of carrying on any other business that has for its object the acquisition of gain by the company, association or partnership, or by the individual members thereof, unless it is registered as a company under this Act, or is formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or some other Act of the Governor General in Council or of Royal Charter or Letters Patent.

Memorandum of Association.

[S. 3, Companies Act, 1908; Ss. 6 and 7, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Mode of forming incorporated company.

5. Any seven or more persons (or, where the company to be formed will be a private company, any two or more persons) associated for any lawful purpose may, by subscribing their names to a memorandum of association and otherwise complying with the requirements of this Act in respect of registration, form an incorporated company, with or without limited liability (that is to say), either—

(i) a company having the liability of its members limited by the memorandum to the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares respectively held by them (in this Act termed a company limited by shares) ; or

(ii) a company having the liability of its members limited by the memorandum to such amount as the members may respectively thereby undertake to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up (in this Act termed a company limited by guarantee) ; or

(iii) a company not having any limit on the liability of its members (in this Act termed an unlimited company).

[S. 3, Companies Act, 1908; S. 8, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Memorandum of company limited by shares.

6. In the case of a company limited by shares—

(1) the memorandum shall state—

(i) the name of the company, with "Limited" as the last word in its name;

(ii) the province in which the registered office of the company is to be situate ;

(iii) the objects of the company ;

(iv) that the liability of the members is limited ;

(v) the amount of share capital with which the company proposes to be registered, and the division thereof into shares of a fixed amount :

(2) no subscriber of the memorandum shall take less than one share :

(3) each subscriber shall write opposite to his name the number of shares he takes.

[S. 4, Companies Act, 1908; S. 9, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Memorandum of company limited by guarantee.

7. In the case of a company limited by guarantee—

(1) the memorandum shall state—

(i) the name of the company, with "Limited" as the last word in its name ;

(ii) the province in which the registered office of the company is to be situate ;

(iii) the objects of the company ;

(iv) that the liability of the members is limited ;

(v) that each member undertakes to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up while he is a member, or within one year afterwards, for payment of the debts and liabilities of the company contracted before he ceases to be a member, and of the costs, charges and expenses of winding up, and for adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves, such amount as may be required, not exceeding a specified amount :

(2) if the company has a share capital—

(i) the memorandum shall also state the amount of share capital with which the company proposes to be registered and the division thereof into shares of a fixed amount ;

(ii) no subscriber of the memorandum shall take less than one share ;

(iii) each subscriber shall write opposite to his name the number of shares he takes.

[S. 37, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Memorandum of unlimited company.

8. In the case of an unlimited company—

[S. 5, Companies Act, 1908; S. 1, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(1) the memorandum shall state—

(i) the name of the company ;

(ii) the province in which the registered office of the company is to be situate ;

(iii) the objects of the company ;

(2) if the company has a share capital—

(i) no subscriber of the memorandum shall take less than one share ; and

(ii) each subscriber shall write opposite to his name the number of shares he takes

Signature of memorandum.

9. The memorandum shall be signed by each subscriber in the presence of at least one witness who shall attest the signature

[S. 6, Companies Act, 1908; S. 11, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Restriction on alteration of memorandum.

10. A company shall not alter the conditions contained in its memorandum except in the cases and in the mode and to the extent for which express provision is made in this Act.

[S. 12, ibid.] [S. 7, Companies Act, 1908.]

Name of company and change of name

11 (1) A company shall not be registered by a name identical with that by which a company in existence is already registered, or so nearly resembling that name as to be calculated to deceive, except where the company in existence is in the course of being dissolved and signifies its consent in such manner as the registrar requires.

[Ss. 43 and 88, ibid; S. 8, Companies Act, 1908; Ss 38 and 43, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(2) If a company, through inadvertence or otherwise, is, without such consent as aforesaid, registered by a name identical with that by which a company in existence is previously registered, or so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, the first-mentioned company may, with the sanction of the registrar, change its name.

[New.] (3) A company shall not be registered by a name which contains any of the following words, namely :— "Crown", "Emperor", "Empire", "Empress", "Imperial", "King", "Queen", "Royal", or words expressing or implying the sanction, approval or patronage of the Crown or the Government of India or a Local Government, except where the Governor General in Council signifies his consent to the use of such words as part of the name of the company by order in writing under the hand of one of the Secretaries to the Government of India :

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to companies registered before the commencement of this Act

[S. 36, Indian Companies Act, 1882.] (4) Any company may, by special resolution and subject to the approval of the Local Government signified in writing, under the hand of one of the Secretaries to such Government, change its name.

(5) Where a company changes its name, the registrar shall enter the new name on the register in place of the former name, and shall issue a certificate of incorporation altered to meet the circumstances of the case On the issue of such a certificate, the change of name shall be complete.

(6) The change of name shall not affect any rights or obligations of the company, or render defective any legal proceedings by or against the company; and any legal proceedings that might have been continued or commenced against it by [illegible] former name may be continued or commenced [illegible]nst it by its new name

[S. 9, (1), (2), (3), Companies Act, 1908; S. 4, Act XII of 1895] [illegible]2. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, a company may, by special resolution, alter the provisions [illegible] memorandum so as to change the place of the [illegible]stered office from one province to another, or [illegible] respect to the objects of the company, so far as may [illegible] required to enable it —

[Alteration of memorandum.]

[S. 4, Act XII, 1895.] (a) to carry [illegible] more economically or more efficiently; or

[S. 8, ibid] (b) to attain its main purpose by new or improved means, or

(c) to enlarge or change the local area of its operations; or

(d) to carry on some business which under existing circumstances may conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the company; or

(e) to restrict or abandon any of the objects specified in the memorandum.

(2) The alteration shall not take effect until and except in so far as it is confirmed by the Court on petition.

[S. 5, Act XII of 1895.] (3) Before confirming the alteration, the Court must be satisfied—

(a) that sufficient notice has been given to every holder of debentures of the company, and to any persons or class of persons whose interests will, in the opinion of the Court, be affected by the alteration; and

(b) that, with respect to every creditor who in the opinion of the Court is entitled to object, and who signifies his objection in manner directed by the Court, either his consent to the alteration has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined, or has been secured to the satisfaction of the Court:

Provided that the Court may, in the case of any person or class, for special reasons, dispense with the notice required by this section.

Power of Court when confirming alteration. [S. 9 (4), Companies Act, 1908; S. 6, Act XII of 1895.]

13. The Court may make an order confirming the alteration either wholly or in part, and on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit, and may make such order as to costs as it thinks proper.

Exercise of discretion by Court. [S. 9 (5), Companies Act, 1908; S. 7, XII of 1895.]

14. The Court shall, in exercising its discretion under sections 12 and 13, have regard to the rights and interests of the members of the company or of any class of them, as well as to the rights and interest of the creditors, and may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the proceedings in order that an arrangement may be made to the satisfaction of the Court for the purchase of the interests of dissentient members; and may give such directions and make such orders as it may think expedient for facilitating or carrying into effect any such arrangement:

Provided that no part of the capital of the company may be expended in any such purchase.

Procedure on confirmation of the alteration. [S. 9 (6), Companies Act 1908; Cf. s. 9 (2) Act XII of 1895.]

15. (1) A certified copy of the order confirming the alteration, together with a printed copy of the memorandum as altered, shall, within three months from the date of the order, be filed by the company with the registrar, and he shall register the same, and shall certify the registration under his hand, and the certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to the alteration and the confirmation thereof have been complied with, and thenceforth the memorandum so altered shall be the memorandum of the company

[Cf. s. 9 (2) of Act XII of 1895.] (2) Where the alteration involves a transfer of the registered office from one province to another, a certified copy of the order confirming such change shall be filed by the company with the registrar in each of such provinces, and each of such registrars shall register the same, and shall certify under his hand the registration thereof, and the registrar for the province from which such office is transferred shall send to the registrar for the other province all documents relating to the company registered or filed in his office.

(3) The Court may by order at any time extend the time for the filing of documents with the registrar under this section for such period as the Court thinks proper.

Effect of failure to register within three months. [S. 10, Act XII of 1895.]

16. No such alteration shall have any operation until registration thereof has been duly effected in accordance with the provisions of section 15, and if such registration is not effected within three months next after the date of the order of the Court confirming the alteration, or within such further time as may be allowed by the Court in accordance with the provisions of section 15, such alteration and order and all proceedings connected therewith shall, at the expiration of such period of three months or such further time, as the case may be, become absolutely null and void :

Provided that the Court may, on sufficient cause shown, revive the order on application made within a further period of one month.

Articles of Association.

[S. 10, Companies Act, 1908; S. 37, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Registration of articles.

17. (1) There may, in the case of a company limited by shares, and there shall, in the case of a company limited by guarantee or unlimited, be registered with the memorandum, articles of association signed by the subscribers to the memorandum and prescribing regulations for the company.

(2) Articles of association may adopt all or any of the regulations contained in Table A in the First Schedule.

(3) In the case of an unlimited company or a company limited by guarantee, the articles, if the company has a share capital, shall state the amount of share capital with which the company propose to be registered.

(4) In the case of an unlimited company or a company limited by guarantee, if the company has not a share capital, the articles shall state the number of members with which the company proposes to be registered, for the purpose of enabling the registrar to determine the fees payable on registration.

[S. 11, Companies Act, 1908; S. 38, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Application of Table A.

18. In the case of a company limited by shares and registered after the commencement of this Act, if articles are not registered, or, if articles are registered, in so far as the articles do not exclude or modify the regulations in Table A in the First Schedule, those regulations shall, so far as applicable, be the regulations of the company in the same manner and to the same extent as if they were contained in duly registered articles.

[S. 12, Companies Act, 1908; Cf. ss. 37 and 39, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Form and signature of articles.

19. Articles shall—

(a) be printed ;

(b) be divided into paragraphs numbered consecutively ; and

(c) be signed by each subscriber of the memorandum of association in the presence of at least one witness who must attest the signature.

[S. 13, Companies Act, 1908; S. 76, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Alteration of articles by special resolution.

20. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act and to the conditions contained in its memorandum, a company may by special resolution alter or add to its articles ; and any alteration or addition so made shall be as valid as if originally contained in the articles, and be subject in like manner to alteration by special resolution.

[Cf. s. 221, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(2) The power of altering articles under this section shall, in the case of any company formed and registered under Act No. XIX of 1857 and Act No. VII of 1860 or either of them, extend to altering any provisions in Table B annexed to Act XIX of 1857, and shall also, in the case of an unlimited company formed and registered under the said Acts or either of them, extend to altering any regulations relating to the amount of capital or its distribution into shares, notwithstanding that those regulations are contained in the memorandum.

General Provisions.

[S. 14, Companies Act, 1908; S. 39, Indian Companies Act, 1882.] [Cf. s. 11, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Effect of memorandum and articles.

21. (1) The memorandum and articles shall, when registered, bind the company and the members thereof to the same extent as if they respectively had been signed by each member and contained a covenant on the part of each member, his heirs, and legal representatives, to observe all the provisions of the memorandum and of the articles, subject to the provisions of this Act.

(2) All money payable by any member to the company under the memorandum or articles shall be a debt due from him to the company.

[S. 15, Companies Act, 1908; S. 40, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Registration of memorandum and articles.

22. The memorandum and the articles (if any) shall be filed with the registrar for the province in which the registered office of the company is stated by the memorandum to be situate, and he shall retain and register them.

[S. 16, Companies Act, 1908; S. 41, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Effect of registration.

23. (1) On the registration of the memorandum of a company, the registrar shall certify under his hand that the company is incorporated, and in the case of a limited company that the company is limited.

(2) From the date of incorporation mentioned in the certificate of incorporation, the subscribers of the memorandum, together with such other persons as may from time to time become members of the company, shall be a body corporate by the name contained in the memorandum, capable forthwith of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company, and having perpetual succession and a common seal, but with such liability on the part of the members to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up as is mentioned in this Act.

Conclusiveness of certificate of incorporation.

24. (1) A certificate of incorporation given by the registrar in respect of any association shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act in respect of registration and of matters precedent and incidental thereto have been complied with, and that the association is a company authorised to be registered and duly registered under this Act.

(2) A declaration by an advocate, attorney or pleader entitled to appear before a High Court who is engaged in the formation of a company, or by a person named in the articles as a director, manager or secretary of the company, of compliance with all or any of the said requirements shall be filed with the registrar, and the registrar may accept such a declaration as sufficient evidence of compliance.

[S. 18, Companies Act, 1908; S. 42, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Copies of memorandum and articles to be given to members.

25. (1) Every company shall send to every member, at his request, and on payment of one rupee or such less sum as the company may prescribe, a copy of the memorandum and of the articles (if any).

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable for each offence to a fine not exceeding ten rupees.

Associations not for Profit.

[S. 19, Companies Act, 1908; s. 26, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Power to dispense with "Limited" in name of charitable and other companies.

26. (1) Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Local Government that an association capable of being formed as a limited company has been or is about to be formed for promoting commerce, art, science, charity, or any other useful object, and applies or intends to apply its profits (if any) or other income in promoting its objects, and to prohibit the payment of any dividend to its members, the Local Government may, by license under the hand of one of its Secretaries, direct that the association be registered as a company with limited liability, without the addition of the word "Limited" to its name, and the association may be registered accordingly.

(2) A license by the Local Government under this section may be granted on such conditions and subject to such regulations as the Local Government thinks fit, and those conditions and regulations shall be binding on the association, and shall, if the Local Government so directs, be inserted in the memorandum and articles, or in one of those documents.

(3) The association shall on registration enjoy all the privileges of limited companies, and be subject to all their obligations, except those of using the word "Limited" as any part of its name, and of publishing its name, and of filing lists of members and directors and managers with [illegible]gistrar.

[illegible]) A license under this section may at any [illegible] be revoked by the Local Government, and u[illegible]vocation the registrar shall enter the word "[illegible]l" at the end of the name of the association [illegible] the register, and the association shall cease [illegible]joy the exemptions and privileges granted by [illegible] section:

Provided [illegible] before a [illegible]nse is so revoked, the Local Governm[illegible] the association notice in writing of its intention, and shall afford the association an opportunity of submitting a representation in opposition to the revocation.

Companies limited by Guarantee.

[S. 21, Companies Act, 1908.]

Provision as to companies limited by guarantee.

27. (1) In the case of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital, and registered after the commencement of this Act, every provision in the memorandum or articles or in any resolution of the company purporting to give any person a right to participate in the divisible profits of the company otherwise than as a member shall be void.

(2) For the purpose of the provisions of this Act relating to the memorandum of a company limited by guarantee and of this section, every provision in the memorandum or articles, or in any resolution, of any company limited by guarantee and registered after the commencement of this Act, purporting to divide the undertaking of the company into shares or interests, shall be treated as a provision for a share capital, notwithstanding that the nominal amount or number of the shares or interests is not specified thereby.

PART III.

SHARE CAPITAL, REGISTRATION OF UNLIMITED COMPANY AS LIMITED AND UNLIMITED LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS.

Distribution of Share Capital.

[S. 22, Companies Act, 1908; s. 44, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Nature of shares.

28. (1) The shares or other interest of any member in a company shall be moveable property, transferable in manner provided by the articles of the company.

(2) Each share in a company having a share capital shall be distinguished by its appropriate number.

[S. 23, Companies Act, 1908; s. 54, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Certificate of shares or stock.

29. A certificate, under the common seal of the company, specifying any shares or stock held by any member, shall be primâ facie evidence of the title of the member to the shares or stock therein specified.

[S. 24, Companies Act, 1908; s. 45, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Definition of "member."

30. (1) The subscribers of the memorandum of a company shall be deemed to have agreed to become members of the company, and on its registration shall be entered as members in its register of members.

(2) Every other person who agrees to become a member of a company, and whose name is entered in its register of members, shall be a member of the company.

[S. 25, Companies Act, 1908; s. 47, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Register of members.

31. (1) Every company shall keep in one or more books a register of its members, and enter therein the following particulars:—

(i) the names and addresses, and the occupations, if any, of the members, and, in the case of a company having a share capital, a statement of the shares held by each member, distinguishing each share by its number, and of the amount paid or agreed to be considered as paid on the shares of each member;

(ii) the date at which each person was entered in the register as a member;

(iii) the date at which any person ceased to be a member.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues; and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

[S. 26, Companies Act, 1908; ss. 48, 49 and 50, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Annual list of members and summary.

32. (1) Every company having a share capital shall once at least in every year make a list of all persons who on the day of the first or only ordinary general meeting in the year, are members of the company, and of all persons who have ceased to be members since the date of the last return or (in the case of the first return) of the incorporation of the company.

(2) The list shall state the names, addresses, and occupations of all the past and present members therein mentioned, and the number of shares held by each of the existing members at the date of the return, specifying shares transferred since the date of the last return or (in the case of the first return) of the incorporation of the company by persons who are still members and persons who have ceased to be members respectively and the dates of registration of the transfers, and shall contain a summary distinguishing between shares issued for cash and shares issued as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and specifying the following particulars:—

(a) the amount of the share capital of the company, and the number of the shares into which it is divided;

(b) the number of shares taken from the commencement of the company up to the date of the return;

(c) the amount called up on each share;

(d) the total amount of calls received;

(e) the total amount of calls unpaid;

(f) the total amount of the sums (if any) paid by way of commission in respect of any shares or debentures, or allowed by way of discount in respect of any debentures, since the date of the last return;

(g) the total number of shares forfeited;

(h) the total amount of shares or stock for which share-warrants are outstanding at the date of the return;

(i) the total amount of share-warrants issued and surrendered respectively since the date of the last return;

(k) the number of shares or amount of stock comprised in each share-warrant;

(l) the names and addresses of the persons who at the date of the return are the directors of the company and of the persons (if any) who at the said date are the managers of the company; and

(m) the total amount of debt due from the company in respect of all mortgages and charges which are required to be registered with the registrar under this Act

(3) The above list and summary shall be contained in a separate part of the register of members, and shall be completed within seven days after the day of the first or only ordinary general meeting in the year, and the company shall forthwith file with the registrar a copy signed by a director or by the manager or the secretary of the company, together with a certificate from such director, manager or secretary that the list and summary state the facts as they stood on the day aforesaid.

(4) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

33. No notice of any trust, expressed, implied or constructive, shall be entered on the register, or be receivable by the registrar.

Trusts not to be entered on register.

34. On the application of the transferor of any share or interest in a company, the company shall enter in its register of members the name of the transferee in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as if the application for the entry were made by the transferee.

Registration of transfer at request of transferor

[S. 28, Companies Act, 1908; s. 29, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

35. A transfer of the share or other interest of a deceased member of a company made by his legal representative shall, although the legal representative is not himself a member, be as valid as if he had been a member at the time of the execution of the instrument transfer.

Transfer by legal representative

[S. 29, Companies Act, 1908; s. 46, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

36. (1) The register of members, commencing from the date of the registration of the company, shall be kept at the registered office of the company, and, except when closed under the provisions of this Act, shall during business hours (subject to such reasonable restrictions, as the company in general meeting may impose, so that not less than two hours in each day be allowed for inspection) be open to the inspection of any member gratis, and to the inspection of any other person on payment of one rupee, or such less sum as the company may prescribe, for each inspection.

Inspection of register of members

[S. 30, Companies Act, 1908; s. 55, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

(2) Any member or other person may require a copy of the register, or of any part thereof, or of the list and summary required by this Act, or any part thereof, on payment of six annas for every hundred words or fractional part thereof required to be copied.

(3) If any inspection or copy required under this section is refused, the company shall be liable for each refusal to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees and to a further fine not exceeding twenty rupees for every day during which the refusal continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly authorises or permits the refusal shall be liable to the like penalty, and the Court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the register.

37. A company may, on giving notice by advertisement in some newspaper circulating in the district in which the registered office of the company is situate, close the register of members for any time or times not exceeding in the whole thirty days in each year.

Power to close register

[S. 31, Companies Act, 1908; s. 56, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

38. (1) If—

Power of Court to rectify register

[S. 32, Companies Act, 1908; s. 58, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(a) the name of any person is fraudulently or without sufficient cause entered in or omitted from the register of members of a company; or

(b) default is made or unnecessary delay takes place in entering on the register the fact of any person having ceased to be a member,

the person aggrieved, or any member of the company, or the company, may apply to the Court for rectification of the register.

(2) The Court may either refuse the application, or may order rectification of the register and payment by the company of any damages sustained by any party aggrieved, and may make such order as to costs as it in its discretion thinks fit.

(3) On any application under this section the Court may decide any question relating to the title of any person who is a party to the application to have his name entered in or omitted from the register, whether the question arises between members or alleged members, or between members or alleged members on the one hand and the company on the other hand; and generally may decide any question necessary or expedient to be decided for rectification of the register:

Provided that the Court may direct an issue to be tried in which any question of law may be raised; and an appeal from the decision on such an issue shall lie in the manner directed by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, on the grounds mentioned in section 100 of that Code.

V of 1908.

[S. 31 (4), Companies Act, 1908; s. 59, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Notice to registrar of rectification of register.

39. In the case of a company required by this Act to file a list of its members with the registrar, the Court, when making an order for rectification of the register, shall, by its order, direct notice of the rectification to be filed with the registrar.

[S. 33, Companies Act, 1908; s. 60, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Register to be evidence.

40. The register of members shall be primâ facie evidence of any matters by this Act directed or authorised to be inserted therein.

[S. 34, Companies Act, 1908; s. 3 (1), (2), Act IV of 1900.]

Power for company to keep branch register in [illegible]ted Kingdom.

41. (1) A company having a share capital may, if so authorised by its articles, cause to be kept in [illegible] the [illegible]nited Kingdom a [illegible]ch register of members (in this Act called a [illegible]ish register).

(2) [illegible]he company shall, within one month from [illegible] of the opening of any British register, file [illegible] registrar notice of the situation of the o[illegible] where such register is kept and, in the even[illegible] change in the situation of such office or of [illegible]nuance, shall within one month from the date [illegible] discontinuance, as the case may be, [illegible] notice [illegible] such change or discontinuance.

(3) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

[S. 35, Companies Act, 1908; Cf. s. 3 (3), (4), (5), Act IV of 1900.]

Regulations as to British register.

42. (1) A British register shall be deemed to be part of the company's register of members (in this section called the principal register).

(2) It shall be kept in the same manner in which the principal register is by this Act required to be kept, except that the advertisement before closing the register shall be inserted in some newspaper circulating in the locality wherein the British register is kept.

(3) The company shall transmit to its registered office in India a copy of every entry in its British register as soon as may be after the entry is made; and shall cause to be kept at such office, duly entered up from time to time, a duplicate of its British register, and the duplicate shall, for all the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be part of the principal register.

(4) Subject to the provisions of this section with respect to the duplicate register, the shares registered in a British register shall be distinguished from the shares registered in the principal register, and no transaction with respect to any shares registered in a British register shall, during the continuance of that registration, be registered in any other register.

(5) The company may discontinue to keep any British register, and thereupon all entries in that register shall be transferred to the principal register.

(6) Subject to the provisions of this Act, any company may, by its articles, make such regulations as it may think fit respecting the keeping of a British register.

[S. 37 (1), Companies Act, 1908; s. 30, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Issue of share warrants to bearer.

43 A company limited by shares, if so authorised by its articles, may, with respect to any fully paid-up shares, or to stock, issue under its common seal a warrant stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the shares or stock therein specified, and may provide by coupons or otherwise, for the payment of the future dividends on the shares or stock included in the warrant, in this Act termed a share-warrant.

Effect of share-warrant.

44. A share-warrant shall entitle the bearer thereof to the shares or stock therein specified, and the shares or stock may be transferred by delivery of the warrant.

[S. 37 (3), Companies Act, 1908; s. 32, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Registration of name of bearer of share-warrant.

45. The bearer of a share-warrant shall, subject to the articles of the company, be entitled, on surrendering it for cancellation to have his name entered as a member in the register of members; and the company shall be responsible for any loss incurred by any person by reason of the company entering in its register the name of a bearer of a share-warrant in respect of the shares or stock therein specified without the warrant being surrendered and cancelled.

Position of bearer of share-warrant.

46. The bearer of a share-warrant may, if the articles of the company so provide, be deemed to be a member of the company within the meaning of this Act, either to the full extent or for any purposes defined in the articles, except that he shall not be qualified in respect of the shares or stock specified in the warrant for being a director or manager of the company, in cases where such a qualification is required by the articles.

Entries in register when share-warrant issued.

47. (1) On the issue of a share-warrant, the company shall strike out of its register of members the name of the member then entered therein as holding the shares or stock specified in the warrant as if he had ceased to be a member, and shall enter in the register the following particulars, namely:—

(i) the fact of the issue of the warrant;

(ii) a statement of the shares or stock included in the warrant, distinguishing each share by its number; and

(iii) the date of the issue of the warrant.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully continues or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty

[S. 37 (6), Companies Act, 1908; s. 47, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Surrender of share-warrant.

48. Until the warrant is surrendered, the above particulars shall be deemed to be the particulars required by this Act to be entered in the register of members; and, on the surrender, the date of the surrender shall be entered as if it were the date at which a person ceased to be a member.

[S. 39, Companies Act, 1908; s. 27, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Power of company to arrange for different amounts being paid on shares

49. A company, if so authorised by its articles, may do any one or more of the following things, namely:—

(1) make arrangements on the issue of shares for a difference between the shareholders in the amounts and times of payment of calls on their shares;

(2) accept from any member who assents thereto the whole or a part of the amount remaining unpaid on any shares held by him although no part of that amount has been called up;

(3) pay dividend in proportion to the amount paid up on each share where a larger amount is paid up on some shares than on others.

[S. 41, Companies Act, 1908; ss. 12, 23, 24, 25 & 26, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Power of company limited by shares to alter its share capital.

50. (1) A company limited by shares, if so authorised by its articles, may alter the conditions of its memorandum as follows, (that is to say), it may—

(a) increase its share capital by the issue of new shares of such amount as it thinks expedient;

[S. 12, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(b) consolidate and divide all or any of its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares;

(c) convert all or any of its paid-up shares into stock and re-convert that stock into paid-up shares of any denomination;

[S. 24, ibid.]

(d) sub-divide its shares, or any of them, into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by the memorandum, so however, that in the sub-division the proportion between the amount paid and the amount, if any, unpaid on each reduced share shall be the same as it was in the case of the share from which the reduced share is derived;

[S. 23, ibid.]

(e) cancel shares which, at the date of the passing of the resolution in that behalf, have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person, and diminish the amount of its share capital by the amount of the shares so cancelled.

(2) The powers conferred by this section with respect to sub-division of shares must be exercised by special resolution.

(3) Where any alteration has been made under this section in the memorandum of a company, every copy of the memorandum issued after the date of the alteration shall be in accordance with the alteration.

(4) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of sub-section (3) it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees for each copy in respect of which default is made; and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

(5) A cancellation of shares in pursuance of this section shall not be deemed to be a reduction of share capital within the meaning of this Act.

Notice to registrar of consolidation of share capital, conversion of shares into stock, etc.

51. (1) Where a company having a share capital has consolidated and divided its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares or converted any of its shares into stock, or re-converted stock into shares, it shall within fifteen days of the consolidation and division, conversion or re-conversion, file notice with the registrar of the same, specifying the share consolidated and divided, or converted, or the stock re-converted.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

Effect of conversion of shares into stock.

52. Where a company having a share capital has converted any of its shares into stock, and filed notice of the conversion with the registrar, all th[illegible] pr[illegible]ns of th[illegible]t which are applicable to shares only shall [illegible]se as to so much of the share capital as i[illegible]n-verted into stock; and the register of [illegible]ers of the company, and the list of members [illegible]ed with the registrar, shall show the [illegible]nt of stock held by each member instead of [illegible] amount of shares and the particulars relati[illegible] shares hereinbefore required by this Ac[illegible]

Notice of increase of share capital or of members

53. (1) Wh[illegible] ha[illegible] having a share capital, whether its shares have or have not been converted into stock, has increased its share capital beyond the registered capital, and where a company not having a share capital has increased the number of its members beyond the registered number, it shall file with the registrar, in the case of an increase of share capital, within fifteen days after the passing or, in the case of a special resolution the confirmation, of the resolution authorising the increase, and in the case of an increase of members within fifteen days after the increase was resolved on or took place, notice of the increase of capital or members, and the registrar shall record the increase.

(2) If a company makes a default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

[S. 45, Companies Act 1908; New.]

Reorganization of share capital.

54. (1) A company limited by shares may, by special resolution confirmed by an order of the Court, modify the conditions contained in its memorandum so as to reorganize its share capital, whether by the consolidation of shares of different classes or by the division of its shares into shares of different classes:

Provided that no preference or special privilege attached to or belonging to any class of shares shall be interfered with except by resolution passed by a majority in number of shareholders of that class holding three-fourths of the share capital of that class and confirmed at a meeting of shareholders of that class in the same manner as a special resolution of the company is required to be confirmed, and every resolution so passed shall bind all shareholders of the class.

(2) Where an order is made under this section, a certified copy thereof shall be filed with the registrar within twenty-one days after the making of the order, or within such further time as the Court may allow, and the resolution shall not take effect until such a copy has been so filed.

Reduction of Share Capital.

[S. 46, Companies Act, 1908; Cf. ss. 13 and 249, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Reduction of share capital.

55. (1) No company limited by shares shall have power to buy its own shares unless the consequent reduction of capital is effected and sanctioned in manner hereinafter provided.

(2) Subject to confirmation by the Court, a company limited by shares, if so authorised by its articles, may by special resolution reduce its share capital in any way, and in particular (without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power) may—

(a) extinguish or reduce the liability on any of its shares in respect of share capital not paid up; or [illegible]) either with or without extinguishing or reducing liability on any of its shares, cancel any paid-up share capital which is lost or unrepresented by available assets;

(c) eith[illegible] extinguishing or reducing liability on any of its shares, pay off any paid-up share capital which is in excess of the wants of the company, and may, if and so far as is necessary, alter its memorandum by reducing the amount of its share capital and of its shares accordingly.

(3) A special resolution under this section is in this Act called a resolution for reducing share capital.

[S. 47, Companies Act, 1908; s. 15 (part), Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Application to Court for confirming order.

56. Where a company has passed and confirmed a resolution for reducing share capital, it may apply by petition to the Court for an order confirming the reduction.

Addition to name of company of "and reduced."

57. On and from the confirmation by a company of a resolution for reducing share capital, or where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, then on and from the presentation of the petition for confirming the reduction, the company shall add to its name, until such date as the Court may fix, the words "and reduced" as the last words in its name, and those words shall, until that date, be deemed to be part of the name of the company:

Provided that, where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, the Court may, if it thinks expedient, dispense altogether with the addition of the words "and reduced."

Objections by creditors, and settlement of list of objecting creditors.

58. (1) Where the proposed reduction of share capital involves either diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital, or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, and in any other case if the Court so directs, every creditor of the company who at the date fixed by the Court is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the reduction.

(2) The Court shall settle a list of creditors so entitled to object, and for that purpose shall ascertain, as far as possible without requiring an application from any creditor, the names of those creditors and the nature and amount of their debts or claims, and may publish notices fixing a day or days within which creditors not entered on the list are to claim to be so entered or are to be excluded from the right of objecting to the reduction.

Power to dispense with consent of creditor on security being given for his debt.

59. Where a creditor entered on the list of creditors whose debt or claim is not discharged or determined does not consent to the reduction, the Court may, if it thinks fit, dispense with the consent of that creditor, on the company securing payment of his debt or claim by appropriating, as the Court may direct, the following amount (that is to say),—

(i) if the company admits the full amount of his debt or claim, or, though not admitting it, is willing to provide for it, then the full amount of the debt or claim;

(ii) if the company does not admit or is not willing to provide for the full amount of the debt or claim, or if the amount is contingent or not ascertained, then an amount fixed by the Court after the like inquiry and adjudication as if the company were being wound up by the Court.

[S. 50, Companies Act, 1908; part s. 5, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Order confirming reduction.

60. The Court, if satisfied, with respect to every creditor of the company who under this Act is entitled to object to the reduction, that either his consent to the reduction has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined or has been secured, may make an order confirming the reduction on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit.

[S. 51, Companies Act, 1908; s. 18, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Registration of order and minute of reduction.

61. (1) The registrar on production to him of an order of the Court confirming the reduction of the share capital of a company, and on the filing with him of a certified copy of the order and of a minute (approved by the Court) showing, with respect to the share capital of the company as altered by the order, the amount of the share capital, the number of shares into which it is to be divided and the amount of each share, and the amount (if any) at the date of the registration deemed to be paid up on each share, shall register the order and minute.

(2) On the registration, and not before, the resolution for reducing share capital as confirmed by the order so registered shall take effect.

(3) Notice of the registration shall be published in such manner as the Court may direct.

(4) The registrar shall certify under his hand the registration of the order and minute, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to reduction of share capital have been complied with, and that the share capital of the company is such as is stated in the minute.

[S. 62, Companies Act, 1908; ss. 19 and 21, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Minute to form part of memorandum.

62. (1) The minute when registered shall be deemed to be substituted for the corresponding part of the memorandum of the company, and shall be valid and alterable as if it had been originally contained therein, and shall be embodied in every copy of the memorandum issued after its registration.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees for each copy in respect of which default is made, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

[S. 63, Companies Act, 1908; part of ss. 19 and 20, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Liability of members in respect of reduced shares.

63. (1) A member of the company, past or present, shall not be liable in respect of any share to any call or contribution exceeding in amount the difference (if any) between the amount paid, or (as the case may be) the reduced amount, if any, which is to be deemed to have been paid, on the share and the amount of the share as fixed by the minute:

Provided that, if any creditor, entitled in respect of any debt or claim to object to the reduction of share capital, is, by reason of his ignorance of the proceedings for reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim not entered on the list of creditors, and, after the reduction, the company is unable, within the meaning of the provisions of this Act with respect to winding up by the Court, to pay the amount of his debt or claim, then—

(i) every person who was a member of the company at the date of the registration of the order for reduction and minute, shall be liable to contribute for the payment of that debt or claim an amount not exceeding the amount which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day before that registration; and

(ii) if the company is wound up the Court, on the application of any such creditor and proof of his ignorance as aforesaid, may, if it thinks fit, settle accordingly a list of persons so liable to contribute, and make and enforce calls and orders on the contributories settled on the list as if they were ordinary contributories in a winding up.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the rights of the contributories among themselves.

Penalty on concealment of name of creditor.

64. If any officer of the company wilfully conceals the name of any creditor entitled to object to the reduction, or wilfully misrepresents the nature or amount of the debt or claim of any creditor, or if any officer of the company abets any such concealment or misrepresentation as aforesaid, every such officer shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to one year, or with fine, or with both.

[S. 65, Companies Act, 1908; part of s. 15, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Publication of reasons for reduction.

65. In any case of reduction of share capital, the Court may require the company to publish as the Court directs the reasons for reduction, or such other information in regard thereto as the Court may think expedient with a view to give proper information to the public, and, if the Court thinks fit, the causes which led to the reduction.

[New; s. 56, Companies Act, 1908.]

Increase and reduction of share capital in case of a company limited by guarantee having a share capital.

66. A company limited by guarantee and registered after the commencement of this Act may, if it has a share capital and is so authorised by its articles, increase or reduce its share capital in the same manner and subject to the same conditions in and subject to which a company limited by shares may increase or reduce its share capital under the provisions of this Act.

[illegible] Act, 1882.]

Registration of Unlimited Company as Limited.

Registration of unlimited company as limited.

67. (1) Subject to the provisions of this [illegible]tion, any company re[illegible] ed as unlimited may [illegible] under this Act [illegible] or any company alr[illegible] gistered as a limited company may [illegible] under this Act, but [illegible] of an unlimited company [illegible] shall not affect any debts, liabilities, obligations or contracts incurred or entered into by, to, with or on behalf of, the company before the registration, and those debts, liabilities, obligations and contracts may be enforced in manner provided by Part VIII of this Act in the case of a company registered in pursuance of that Part.

(2) On registration in pursuance of this section, the registrar shall close the former registration of the company, and may dispense with the delivery to him of copies of any documents with copies of which he was furnished on the occasion of the original registration of the company; but, save as aforesaid, the registration shall take place in the same manner and shall have effect as if it were the first registration of the company under this Act.

[New; s. 58, Companies Act, 1908.]

Power of limited company to provide for reserve share capital on registration.

68. An unlimited company having a share capital may, by its resolution for registration as a limited company in pursuance of this Act, do either or both of the following things, namely:—

(a) increase the nominal amount of its share capital by increasing the nominal amount of each of its shares, but subject to the condition that no part of the amount by which its capital is so increased shall be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purposes of the company being wound up;

(b) provide that a specified portion of its uncalled share capital shall not be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purposes of the company being wound up.

Reserve Liability of Limited Company.

Reserve liability of limited company.

69. A limited company may by special resolution determine that any portion of its share capital which has not been already called up shall not be capable of being called up, except in the event and for the purposes of the company being wound up, and thereupon that portion of its share capital shall not be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purposes aforesaid.

Unlimited Liability of Directors.

[S. 60, Companies Act, 1908; part of s. 7, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Limited company may have directors with unlimited liability.

70. (1) In a limited company the liability of the directors or of any director, may, if so provided by the memorandum, be unlimited.

(2) In a limited company in which the liability of any director is unlimited, the directors of the company (if any) and the member who proposes [illegible] person for election or appointment to the office [illegible] director shall add to that proposal a statement [illegible] the liability of the person holding that office [illegible] unlimited, and the promoters and officers [illegible] company, or one of them, shall, before the [illegible] pts the office or acts therein, give him [illegible] writing that his liability will be unlimited.

(3) If [illegible] director or proposer makes default in [illegible] statement or if any promoter or officer of the company makes default in giving such a notice, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, and shall also be liable for any damage which the person so elected or appointed may sustain from the default, but the liability of the person elected or appointed shall not be affected by the default.

Special resolution of limited company making liability of directors unlimited.

71. (1) A limited company, if so authorised by its articles, may, by special resolution, alter its memorandum so as to render unlimited the liability of its directors or of any director.

(2) Upon the confirmation of any such special resolution, the provisions thereof shall be as valid as if they had been originally contained in the memorandum, and a copy thereof shall be embodied in or annexed to every copy of the memorandum issued after the confirmation of the resolution.

(3) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees for each copy in respect of which default is made; and every officer of the company, who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default, shall be liable to the like penalty.

PART IV.

MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION.

Office and Name.

Registered office of company.

[S. 62, Companies Act, 1908; ss. 63 and 64, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

72. (1) Every company shall have a registered office to which all communications and notices may be addressed.

(2) Notice in writing of the situation of the registered office, and of any change therein, shall be filed with the registrar who shall record the same.

(3) If a company carries on business without complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which it so carries on business.

Publication of name by a limited company.

73. Every limited company—

(a) shall paint or affix, and keep painted or affixed, its name on the outside of every office or place in which its business is carried on, in a conspicuous position, in letters easily legible and in English characters, and also, if the registered office be situate in a place beyond the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of a High Court, in the characters of one of the vernacular languages used in that place;

(b) shall have its name engraven in legible characters on its seal;

(c) shall have its name mentioned in legible English characters in all bill-heads and letter paper and in all notices, advertisements and other official publications of the company, and in all bills of exchange, hundis, promissory notes, endorsements, cheques and orders for money or goods purporting to be signed by or on behalf of the company, and in all bills of parcels, invoices, receipts and letters of credit of the company.

Penalties for non-publication of name.

74. (1) If a limited company does not paint or affix, and keep painted or affixed, its name in manner directed by this Act, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for not so painting or affixing its name, and for every day during which its name is not so kept painted or affixed, and every officer of the company, who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default, shall be liable to the like penalty.

(2) If any officer of a limited company, or any person on its behalf, uses or authorises the use of any seal purporting to be a seal of the company whereon its name is not so engraven as aforesaid, or issues or authorises the issue of any bill-head, letter paper, notice, advertisement or other official publication of the company, or signs or authorises to be signed on behalf of the company any bill of exchange, hundi, promissory note, endorsement, cheque or order for money or goods, or issues or authorises to be issued any bill of parcels, invoice, receipt or letter of credit of the company, wherein its name is not mentioned in manner aforesaid, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, and shall further be personally liable to the holder of any such bill of exchange, hundi, promissory note, cheque or order for money or goods, for the amount thereof, unless the same is duly paid by the company.

75. (1) Where any notice, advertisement or other official publication of a company contains a statement of the amount of the authorised capital of the company, such notice, advertisement, or other official publication shall also contain a statement in an equally prominent position and in equally conspicuous characters of the amount of the capital which has been subscribed and the amount paid up.

Publication of authorised as well as subscribed and paid-up capital.

(2) Any company which makes default in complying with the requirements of this section and every officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees.

Meetings and Proceedings.

[s. 64, Companies Act, 1908; part of s. 74, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

76. (1) A general meeting of every company shall be held once at the least in every year, and not more than fifteen months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting, and, if not so held, the company and every officer of the company, who is knowingly a party to the default, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Annual general meeting.

(2) When default has been made in holding a meeting of the company in accordance with the provisions of this section, the Court may, on the application of any member of the company, call or direct the calling of a general meeting of the company.

77. Notwithstanding anything in the articles the quorum for a general meeting of a company shall not exceed ten members present in person or (when proxies are allowed to count for a quorum) twenty members present in person or by proxy.

Maximum quorum for general meeting.

[s. 65, Companies Act, 1908; s. 75, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

78. (1) Every company limited by shares and registered after the commencement of this Act shall, within a period of six months from the date at which the company is entitled to commence business, hold a general meeting of the members of the company which shall be called the statutory meeting.

Statutory meeting of company.

(2) The directors shall, at least ten days before the day on which the meeting is held, forward a report (in this Act called "the statutory report") to every member of the company and to every other person entitled under this Act to receive it.

(3) The statutory report shall be certified by not less than two directors of the company or, where there are less than two directors, by the sole director and shall state—

(a) the total number of shares allotted, distinguishing shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and stating in the case of shares partly paid up the extent to which they are so paid up, and in either case the consideration for which they have been allotted;

(b) the total amount of cash received by the company in respect of all the shares allotted distinguished as aforesaid;

(c) an abstract of the receipts of the company whether from its share capital or from debentures, and of the payments made thereout, up to a date within seven days of the date of the report, exhibiting under distinctive headings the receipts of the company from shares and debentures and other sources, the payments made thereout and particulars concerning the balance remaining in hand and an account or estimate of the preliminary expenses of the company;

(d) the names, addresses and descriptions of the directors, auditors (if any), managers (if any) and secretary of the company;

(e) the particulars of any contract, the modification of which is to be submitted to the meeting for its approval, together with the particulars of the modification or proposed modification.

(4) The statutory report shall, so far as it relates to the shares allotted by the company and to the cash received in respect of such shares and to the receipts and payments of the company on capital account, be certified as correct by the auditors (if any) of the company.

(5) The directors shall cause a copy of the statutory report, certi[illegible] this se[illegible] required, to be filed with the registrar forthw[illegible] after the sending thereof to the members [illegible] the company.

(6) Every director of the company who [illegible]ingly and wilfully authorises or permits [illegible] in complying with the provisions of sub-sec[illegible] (2) or sub-section (5) shall be liable to a [illegible] not exceeding twenty rupees for every [illegible] during which the default [illegible]

(7) The directors shall cause a list showing the names, descriptions and addresses of the members of the company, and the number of shares held by them respectively, to be produced at the commencement of the meeting, and to remain open and accessible to any member of the company during the continuance of the meeting.

(8) The members of the company present at the meeting shall be at liberty to discuss any matters relating to the formation of the company, or arising out of the statutory report, whether previous notice has been given or not, but no resolution of which notice has not been given in accordance with the articles may be passed.

(9) The meeting may adjourn from time to time, and at any adjourned meeting any resolution of which notice has been given in accordance with the articles, either before or subsequently to the former meeting, may be passed, and the adjourned meeting shall have the same powers as an original meeting.

(10) If a petition is presented to the Court in manner provided by Part V for winding up the company on the ground of default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting, the Court may, instead of directing that the company be wound up, give directions for the statutory report to be filed or a meeting to be held, or make such other order as may be just.

(11) The provisions of this section as to the forwarding and filing of the statutory report shall not apply in the case of a private company.

[S. 66, Companies Act, 1908.] [New.]

Calling of extraordinary general meeting on requisition.

79. (1) Notwithstanding anything in the articles, the directors of a company which has a share capital shall, on the requisition of the holders of not less than one-tenth of the issued share capital of the company upon which all calls or other sums then due have been paid, forthwith proceed to call an extraordinary general meeting of the company.

(2) The requisition must state the objects of the meeting, and must be signed by the requisitionists and deposited at the registered office of the company, and may consist of several documents in like form, each signed by one or more requisitionists.

(3) If the directors do not proceed within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition being so deposited to cause a meeting to be called the requisitionists, or a majority of them in value, may themselves call the meeting, but in either case any meeting so called shall be held within three months from the date of the deposit of the requisition.

(4) If at any such meeting a resolution requiring confirmation at another meeting is passed, the directors [illegible] call a further extraordinary general meeting for the purpose of considering the resolution and, if thought fit, of confirming it as a special resolution and, if the directors do not call the meeting within seven days [illegible] the date of the passing of the first resolution, the requisitionists, or a majority of them in value, may themselves call the meeting.

(5) Any meeting [illegible] this section by the requisitionists shall be called in the same manner, as nearly as possible, as that in which meetings are to be called by directors.

[S. 67, Companies Act, 1908; s. 78, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Provisions as to meetings and votes.

80. In default of, and subject to, any regulations in the articles,—

(i) a meeting of a company may be called by fourteen days' notice in writing, served on every member in manner in which notices are required to be served by Table A in the First Schedule;

(ii) five members may call a meeting,

(iii) any person elected by the members present at a meeting may be chairman thereof, and

(iv) every member shall have one vote

[S. 68, Companies Act, 1908.] [New.]

Representation of companies at meetings of other companies of which they are members

81. A company which is a member of another company may, by resolution of the directors, authorise any of its officials or any other person to act as its representative at any meeting of that other company, and the person so authorised shall be entitled to exercise the same powers on behalf of the company which he represents as if he were an individual shareholder of that other company.

Extraordinary and special resolution.

82. (1) A resolution shall be an extraordinary resolution when it has been passed by a majority of not less than three-fourths of such members entitled to vote as are present in person or by proxy (where proxies are allowed) at a general meeting of which notice specifying the intention to propose the resolution as an extraordinary resolution has been duly given.

(2) A resolution shall be a special resolution when it has been—

(a) passed in manner required for the passing of an extraordinary resolution; and

(b) confirmed by a majority of such members entitled to vote as are present in person or by proxy (where proxies are allowed) at a subsequent general meeting, of which notice has been duly given, and held after an interval of not less than fourteen days, nor more than one month, from the date of the first meeting.

[S. 77, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(3) At any meeting at which an extraordinary resolution is submitted to be passed or a special resolution is submitted to be passed or confirmed, a declaration of the chairman on a show of hands that the resolution is carried shall, unless a poll is demanded, be conclusive evidence of the fact without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against the resolution.

(4) At any meeting at which an extraordinary resolution is submitted to be passed or a special resolution is submitted to be passed or confirmed, a poll may be demanded by three persons for the time being entitled according to the articles to vote, unless the articles of the company require a demand by such number of such persons, not in any case exceeding five, as may be specified in the articles.

(5) In a case where, if a poll is demanded, it may in accordance with the articles be taken in such manner as the chairman may direct, it may, if the chairman so directs, be taken at the meeting at which it is demanded

[Chillington Iron Company, (1885), 29 C. D. 159.]

(6) When a poll is demanded in accordance with this section, in computing the majority on the poll, reference shall be had to the number of votes to which each member is entitled by the articles of the company.

(7) For the purposes of this section notice of a meeting shall be deemed to be duly given and the meeting to be duly held when the notice is given and the meeting held in manner provided by the articles.

[S. 70, Companies Act 1908; ss. 79 and 80, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Registration and copies of special and extraordinary resolutions.

83. (1) A copy of every special and extraordinary resolution shall, within fifteen days from the confirmation of the special resolution or from the passing of the extraordinary resolution, as the case may be, be printed or typewritten and filed with the registrar who shall record the same.

(2) Where articles have been registered, a copy of every special resolution for the time being in force shall be embodied in or annexed to every copy of the articles issued after the date of the resolution.

(3) Where articles have not been registered, a copy of every special resolution shall be forwarded in print to any member at his request, on payment of one rupee or such less sum as the company may direct

(4) If a company makes default in so filing with the registrar a copy of a special or extraordinary resolution, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

(5) If a company makes default in embodying in or annexing to a copy of its articles or in forwarding in print to a member when required by this section a copy of a special resolution, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees for each copy in respect of which default is made.

(6) Every officer of a company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits any default by the company in complying with the requirements of this section shall be liable to the like penalty as is imposed by this section on the company for that default.

[S. 71, Companies Act, 1908; s. 92, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Minutes of proceedings of meetings and directors.

84. (1) Every company shall cause minutes of all proceedings of general meetings and of its directors to be entered in books kept for that purpose.

(2) Any such minute, if purporting to be signed by the chairman of the meeting at which the proceedings were had, or by the chairman of the next succeeding meeting, shall be evidence of the proceedings.

(3) Until the contrary is proved, every general meeting of the company or meeting of directors in respect of the proceedings whereof minutes have been so made shall be deemed to have been duly called and held, and all proceedings had thereat to have been duly had, and all appointments of directors or liquidators shall be deemed to be valid

Restrictions on appointment or advertisement of director.

85. (1) A person shall not be capable of being appointed director of a company by the articles, and shall not be named as a director or proposed director of a company in any prospectus issued by or on behalf of the company or in relation to any intended company or in any statement in lieu of prospectus filed by or on behalf of a company, unless, before the registration of the articles or the publication of the prospectus, or the filing of the statement in lieu of prospectus, as the case may be, he has, by himself or by his agent authorised in writing—

(i) signed and filed with the registrar a consent in writing to act as such director; and

(ii) save in the case of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital, either signed the memorandum for a number of shares not less than his qualification (if any), or signed and filed with the registrar a contract in writing to take from the company and pay for his qualification shares (if any).

(2) On the application for registration of the memorandum and articles of a company the applicant shall file with the registrar a list of the persons who have consented to be directors of the company, and, if this list contains the name of any person who has not so consented, the applicant shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

(3) This section shall not apply to a private company nor to a prospectus issued by or on behalf of a company after the expiration of one year from the date at which the company is entitled to commence business.

Qualification of director.

86. (1) Without prejudice to the restrictions imposed by section 85, it shall be the duty of every director who is by the articles required to hold a specified share qualification, and who is not already qualified, to obtain his qualification within two months after his appointment, or such shorter time as may be fixed by the articles.

(2) The office of director of a company shall be vacated if the director does not, within two months from the date of his appointment, or within such shorter time as may be fix[illegible] the articles, obtain his qualification, or if afte[illegible] expiration of such period or shorter time [illegible] ceases at any time to hold his qualification [illegible]d a person vacating office under this secti[illegible]ll be incapable of being re-appointed direct[illegible] the company until he has obtained his qua[illegible]

Validity of acts of directors.

87. The acts of a director shall be valid notwithstanding any defect that may afterwards be discovered in his appointment or qualification: Provided that nothing in this section shall be deemed to give validity to acts done by a director after the appointment of such director has been shown to be invalid.

[S. 75, Companies Act, 1908; ss. 70 and 71, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

List of directors to be sent to registrar

88. (1) Every company shall keep at its registered office a register containing the names and addresses and the occupations of its directors, and file with the registrar a copy thereof, and from time to time file with the registrar notice of any change among its directors or managers.

(2) If default is made in complying with this section, the company shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues; and every officer of the company, who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default, shall be liable to the like penalty.

Contracts.

[S. 76, Companies Act, 1908; s. 67, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

89. (1) Contracts on behalf of a company may be made as follows (that is to say) :—

Form of contracts.

(i) any contract which, if made between private persons, would be by law required to be in writing, signed by the parties to be charged therewith, may be made on behalf of the company in writing signed by any person acting under its authority, express or implied, and may in the same manner be varied or discharged ;

(ii) any contract which, if made between private persons, would by law be valid although made by parol only, and not reduced into writing, may be made by parol on behalf of the company by any person acting under its authority, express or implied, and may in the same manner be varied or discharged.

(2) All contracts made according to this section shall be effectual in law, and shall bind the company and its successors and all other parties thereto, their heirs, or legal representatives as the case may be.

S. 77, Companies Act, 1908; s. 72, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

90. A bill of exchange, hundi or promissory note shall be deemed to have been made, drawn, accepted or endorsed on behalf of a company if made, drawn, accepted or endorsed in the name of, or by or on behalf or on account of the company by any person acting under its authority, express or implied.

Bills of exchange and promissory notes.

S. 78, Companies Act, 1908; s. 81, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

91. A company may, by writing under its common seal, empower any person, either generally or in respect of any specified matters, as its attorney, to execute deeds on its behalf in any place not situate in British India; and every deed signed by such attorney, on behalf of the company, and under his seal, where sealing is required, shall bind the company, and have the same effect as if it were under its common seal.

Execution of deeds abroad.

S. 79, Companies Act, 1908.]

92. (1) A company whose objects require or comprise the transaction of business beyond the limits of British India may, if authorised by its articles, have for use in any territory, district or place not situate in British India, an official seal, which shall be a facsimile of the common seal of the company, with the addition on its face of the name of every territory, district or place where it is to be used.

Power for company to have official seal for use abroad.

(2) A company having such an official seal may, by writing under its common seal, authorise any person appointed for the purpose in any territory, district or place not situate in British India to affix the same to any deed or other document to which the company is party in that territory, district or place.

(3) The authority of any such agent shall, as between the company and any person dealing with the agent, continue during the period (if any) mentioned in the instrument conferring the authority, or if no period is there mentioned, then until notice of the revocation or determination of the agent's authority has been given to the person dealing with him.

(4) The person affixing any such official seal shall, by writing under his hand, on the deed or other document to which the seal is affixed, certify the date and place of affixing the same.

(5) A deed or other document to which an official seal is duly affixed shall bind the company as if it had been sealed with the common seal of the company.

Prospectus.

93. (1) Every prospectus issued by or on behalf of a company or in relation to any intended company shall be dated, and that date shall, unless the contrary be proved, be taken as the date of publication of the prospectus.

Filing of prospectus.

[S. 80, Companies Act, 1908.] [New.]

(2) A copy of every such prospectus, signed by every person who is named therein as a director or proposed director of the company, or by his agent authorised in writing, shall be filed for registration with the registrar on or before the date of its publication, and no such prospectus shall be issued until a copy thereof has been so filed for registration.

(3) The registrar shall not register any prospectus unless it is dated, and the copy thereof signed, in manner required by this section.

(4) Every prospectus shall state on the face of it that a copy has been filed for registration as required by this section.

(5) If a prospectus is issued without a copy thereof being so filed, the company, and every person who is knowingly a party to the issue of the prospectus, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day from the date of the issue of the prospectus until a copy thereof is so filed.

94. (1) Every prospectus issued by or on behalf of a company, or by or on behalf of any person who is or has been engaged or interested in the formation of the company, shall state—

Specific requirements as to particulars of prospectus.

[S. 81 (1) (5) (7) (8) (9), Companies Act, 1908; cf. s. 88, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(a) the contents of the memorandum, with the names, descriptions and addresses of the signatories and the number of shares subscribed for by them respectively; and the number of founders or management or deferred shares (if any) and the nature and extent of the interest of the holders in the property and profits of the company; and

(b) the number of shares (if any) fixed by the articles as the qualification of a director, and any provision in the articles as to the remuneration of the directors; and of the managers or proposed managers (if any); and

(d) the minimum subscription on which the directors may proceed to allotment, and the amount payable on application and allotment on each share; and in the case of a second or subsequent offer of shares the amount offered for subscription on each previous allotment made within the two preceding years, and the amount actually allotted, and the amount (if any) paid on the shares so allotted; and

(e) the number and amount of shares and debentures which within the two preceding years have been issued, or agreed to be issued, as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and in the latter case the extent to which they are so paid up, and in either case the consideration for which those shares or debentures have been issued or agreed to be issued; and

(f) the names and addresses of the vendors of any property purchased or acquired by the company, or proposed so to be purchased or acquired, which is to be paid for wholly or partly out of the proceeds of the issue offered for subscription by the prospectus, or the purchase or acquisition of which has not been completed at the date of issue of the prospectus, and the amount payable in cash, shares or debentures to the vendor, and where there is more than one separate vendor or the company is a sub-purchaser, the amount so payable to each vendor: Provided that where the vendors or any of them are a firm, the members of the firm shall not be treated as separate vendors; and

(g) the amount (if any) paid or payable as purchase-money in cash, shares or debentures, for any such property as aforesaid, specifying the amount (if any) payable for goodwill; and

(h) the amount (if any) paid within the two preceding years or payable, as commission for subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, for any shares in, or debentures of, the company, or the rate of any such commission: Provided that it shall not be necessary to state the commission payable to sub-underwriters; and

(i) the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses; and

(k) the amount paid within the two preceding years or intended to be paid to any promoter, and the consideration for any such payment; and

(l) the dates of, and parties to, every material contract, and a reasonable time and place at which any material contract or a copy thereof may be inspected Provided that this requirement shall not apply to a contract entered into in the ordinary course of the business carried on or intended to be carried on by the company, or to any contract entered into more than two years before the date of issue of the prospectus; and

(m) the names and addresses of the auditors (if any) of the company; and

(n) full particulars of the nature and extent of the interest (if any) of every director in the promotion of, or in the property proposed to be acquired by, the company, or, where the interest of such a director consists in being a partner in a firm, the nature and extent of the interest of the firm, with a statement of all sums paid or agreed to be paid to him or to the firm in cash or shares or otherwise by any person either to induce him to become, or to qualify him as, a director, or otherwise for services rendered by him or by the firm in connection with the promotion or formation of the company; and

(o) where the company is a company having shares of more than one class, the right of voting at meetings of the company conferred by the several classes of shares respectively.

(2) Where any such prospectus as is mentioned in this section is published as a newspaper advertisement, it shall not be necessary in the advertisement to specify the contents of the memorandum, or the signatories thereto, and the number of shares subscribed for by them.

(3) This section shall not apply to a circular or notice inviting existing members or debenture holders of a company to subscribe either for shares or for debentures of the company, whether with or without the right to renounce in favour of other persons.

(4) The requirements of this section as to the memorandum and the qualification, remuneration and interest of directors, the names, descriptions and addresses of directors or proposed directors, and of managers or proposed managers, and the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses, shall not apply in the case of a prospectus issued more than one year after the date at which the company is entitled to commence business.

(5) Nothing in this section shall limit or diminish any liability which any person may incur under the general law or this Act apart from this section.

Meaning of "vendor" in section 94.

95. For the purposes of section 94 every person shall be deemed to be a vendor who has entered into any contract, absolute or conditional, for the sale or purchase, or for any option of purchase, of any property to be acquired by the company, in any case where—

[S. 81 (2), Companies Act, 1908.]

(a) the purchase-money is not fully paid at the date of issue of the prospectus; or

(b) the purchase-money is to be paid or satisfied wholly or in part out of the proceeds of the issue offered for subscription by the prospectus; or

(c) the contract depends for its validity or fulfilment on the result of that issue.

[S. 81 (3), Companies Act, 1908]

Application of section 94 to the case of property taken on lease.

96. Where any of the property to be acquired by the company is to be taken on lease, section 94 shall apply as if the expression "vendor" included the lessor and the expression "purchase-money" included the consideration for the lease, and the expression "sub-purchaser" included a sub-lessee.

[S. 81 (4), Companies Act, 1908.]

Invalidity of certain conditions as to waiver of notice.

97. Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares or debentures to waive compliance with any requirements of section 94, or purporting to affect him with notice of any contract, document or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus, shall be void.

[S. 81 (6), Companies Act, 1908]

Saving in certain cases of non-compliance with section 94

98. In the event of non-compliance with any of the requirements of section 94, a director or other person responsible for the prospectus shall not incur any liability by reason of the non-compliance, if he proves that—

(a) as regards any matter not disclosed, he was not cognisant thereof; or

(b) the non-compliance arose from an honest mistake of fact on his part:

Provided that, in the event of non-compliance with the requirements contained in clause (n) of sub-section (1) of section 94, no such director or other person shall incur any liability in respect of the non-compliance unless it be proved that he had knowledge of the matters not disclosed.

[S. 82, Companies Act, 1908] [New.]

Obligations of companies where no prospectus is issued.

99. (1) A company which does not issue a prospectus on or with reference to its formation shall not allot any of its shares or debentures unless before the first allotment of either shares or debentures there has been filed with the registrar a statement in lieu of prospectus signed by every person who is named therein as a director or a proposed director of the company or by his agent authorised in writing, in the form and containing the particulars set out in the Second Schedule.

(2) This section shall not apply to a private company or to a company which has allotted any shares or debentures before the commencement of this Act or, in so far as it relates to the allotment of shares, to a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital.

[S. 83, Companies Act, 1908.] [New.]

Restriction on alteration of terms mentioned in prospectus or statement in lieu of prospectus.

100. A company shall not, at any time, vary the terms of a contract referred to in the prospectus or statement in lieu of prospectus, except subject to the approval of the company in general meeting.

[S. 84, Companies Act, 1908] [New]

Liability for statements in prospectus

101. (1) Where a prospectus invites persons to subscribe for shares in or debentures of a company every person who is a director of the company at the time of the issue of the prospectus, and every person who has authorised the naming of him*self* and is named in the prospectus as a director or as having agreed to become a director either immediately or after an interval of time, and every promoter of the company, and every person who has authorised the issue of the prospectus, shall be liable to pay compensation to all persons who subscribe for any shares or debentures on the faith of the prospectus for all loss or damage they may have sustained by reason of any misleading or untrue statement therein, or in any report or memorandum appearing on the face thereof, or by reference incorporated therein or issued therewith, unless it is proved—

(a) with respect to every misleading or untrue statement not purporting to be made on the authority of an expert or of a public official document or statement, that he had reasonable ground to believe and did up to the time of the allotment of the shares or debentures, as the case may be, believe that the statement fairly represented the facts or was true;

(b) with respect to every misleading or untrue statement purporting to be a statement by or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a report or valuation of an expert, that it fairly represented the statement, or was a correct and fair copy of or extract from the report or valuation: Provided that the director, person named as director, promoter or person who authorised the issue of the prospectus shall be liable to pay compensation as aforesaid if it is proved that he had no reasonable ground to believe that the person making the statement, report or valuation was competent to make it; and

(c) with respect to every misleading or untrue statement purporting to be a statement made by an official person or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a public official document, that it was a correct and fair representation of the statement or copy of or extract from the document:

or unless it is proved—

(i) that having consented to become a director of the company he withdrew his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and that it was issued without his authority or consent; or

(ii) that the prospectus was issued without his knowledge or consent, and that on becoming aware of its issue, he forthwith gave a reasonable public notice that it was issued without his knowledge or consent; or

(iii) that, after the issue of the prospectus and before allotment thereunder, he, on becoming aware of any misleading or untrue statement therein, withdrew his consent thereto, and gave reasonable public notice of the withdrawal, and of the reason therefor.

(2) Where a company existing at the commencement of this Act has issued shares or debentures, and for the purpose of obtaining further capital by subscriptions for shares or debentures issues a prospectus, a director shall not be liable in respect of any statement therein, unless he has authorised the issue of the prospectus, or has adopted or ratified it.

(3) Where the prospectus contains the name of a person as a director of the company, or as having agreed to become a director thereof, and he has not consented to become a director, or has withdrawn his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and has not authorised or consented to the issue thereof, the directors of the company, except any without whose knowledge or consent the prospectus was issued, and any other person who authorised the issue thereof, shall be liable to indemnify the person named as aforesaid against all damages, costs and expenses to which he may be made liable by reason of his name having been inserted in the prospectus, or in defending himself against any suit or legal proceedings brought against him in respect thereof.

(4) Every person who, by reason of his being a director or named as a director, or as having agreed to become a director, or of his having authorised the issue of the prospectus, becomes liable to make any payment under this section, may recover contribution, as in cases of contract, from any other person who, if sued separately, would have been liable to make the same payment, unless the person who has become so liable was, and that other person was not, guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation.

(5) For the purposes of this section—

(a) the expression "promoter" means a promoter who was a party to the preparation of the prospectus, or the portion thereof containing the misleading or untrue statement, but does not include any person by reason of his acting in a professional capacity for persons engaged in procuring the formation of the company;

(b) the expression "expert" includes engineer, valuer, accountant and any other person whose profession gives authority to a statement made by him.

Allotment.

[S. 85, Companies Act, 1908.]

102. (1) No allotment shall be made of any share capital of a company offered to the public for subscription, unless the following conditions have been complied with, namely:—

Restriction as to allotment

(a) the amount (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles and named in the prospectus as the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment; or

(b) if no amount is so fixed and named, then the whole amount of the share capital so offered for subscription, has been subscribed, and the sum payable on application for the amount so fixed and named or for the whole amount offered for subscription, has been paid to and received in cash by the company.

(2) The amount so fixed and named and the whole amount aforesaid shall be reckoned exclusively of any amount payable otherwise than in cash, and is in this Act referred to as the minimum subscription.

(3) The amount payable on application on each share shall not be less than five per cent. of the nominal amount of the share.

(4) If the conditions aforesaid have not been complied with on the expiration of one hundred and twenty days after the first issue of the prospectus, all money received from applicants for shares shall be forthwith repaid to them without interest, and, if any such money is not so repaid within one hundred and thirty days after the issue of the prospectus, the directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to repay that money with interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum from the expiration of the one hundred and thirtieth day: Provided that a director shall not be liable if he proves that the loss of the money was not due to any misconduct or negligence on his part.

(5) Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares to waive compliance with any requirement of this section shall be void.

(6) This section, except sub-section (3) thereof, shall not apply to any allotment of shares subsequent to the first allotment of shares offered to the public for subscription.

(7) In the case of the first allotment of share capital payable in cash of a company which does not issue any invitation to the public to subscribe for its shares, no allotment shall be made unless the minimum subscription (that is to say)—

(a) the amount (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles and named in the statement in lieu of prospectus as the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment; or

(b) if no amount is so fixed and named, the whole amount of the share capital other than that issued or agreed to be issued as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash; has been subscribed and an amount not less than five per cent. of the nominal amount of each share payable in cash has been paid to and received by the company.

(8) Sub-section (7) shall not apply to a private company or to a company which has allotted any shares or debentures before the commencement of this Act.

[S. 86, Companies Act, 1908.]

103 (1) An allotment made by a company to an applicant in contravention of the provisions of section 102 shall be voidable at the instance of the applicant within one month after the holding of the statutory meeting of the company and not later, and shall be so voidable notwithstanding that the company is in course of being wound up.

Effect of irregular allotment.

(2) If any director of a company knowingly contravenes or permits or authorises the contravention of any of the provisions of section 102 with respect to allotment, he shall be liable to compensate the company and the allottee respectively for any loss, damages or costs which the company or the allottee may have sustained or incurred thereby: Provided that proceedings to recover any such loss, damages or costs shall not be commenced after the expiration of two years from the date of the allotment.

[S. 87, Companies Act, 1908.]

104. (1) A company shall not commence any business or exercise any borrowing powers unless—

Restrictions on commencement of business.

(a) shares held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash have been allotted to an amount not less in the whole than the minimum subscription; and

(b) every director of the company has paid to the company on each of the shares taken or contracted to be taken by him, and for which he is liable to pay in cash, a proportion equal to the proportion payable on application and allotment on the shares offered for public subscription or, in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, on the shares payable in cash; and

(c) there has been filed with the registrar a duly verified declaration by the secretary or one of the directors, in the prescribed form, that the aforesaid conditions have been complied with; and

(d) in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, there has been filed with the registrar a statement in lieu of prospectus.

(2) The registrar shall, on the filing of a duly verified declaration, in accordance with the provisions of this section certify that the company is entitled to commence business, and that certificate shall be conclusive evidence that the company is so entitled:

Provided that, in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, the registrar shall not give such a certificate unless a statement in lieu of prospectus has been filed with him.

(3) Any contract made by a company before the date at which it is entitled to commence business shall be provisional only, and shall not be binding on the company until that date, and on that date it shall become binding.

(4) Nothing in this section shall prevent the simultaneous offer for subscription or allotment of any shares and debentures or the receipt of any money payable on application for debentures.

(5) If any company commences business or exercises borrowing powers in contravention of this section, every person who is responsible for the contravention shall, without prejudice to any other liability, be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for every day during which the contravention continues.

(6) Nothing in this section shall apply to a private company, or to a company registered before the commencement of this Act which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares or, in so far as its provisions relate to shares, to a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital.

[S. 88, Companies Act, 1908.]

Return as to allotments.

105. (1) Whenever a company having a share capital makes any allotment of its shares, the company shall, within one month thereafter,—

(a) file with the registrar a return of the allotments, stating the number and nominal amount of the shares comprised in the allotment, the names, addresses and descriptions of the allottees, and the amount (if any) paid or due and payable on each share; and

(b) in the case of shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, produce for the inspection and examination of the registrar a contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee to the allotment together with any contract of sale, or for services or other consideration in respect of which that allotment was made, such contracts being duly stamped, and file with the registrar copies verified in the prescribed manner of all such contracts and a return stating the number and nominal amount of shares so allotted, the extent to which they are to be treated as paid up, and the consideration for which they have been allotted.

(2) Where such a contract as above-mentioned is not reduced to writing, the company shall, within one month after the allotment, file with the registrar the prescribed particulars of the contract stamped with the same stamp-duty as would have been payable if the contract had been reduced to writing, and these particulars shall be deemed to be an instrument within the meaning of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899, and the registrar may, as a condition of filing the particulars, require that the duty payable thereon be adjudicated under section 31 of that Act.

(3) If default is made in complying with the requirements of this section, every officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for every day during which the default continues:

Provided that, in case of default in filing with the registrar within one month after the allotment any document required to be filed by this section, the company, or any person liable for the default, may apply to the Court for relief, and the Court, if satisfied that the omission to file the document was accidental or due to inadvertence or that on other grounds it is just and equitable to grant relief, may make an order extending the time for the filing of the document for such a period as the Court may think proper.

Commissions and Discounts.

Power to pay certain commissions and prohibition of payment of all other commissions, discounts, etc.

[S. 89, Companies Act, 1908.] [New.]

106. (1) It shall be lawful for a company to pay a commission to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares in the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any shares in the company, if the payment of the commission is authorised by the articles, and the commission paid or agreed to be paid does not exceed the amount or rate so authorised and if the amount or rate per cent of the commission paid or agreed to be paid is—

(a) in the case of shares offered to the public for subscription, disclosed in the prospectus; or

(b) in the case of shares not offered to the public for subscription, disclosed in the statement in lieu of prospectus, or in a statement in the prescribed form signed in like manner as a statement in lieu of prospectus and filed with the registrar and, where a circular or notice, not being a prospectus inviting subscription for the shares is issued, also disclosed in that circular or notice.

(2) Save as aforesaid, no company shall apply any of its shares or capital money either directly or indirectly in payment of any commission, discount or allowance, to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares of the company, or procuring, or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any shares in the company, whether the shares or money be so applied by being added to the purchase-money of any property acquired by the company or to the contract price of any work to be executed for the company, or the money be paid out of the nominal purchase-money or contract price, or otherwise.

(3) Nothing in this section shall affect the power of any company to pay such brokerage as it has heretofore been lawful for a company to pay, and a vendor to, promoter of, or other person who receives payment in money or shares from, a company shall have and shall be deemed always to have had power to apply any part of the money or shares so received in payment of any commission, the payment of which, if made directly by the company, would have been legal under this section.

Statement in balance-sheet as to commissions and discounts.

107. Where a company has paid any sums by way of commission in respect of any shares or debentures, or allowed any sums by way of discount in respect of any debentures, the total amount so paid or allowed or so much thereof as has not been written off, shall be stated in every balance-sheet of the company until the whole amount thereof has been written off.

Payment of interest out of Capital.

[S. 91, Companies Act, 1908; s. 73A, Indian Companies Act, 1882, inserted by s. 2, Act of 1910.]

Power of company to pay interest out of capital in certain cases.

108. Where any shares of a company are issued for the purpose of raising money to defray the expenses of the construction of any works or buildings or the provision of any plant which cannot be made profitable for a lengthened period, the company may pay interest on so much of that share capital as is for the time being paid up for the period and subject to the conditions and restrictions in this section mentioned, and may charge the same to capital as part of the cost of construction of the work or building, or the provision of plant:

Provided that—

(1) no such payment shall be made unless the same is authorised by the articles or by special resolution;

(2) no such payment, whether authorised by the articles or by special resolution, shall be made without the previous sanction of the Local Government, which sanction shall be conclusive evidence for the purposes of this section that the shares of the company, in respect of which such sanction is given, have been issued for a purpose specified in this section;

(3) before sanctioning any such payment, the Local Government may, at the expense of the company, appoint a person to inquire and report to such Local Government as to the circumstances of the case, and may, before making the appointment, require the company to give security for the payment of the costs of the inquiry;

(4) the payment shall be made only for such period as may be determined by the Local Government; and such period shall in no case extend beyond the close of the half-year next after the half-year during which the works or buildings have been actually completed or the plant provided;

(5) the rate of interest shall in no case exceed four per cent. per annum or such lower rate as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, prescribe;

(6) the payment of the interest shall not operate as a reduction of the amount paid up on the shares in respect of which it is paid;

(7) the accounts of the company shall show the share capital on which, and the rate at which, interest has been paid out of capital during the period to which the accounts relate;

(8) nothing in this [illegible] company to which the Indian Railway Companies Act, 1895, or the Indian Tramways Act, 1902, applies.

X of 1895. IV of 1902.

Certificates of Shares, etc.

Limitation of time for issue of certificates.

[S. 92, Companies Act, 1908.]

109. (1) Every company shall, within three months after the allotment of any of its shares, debentures or debenture stock, and within three months after the registration of the transfer of any such shares, debentures or debenture stock, complete and have ready for delivery the certificates of all shares, the debentures, and the certificates of all debenture stock allotted or transferred, unless the conditions of issue of the shares, debentures or debenture stock otherwise provide.

(2) If default is made in complying with the requirements of this section, the company, and every officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

Information as to Mortgages, Charges, etc.

Certain mortgages and charges to be void if not registered.

[S. 93 (1), Companies Act, 1908.]

110. Every mortgage or charge created after the commencement of this Act by a company and being either—

[New.]

(a) a mortgage or charge for the purpose of securing any issue of debentures; or

(b) a mortgage or charge on uncalled share capital of the company; or

(c) a mortgage or charge on any immoveable property wherever situate, or any interest therein; or

(d) a mortgage or charge on any book debts of the company; or shall, so far as any security on the company's property or undertaking is thereby conferred, be void against the liquidator and any creditor of the company, unless the prescribed particulars of the mortgage or charge, together with the instrument (if any) by which the mortgage or charge is created or evidenced, or a copy thereof verified in the prescribed manner are filed with the registrar for registration in manner required by this Act within twenty-one days after the date of its creation, but without prejudice to any contract or obligation for repayment of the money thereby secured, and when a mortgage or charge becomes void under this section, the money secured thereby shall immediately become payable:

(e) a floating charge on the undertaking or property of the company;

Provided that—

(i) in the case of a mortgage or charge created out of British India comprising solely property situate outside British India, twenty-one days after the date on which the instrument or copy could, in due course of post, and if despatched with due diligence, have been received in British India shall be substituted for twenty-one days after the date of the creation of the mortgage or [illegible] within which the particulars and instrument or copy are to be filed with the registrar; and

(ii) where the mortgage or charge is created in British India but comprises property outside British India, the instrument creating or purporting to create the mortgage or charge or a copy thereof verified in the prescribed manner may be filed for registration notwithstanding that further proceedings may be necessary to make the mortgage or charge valid or effectual according to the law of the country in which the property is situate; and

(iii) where a negotiable instrument has been given to secure the payment of any book debts of a company, the deposit of the instrument for the purpose of securing an advance to the company shall not for the purposes of this section be treated as a mortgage or charge on those book debts; and

(iv) the holding of debentures entitling the holder to a charge on immoveable property shall not be deemed to be an interest in immoveable property.

Particulars in case of series of debentures entitling holders pari passu.

111. Where a series of debentures containing, or giving by reference to any other instrument, any charge to the benefit of which the debenture-holders of that series are entitled pari passu is created by a company, it shall be sufficient for the purposes of section 110 if there are filed with the registrar within twenty-one days after the execution of the deed containing the charge or, if there is no such deed, after the execution of any debentures of the series, the following particulars:—

(a) the total amount secured by the whole series; and

(b) the dates of the resolutions authorising the issue of the series and the date of the covering deed (if any) by which the security is created or defined; and

(c) a general description of the property charged; and

(d) the names of the trustees (if any) for the debenture-holders;

together with the deed or a copy thereof verified in the prescribed manner containing the charge, or if there is no such deed, one of the debentures of the series, and the registrar shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, enter those particulars in the register:

Provided that, where more than one issue is made of debentures in the series, there shall be filed with the registrar for entry in the register particulars of the date and amount of each issue, but an omission to do this shall not affect the validity of the debentures issued.

[S. 93 (4), Companies Act, 1908.]

Particulars in case of commission, etc., on debentures.

112. Where any commission, allowance or discount has been paid or made either directly or indirectly by the company to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any debentures of the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any such debentures, the particulars required to be filed for registration under sections 110 and 111 shall include particulars as to the amount or rate per cent. of the commission, discount or allowance so paid or made, but an omission to do this shall not affect the validity of the debentures issued:

Provided that the deposit of any debentures as security for any debt of the company shall not for the purposes of this provision be treated as the issue of the debentures at a discount.

[Ss. 93 (2) and 93 (5), Companies Act, 1908.]

Register of mortgages and charges.

113. (1) The registrar shall keep, with respect to each company, a register in the prescribed form of all the mortgages and charges created by the company after the commencement of this Act and requiring registration under section 110, and shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, enter in the register, with respect to every such mortgage or charge, the date of creation, the amount secured by it, short particulars of the property mortgaged or charged, and the names of the mortgagees or persons entitled to the charge.

(2) After making the entry required by sub-section (1) the registrar shall return the instrument (if any) or the verified copy thereof, as the case may be, filed in accordance with the provisions of section 110 or section 111 to the person filing the same.

(3) The register kept in pursuance of this section shall be open to inspection by any person on payment of the prescribed fee, not exceeding one rupee for each inspection.

[S. 98, Companies Act, 1908.]

Index to register of mortgages and charges.

114. The registrar shall keep a chronological index, in the prescribed form and with the prescribed particulars, of the mortgages or charges registered with him under this Act.

[S. 93 (5), Companies Act, 1908.]

Certificate of registration.

115. The registrar shall give a certificate under his hand of the registration of any mortgage or charge registered in pursuance of section 110, stating the amount thereby secured, and the certificate shall be conclusive evidence that the requirements of sections 110 to 113 as to registration have been complied with.

Endorsement of certificate of registration on debenture or certificate of debenture stock.

116. The company shall cause a copy of every certificate of registration given under section 115, to be endorsed on every debenture or certificate of debenture stock which is issued by the company, and the payment of which is secured by the mortgage or charge so registered:

Provided that nothing in this section shall be construed as requiring a company to cause a certificate of registration of any mortgage or charge so given to be endorsed on any debenture or certificate of debenture stock which has been issued by the company before the mortgage or charge was created.

Duty of company and right of interested party as regards registration.

117. (1) It shall be the duty of the company to file with the registrar for registration the prescribed particulars of every mortgage or charge created by the company and of the issues of debentures of a series, requiring registration under section 110, but registration of any such mortgage or charge may be effected on the application of any person interested therein.

(2) Where the registration is effected on the application of some person other than the company, that person shall be entitled to recover from the company the amount of any fees properly paid by him to the registrar on the registration.

[S. 93 (9), Companies Act, 1908.]

Copy of instrument creating mortgage or charge to be kept at registered office.

118. Every company shall cause a copy of every instrument creating any mortgage or charge requiring registration under section 110, to be kept at the registered office of the company: Provided that, in the case of a series of uniform debentures, a copy of one such debenture shall be sufficient.

Registration of appointment of receiver.

119. (1) If any person obtains an order for the appointment of a receiver of the property of a company, or appoints such a receiver under any powers contained in any instrument, he shall, within fifteen days from the date of the order or of the appointment under the powers contained in the instrument, file notice of the fact with the registrar, and the registrar shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, enter the fact in the register of mortgages and charges.

(2) If any person makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

[S. 95, Companies Act, 1908.]

Filing of accounts of receivers.

120. (1) Every receiver of the property of a company who has been appointed under the powers contained in any instrument, and who has taken possession, shall once in every half-year while he remains in possession, and also on ceasing to act as receiver, file with the registrar an abstract in the prescribed form of his receipts and payments during the period to which the abstract relates, and shall also on ceasing to act as receiver file with the registrar notice to that effect, and the registrar shall enter the notice in the register of mortgages and charges.

(2) Every receiver who makes default in complying with the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Rectification of register of mortgages.

121. The Court, on being satisfied that the omission to register a mortgage or charge within the time required by section 110, or that the omission or misstatement of any particular with respect to any such mortgage or charge, was accidental, or due to inadvertence or to some other sufficient cause, or is not of a nature to prejudice the position of creditors or shareholders of the company, or that on other grounds it is just and equitable to grant relief, may, on the application of the company or any person interested, and on such terms and conditions as seem to the Court just and expedient, order that the time for registration be extended, or, as the case may be, that the omission or misstatement be rectified, and may make such order as to the costs of the application as it thinks fit.

Entry of satisfaction.

122. The registrar may, on evidence being given to his satisfaction that the debt for which any registered mortgage or charge was given has been paid or satisfied, order that a memorandum of satisfaction be entered on the register, and shall if required furnish the company with a copy thereof.

[S. 99, Companies Act, 1908.]

Penalties.

123. (1) If any company makes default in filing with the registrar for registration the particulars—

(a) of any mortgage or charge created by the company; or

(b) of the issues of debentures of a series,

requiring registration with the registrar under the foregoing provisions of this Act, then, unless the registration has been effected on the application of some other person, the company, and every officer of the company or other person who is knowingly a party to the default, shall on conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for every day during which the default continues.

(2) Subject as aforesaid, if any company makes default in complying with any of the requirements of this Act as to the registration with the registrar of any mortgage or charge created by the company, the company, and every officer of the company, who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall, without prejudice to any other liability, be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees.

(3) If any person knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the delivery of any debenture or certificate of debenture stock requiring registration with the registrar under the foregoing provisions of this Act without a copy of the certificate of registration being endorsed upon it, he shall, without prejudice to any other liability, be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees.

Company's register of mortgages.

124. (1) Every limited company shall keep a register of mortgages and enter therein all mortgages and charges specifically affecting property of the company, giving in each case a short description of the property mortgaged or charged, the amount of the mortgage or charge and (except in the case of securities to bearer) the names of the mortgagees or persons entitled thereto.

(2) If any director, manager or other officer of the company knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the omission of any entry required to be made in pursuance of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Right to inspect copies of instruments creating mortgages and charges and company's register of mortgages.

125. (1) The copies kept at the registered office of the company in pursuance of section 118 of instruments creating any mortgage or charge requiring registration under this Act with the registrar and the register of mortgages kept in pursuance of section 124, shall be open at all reasonable times to the inspection of any creditor or member of the company without fee, and the register of mortgages shall also be open to the inspection of any other person on payment of such fee, not exceeding one rupee for each inspection, as the company may prescribe.

(2) If inspection of the said copies or register is refused, the company shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees and a further fine not exceeding t[illegible] for every day during which the refusal continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly authorises or permits the refusal shall incur the like penalty, and in addition to the above penalty, the Court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the copies or register.

[S. 102, Companies Act, 1908.] [New.]

Right to inspect the register of debenture-holders and to have copies of trust-deed.

126. (1) Every register of holders of debentures of a company shall, except when closed in accordance with the articles during such period or periods (not exceeding in the whole thirty days in any year) as may be specified in the articles be open to the inspection of the registered holder of any such debentures, and of any holder of shares in the company, but subject to such reasonable restrictions as the company may in general meeting impose, so that at least two hours in each day are appointed for inspection, and every such holder may require a copy of the register or any part thereof on payment of six annas for every one hundred words or fractional part thereof required to be copied.

(2) A copy of any trust-deed for securing any issue of debentures shall be forwarded to every holder of any such debentures at his request on payment in the case of a printed trust-deed of the sum of one rupee or such less sum as may be prescribed by the company, or, where the trust-deed has not been printed, on payment of six annas for every one hundred words or fractional part thereof required to be copied.

(3) If inspection is refused, or a copy is refused or not forwarded, the company shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and to a further fine not exceeding twenty rupees for every day during which the refusal continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly authorises or permits the refusal shall incur the like penalty, and the Court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the register.

Debentures and Floating Charges.

Perpetual debentures.

[S. 100, Companies Act, 1908.]

127. A condition contained in any debentures or in any deed for securing any debentures, whether issued or executed before or after the passing of this Act, shall not be invalid by reason only that thereby the debentures are made irredeemable or redeemable only on the happening of a contingency, however remote, or on the expiration of a period however long.

Power to re-issue redeemed debentures in certain cases.

[S. 101, Companies Act, 1908; s. 68 (part), Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

128. (1) Where either before or after the commencement of this Act a company has redeemed any debentures previously issued, the company, unless the articles or the conditions of issue expressly otherwise provide, or unless the debentures have been redeemed in pursuance of any obligation on the company so to do (not being an obligation enforceable only by the person to whom the redeemed debentures were issued or his assigns) shall have power, and shall be deemed always to have had power, to keep the debentures alive for the purposes of re-issue, and where a company has purported to exercise such a power the company shall have power, and shall be deemed always to have had power, to re-issue the debentures either by re-issuing the same debentures or by issuing other debentures in their place, and upon such re-issue the person entitled to the debentures shall have, and shall be deemed always to have had, the same rights and priorities as if the debentures had not previously been issued.

(2) Where with the object of keeping debentures alive for the purpose of re-issue they have, either before or after the commencement of this Act, been transferred to a nominee of the company, a transfer from that nominee shall be deemed to be a re-issue for the purposes of this section.

(3) Where a company has, either before or after the commencement of this Act, deposited any of its debentures to secure advances from time to time on current account or otherwise, the debentures shall not be deemed to have been redeemed by reason only of the account of the company having ceased to be in debit whilst the debentures remained so deposited.

(4) The re-issue of a debenture or the issue of another debenture in its place under the power by this section given to, or deemed to have been possessed by, a company, whether the re-issue or issue was made before or after the commencement of this Act, shall be treated as the issue of a new debenture for the purposes of stamp-duty, but it shall not be so treated for the purposes of any provision limiting the amount or number of debentures to be issued :

Provided that any person lending money on the security of a debenture re-issued under this section which appears to be duly stamped may give the debenture in evidence in any proceedings for enforcing his security without payment of the stamp-duty or any penalty in respect thereof, unless he had notice or, but for his negligence, might have discovered, that the debenture was not duly stamped, but in any such case the company shall be liable to pay the proper stamp-duty and penalty.

(5) Nothing in this section shall prejudice—

(a) the operation of any decree or order of a Court of competent jurisdiction pronounced or made before the twenty-fifth day of February, 1910, as between the parties to the proceedings in which the decree or order was made, and any appeal from any such decree or order shall be decided as if this Act had not been passed; or

(b) any power to issue debentures in the place of any debentures paid off or otherwise satisfied or extinguished, reserved to a company by its debentures or the securities for the same.

[S. 105, Companies Act, 1908.] [New.]

Specific performance of contract to subscribe for debentures.

129. A contract with a company to take up and pay for any debentures of the company may be enforced by a decree for specific performance.

[S. 107, Companies Act, 1908.] [New.]

Payments of certain debts out of assets subject to floating charge in priority to claims under the charge.

130. (1) Where either a receiver is appointed on behalf of the holders of any debentures of a company secured by a floating charge, or possession is taken by or on behalf of those debenture-holders of any property comprised in or subject to the charge, then, if the company is not at the time in course of being wound up, the debts which in every winding up are under the provisions of Part V relating to preferential payments to be paid in priority to all other debts, shall be paid forthwith out of any assets coming to the hands of the receiver or other person taking possession as aforesaid in priority to any claim for principal or interest in respect of the debentures.

(2) The periods of time mentioned in the said provisions of Part V shall be reckoned from the date of the appointment of the receiver or of possession being taken as aforesaid, as the case may be.

(3) Any payments made under this section shall be recouped, as far as may be, out of the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors.

Statements, Books and Accounts.

(New).

Company to keep proper books of account.

131. Every company shall keep proper books of account in which shall be entered full, true and complete accounts of the affairs and transactions of the company.

(Clause 75.)

Annual balance-sheet.

132. (1) Every company shall, once at least in every year and at intervals of not more than fifteen months, cause the accounts of the company to be balanced and a balance-sheet to be prepared.

Cf. clause 76 (2).

(2) The balance-sheet shall be audited by the auditor of the company as hereinafter provided, and the auditor's report shall be attached thereto, or there shall be inserted at the foot thereof a reference to the report, and the report shall be read before the company in general meeting and shall be open to inspection by any member of the company.

(New).

(3) Every company other than a private company shall send a copy of such balance-sheet so audited to the registered address of every member of the company at least seven days before the meeting at which it is to be laid before the members of the company, and shall deposit a copy at the registered office of the company for the inspection of the members of the company during a period of at least seven days before that meeting.

(4) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

[S. 74, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Contents of balance-sheet.

133. (1) The balance-sheet shall contain a summary of the property and assets and of the capital and liabilities of the company giving such particulars as will disclose the general nature of those liabilities and assets and how the value of the fixed assets has been arrived at.

(Clause 76.)

(2) The balance-sheet shall be in the form marked F in the Third Schedule or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

[S. 113 (5) (1), Companies Act, 1908.]

Authentication of balance-sheet.

134. (1) Save as provided by sub-section (2) the balance-sheet shall—

(Clause 77)

(i) in the case of a banking company, be signed by the manager [illegible] and, where there are more than three directors of the company, by at least three of those directors and, where there are not more than three directors, by all the directors;

[S. 113 (3), Companies Act, 1908.]

(ii) in the case of any other company, be signed by two directors or, when there are less than two directors, by the sole director and by the manager (if any) of the company.

(2) When the total number of directors of the company for the time being in British India is less than the number of directors whose signatures are required by sub-section (1), then the balance-sheet shall be signed by all the directors for the time being in British India, or, if there is only one director for the time being in British India, by such director, but in such a case there shall be subjoined to the balance-sheet a statement signed by such directors or director explaining the reason for non-compliance with the provisions of sub-section (1).

(Clause 78.) [S. 113 (4), Companies Act, 1908.]

(3) If any copy of a balance-sheet which has not been signed as required by this section is issued, circulated or published, the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

[Cf. s. 26 (3), Companies Act, 1908; s. 74, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Copy of balance-sheet and auditor's report to be forwarded to the registrar.

135. (1) After the balance-sheet has been laid before the company at the general meeting, a copy thereof signed by the manager or secretary of the company shall be filed with the registrar at the same time as the copy of the annual list of members and summary prepared in accordance with the requirements of section 32.

(2) If the general meeting before which a balance-sheet is laid does not adopt the balance-sheet, a statement of that fact and of the reasons therefor shall be annexed to the balance-sheet and to the copy thereof required to be filed with the registrar.

(3) This section shall not apply to a private company.

(4) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, the company and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to [illegible] ... with the provisions of this section.

[S. 11 (4) Companies Act, 1908.]

136. [illegible]

Right of [illegible] company [illegible] balance-sheet [illegible] auditor's report.

[illegible]

Statement to be published by [illegible] other Companies.

[S. 108, Companies Act, 1908, s. 69 Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

137 (1) [illegible] company being [illegible] Bank [illegible] publish statement [illegible] provident [illegible] benefit society, shall [illegible] the [illegible] and the first Monday in August in every year during which it carries on business, make a statement in the form marked G in the Third Schedule, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit.

(2) A copy of the statement shall be displayed and [illegible] in a conspicuous place in the registered office of the company, and in every branch office or place where the business of the company is carried on.

(3) Every member and every creditor of the company shall be entitled to a copy of the statement on payment of a sum not exceeding eight annas.

(4) If default is made in complying with the requirements of this section, the company shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

[New]

(5) This section shall not apply to any life assurance company or provident insurance society to which the provisions of the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1912, or of the Provident Insurance Societies Act, 1912, as to the annual statements to be made by such company or society apply with or without modifications, if the company or society complies with those provisions.

[V of 1912. V of 1912.]

Investigation by the Registrar

[New]

138 (1) Where the registrar, on perusal of any document which a company is required to submit to him under the provisions of this Act, is of opinion that any information or explanation is necessary in order that such document may afford full particulars of the matter to which it purports to relate, he may, by a written order call on the company submitting the document to furnish in writing such information or explanation within such time as he may specify in his order.

Power of registrar to call for information or explanation.

(2) On the receipt of an order under sub-section (1), it shall be the duty of all persons who are or have been officers of the company to furnish such information or explanation to the best of their power.

(3) If any such person refuses or neglects to furnish any such information or explanation, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees in respect of each offence.

(4) On receipt of such information or explanation the registrar may annex the same to the original document submitted to him, and any additional document so annexed by the registrar shall be subject to the like provisions as to inspection and the taking of copies as the original document is subject.

(5) If such information or explanation is not furnished within the specified time or if after perusal of such information or explanation the registrar is of opinion that the document in question discloses an unsatisfactory state of affairs or that it does not disclose a full and fair statement of the matters to which it purports to relate, the registrar shall report in writing the circumstances of the case to the Local Government.

Inspection and Audit

139. The Local Government may appoint one or more competent inspectors to investigate the affairs of any company and to report thereon in such manner as the Local Government may direct—

Investigation of affairs of company by inspectors.

[S. 109 (1), Companies Act, 1908, s. 62, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(i) in the case of a banking company having a share capital, on the application of members holding not less than one-fifth of the shares issued,

(ii) in the case of any other company having a share capital, on the application of members holding not less than one-tenth of the shares issued,

(iii) in the case of a company not having a share capital, on the application of not less than one-fifth in number of the persons on the company's register of members,

(iv) in the case of any company, on a report by the registrar under sub-section (5) of section 138.

140 An application by members of a company under section 139 shall be supported by such evidence as the Local Government may require for the purpose of showing that the applicants have good reason for, and are not actuated by malicious motives in requiring the investigation; and the Local Government may, before appointing an inspector, require the applicants to give security for payment of the costs of the inquiry.

Application to be supported by evidence.

[S. 109 (2), Companies Act, 1908, s. 63, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

[S. 109 (3), (4), (5), Companies Act, 1908; s. 84, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Inspection of books and examination of officers.

141. (1) It shall be the duty of all persons who are or have been officers of the company to produce to the inspectors all books and documents in their custody or power relating to the company.

(2) An inspector may examine on oath any such person in relation to its business, and may administer an oath accordingly.

(3) If any person refuses to produce any book or document which under this section it is his duty to produce, or to answer any question relating to the affairs of the company, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees in respect of each offence.

[S. 109 (6), (7), Companies Act, 1908; s. 85, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Results of examination how dealt with.

142. (1) On the conclusion of the investigation the inspectors shall report their opinion to the Local Government, and a copy of the report shall be forwarded by the Local Government to the registered office of the company, and a further copy shall, at the request of the applicants for the investigation, be delivered to them.

(2) The report shall be written or printed, as the Local Government directs.

(3) All expenses of and incidental to the investigation shall be defrayed by the applicants unless the Local Government directs the same to be paid by the company, which the Local Government is hereby authorised to do.

[S. 110, Companies Act, 1908; s. 86, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Power of company to appoint inspectors.

143. (1) A company may by special resolution appoint inspectors to investigate its affairs.

(2) Inspectors so appointed shall have the same powers and duties as inspectors appointed by the Local Government, except that, instead of reporting to the Local Government, they shall report in such manner and to such persons as the company in general meeting may direct.

(3) All persons who are or have been officers of the company shall incur the like penalties in case of refusal to produce any book or document required to be produced to inspectors so appointed, or to answer any question, as they would have incurred if the inspectors had been appointed by the Local Government.

Report of inspectors to be evidence.

144. A copy of the report of any inspectors appointed under this Act, authenticated by the seal of the company whose affairs they have investigated, shall be admissible in any legal proceeding as evidence of the opinion of the inspectors in relation to any matter contained in the report.

[S. 112, Companies Act, 1908.] [New.]

Qualifications and appointment of auditors.

145. (1) No person shall be appointed or act as auditor of any company other than a private company unless he holds a certificate from the Local Government entitling him to act as an auditor of companies:

Provided that the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare that the members of any institution or association specified in such notification shall be entitled to be appointed and to act as auditors of companies throughout British India.

(2) The Local Government shall, by notification in the local official Gazette, make rules providing for the grant of certificates entitling the holders thereof to act as auditors of companies, and may by such rules provide the conditions and restrictions on and subject to which such certificate shall be granted. The holder of such a certificate shall be entitled to act as an auditor of companies throughout British India unless such certificate restricts or limits the exercise of the right.

(3) Every company shall at each annual general meeting appoint an auditor or auditors to hold office until the next annual general meeting.

(4) If an appointment of an auditor is not made at an annual general meeting, the Local Government may, on the application of any member of the company, appoint an auditor of the company for the current year, and fix the remuneration to be paid to him by the company for his services.

(5) The following persons: that is to say,

(i) a director or officer of the company; and

(ii) a partner of such director or officer; and

(iii) in the case of a company other than a private company, any person in the employment of such director or officer, shall not be appointed auditors of the company.

(6) A person, other than a retiring auditor, shall not be capable of being appointed auditor at an annual general meeting unless notice of an intention to nominate that person to the office of auditor has been given by a member of the company to the company not less than fourteen days before such annual general meeting, and the company shall send a copy of any such notice to the retiring auditor, and shall give notice thereof to its members either by advertisement or in any other mode allowed by the articles not less than seven days before the annual general meeting:

Provided that, if after notice of the intention to nominate an auditor has been given to the company, an annual general meeting is called for a date fourteen days or less after the notice has been given, the requirements of this section as to time in respect of such a notice shall be deemed to have been satisfied, and the notice to be sent or given by the company may, instead of being sent or given within the time required by this section, be sent or given at the same time as the notice of the annual general meeting.

(7) The first auditors of the company may be appointed by the directors before the statutory meeting, and if so appointed shall hold office until the first annual general meeting, unless previously removed by a resolution of the members of the company in general meeting, in which case such members at that meeting may appoint auditors.

(8) The directors may fill any casual vacancy in the office of auditor, but while any such vacancy continues, the surviving or continuing auditor or auditors (if any) may act.

(9) The remuneration of the auditors of a company shall be fixed by the company in general meeting, except that the remuneration of any auditors appointed before the statutory meeting, or to fill any casual vacancy, may be fixed by the directors.

[S. 113, Companies Act, 1908.]

146. (1) Every auditor of a company shall have a right of access at all times to the books and accounts and vouchers of the company, and shall be entitled to require from the directors and officers of the company such information and explanation as may be necessary for the performance of the duties of the auditors.

Powers and duties of auditors.

(2) The auditors shall make a report to the members of the company on the accounts examined by them, and on every balance-sheet laid before the company in general meeting during their tenure of office, and the report shall state—

(a) whether or not they have obtained all the information and explanations they have required; and

(b) whether, in their opinion, the balance-sheet referred to in the report is drawn up in conformity with the law and

(c) whether such balance-sheet exhibits a true and correct view of the state of the company's affairs according to the best of their information and the explanations given to them, and as shown by the books of the company.

(3) In the case of a banking company, if the company has a branch bank beyond the limits of India, it shall be sufficient if the auditor is allowed access to such copies of and extracts from the books and accounts of any such branch as have been transmitted to the head office of the company [illegible] India.

147. (1) Holders of preference shares and debentures of a company shall have the same right to receive and inspect the balance-sheet of the company and the reports of the auditors and other reports as is possessed by the holders of ordinary shares in the company.

Rights of preference shareholders, etc., as to receipt and inspection of reports, etc.

(2) This section shall not apply to a private company, nor to a company registered before the commencement of this Act.

Carrying on business with less than the legal minimum of members

[S. 115, Companies Act, 1908; s. 73, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

148. If at any time the number of members of a company is reduced, in the case of a private company, below two, or in the case of any other company, below seven, and it carries on business for more than six months while the number is so reduced, every person who is a member of the company during the time that it so carries on business after those six months and is cognisant of the fact that it is carrying on business with fewer than two members or seven members, as the case may be, shall be severally liable for the payment of the whole debts of the company contracted during that time, and may be sued for the same without joinder in the suit of any other member.

Liability for carrying on business with fewer than seven or, in the case of a private company, two members.

Service and Authentication of Documents

[S. 116, Companies Act, 1908; s. 89, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

149. A document may be served on a company by leaving it at, or sending it by post to, the registered office of the company.

Service of documents on company.

150. A document may be served on the registrar by sending it to him by post, or delivering it to him, or by leaving it for him at his office.

Service of documents on registrar.

[S. 90, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

151. A document or proceeding requiring authentication by a company may be signed by a director, secretary or other authorised officer of the company, and need not be under its common seal.

Authentication of documents.

[S. 117, Companies Act, 1908; s. 91, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Tables, Forms and Fees to be prescribed matters

152. (1) The forms in the Third Schedule, or forms as near thereto as circumstances admit, shall be used in all matters to which those forms refer.

Application and alteration of tables and forms, and making rules as to prescribed matters.

[S. 118, Companies Act, 1908; s. 95, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(2) The Governor General in Council may alter any of the tables and forms in the First Schedule, so that he does not increase the amount of fees payable to the registrar in the said Schedule mentioned, and may alter or add to the forms in the Third Schedule.

(3) Any such table or form when altered, shall be published in the Gazette of India, and on such publication shall have effect as if enacted in this Act; but no alteration made by the Governor General in Council in Table A in the First Schedule shall affect any company registered before the alteration, or repeal as respects that company, any portion of that table.

(4) In addition to the powers hereinbefore conferred by this Act, the Governor General in Council may make rules providing for all or any matters which by this Act are to be prescribed by his authority.

(5) Every such rule shall be published in the Gazette of India, and on such publication shall have effect as if enacted in this Act.

Arbitration and Compromise

153. (1) A company may by written agreement refer to arbitration, in accordance with the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, an existing or future difference between itself and any other company or person.

Power for companies to refer matters to arbitration.

[Cf. s. 119, Companies Act, 1908; s. 96, Indian Companies Act, 1882; Act IX of 1899.]

(2) Companies parties to the arbitration may delegate to the arbitrator power to settle any terms or to determine any matter capable of being lawfully settled or determined by the companies themselves or by their directors or other managing body.

(3) The provisions of the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, other than those restricting the application of the Act in respect of the subject matter of the arbitration, shall apply to all arbitrations between companies and persons in pursuance of this Act.

IX of 1899.

154. (1) Where a compromise or arrangement is proposed between a company and its creditors or any class of them, or between the company and its members or any class of them, the Court may, on the application in a summary way of the company or of any creditor or member of the company, or, in the case of a company being wound up

Power to compromise with creditors and members.

of the liquidator, order a meeting of the creditors or class of creditors, or of the members of the company or class of members, as the case may be, to be called, held and conducted in such manner as the Court directs.

(2) If a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of the creditors or class of creditors, or members or class of members, as the case may be, present either in person or by proxy at the meeting, agree to any compromise or arrangement, the compromise or arrangement shall, if sanctioned by the Court, be binding on all the creditors or the class of creditors, or on all the members or class of members, as the case may be, and also on the company, or, in the case of a company in the course of being wound up, on the liquidator and contributories of the company.

(3) In this section the expression "company" means any company liable to be wound up under this Act.

Conversion of private company into public company.

[S. 121 (2), Companies Act, 1908.]

Conversion of private into public company.

155. (1) A private company may, subject to anything contained in its memorandum or articles, by a special resolution and by filing with the registrar a copy of such resolution and also such a statement in lieu of prospectus as the company, if a public company, would have had to file before allotting any of its shares or debentures, together with such a duly verified declaration as the company, if a public company, would have had to file before commencing business, turn itself into a public company.

(2) Upon the filing of the documents mentioned in sub-section (1), the registrar shall record the change in his books relating to the company.

PART V.

WINDING UP.

Preliminary.

[S. 122, Companies Act, 1908.]

Mode of winding up.

156. (1) The winding up of a company may be either—

(i) by the Court; or

(ii) voluntary; or

(iii) subject to the supervision of the Court.

(2) The provisions of this Act with respect to winding up apply, unless the contrary appears, to the winding up of a company in any of these modes.

Contributories.

[S. 123 (1), Companies Act, 1908; s. 61, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Liability as contributories of present and past members.

157. (1) In the event of a company being wound up, every present and past member shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be liable to contribute to the assets of the company to an amount sufficient for payment of its debts and liabilities and the costs, charges and expenses of the winding up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves, with the qualifications following (that is to say):—

(i) a past member shall not be liable to contribute if he has ceased to be a member for one year or upwards before the commencement of the winding up;

(ii) a past member shall not be liable to contribute in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after he ceased to be a member;

(iii) a past member shall not be liable to contribute unless it appears to the Court that the existing members are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of this Act;

(iv) in the case of a company limited by shares, no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount (if any) unpaid on the shares in respect to which he is liable as a present or past member;

(v) in the case of a company limited by guarantee, no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up;

(vi) nothing in this Act shall invalidate any provision contained in any policy of insurance or other contract whereby the liability of individual members on the policy or contract is restricted, or whereby the funds of the company are alone made liable in respect of the policy or contract;

(vii) a sum due to any member of a company in his character of a member, by way of dividends, profits or otherwise, shall not be deemed to be a debt of the company payable to that member in a case of competition between himself and any other creditor not a member of the company; but any such sum may be taken into account for the purpose of the final adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves.

(2) In the winding up of a company limited by guarantee which has a share capital, every member of the company shall be liable, in addition to the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up, to contribute to the extent of any sums unpaid on any shares held by him.

Liability of directors whose liability is unlimited.

158. In the winding up of a limited company any director whether past or present, whose liability is, in pursuance of this Act, unlimited, shall, in addition to his liability (if any) to contribute as an ordinary member, be liable to make a further contribution as if he were at the commencement of the winding up a member of an unlimited company:

Provided that—

(i) a past director shall not be liable to make such further contribution if he has ceased to hold office for a year or upwards before the commencement of the winding up;

(ii) a past director shall not be liable to make such further contribution in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after he ceased to hold office;

(iii) subject to the articles a director shall not be liable to make such further contribution unless the Court deems it necessary to require that contribution in order to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges and expenses of the winding up.

Meaning of "contributory."

1 . The term "contributory" means every person liable to contribute to the assets of a company in the event of its being wound up, and, in all proceedings for determining and in all proceedings prior to the final determination of the persons who are to be deemed contributories, includes any person alleged to be a contributory.

[S. 125, Companies Act, 1908; ss. 125, 178, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Nature of liability of contributory.

160. (1) The liability of a contributory shall create a debt accruing due from him at the time when his liability commenced, but payable at the times when calls are made for enforcing the liability.

(2) No claim founded on the liability of a contributory shall be cognizable by any Court of Small Causes sitting outside the Presidency-towns.

[S. 126, Companies Act, 1908; s 126, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Contributories in case of de[illegible]

161 (1) If a contributory dies either before or after he has been placed [illegible] the list of contributories, his legal representatives and his heirs shall be liable in a due course of administration to contribute to the assets of the company in discharge of his liability and shall be contributories accordingly

[S. 154, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

(2) If the legal representatives or heirs make default in paying any money ordered to be paid by them, proceedings may be taken for administering the property of the deceased contributory, whether moveable or immoveable, or both, and of compelling payment thereout of the money due

[S 127, Companies Act, 1908; s 127, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Contributories in case of insolvency of member.

162. If a contributory is adjudged insolvent either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, then

(1) his assignee shall represent him for all the purposes of the winding up, and shall be contributories accordingly, and may be called on to admit to proof against the estate of the insolvent, or otherwise to allow to be paid out of his assets in due course of law, any money due from the insolvent in respect of his liability to contribute to the assets of the company; and

[S. 125 (part), Indian Companies Act, 1882]

(2) there may be proved against the estate of the insolvent the estimated value of his liability to future calls as well as calls already made.

Winding up by Court.

[S. 129, Companies Act, 1908; s. 128, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Circumstances in which company may be wound up by Court.

163. A company may be wound up by the Court

(i) if the company has by special resolution resolved that the company be wound up by the Court;

(ii) if default is made in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting:

(iii) if the company does not commence its business within a year from its incorporation, or suspends its business for a whole year:

(iv) if the number of members is reduced, in the case of a private company, below two or, in the case of any other company, below seven:

(v) if the company is unable to pay its debts:

(vi) if the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up Company when deemed unable to pay its debts.

164. A company shall be deemed to be unable to pay its debts

(i) if a creditor, by assignment or otherwise, to whom the company is indebted in a sum exceeding five hundred rupees then due, has served on the company, by leaving the same at its registered office, a demand under his hand requiring the company to pay the sum so due and the company has for three weeks thereafter neglected to pay the sum, or to secure or compound for it to the reasonable satisfaction of the creditor; or

(ii) if execution or other process issued on a decree or order of any Court in favour of a creditor of the company is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part; or

(iii) if it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the company is unable to pay its debts, and, in determining whether a company is unable to pay its debts, the Court shall take into account the contingent and prospective liabilities of the company

Winding up may be referred to District Court

[S. 218, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

165 Where the High Court makes an order for winding up a company under this Act, it may, if it thinks fit, direct all subsequent proceedings to be had in a District Court; and thereupon such District Court shall, for the purpose of winding up the company, be deemed to be "the Court" within the meaning of this Act, and shall have, for the purposes of such winding up, all the jurisdiction and powers of the High Court

Transfer of winding up from one District Court to another

[S. 219, ibid.]

166. If during the progress of a winding up in a District Court it is made to appear to the High Court that the same could be more conveniently prosecuted in any other District Court having jurisdiction to wind up companies, the High Court may transfer the same to such other Court, and thereupon the winding up shall proceed in such other District Court.

Provisions as to applications for winding up.

[S. 137, Companies Act, 1908; ss 131, 132, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

167. An application to the Court for the winding up of a company shall be by petition presented, subject to the provisions of this section, either by the company, or by any creditor or creditors (including any contingent or prospective creditor or creditors), contributory or contributories, or by all or any of those parties, together or separately :

Provided that—

(a) a contributory shall not be entitled to present a petition for winding up a company unless—

(i) either the number of members is reduced, in the case of a private company, below two, or, in the case of any other company, below seven ; or

(ii) the shares in respect of which he is a contributory or some of them either were originally allotted to him or have been held by him, and registered in his name, for at least six months during the eighteen months before the commencement of the winding up, or have devolved on him through the death of a former holder ;

(b) a petition for winding up a company on the ground of default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting shall not be presented by any person except a shareholder, nor before the expiration of fourteen days after the last day on which the meeting ought to have been held ;

(c) the Court shall not give a hearing to a petition for winding up a company by a contingent or prospective creditor until such security for costs has been given as the Court thinks reasonable and until a primâ facie case for winding up has been established to the satisfaction of the Court.

[S. 138, Companies Act, 1908 ; s. 131 (second clause), Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

168. An order for winding up a company shall operate in favour of all the creditors and of all the contributories of the company as if made on the joint petition of a creditor and of a contributory.

Effect of winding up order.

[S. 139, Companies Act, 1908 ; s. 133, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

169. A winding up of a company by the Court shall be deemed to commence at the time of the presentation of the petition for the winding up.

Commencement of winding up by Court.

[S. 140, Companies Act, 1908 ; s. 134, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

170. The Court may, at any time after the presentation of the petition for winding up a company under this Act, and before making an order for winding up the company, upon the application of the company or of any creditor or contributory of the company, restrain further proceedings in any suit or proceeding against the company, upon such terms as the Court thinks fit.

Court may grant injunction.

[S. 141, Companies Act, 1908 ; s. 135, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

171. (1) On hearing the petition the Court may dismiss it with or without costs, or adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally, or make any interim order or any other order that it deems just, but the Court shall not refuse to make a winding up order on the ground only that the assets of the company have been mortgaged to an amount equal to or in excess of those assets, or that the company has no assets.

Powers of Court on hearing petition.

(2) Where the petition is presented on the ground of default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting, the Court may order the costs to be paid by any persons who, in the opinion of the Court, are responsible for the default.

172. When a winding up order has been made, no suit or other legal proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company except by leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose.

Suits stayed on winding up order.

[S. 142, Companies Act, 1908 ; s. 136, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

173. (1) On the making of a winding up order, it shall be the duty of the company forthwith to file with the registrar a copy of the order, and the petitioner in the winding up proceedings may so file a copy.

Copy of winding up order to be filed with registrar.

[S. 143, Companies Act, 1908 ; s. 137, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(2) On the filing of a copy of a winding up order, the registrar shall make a minute thereof in his books relating to the company, and shall notify in the local official Gazette that such an order has been made.

(3) Such order shall be deemed to be notice of discharge to the servants of the company, except when the business of the company is continued.

174. The Court may at any time after an order for winding up, on the application of any creditor or contributory, and on proof to the satisfaction of the Court that all proceedings in relation to the winding up ought to be stayed, make an order staying the proceedings, either altogether or for a limited time, on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks fit.

Power of Court to stay winding up.

[S. 144, Companies Act, 1908 ; s. 138, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

175. The Court may, as to all matters relating to a winding up, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories as proved to it by any sufficient evidence.

Court may have regard to wishes of creditors or contributories.

[S. 145, Companies Act, 1908 ; s. 139, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Official Liquidators.

176. (1) For the purpose of conducting the proceedings in winding up a company and performing such duties in reference thereto as the Court may impose, the Court may appoint a person or persons, to be called an official liquidator or official liquidators.

Appointment of official liquidator.

[S. 149, Companies Act, 1908 ; s. 141, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(2) The Court may make such an appointment provisionally at any time after the presentation of a petition and before the making of an order for winding up.

[Cf. s. 134, second clause, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(3) If more persons than one are appointed to the office of official liquidator, the Court shall declare whether any act by this Act required or authorised to be done by the official liquidator is to be done by all or any one or more of such persons.

(4) The Court may determine whether any, and what, security is to be given by any official liquidator on his appointment.

(5) The acts of an official liquidator shall be valid notwithstanding any defect that may afterwards be discovered in his appointment : Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to give validity to acts done by an official liquidator after his appointment has been shown to be invalid

[Clause 203 (8) of Bill.]

(6) A receiver shall not be appointed of assets in the hands of an official liquidator.

[S. 149, Companies Act, 1908; s. 142, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

177. (1) Any official liquidator may resign or be removed by the Court on due cause shown.

Resignations, removals, filling up vacancies and compensation.

(2) Any vacancy in the office of an official liquidator appointed by the Court shall be filled up by the Court.

(3) There shall be paid to the official liquidator such salary or remuneration, by way of percentage or otherwise, as the Court may direct: and, if more liquidators than one are appointed, such remuneration shall be distributed amongst them in such proportions as the Court directs.

[Ss. 149 and 150, Companies Act, 1908; s. 143, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

178. The official liquidator shall be described by the style of the official liquidator of the particular company in respect of which he is appointed, and not by his individual name.

Official liquidator.

179. (1) The official liquidator shall take into his custody, or under his control, all the property, effects and actionable claims to which the company is or appears to be entitled.

Custody of company's property.

[Clause 201 of the Bill.]

(2) If no official liquidator is appointed, or during any vacancy in such appointment, all the property of the company shall be deemed to be in the custody of the Court.

[S. 151, Companies Act, 1908; s. 144, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

180. The official liquidator shall have power, with the sanction of the Court, to do the following things:—

Powers of official liquidator.

(a) to institute or defend any suit or prosecution, or other legal proceeding, civil or criminal, in the name and on behalf of the company;

(b) to carry on the business of the company so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding up of the same;

(c) to sell the immoveable and moveable property of the company by public auction or private contract, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company, or to sell the same in parcels;

(d) to do all acts and to execute, in the name and on behalf of the company, all deeds, receipts, and other documents, and for that purpose to use, when necessary, the company's seal;

(e) to prove, rank and claim in the insolvency of any contributory, for any balance against his estate, and to receive dividends in the insolvency, in respect of that balance, as a separate debt due from the insolvent, and rateably with the other separate creditors;

(f) to draw, accept, make and indorse any bill of exchange, hundi or promissory note in the name and on behalf of the company, with the same effect with respect to the liability of the company as if the bill, hundi or note had been drawn, accepted, made or indorsed by or on behalf of the company in the course of its business;

(g) to raise on the security of the assets of the company any money requisite;

(h) to take out, in his official name, letters of administration to any deceased contributory, and to do in his official name any other act necessary for obtaining payment of any money due from a contributory or his estate which cannot be conveniently done in the name of the company; and in all such cases the money due shall, for the purpose of enabling the liquidator to take out the letters of administration or recover the money, be deemed to be due to the liquidator himself: Provided that nothing herein empowered shall be deemed to affect the rights, duties and privileges of any Administrator General;

(i) to do all such other things as may be necessary for winding up the affairs of the company and distributing its assets.

181. The Court may provide by any order that the official liquidator may exercise any of the above powers without the sanction or intervention of the Court, and, where an official liquidator is provisionally appointed, may limit and restrict his powers by the order appointing him.

Discretion of official liquidator.

[S. 151 (2), (3), Companies Act, 1908; s. 145 Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

182. The official liquidator may, with the sanction of the Court, appoint an advocate, attorney, or pleader entitled to appear before the Court to assist him in the performance of his duties: Provided that, where the official liquidator is an attorney, he shall not appoint his partner, unless the latter consents to act without remuneration.

Provision for legal assistance to official liquidator.

[S. 151 (1), (d), Companies Act, 1908; s. 146 Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

183. The official liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court shall keep, in manner prescribed, proper books in which he shall cause to be made entries or minutes of proceedings at meetings, and of such other matters as may be prescribed, and any creditor or contributory may, subject to the control of the Court, personally or by his agent inspect any such books.

Official books to be kept by liquidator in winding up.

[S. 156, Companies Act, 1908.]

184. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act the official liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court shall, in the administration of the assets of the company and in the distribution thereof among its creditors, have regard to any directions that may be given by resolution of the creditors or contributories at any general meeting.

Exercise and control of liquidator's powers.

[S. 158, Companies Act, 1908.]

(2) The official liquidator may summon general meetings of the creditors or contributories for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and it shall be his duty to summon meetings at such times as the creditors or contributories, by resolution, may direct, or whenever requested in writing to do so by one-tenth in value of the creditors or contributories, as the case may be.

(3) The official liquidator may apply to the Court in manner prescribed for directions in relation to any particular matter arising in the winding up.

(4) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the official liquidator shall use his own discretion in the administration of the assets of the company and in the distribution thereof among the creditors.

(5) If any person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the official liquidator, that person may apply to the Court, and the Court may confirm, reverse or modify the act or decision complained of, and make such order as it thinks just in the circumstances.

Ordinary powers of Court.

Settlement of list of contributories and application of assets.

185. (1) As soon as may be after making a winding up order, the Court shall settle a list of contributories, with power to rectify the register of members in all cases where rectification is required in pursuance of this Act, and shall cause the assets of the company to be collected and applied in discharge of its liabilities.

(2) In settling the list of contributories, the Court shall distinguish between persons who are contributories in their own right and persons who are contributories as being representatives of or liable for the debts of others.

Power to require delivery of property.

186. The Court may, at any time after making a winding up order, require any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories and any trustee, receiver, banker, agent, or officer of the company to pay, deliver, surrender or transfer forthwith, or within such time as the Court directs, to the official liquidator any money, property or documents in his hands to which the company is primâ facie entitled.

Power to order payment of debts by contributory.

187. (1) The Court may, at any time after making a winding up order, make an order on any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories to pay, in manner directed by the order, any money due from him or from the estate of the person whom he represents to the company exclusive of any money payable by him or the estate by virtue of any call in pursuance of this Act.

(2) The Court in making such an order may, in the case of an unlimited company, allow to the contributory by way of set-off any money due to him or, to the estate which he represents from the company on any independent dealing or contract with the company, but not any money due to him as a member of the company in respect of any dividend or profit; and may, in the case of a limited company, make to any director whose liability is unlimited or to his estate the like allowance:

Provided that in the case of any company, whether limited or unlimited, when all the creditors are paid in full, any money due on any account whatever to a contributory from the company may be allowed to him by way of set-off against any subsequent call.

[S. 166, Companies Act, 1908; s. 151, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Power of Court to make calls.

188. (1) The Court may, at any time after making a winding up order, and either before or after it has ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, make calls on and order payment thereof by all or any of the contributories for the time being settled on the list of the contributories to the extent of their liability, for payment of any money which the Court considers necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges and expenses of winding up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves.

(2) In making the call the Court may take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories may partly or wholly fail to pay the call.

[S. 167 (1), Companies Act, 1908; s. 152, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Power to order payment into bank.

189. The Court may order any contributory, purchaser or other person from whom money is due to the company to pay the same into the Bank of Bengal, the Bank of Madras, or the Bank of Bombay, as the case may be, or any branch thereof, respectively, to the account of the official liquidator instead of to the official liquidator, and any such order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the official liquidator.

[S. 167 (2), Companies Act, 1908; s. 153, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Regulation of account with Court.

190. All moneys, bills, hundis, notes and other securities paid and delivered into the Bank of Bengal, the Bank of Madras or the Bank of Bombay, or any branch thereof, respectively, in the event of a company being wound up by the Court, shall be subject in all respects to the orders of the Court.

[S. 168, Companies Act, 1908; s. 155, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Order on contributory conclusive evidence.

191. (1) An order made by the Court on a contributory shall (subject to any right of [illegible]) be conclusive evid[illegible]e that the money, if any, thereby appearing to be due or ordered to be paid is due.

(2) All other pertinent matters stated in the order shall be taken to be truly stated as against all persons, and in all proceedings whatsoever.

[S. 169, Companies Act, 1908; s. 156, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Power to exclude creditors not proving in time.

192. The Court may fix a time or times within which creditors are to prove their debts or claims, or to be excluded from the benefit of any distribution made before those debts are proved.

[S. 170, Companies Act, 1908; s. 157, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Adjustment of rights of contributories.

193. The Court shall adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves, and distribute any surplus among the persons entitled thereto.

[S. 171, Companies Act, 1908; s. 158, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Power to order costs.

194. The Court may, in the event of the assets being insufficient to satisfy the liabilities, make an order as to the payment out of the assets of the costs, charges and expenses incurred in the winding up in such order of priority as the Court thinks just.

[S. 172, Companies Act, 1908; ss. 159, 160 and 161, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Dissolution of company.

195. (1) When the affairs of a company have been completely wound up, the Court shall make an order that the company be dissolved from the date of the order, and the company shall be dissolved accordingly.

(2) The order shall be reported within fifteen days of the making thereof by the official liquidator to the registrar, who shall make in his books a minute of the dissolution of the company.

(3) If the official liquidator makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which he is in default

Extraordinary Powers of Court.

[S. 174, Companies Act, 1908; s. 162, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Power to summon persons suspected of having property of company.

196. (1) The Court may, after it has made a winding-up order, summon before it any officer of the company or person known or suspected to have in his possession any property of the company, or supposed to be indebted to the company, or any person whom the Court deems capable of giving information concerning the trade, dealings, affairs or property of the company.

(2) The Court may examine him on oath concerning the same, either by word of mouth or on written interrogatories, and may reduce his answers to writing and require him to sign them.

(3) The Court may require him to produce any documents in his custody or power relating to the company; but, where he claims any lien on documents produced by him, the production shall be without prejudice to that lien, and the Court shall have jurisdiction in the winding up to determine all questions relating to that lien.

(4) If any person so summoned, after being tendered a reasonable sum for his expenses, refuses to come before the Court at the time appointed, not having a lawful impediment (made known to the Court at the time of its sitting, and allowed by it), the Court may cause him to be apprehended and brought before the Court for examination.

Power to order public examination of promoters, directors, etc.

197. (1) When an order has been made for winding up a company by the Court, and the official liquidator has applied to the Court stating therein his opinion a fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation of the company or by any director or other officer of the company in relation to the company since its formation, the Court may, after consideration of the application, direct that any person who has taken any part in the promotion or formation of the company, or has been a director, manager or other officer of the company, shall attend before the Court on a day appointed by the Court for that purpose, and be publicly examined as to the promotion or formation or the conduct of the business of the company, or as to his conduct and dealings as director, manager or other officer thereof.

(2) The official liquidator shall take part in the examination, and for that purpose may, if specially authorised by the Court in that behalf, employ such legal assistance as may be sanctioned by the Court.

(3) Any creditor or contributory may also take part in the examination either personally or by any person entitled to appear before the Court.

(4) The Court may put such questions to the person examined as the Court thinks fit.

(5) The person examined shall be examined on oath, and shall answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him.

(6) A person ordered to be examined under this section may at his own cost employ any person entitled to appear before the Court, who shall be at liberty to put to him such questions as the Court may deem just for the purpose of enabling him to explain or qualify any answers given by him. Provided that if he is, in the opinion of the Court, exculpated from any charges made or suggested against him, the Court may allow him such costs as in its discretion it may think fit.

(7) Notes of the examination shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over to or by, and signed by, the person examined, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him in civil proceedings, and shall be open to the inspection of any creditor or contributory at all reasonable times.

(8) The Court may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the examination from time to time.

(9) An examination under this section may, if the Court so directs, and subject to any rules in this behalf, be held before any District Judge or before any officer of the High Court, being an official referee, master, registrar or deputy registrar, and the powers of the Court under this section as to the conduct of the examination, but not as to costs, may be exercised by the person before whom the examination is held.

Power to arrest absconding contributory.

198. The Court, at any time either before or after making a winding up order on proof of probable cause for believing that a contributory is about to quit British India or otherwise to abscond, or to remove or conceal any of his property, for the purpose of evading payment of calls or of avoiding examination respecting the affairs of the company, may cause the contributory to be arrested and his books and papers and moveable property to be seized, and him and them to be safely kept until such time as the Court may order.

Saving of other proceedings.

199. Any powers by this Act conferred on the Court shall be in addition to, and not in restriction of, any existing powers of instituting proceedings against any contributory or debtor of the company, or the estate of any contributory or debtor, for the recovery of any call or other sums.

Enforcement of and Appeal from Orders.

[Cf. s. 178, Companies Act, 1908; s. 166, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Power to enforce orders.

200. All orders made by a Court under this Act may be enforced in the same manner in which decrees of such Court made in any suit pending therein may be enforced.

[S. 167, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Order made in any Court to be enforced by other Courts.

201. Any order made by a Court for or in the course of the winding up of a company shall be enforced in any place in British India other than that in which such Court is situate, by the Court that would have had jurisdiction in respect of such company if the registered office of the company had been situate at such other place, and in the same manner in all respects as if such order had been made by the Court that is hereby required to enforce the same.

Mode of dealing with orders to be enforced by other Courts.

202. Where any order made by one Court is to be enforced by another Court, a certified copy of the order so made shall be produced to the proper officer of the Court required to enforce the same, and the production of such certified copy shall be sufficient evidence of such order having been made; and thereupon the last-mentioned Court shall take the requisite steps in the matter for enforcing the order, in the same manner as if it were the order of the Court enforcing the same.

[S. 183, Indian Companies Act, 1882.] Appeals from orders.

203. Re-hearings of, and appeals from, any order or decision made or given in the matter of the winding up of a company by the Court may be had in the same manner and subject to the same conditions in and subject to which appeals may be had from any order or decision of the same Court in cases within its ordinary jurisdiction.

Voluntary winding up.

[S. 182, Companies Act, 1908; s. 173, Indian Companies Act, 1882.] Circumstances in which company may be wound up voluntarily.

204. A company may be wound up voluntarily—

(1) when the period (if any) fixed for the duration of the company by the articles expires, or the event (if any) occurs, on the occurrence of which the articles provide that the company is to be dissolved and the company in general meeting has passed a resolution requiring the company to be wound up voluntarily;

(2) if the company resolves by special resolution that the company be wound up voluntarily;

(3) if the company resolves by extraordinary resolution to the effect that it cannot by reason of its liabilities continue its business, and that it is advisable to wind up.

[S. 183, Companies Act, 1908; s. 174, Indian Companies Act, 1882.] Commencement of voluntary winding up.

205. A voluntary winding up shall be deemed to commence at the time of the passing of the resolution authorising the winding up.

[S. 184, Companies Act, 1908; s. 175, Indian Companies Act, 1882.] Effect of voluntary winding up on status of company.

206. When a company is wound up voluntarily, the company shall, from the commencement of the winding up, cease to carry on its business, except so far as may be required for the beneficial winding up thereof:

Provided that the corporate state and corporate powers of the company shall, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in its articles, continue until it is dissolved.

[S. 185, Companies Act, 1908; s. 176, Indian Companies Act, 1882.] Notice of resolution to wind up voluntarily.

207. (1) Notice of any special resolution or extraordinary resolution for winding up a company voluntarily shall be given by the company within ten days of the passing of the same by advertisement in the local official Gazette, and also in some newspaper (if any) circulating in the district where the registered office of the company is situate.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues; and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to a like penalty.

[S. 186, Companies Act, 1908; s. 177 and Indian Companies Act, 1882.] Consequences of voluntarily winding up.

208. The following consequences shall ensue on the voluntary winding up of a company:—

(i) the assets of the company shall be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu and, subject thereto, shall, unless the articles otherwise provide, be distributed among the members according to their rights and interests in the company;

(ii) the company in general meeting shall appoint one or more liquidators for the purpose of winding up the affairs and distributing the assets of the company, and may fix the remuneration to be paid to him or them;

(iii) on the appointment of a liquidator all the powers of the directors shall cease, except so far as the company in general meeting, or the liquidator, sanctions the continuance thereof;

(iv) the liquidator may, without the sanction of the Court, exercise all powers by this Act given to the official liquidator in a winding up by the Court;

(v) the liquidator may exercise the powers of the Court under this Act of settling a list of contributories, and of making calls, and shall pay the debts of the company, and adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves;

(vi) the list of contributories shall be primâ facie evidence of the liability of the persons named therein to be contributories;

(vii) when several liquidators are appointed, every power hereby given may be exercised by such one or more of them as may be determined by the company at the time of their appointment, or in default of such determination by any number not less than two;

(viii) if from any cause whatever there is no liquidator acting, the Court may, on the application of a contributory, appoint a liquidator; and

(ix) the Court may, on cause shown, remove a liquidator, and appoint another liquidator.

[S. 187, Companies Act, 1908.] Notice by liquidator of his appointment.

209. (1) The liquidator in a voluntary winding up shall, within twenty-one days after his appointment, file with the registrar notice of his appointment in the form prescribed

(2) If the liquidator fails to comply with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

[S. 188, Companies Act, 1908.] Rights of creditors in a voluntary winding up.

210. (1) Every liquidator appointed by a company in a voluntary winding up shall, within seven days from his appointment, send notice by post to all persons who appear to him to be creditors of the company that a meeting of the creditors of the company will be held on a date, not being less than twenty-one days nor more than one month after his appointment, and at a place and hour, to be specified in the notice, and shall also advertise notice of the meeting once in the local official Gazette and once at least in some newspaper (if any) circulating in the district where the registered office or principal place of business of the company was situate.

(2) At the meeting to be held in pursuance of the foregoing provisions of this section the creditors shall determine whether an application shall be made to the Court for the appointment of any person as liquidator in the place of, or jointly with, the liquidator appointed by the company, and, if the creditors so resolve, an application may be made accordingly to the Court at any time not later than fourteen days after the date of the meeting, by any creditor appointed for the purpose at the meeting:

Provided that the Court may, by order at any time, extend the time for making an application under this sub-section for such period as the Court thinks proper.

(3) On any such application the Court may make an order either for the removal of the liquidator appointed by the company and for the appointment of some other person as liquidator or for the appointment of some other person to act as liquidator jointly with the liquidator appointed by the company, or such other order as, having regard to the interests of the creditors and contributories of the company, may seem just.

(4) The Court shall make such order as to the costs of the application as it may think fit, and, if it is of opinion that, having regard to the interests of the creditors in the liquidation, there were reasonable grounds for the application, may order the costs of the application to be paid out of the assets of the company, notwithstanding that the application is dismissed or otherwise disposed of adversely to the applicant.

Power to fill vacancy in office of liquidator.

211. (1) If a vacancy occurs by death, resignation or otherwise in the office of liquidator appointed by the company in a voluntary winding up, the company in general meeting may, subject to any arrangement with its creditors, fill the vacancy.

(2) For that purpose a general meeting may be called by any contributory or, if there were more liquidators than one, by the continuing liquidators.

(3) The meeting shall be held in manner prescribed by the articles, or in such manner as may, on application by any contributory or by the continuing liquidators, be determined by the Court.

Delegation of authority to appoint liquidators.

212. (1) A company about to be, or in course of being, wound up voluntarily may, by extraordinary resolution, delegate to its creditors, or to any committee of them, the power of appointing liquidators or any of them, and of supplying vacancies among the liquidators, or enter into any arrangement with respect to the powers to be exercised by the liquidators, and the manner in which they are to be exercised.

(2) Any act done by creditors in pursuance of any such delegated power shall have the same effect as if it had been done by the company.

Arrangement when binding on creditors.

213. (1) Any arrangement entered into between a company about to be, or in the course of being, wound up voluntarily and its creditors shall, subject to any right of appeal under this section, be binding on the company if sanctioned by an extraordinary resolution, and on the creditors if acceded to by three-fourths in number and value of the creditors.

(2) Any creditor or contributory may, within three weeks from the completion of the arrangement, appeal to the Court against it, and the Court may thereupon, as it thinks just, amend, vary or confirm the arrangement.

Power for liquidators to accept shares, etc., as a consideration for sale of property of company.

[S. 192, Companies Act, 1908; s. Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

214. (1) Where a company is proposed to be, or is in course of being, wound up altogether voluntarily, and the whole or part of its business or property is proposed to be transferred or sold to another company (in this section called the transferee company) the liquidator of the first-mentioned company (in this section called the transferor company) may, with the sanction of a special resolution of that company conferring either a general authority on the liquidator or an authority in respect of any particular arrangement, receive, in compensation or part compensation for the transfer or sale, shares, policies or other like interests in the transferee company, for distribution among the members of the transferor company, or may enter into any other arrangement whereby the members of the transferor company may, in lieu of receiving cash, shares, policies or other like interests, or in addition thereto, participate in the profits of, or receive any other benefit from, the transferee company.

(2) Any sale or arrangement in pursuance of this section shall be binding on the members of the transferor company.

(3) If any member of the transferor company who did not vote in favour of the special resolution at either of the meetings held for passing and confirming the same expresses his dissent therefrom in writing addressed to the liquidator, and left at the registered office of the company within seven days after the confirmation of the special resolution, he may require the liquidator either to abstain from carrying the resolution into effect, or to purchase his interest at a price to be determined by agreement or by arbitration in manner hereinafter provided.

(4) If the liquidator elects to purchase the member's interest, the purchase-money must be paid before the company is dissolved, and be raised by the liquidator in such manner as may be determined by special resolution.

(5) A special resolution shall not be invalid for the purposes of this section by reason that it is passed before or concurrently with a resolution for winding up the company, or for appointing liquidators; but if an order is made within a year for winding up the company by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the special resolution shall not be valid unless sanctioned by the Court.

Mode of determining price.

[S. 205, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

215. (1) The price to be paid for the purchase of the interest of any dissentient member may be determined by agreement. If the parties dispute about the same, such dispute shall be settled by arbitration.

IX of 1899.

(2) The provisions of the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, other than those restricting the application of the Act in respect of the subject-matter of the arbitration, shall apply to all arbitrations in pursuance of this section.

[S. 193, Companies Act, 1908, s. 182, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

216. (1) Where a company is being wound up voluntarily, the liquidator or any contributory or creditor may apply to the Court to determine any question arising in the winding up, or to exercise as respects the enforcing of calls, or any other matters, all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise if the company were being wound up by the Court.

Power to apply to Court.

(2) The Court, if satisfied that the determination of the question or the required exercise of power will be just and beneficial, may accede wholly or partially to the application on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks fit, or may make such other order on the application as the Court thinks just.

[S. 194, Companies Act, 1908; s. 183, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

217. (1) Where a company is being wound up voluntarily, the liquidator may, from time to time, summon general meetings of the company for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of the company by special or extraordinary resolution, or for any other purposes he may think fit.

Power of liquidator to call general meeting.

(2) In the event of the winding up continuing for more than one year, the liquidator shall summon a general meeting of the company at the end of the first year from the commencement of the winding up, and of each succeeding year, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, and shall lay before the meeting a statement in the prescribed form containing the prescribed particulars with respect to the proceedings in and the position of the liquidation.

[S. 195, Companies Act, 1908; ss. 186, 187, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

218. (1) In the case of every voluntary winding up, as soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up, the liquidator shall make up an account of the winding up, showing how the winding up has been conducted and the property of the company has been disposed of; and thereupon shall call a general meeting of the company for the purpose of laying before it the account, and giving any explanation thereof.

Final meeting and dissolution.

(2) The meeting shall be called by advertisement, specifying the time, place and object thereof, and published one month at least before the meeting in the manner specified in section 207.

(3) Within one week after the meeting, the liquidator shall file with the registrar a return of the holding of the meeting, and of its date, and in default of so doing, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

(4) The registrar on the filing of the return shall forthwith register it, and, on the expiration of three months from the registration of the return, the company shall be deemed to be dissolved:

Provided that the Court may, on the application of the liquidator or of any other person who appears to the Court to be interested, make an order deferring the date at which the dissolution of the company is to take effect for such time as the Court thinks fit.

(5) It shall be the duty of the person on whose application an order of the Court under sub-section (4) is made, within twenty-one days after the making of the order, to file with the registrar a certified copy of the order, and if that person fails so to do, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

219. All costs, charges and expenses properly incurred in the voluntary winding up of a company including the remuneration of the liquidator, shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other claims at the date of the winding up.

Cost of voluntary liquidation.

[S. 196, Companies Act, 1908; s. 188, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

220. The voluntary winding up of a company shall not bar the right of any creditor or contributory to have it wound up by the Court, if the Court is of opinion, in the case of an application by a creditor, that the rights of the creditor or, in the case of an application by a contributory, that the rights of the contributories will be prejudiced by a voluntary winding up.

Saving for rights of creditors and contributories.

[S. 197, Companies Act, 1908; s. 189, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

221. Where a company is being wound up voluntarily, and an order is made for winding up by the Court, the Court may, if it thinks fit, by the same or any subsequent order, provide for the adoption of all or any of the proceedings in the voluntary winding up.

Power of Court to adopt proceedings of voluntary winding up.

[S. 198, Companies Act, 1908; s. 190, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Winding up subject to supervision of Court.

222. When a company has by special or extraordinary resolution resolved to wind up voluntarily, the Court may make an order that the voluntary winding up shall continue, but subject to such supervision of the Court, and with such liberty for creditors, contributories or others to apply to the Court, and generally on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks just.

Power to order winding up subject to supervision.

[S. 199, Companies Act, 1908; s. 191, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

223. A petition for the continuance of a voluntary winding up subject to the supervision of the Court shall, for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the Court over suits, be deemed to be a petition for winding up by the Court.

Effect of petition for winding up subject to supervision.

[S. 200, Companies Act, 1908; s. 192, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

224. The Court may, in deciding between a winding up by the Court and a winding up subject to supervision, in the appointment of liquidators, and in all other matters relating to the winding up subject to supervision, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories as proved to it by any sufficient evidence.

Court may have regard to wishes of creditors and contributories.

[S. 201, Companies Act, 1908; s. 193, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

225. (1) Where an order is made for a winding up subject to supervision, the Court may by the same or any subsequent order appoint any additional liquidator.

Power for Court to appoint or remove liquidators.

[S. 202, Companies Act, 1908; s. 194, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

(2) A liquidator appointed by the Court under this section shall have the same powers, be subject to the same obligations, and in all respects stand in the same position as if he had been appointed by the company.

(3) The Court may remove any liquidator so appointed by the Court or any liquidator continued under the supervision order and fill any vacancy occasioned by the removal, or by death or resignation.

[S. 203, Companies Act, 1908; s. 195, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Effect of supervision order.

226. (1) Where an order is made for a winding up subject to supervision, the liquidator may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the Court, exercise all his powers, without the sanction or intervention of the Court, in the same manner as if the company were being wound up altogether voluntarily.

(2) Except as provided in sub-section (1), and save for the purposes of section 197, any order made by the Court for a winding up subject to the supervision of the Court shall for all purposes, including the staying of suits and other proceedings, be deemed to be an order of the Court for winding up the company by the Court, and shall confer full authority on the Court to make calls, or to enforce calls made by the liquidator, and to exercise all other powers which it might have exercised if an order had been made for winding up the company altogether by the Court.

(3) In the construction of the provisions whereby the Court is empowered to direct any act or thing to be done to or in favour of the official liquidator, the expression "official liquidator" shall be deemed to mean the liquidator conducting the winding up subject to the supervision of the Court.

Appointment in certain cases of voluntary liquidators to office of official liquidators.

227. Where an order has been made for the winding up of a company subject to supervision, and an order is afterwards made for winding up by the Court, the Court may, by the last-mentioned order or by any subsequent order, appoint the voluntary liquidators or any of them, either provisionally or permanently, and either with or without the addition of any other person, to be official liquidator in the winding up by the Court.

Supplemental Provisions.

[S. 205, Companies Act, 1908; ss. 175 and 197, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Avoidance of transfers, etc., after commencement of winding up.

228. (1) In the case of voluntary winding up every transfer of shares, except transfers made to or with the sanction of the liquidator, and every alteration in the status of the members of the company made after the commencement of the winding up shall be void.

(2) In the case of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, every disposition of the property (including actionable claims) of the company, and every transfer of shares, or alteration in the status of its members, made after the commencement of the winding up shall, unless the Court otherwise orders, be void.

[S. 206, Companies Act, 1908. Cf. s. 180, Indian Companies Act, 1882, (Part).]

Debts of all descriptions to be proved.

229. In every winding up (subject in the case of insolvent companies to the application in accordance with the provisions of this Act of the law of insolvency) all debts payable on a contingency, and all claims against the company, present or future, certain or contingent, shall be admissible to proof against the company, a just estimate being made, so far as possible, of the value of such debts or claims as may be subject to any contingency or for some other reason do not bear a certain value.

Application of insolvency rules in winding up of insolvent companies.

230. In the winding up of an insolvent company the same rules shall prevail and be observed with regard to the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors and to debts provable and to the valuation of annuities and future and contingent liabilities as are in force for the time being under the law of insolvency with respect to the estates of persons adjudged insolvent; and all persons who in any such case would be entitled to prove for and receive dividends out of the assets of the company may come in under the winding up, and make such claims against the company as they respectively are entitled to by virtue of this section.

Preferential payments.

231. (1) In a winding up there shall be paid in priority to all other debts—

(a) all revenue, taxes, cesses and rates, whether payable to the Crown or to a local authority, due from the company at the date hereinafter mentioned and having become due and payable within the twelve months next before that date,

(b) all wages or salary of any clerk or servant in respect of service rendered to the company within the two months next before the said date, not exceeding one thousand rupees for each clerk or servant; and

(c) all wages of any labourer or workman, not exceeding five hundred rupees for each, whether payable for time or piece-work, in respect of services rendered to the company within the two months next before the said date.

(2) The foregoing debts shall—

(a) rank equally among themselves and be paid in full, unless the assets are insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportion; and

(b) so far as the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors are insufficient to meet them, have priority over the claims of holders of debentures under any floating charge created by the company, and be paid accordingly out of any property comprised in or subject to that charge.

(3) Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs and expenses of the winding up, the foregoing debts shall be discharged forthwith so far as the assets are sufficient to meet them.

(4) In the event of a landlord or other person distraining or having distrained on any goods or effects of the company within three months next before the date of a winding up order, the debts to which priority is given by this section shall be a first charge on the goods or effects so distrained on, or the proceeds of the sale thereof:

Provided that in respect of any money paid under any such charge the landlord or other person shall have the same rights of priority as the person to whom the payment is made.

(5) The date hereinbefore in this section referred to is—

(a) in the case of a company ordered to be wound up compulsorily which had not previously commenced to be wound up voluntarily, the date of the winding up order; and (b) in any other case, the date of the commencement of the winding up.

Fraudulent preference.

232. (1) Any transfer, delivery of goods, payment, execution or other act relating to property which would, if made or done by or against an individual, be deemed in his insolvency a fraudulent preference, shall, if made or done by or against a company, be deemed, in the event of its being wound up, a fraudulent preference of its creditors, and be invalid accordingly.

(2) For the purposes of this section the presentation of a petition for winding up in the case of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, and a resolution for winding up in the case of a voluntary winding up, shall be deemed to correspond with the act of insolvency in the case of an individual.

(3) Any transfer or assignment by a company of all its property to trustees for the benefit of all its creditors shall be void.

[S. 211, Companies Act, 1908; s. 212, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Avoidance of certain attachments, executions, etc.

233. (1) Where any company is being wound up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, any attachment, distress or execution put in force without leave of the Court against the estate or effects of the company after the commencement of the winding up shall be void.

(2) Nothing in this section applies to proceedings by the Government.

[S. 212, Companies Act, 1908.]

Effect of floating charge.

234. Where a company is being wound up a floating charge on the undertaking or property of the company created within three months of the commencement of the winding up shall, unless it is proved that the company immediately after the creation of the charge was solvent, be invalid except to the amount of any cash paid to the company at the time of, or subsequently to the creation of, and in consideration for, the charge, together with interest on that amount at the rate of five per cent. per annum.

General scheme of liquidation may be sanctioned.

235. (1) The liquidator may, with the sanction of the Court when the company is being wound up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, and with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company in the case of a voluntary winding up, do the following things or any of them :—

(i) pay any classes of creditors in full;

(ii) make any compromise or arrangement with creditors or persons claiming to be creditors or having or alleging themselves to have any claim, present or future, whereby the company may be rendered liable;

(iii) compromise all calls and liabilities to calls, debts and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims, present or future, certain or contingent subsisting or supposed to subsist between the company and a contributory or alleged contributory or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the company, and all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets or the winding up of the company, on such terms as may be agreed, and take any security for the discharge of any such call, debt, liability or claim, and give a complete discharge in respect thereof.

(2) The exercise by the liquidator of the powers of this section shall be subject to the control of the Court, and any creditor or contributory may apply to the Court with respect to any exercise or proposed exercise of any of these powers.

Power of Court to assess damages against delinquent directors, etc.

236. (1) Where, in the course of winding up a company, it appears that any person who has taken part in the formation or promotion of the company, or any past or present director, manager or liquidator, or any officer of the company, has misapplied or retained or become liable or accountable for any money or property of the company, or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, the Court may, on the application of the liquidator, or of any creditor or contributory, examine into the conduct of the promoter, director, manager, liquidator or officer, and compel him to repay or restore the money or property or any part thereof respectively with interest at such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sum to the assets of the company by way of compensation in respect of the misapplication, retainer, misfeasance or breach of trust as the Court thinks just.

(2) This section shall apply notwithstanding that the offence is one [illegible] may be criminally responsible.

IX of 1908.

(3) The Indian Limitation Act, 1908, shall apply to an application under this section as if such application were a suit.

[S. [illegible], Companies Act, 1908; s. 215, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Penalty for falsification of books.

237. If any director, manager, officer or contributory of any company being wound up destroys, mutilates, alters or falsifies or fraudulently secretes any books, papers or securities, or makes, or is privy to the making of, any false or fraudulent entry in any register book of account or document belonging to the company with intent to defraud or deceive any person, he shall be liable to imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine.

Prosecution of delinquent directors, etc.

238. (1) If it appears to the Court in the course of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court that any past or present director, manager, officer or member of the company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally responsible, the Court may, on the application of any person interested in the winding up, or of its own motion, direct the official liquidator or the liquidator (as the case may be) to prosecute for the offence, and may order the costs and expenses to be paid out of the assets of the company.

(2) If it appears to the liquidator in the course of a voluntary winding up that any past or present director, manager, officer or member of the company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally responsible, the liquidator, with the previous sanction of the Court, may prosecute the offender, and all expenses properly incurred by him in the prosecution shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other liabilities.

Penalty for false evidence.

239. If any person, upon any examination upon oath authorised under this Act, or in any affidavit, deposition or solemn affirmation, in or about the winding up of any company under this Act, or otherwise in or about any matter arising under this Act, intentionally gives false evidence, he shall be liable to imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine.

[S. 219, Companies Act, 1908; ss. 140 and [illegible] Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Meetings to ascertain wishes of creditors or contributories

240. (1) Where by this Act the Court is authorised in relation to winding up to have regard to the wishes of creditors or contributories, as proved to it by any sufficient evidence, the Court may, if it thinks fit for the purpose of ascertaining those wishes, direct meetings of the creditors or contributories to be called, held and conducted in such manner as the Court directs, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting and to report the result thereof to the Court.

(2) In the case of creditors, regard shall be had to the value of each creditor's debt.

(3) In the case of contributories, regard shall be had to the number of votes conferred on each contributory by the articles.

[S. 220, Companies Act, 1908; s. 198, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Documents of company to be evidence

241. Where any company is being wound up, all documents of the company and of the liquidators shall, as between the contributories of the company, be prima facie evidence of the truth of all matters purporting to be therein recorded.

[S. 221, Companies Act, 1908; s 200, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Inspection of documents

242. After an order for a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the Court may make such order for inspection by creditors and contributories of the company of its documents as the Court thinks just, and any documents in the possession of the company may be inspected by creditors or contributories accordingly, but not further or otherwise.

[S. 222, Companies Act, 1908; s. 199, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Disposal of documents of company

243. (1) When a company has been wound up and is about to be dissolved, the documents of the company and of the liquidators may be disposed of as follows (that is to say):—

(a) in the case of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, in such way as the Court directs;

(b) in the case of a voluntary winding up, in such way as the company by extraordinary resolution directs.

(2) After three years from the dissolution of the company, no responsibility shall rest on the company or the liquidators, or any person to whom the custody of the documents has been committed, by reason of the same not being forthcoming to any person claiming to be interested therein.

[S. 223, Companies Act, 1908]

Power of Court to declare dissolution of company void.

244. (1) Where a company has been dissolved, the Court may, at any time within two years of the date of the dissolution, on an application being made for the purpose by the liquidator of the company or by any other person who appears to the Court to be interested, make an order, upon such terms as the Court thinks fit, declaring the dissolution to have been void, and thereupon such proceedings may be taken as might have been taken if the company had not been dissolved.

(2) It shall be the duty of the person on whose application the order was made, within twenty-one days after the making of the order, to file with the registrar a certified copy of the order, and if that person fails so to do, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

Information as to pending liquidations

245. (1) Where a company is being wound up, if the winding up is not concluded within one year after its commencement, the liquidator shall, at such intervals as may be prescribed, until the winding up is concluded, file with the registrar a statement in the prescribed form and containing the prescribed particulars with respect to the proceedings in and position of the liquidation.

(2) Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company shall be entitled, by himself or by his agent, at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee, to inspect the statement, and to receive a copy thereof or extract therefrom; but any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory shall be deemed to be guilty of an offence under section 182 of the Indian Penal Code, and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the liquidator.

(3) If a liquidator fails to comply with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for each day during which the default continues.

[Cf. s. 228, Companies Act, 1908; s. 172, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Court or person before whom affidavit may be sworn

246. (1) Any affidavit required to be sworn under the provisions or for the purposes of this Part may be sworn in British India, or elsewhere within the dominions of His Majesty, before any Court, Judge or person lawfully authorised to take and receive affidavits, or in any part of India other than British India before any Court authorised or continued by the Governor General in Council, or in any place outside His Majesty's dominions before any of His Majesty's Consuls or Vice-Consuls.

(2) All Courts, Judges, Justices, Commissioners and persons acting judicially in British India shall take judicial notice of the seal or stamp or signature (as the case may be) of any such Court, Judge, person, Consul or Vice-Consul, attached, appended or subscribed to any such affidavit, or to any other document to be used for the purposes of this Part.

Rules

[S. 173, Companies Act, 1908; s. 254, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Power of High Court to make rules.

247. (1) The High Court may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act and with the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, concerning the mode of proceedings to be had for winding up a company in such Court and in the Courts subordinate thereto, and for giving effect to the provisions hereinbefore contained as to the reduction of the capital and the sub-division of the shares of a company.

[S. 178, Companies Act, 1908.]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, the High Court may by such rules enable or require all or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed on the Court by this Act, in respect of the matters following, to be exercised or performed by the official liquidator, and subject to the control of the Court, that is to say, the powers and duties of the Court in respect of—

(a) holding and conducting meetings to ascertain the wishes of creditors and contributories;

(b) settling lists of contributories and rectifying the register of members where required, and collecting and applying the assets;

(c) requiring delivery of property or documents to the liquidator;

(d) making calls;

(e) fixing a time within which debts and claims must be proved:

Provided that the official liquidator shall not, without the special leave of the Court, rectify the register of members, and shall not make any call without the special leave of the Court.

Removal of defunct Companies from Register.

[S. 242, Companies Act, 1908.]

Registrar may strike defunct company off register.

248. (1) Where the registrar has reasonable cause to believe that a company is not carrying on business or in operation, he shall send to the company by post a letter inquiring whether the company is carrying on business or in operation.

(2) If the registrar does not within one month of sending the letter receive any answer thereto, he shall within fourteen days after the expiration of the month send to the company by post a registered letter referring to the first letter, and stating that no answer thereto has been received and that, if an answer is not received to the second letter within one month from the date thereof, a notice will be published in the local official Gazette with a view to striking the name of the company off the register.

(3) If the registrar either receives an answer from the company to the effect that it is not carrying on business or in operation, or does not within one month after sending the second letter receive any answer, he may publish in the local official Gazette, and send to the company by post a notice that, at the expiration of three months from the date of that notice, the name of the company mentioned therein will, unless cause is shown to the contrary, be struck off the register and the company will be dissolved.

(4) If, in any case where a company is being wound up, the registrar has reasonable cause to believe either that no liquidator is acting or that the affairs of the company are fully wound up, and the returns required to be made by the liquidator have not been made for a period of six consecutive months after notice by the registrar demanding the returns has been sent by post to the company, or to the liquidator at his last known place of business, the registrar may publish in the local official Gazette and send to the company a like notice as is provided in the last preceding sub-section.

(5) At the expiration of the time mentioned in the notice the registrar may, unless cause to the contrary is previously shown by the company, strike its name off the register, and shall publish notice thereof in the local official Gazette, and, on the publication in the local official Gazette of this notice, the company shall be dissolved: Provided that the liability (if any) of every director and member of the company shall continue and may be enforced as if the company had not been dissolved.

(6) If a company or any member or creditor thereof feels aggrieved by the company having been struck off the register, the Court, on the application of the company or member or creditor, may, if satisfied that the company was at the time of the striking off carrying on business or in operation, or otherwise that it is just that the company be restored to the register, order the name of the company to be restored to the register, and thereupon the company shall be deemed to have continued in existence as if its name had not been struck off; and the Court may by the order give such directions and make such provisions as seem just for placing the company and all other persons in the same position as nearly as may be as if the name of the company had not been struck off.

(7) A letter or notice under this [illegible] may be addressed to the company at its registered office, or, if no office has been registered, to the care of some director, manager or other officer of the company, or, if there is no director, manager or other officer of the company whose name and address are known to the registrar, may be sent to each of the persons who subscribed the memorandum, addressed to him at the address mentioned in the memorandum.

PART VI.

REGISTRATION OFFICE AND FEES.

Registration offices.

[S. 243, Companies Act, 1908; s. 220, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

249. (1) For the purposes of the registration of companies under this Act, there shall be offices at such places as the Local Government thinks fit, and no company shall be registered except at an office within the province in which, by the memorandum, the registered office of the company is declared to be established.

(2) The Local Government may appoint such registrars and assistant registrars as it thinks necessary for the registration of companies under this Act, and may make regulations with respect to their duties.

(3) The salaries of the persons appointed under this section shall be fixed by the Local Government.

(4) The Local Government may direct a seal or seals to be prepared for the authentication of documents required for or connected with the registration of companies.

(5) Any person may inspect the documents kept by the registrar on payment of such fees as may be appointed by the Local Government, not exceeding one rupee for each inspection; and any person may require a certificate of the incorporation of any company, or a copy or extract of any other document or any part of any other document, to be certified by the registrar on payment for the certificate, certified copy or extract, of such fees as the Local Government may appoint, not exceeding three rupees for a certificate of incorporation, and not exceeding six annas for every hundred words or fractional part thereof required to be copied.

(6) Whenever any act is by this Act directed to be done to or by the registrar it shall, until the Local Government otherwise directs, be done to or by the existing registrar of joint-stock companies or in his absence to or by such person as the Local Government may for the time being authorise, but, in the event of the Local Government altering the constitution of the existing registry offices or any of them, any such act shall be done to or by such officer and at such place with reference to the local situation of the registered offices of the companies to be registered as the Local Government may appoint

Fees

250. (1) There shall be paid to the registrar in respect of the several matters mentioned in Table B in the First Schedule the several fees therein specified, or such smaller fees as the Governor General in Council may direct

(2) All fees paid to the registrar in pursuance of this Act shall be accounted for to the Crown.

PART VII.

APPLICATION OF ACT TO COMPANIES FORMED AND REGISTERED UNDER FORMER COMPANIES ACTS.

[S. 245, Companies Act, 1908; s 221 Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Application of Act to companies formed under former Companies Acts

251. In the application of this Act to existing companies, it shall apply in the same manner in the case of a limited company, other than a company limited by guarantee, as if the company had been formed and registered under this Act as a company limited by shares; in the case of a company limited by guarantee as if the company had been formed and registered under this Act as a company limited by guarantee; and, in the case of a company other than a limited company, as if the company had been formed and registered under this Act as an unlimited company:

Provided that—

(1) nothing in Table A in the First Schedule shall apply to a company formed and registered under Act XIX of 1857 and Act VII of 1860, or either of them, or under the Indian Companies Act 1866, or the Indian Companies Act, 1882;

X of 1866. VI of 1882.

(2) reference, express or implied, to the date of registration shall be construed as a reference to the date at which the company was registered under Act No XIX of 1857 and Act No. VII of 1860, or either of them, or under the Indian Companies Act, 1866, or the Indian Companies Act, 1882, as the case may be.

[S 246, Companies Act, 1908, s 222, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Application of Act to companies registered but not formed under former Companies Acts

252. This Act shall apply to every company registered but not formed under Act No. XIX of 1857 and Act No VII of 1860 or either of them, or under the Indian Companies Act, 1866, or the Indian Companies Act, 1882, in the same manner as it is hereinafter in this Act declared to apply to companies registered but not formed under this Act:

X of 1866 VI of 1882.

Provided that reference, express or implied, to the date of registration shall be construed as a reference to the date at which the company was registered under the said Acts or any of them.

[S 248, Companies Act, 1908; s 223, Indian Companies Act, 1882]

Mode of transferring

253. A company registered under Act XIX of 1857 and Act VII of 1860 or either of them may cause its shares to be transferred in the manner hitherto in use, or in such other manner as the company may direct.

PART VIII.

COMPANIES AUTHORISED TO REGISTER UNDER THIS ACT.

[S 249, Companies Act, 1908; ss 224, 225, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Companies capable of being registered

254. (1) With the exceptions and subject to the provisions mentioned and contained in this section,—

(i) any company consisting of seven or more members, which was in existence on the first day of May eighteen hundred and eighty-two, including any company registered under Act No XIX of 1857 and Act No VII of 1860 or either of them, and

(ii) any company formed after the date aforesaid, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, in pursuance of any Act of Parliament or Act of the Governor General in Council other than this Act, or of Letters Patent, or being otherwise duly constituted according to law, and consisting of seven or more members; may at any time register under this Act as an unlimited company or as a company limited by shares, or as a company limited by guarantee; and the registration shall not be invalid by reason that it has taken place with a view to the company being wound up:

(2) Provided as follows:—

(a) a company having the liability of its members limited by Act of Parliament or Act of the Governor General in Council or by Letters Patent, and not being a joint-stock company as hereinafter defined, shall not register in pursuance of this section;

(b) a company having the liability of its members limited by Act of Parliament or Act of the Governor General in Council or by Letters Patent shall not register in pursuance of this section as an unlimited company or as a company limited by guarantee;

(c) a company that is not a joint-stock company as hereinafter defined shall not register in pursuance of this section as a company limited by shares;

(d) a company shall not register in pursuance of this section without the assent of a majority of such of its members as are present in person or by proxy (in cases where proxies are allowed by the articles) at a general meeting summoned for the purpose;

(e) where a company not having the liability of its members limited by Act of Parliament or Act of the Governor General in Council or by Letters Patent is about to register as a limited company, the majority required to assent as aforesaid shall consist of not less than three-fourths of the members present in person or by proxy at the meeting;

(f) where a company is about to register as a company limited by guarantee, the assent to its being so registered shall be accompanied by a resolution declaring that each member undertakes to contribute to the assets of the company, in the event of its being wound up while he is a member, or within one year afterwards, for payment of the debts and liabilities of the company contracted before he ceased to be a member, and of the costs and expenses of winding up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves such amount as may be required not exceeding a specified amount.

(3) In computing any majority under this section when a poll is demanded, regard shall be had to the number of votes to which each member is entitled according to the articles.

(4) A company registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, shall not be registered in pursuance of this section.

VI of 1882.

[S. 250, Companies Act, 1908; s. 226, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Definition of "joint-stock company."

255. For the purposes of this Part as far as relates to registration of companies as companies limited by shares, a joint-stock company means a company having a permanent paid-up or nominal share capital of fixed amount divided into shares, also of fixed amount, or held and transferable as stock, or divided and held partly in one way and partly in the other, and formed on the principle of having for its members the holders of those shares or that stock, and no other persons; and such a company, when registered with limited liability under this Act, shall be deemed to be a company limited by shares.

Requirements for registration by joint-stock companies.

256. Before the registration in pursuance of this Part of a joint-stock company there shall be delivered to the registrar the following documents (that is to say):—

(1) a list showing the names, addresses and occupations of all persons who on a day named in the list, not being more than six clear days before the day of registration, were members of the company, with the addition of the shares or stock held by them respectively, distinguishing, in cases where the shares are numbered, each share by its number;

(2) a copy of any Act of Parliament, Act of the Governor General in Council, Royal Charter, Letters Patent, deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery or other instrument constituting or regulating the company; and

(3) if the company is intended to be registered as a limited company, a statement specifying the following particulars (that is to say):—

(a) the nominal share capital of the company and the number of shares into which it is divided or the amount of stock of which it consists;

(b) the number of shares taken and the amount paid on each share;

(c) the name of the company, with the addition of the word "Limited" as the last word thereof; and

(d) in the case of a company intended to be registered as a company limited by guarantee, the resolution declaring the amount of the guarantee.

[S. 253, Companies Act, 1908; s. 228, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Requirements for registration by other than joint-stock companies.

257. Before the registration in pursuance of this Part of any company not being a joint-stock company, there shall be delivered to the registrar—

(1) a list showing the names, addresses and occupations of the directors of the company; and

(2) a copy of any Act of Parliament, Act of the Governor General in Council, Letters Patent, deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery or other instrument constituting or regulating the company; and

(3) in the case of a company intended to be registered as a company limited by guarantee, a copy of the resolution declaring the amount of the guarantee.

[S. 254, Companies Act, 1908; s. 230, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Authentication of statement of existing companies.

258. The lists of members and directors and any other particulars relating to the company required to be delivered to the registrar shall be duly verified by a declaration of any two or more directors or other principal officers of the company.

[S. 255, Companies Act, 1908; s. 231, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

Registrar may require evidence as to nature of company.

259. The registrar may require such evidence as he thinks necessary for the purpose of satisfying himself whether any company proposing to be registered is or is not a joint-stock company as hereinbefore defined.

[S. 256, Companies Act, 1908; s. 232, Indian Companies Act, 1882.]

On registration of banking company with limited liability, notice to be given to customers.

260. (1) Where a banking company, which was in existence on the first day of May eighteen hundred and eighty-two proposes to register as a limited company, it shall at least thirty days before so registering, give notice of its intention so to register to every person who has a banking account with the company, either by delivery of the notice to him, or by posting it to him at, or delivering it at, his last known address.

(2) If the company omits to give the notice required by this section, then as between the company and the person for the time being interested in the account in respect of which the notice ought to have been given, and so far as respects the account down to the time at which notice is given, but not further or otherwise, the certificate of registration with limited liability shall have no operation.

Com. Act, 233, Com. Act, 261. Exemption of certain companies from payment of fees. No fees shall be charged in respect of the registration in pursuance of this Part of a company if it is not registered as a limited company, or if before its registration as a limited company the liability of the shareholders was limited by some Act of Parliament or Act of the Governor General in Council or by Letters Patent.

Com. Act, 234, Com. Act, 262. Addition of "Limited" to name. When a company registers in pursuance of this Part with limited liability, the word "Limited" shall form and be registered as part of its name.

Com. Act, 235, Com. Act, 263. Certificate of registration of existing companies. On compliance with the requirements of this Part with respect to registration, and on payment of such fees, if any, as are payable under Table B in the First Schedule, the registrar shall certify under his hand that the company applying for registration is incorporated as a company under this Act, and in the case of a limited company that it is limited, and thereupon the company shall be incorporated, and shall have perpetual succession and a common seal.

Com. Act, 237, Com. Act, 264. Vesting of property on registration. All property, moveable and immoveable, including all interests and rights in, to and out of property, moveable and immoveable, and including obligations and actionable claims as may belong to or be vested in a company at the date of its registration in pursuance of this Part, shall, on registration, pass to and vest in the company as incorporated under this Act for all the estate and interest of the company therein.

Com. Act, 238, Com. Act, 265. Saving of existing liabilities. The registration of a company in pursuance of this Part shall not affect the rights or liabilities of the company in respect of any debt or obligation incurred or any contract entered into, by, to, with, or on behalf of, the company before registration.

Com. Act, 239, Com. Act, 266. Continuation of existing suits. All suits and other legal proceedings which at the time of the registration of a company in pursuance of this Part are pending by or against the company, or the public officer or any member thereof, may be continued in the same manner as if the registration had not taken place; nevertheless execution shall not issue against the effects of any individual member of the company on any decree or order obtained in any such suit or proceeding; but, in the event of the property and effects of the company being insufficient to satisfy the decree or order, an order may be obtained for winding up the company.

267. Effect of registration under Act. When a company is registered in pursuance of this Part—

(i) all provisions contained in any Act of Parliament, Act of the Governor General in Council, deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery, Letters Patent, or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, including, in the case of a company registered as a company limited by guarantee, the resolution declaring the amount of the guarantee, shall be deemed to be conditions and regulations of the company, in the same manner and with the same incidents as if so much thereof as would, if the company had been formed under this Act, have been required to be inserted in the memorandum, were contained in a registered memorandum, and the residue thereof were contained in registered articles;

(ii) all the provisions of this Act shall apply to the company and the members, contributories and creditors thereof, in the same manner in all respects as if it had been formed under this Act, subject as follows (that is to say):—

(a) the regulations in Table A in the First Schedule shall not apply unless adopted by special resolution;

(b) the provisions of this Act relating to the numbering of shares shall not apply to any joint-stock company whose shares are not numbered;

(c) subject to the provisions of this section, the company shall not have power to alter any provision contained in any Act of Parliament or Act of the Governor General in Council relating to the company;

(d) subject to the provisions of this section, the company shall not have power, without the sanction of the Governor General in Council, to alter any provision contained in any Letters Patent relating to the company;

(e) the company shall not have power to alter any provision contained in a Royal Charter or Letters Patent with respect to the objects of the company;

(f) in the event of the company being wound up, every person shall be a contributory, in respect of the debts and liabilities of the company contracted before registration, who is liable to pay or contribute to the payment of any debt or liability of the company contracted before registration, or to pay or contribute to the payment of any sum for the adjustment of the rights of the members among themselves in respect of any such debt or liability; or to pay or contribute to the payment of the costs and expenses of winding up the company, so far as relates to such debts or liabilities as aforesaid; and every contributory shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company, in the course of the winding up, all sums due from him in respect of any such liability as aforesaid; and in the event of the death or insolvency of any contributory, the provisions of this Act with respect to the legal representatives and heirs of deceased contributories, and with reference to the assignees of insolvent contributories, shall apply;

(iii) the provisions of this Act with respect to—

(a) the registration of an unlimited company as limited;

(b) the powers of an unlimited company on registration as a limited company to increase the nominal amount of its share capital and to provide that a portion of its share capital shall not be capable of being called up except in the event of winding up;

(c) the power of a limited company to determine that a portion of its share capital shall not be capable of being called up except in the event of winding up;

shall apply notwithstanding any provisions contained in any Act of Parliament, Act of the Governor General in Council, Royal Charter, deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery, Letters Patent or other instrument constituting or regulating the company;

(iv) nothing in this section shall authorise the company to alter any such provisions contained in any deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery, Letters Patent or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, as would, if the company had originally been formed under this Act, have been required to be contained in the memorandum and are not authorised to be altered by this Act;

(v) nothing in this Act shall derogate from any lawful power of altering its constitution or regulations which may by virtue of any Act of Parliament, Act of the Governor General in Council, deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery, Letters Patent or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, be vested in the company.

Power to substitute memorandum and articles for deed of settlement.

268. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section, a company registered in pursuance of this Part may by special resolution alter the form of its constitution by substituting a memorandum and articles for a deed of settlement.

(2) The provisions of this Act with respect to confirmation by the Court and registration of an alteration of the objects of a company shall, so far as applicable, apply to an alteration under this section with the following modifications:—

(a) there shall be substituted for the printed copy of the altered memorandum required to be filed with the registrar a printed copy of the substituted memorandum and articles; and,

(b) on the registration of the alteration being certified by the registrar, the substituted memorandum and articles shall apply to the company in the same manner as if it were a company registered under this Act with that memorandum and those articles, and the company's deed of settlement shall cease to apply to the company.

(3) An alteration under this section may be made either with or without any alteration of the objects of the company under this Act.

(4) In this section the expression "deed of settlement" includes any contract of co-partnery or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, not being an Act of Parliament, an Act of the Governor General in Council, a Royal Charter or Letters Patent.

Power of Court to stay or restrain proceedings.

269. The provisions of this Act with respect to staying and restraining suits and legal proceedings against a company at any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up and before the making of a winding up order shall, in the case of a company registered in pursuance of this Part, where the application to stay or restrain is by a creditor, extend to suits and legal proceedings against any contributory of the company.

Suits stayed on winding up order.

270. Where an order has been made for winding up a company registered in pursuance of this Part, no suit or other legal proceeding shall be commenced or proceeded with against the company or any contributory of the company in respect of any debt of the company, except by leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose.

PART IX.

WINDING UP OF UNREGISTERED COMPANIES.

Meaning of unregistered company.

271. For the purposes of this Part, the expression "unregistered company" shall not include a railway company incorporated by Act of Parliament or by an Act of the Governor General in Council nor a company registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1866, or under any Act repealed thereby, or under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or under this Act, but, save as aforesaid, shall include any partnership, association or company consisting of more than seven members.

Winding up of unregistered companies.

272. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Part, any unregistered company may be wound up under this Act, and all the provisions of this Act with respect to winding up shall apply to an unregistered company, with the following exceptions and additions:—

(i) an unregistered company shall, for the purpose of determining the Court having jurisdiction in the matter of the winding up, be deemed to be registered in the province where its principal place of business is situate or, if it has a principal place of business situate in more than one province then in each province where it has a principal place of business; and the principal place of business situate in that province in which proceedings are being instituted shall, for all the purposes of the winding up, be deemed to be the registered office of the company;

(ii) no unregistered company shall be wound up under this Act voluntarily or subject to supervision;

(iii) the circumstances in which an unregistered company may be wound up are as follows (that is to say):—

(a) if the company is dissolved, or has ceased to carry on business or is carrying on business only for the purpose of winding up its affairs;

(b) if the company is unable to pay its debts;

(c) if the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up;

(iv) an unregistered company shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be unable to pay its debts—

(a) if a creditor, by assignment or otherwise, to whom the company is indebted in a sum exceeding five hundred rupees then due, has served on the company, by leaving at its principal place of business, or by delivering to the secretary, or some director, manager or principal officer of the company, or by otherwise serving in such manner as the Court may approve or direct, a demand under his hand requiring the company to pay the sum so due, and the company has for three weeks after the service of the demand neglected to pay the sum, or to secure or compound for it to the satisfaction of the creditor;

(b) if any suit or other legal proceeding has been instituted against any member for any debt or demand due or claimed to be due, from the company or from him in his character of member, and notice in writing of the institution of the suit or other legal proceeding having been served on the company by leaving the same at its principal place of business or by delivering it to the secretary, or some director, manager or principal officer of the company or by otherwise serving the same in such manner as the Court may approve or direct, the company has not within ten days after service of the notice paid, secured or compounded for the debt or demand, or procured the suit or other legal proceeding to be stayed, or indemnified the defendant to his reasonable satisfaction against the suit or other legal proceeding, and against all costs, damages and expenses to be incurred by him by reason of the same;

(c) if execution or other process issued on a decree or order obtained in any Court in favour of a creditor against the company, or any member thereof as such, or any person authorised to be sued as nominal defendant on behalf of the company, is returned unsatisfied; and

(d) if it is otherwise proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the company is unable to pay its debts.

(2) Nothing in this Part shall affect the operation of any enactment which provides for any partnership, association or company being wound up, or being wound up as a company or as an unregistered company, under any enactment repealed by this Act, except that references in any such first-mentioned enactment to any such repealed enactment shall be read as references to the corresponding provision (if any) of this Act.

Contributories in winding up of unregistered companies.

273. (1) In the event of an unregistered company being wound up, every person shall be deemed to be a contributory who is liable to pay or contribute to the payment of any debt or liability of the company, or to pay or contribute to the payment of any sum for the adjustment of the rights of the members among themselves, or to pay or contribute to the payment of the costs and expenses of winding up the company, and every contributory shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company all sums due from him in respect of any such liability as aforesaid.

(2) In the event of any contributory, dying or being adjudged insolvent, the provisions of this Act with respect to the legal representatives and heirs of deceased contributories, and to the assignees of insolvent contributories shall apply.

Power to stay or restrain proceedings.

274. The provisions of this Act with respect to staying and restraining suits and legal proceedings against a company at any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up and before the making of a winding up order shall, in the case of an unregistered company, where the application to stay or restrain is by a creditor, extend to suits and legal proceedings against any contributory of the company.

Suits stayed on winding up order.

275. Where an order has been made for winding up an unregistered company, no suit or other legal proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against any contributory of the company in respect of any debt of the company, except by leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose.

Directions as to property in certain cases.

276. If an unregistered company has no power to sue and be sued in a common name, or if for any reason it appears expedient, the Court may by the winding up order, or by any subsequent order, direct that all or any part of the property, moveable or immoveable, including all interests and rights in, to and out of property, moveable and immoveable, and including obligations and actionable claims as may belong to the company or to trustees on its behalf, is to vest in the official liquidator by his official name, and thereupon the property or the part thereof specified in the order shall vest accordingly; and the official liquidator may, after giving such indemnity (if any) as the Court may direct, bring or defend in his official name any suit or other legal proceeding relating to that property, or necessary to be brought or defended for the purposes of effectually winding up the company and recovering its property.

Provisions of this Part cumulative.

277. The provisions of this Part with respect to unregistered companies shall be in addition to, and not in restriction of, any provisions hereinbefore in this Act contained with respect to winding up companies by the Court, and the Court or official liquidator may exercise any powers or do any act in the case of unregistered companies which might be exercised or done by it or him in winding up companies formed and registered under this Act; but an unregistered company shall not, except in the event of its being wound up, be deemed to be a company under this Act, and then only to the extent provided by this Part.

PART X.

COMPANIES ESTABLISHED OUTSIDE BRITISH INDIA.

Requirements as to companies established outside British India.

278. (1) Every company incorporated outside British India which at the commencement of this Act has a place of business in British India, and every such company which after the commencement of this Act establishes such a place of business within British India shall, within six months from the commencement of this Act or within one month from the establishment of such place of business, as the case may be, file with the registrar in the province in which such place of business is situated,—

(a) a certified copy of the charter, statutes or memorandum and articles of the company, or other instrument constituting or defining the constitution of the company, and, if the instrument is not written in the English language, a certified translation thereof;

(b) the full address of the registered or principal office of the company;

(c) a list of the directors and managers (if any) of the company;

(d) the names and addresses of some one or more persons resident in British India authorised to accept on behalf of the company service of process and any notices required to be served on the company; and, in the event of any alteration being made in any such instrument or in such address or in the directors or managers or in the names or addresses of any such persons as aforesaid, the company shall, within the prescribed time, file with the registrar a notice of the alteration.

(2) Any process or notice required to be served on the company shall be sufficiently served, if addressed to any person whose name has been so filed as aforesaid and left at or sent by post to the address which has been so filed.

(3) Every company to which this section applies shall in every year file with the registrar of the province in which the company has its principal place of business—

(i) in a case where by the law, for the time being in force, of the country in which the company is incorporated such company is required to file with the public authority an annual balance-sheet,—a copy of that balance-sheet; or

(ii) in a case where no such provision is made by the law, for the time being in force, of the country in which the company is incorporated,—such a statement in the form of a balance-sheet as such company would if it were a company formed and registered under this Act, be required to file in accordance with the provisions of this Act:

Provided that the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India subject to such restrictions and conditions, if any, as he may therein prescribe, exempt any such company or any class of such companies from this requirement.

(4) Every company to which this section applies and which uses the word "Limited" as part of its name, shall—

(a) in every prospectus inviting subscriptions for its share or debentures in British India state the country in which the company is incorporated; and

(b) conspicuously exhibit on every place where it carries on business in British India the name of the company and the country in which the company is incorporated in letters easily legible in English characters, and also, if any place where it carries on business is beyond the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of a High Court, in the characters of one of the vernacular languages used in that place; and

(c) have the name of the company and of the country in which the company is incorporated mentioned in legible English characters in all bill-heads and letter paper, and in all notices, advertisements and other official publications of the company.

(5) If any company to which this section applies fails to comply with any of the requirements of this section, the company, and every officer or agent of the company, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees or, in the case of a continuing offence, fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

(6) For the purposes of this section—

(a) the expression "certified" means certified in the prescribed manner to be a true copy or a correct translation;

(b) the expression "place of business" includes a share transfer or share registration office;

(c) the expression "director" includes any person occupying the position of director, by whatever name called; and

(d) the expression "prospectus" means any prospectus, notice, circular, advertisement or other invitation, offering to the public for subscription or purchase any shares or debentures of the company.

(7) There shall be paid to the registrar for registering any document required by this section to be filed with him a fee of five rupees or such smaller fee as may be prescribed.

PART XI.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

Legal proceedings, offences, etc.

Cognizance of offences.

279. (1) No Court inferior to that of a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class shall try any offence against this Act.

(2) If any offence which by this Act is declared to be punishable by fine only is committed by any person within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, such offence shall be punishable upon summary conviction by any Presidency Magistrate of the place at which such Court is held.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, every offence against this Act shall, for the purposes of the said Code, be deemed to be non-cognizable.

Application of fines.

280. The Court imposing any fine under this Act may direct that the whole or any part thereof be applied in or towards payment of the costs of the proceedings, or in or towards the rewarding of the person on whose information the fine is recovered.

Power to require limited company to give security for costs.

281. Where a limited company is plaintiff or petitioner in any suit or other legal proceeding, any Court having jurisdiction in the matter may, if it appears that there is reason to believe that the company will be unable to pay the costs of the defendant if successful in his defence, require sufficient security to be given for those costs, and may stay all proceedings until the security is given.

Power of Court to grant relief in certain cases.

282. If in any proceeding before any Court against a director of a company for negligence or breach of trust it appears to such Court that the director is or may be liable in respect of the negligence or breach of trust, but has acted honestly and reasonably, and ought fairly to be excused for the negligence or breach of trust, that Court may relieve him, either wholly or partly, from his liability on such terms as the Court may think proper.

Penalty for false statement.

283. Whoever in any return, report, certificate, balance-sheet or other document, required by or for the purposes of any of the provisions of this Act wilfully makes a statement false in any material particular, knowing it to be false, shall be punishable with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to three years, and shall also be liable to fine.

Penalty for improper use of word "Limited."

284. If any person or persons trade or carry on business under any name or title of which "Limited" is the last word, that person or those persons shall, unless duly incorporated with limited liability, be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day upon which that name or title has been used.

Saving of pending proceedings for winding up.

285. The provisions of this Act with respect to winding up shall not apply to any company of which the winding up has commenced before the commencement of this Act, but every such company shall be wound up in the same manner and with the same incidents as if this Act had not been passed, and, for the purposes of the winding up, the Indian Companies Act, 1882, shall be deemed to remain in full force.

Saving of document.

286. Every instrument of transfer or other document made before the commencement of this Act in pursuance of any enactment hereby repealed, shall be of the same force as if this Act had not been passed, and for the purposes of that instrument or document the repealed enactment shall be deemed to remain in full force.

Former registration offices, registers, and registrars continued.

287. (1) The offices existing at the commencement of this Act for registration of joint-stock companies shall be continued as if they had been established under this Act.

(2) Registers of companies kept in any such existing offices shall respectively be deemed part of the registers of companies to be kept under this Act.

(3) The existing registrars, assistant registrars and officers in those offices shall, during the pleasure of the Local Government, hold the offices and receive the salaries hitherto held and received by them, but subject to any regulations of the Local Government with regard to the execution of their duties.

Savings for Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1912, and Provident Insurance Societies Act, 1912.

288. Nothing in this Act shall affect the provisions of the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1912, or of the Provident Insurance Societies Act, 1912.

Construction of "registrar of joint-stock companies" in Act XXI of 1860.

289. In sections 1 and 18 of Act No. XXI of 1860 (for the registration of Literary, Scientific and Charitable Societies), the words "registrar of joint-stock companies" shall be construed to mean the registrar under this Act.

Act not to apply to Banks of Bengal, Madras or Bombay.

290. Save as provided in sections 189 and 190, nothing in this Act shall be deemed to apply to the Bank of Bengal, the Bank of Madras and the Bank of Bombay.

291. (1) The enactments mentioned in the Fourth Schedule are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column thereof:

Repeal of Acts and savings.

Provided that the repeal shall not affect—

(a) the incorporation of any company registered under any enactment hereby repealed; nor

(b) Table B in the Schedule annexed to Act No. XIX of 1857, or any part thereof, so far as the same applies to any company existing at the commencement of this Act; nor

(c) Table A in the First Schedule annexed to the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or any part thereof so far as the same applies to any company existing at the commencement of this Act.

(2) All fees directed, resolutions passed and other things duly done under any enactment hereby repealed, shall be deemed to have been directed, passed or done under this Act.

(3) The mention of particular matters in this section or in any other section of this Act shall not prejudice the general application of section 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, with regard to the effect of repeals.

SCHEDULES.

THE FIRST SCHEDULE.

(See Sections 2, 17, 18, 80, 267.)

TABLE A.

REGULATIONS FOR MANAGEMENT OF A COMPANY LIMITED BY SHARES.

Preliminary.

1. In these regulations, unless the context otherwise requires, expressions defined in the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or any statutory modification thereof in force at the date at which these regulations become binding on the company, shall have the meanings so defined; and words importing the singular shall include the plural, and vice versâ, and words importing the masculine gender shall include females, and words importing persons shall include bodies corporate.

Business.

2. The directors shall have regard to the restrictions on the commencement of business imposed by section 104 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, if, and so far as, those restrictions are binding upon the company.

Shares.

3. Subject to the provisions, if any, in that behalf of the memorandum of association of the company, and without prejudice to any special rights previously conferred on the holders of existing shares in the company, any share in the company may be issued with such preferred, deferred or other special rights, or such restrictions, whether in regard to dividend, voting, return of share capital, or otherwise, as the company may from time to time by special resolution determine.

4. If at any time the share capital is divided into different classes of shares, the rights attached to any class (unless otherwise provided by the terms of issue of the shares of that class) may be varied with the consent in writing of the holders of three-fourths of the issued shares of that class or with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution passed at a separate general meeting of the holders of the shares of the class. To every such separate general meeting the provisions of these regulations relating to general meetings shall mutatis mutandis apply, but so that the necessary quorum shall be two persons at least holding or representing by proxy one-third of the issued shares of the class.

5. No share shall be offered to the public for subscription except upon the terms that the amount payable on application shall be at least five per cent. of the nominal amount of the share; and the directors shall, as regards any allotment of shares, duly comply with such of the provisions of sections 102 and 105 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, as may be applicable thereto.

6. Every person whose name is entered as a member in the register of members shall, without payment, be entitled to a certificate under the common seal of the company specifying the share or shares held by him and the amount paid up thereon: Provided that, in respect of a share or shares held jointly by several persons, the company shall not be bound to issue more than one certificate, and delivery of a certificate for a share to one of several joint-holders shall be sufficient delivery to all.

7. If a share certificate is defaced, lost or destroyed, it may be renewed on payment of such fee, if any, not exceeding eight annas, and on such terms, if any, as to evidence and indemnity as the directors think fit.

8. No part of the funds of the company shall be employed in the purchase of, or in loans upon the security of, the company's shares.

Lien.

9. The company shall have a lien on every share (not being a fully-paid share) for all moneys (whether presently payable or not) called or payable at a fixed time in respect of that share, and the company shall also have a lien on all shares (other than fully-paid shares) standing registered in the name of a single person, for all moneys presently payable by him or his estate to the company; but the directors may at any time declare any share to be wholly or in part exempt from the provisions of this clause. The company's lien, if any, on a share sholl extend to all dividends payable thereon.

10. The company may sell, in such manner as the director thinks fit, any shares on which the company has a lien, but no sale shall be made unless some sum in respect of which the lien exists is presently payable, nor until the expiration of fourteen days after a notice in writing, stating and demanding payment of such part of amount in respect of which the lien exists as is presently payable, has been given to the registered holder for the time being of the share, or the person entitled by reason of his death or insolvency to the share.

11. The proceeds of the sale shall be applied in payment of such part of the amount in respect of which the lien exists as is presently payable and the residue shall (subject to a like lien for sums not presently payable as existed upon the shares prior to the sale) be paid to the person entitled to the shares at the date of the sale. The purchaser shall be registered as the holder of the shares, and he shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase-money, nor shall his title to the shares be affected by any irregularity or invalidity in the proceedings in reference to the sale.

Calls on Shares.

12. The directors may from time to time make calls upon the members in respect of any moneys unpaid on their shares, provided that no call shall exceed one-fourth of the nominal amount of the share, or be payable at less than one month from the last call; and each member shall (subject to receiving at least fourteen days' notice specifying the time or times of payments) pay to the company at the time or times so specified the amount called on his shares.

13. The joint-holders of a share shall be jointly and severally liable to pay all calls in respect thereof.

14. If a sum called in respect of a share is not paid before or on the day appointed for payment thereof, the person from whom the sum is due shall pay interest upon the sum at the rate of five per cent. per annum from the day appointed for the payment thereof to the time of the actual payment, but the directors shall be at liberty to waive payment of that interest wholly or in part.

15. The provisions of these regulations as to payment of interest shall apply in the case of non-payment of any sum which, by the terms of issue of a share, becomes payable at a fixed time, whether on account of the amount of the share, or by way of premium, as if the same had become payable by virtue of a call duly made and notified.

16. The directors may make arrangements on the issue of shares for a difference between the holders in the amount of calls to be paid and in the times of payment.

17. The directors may, if they think fit, receive from any member willing to advance the same all or any part of the moneys uncalled and unpaid upon any shares held by him; and upon all or any of the moneys so advanced may (until the same would, but for such advance, become presently payable) pay interest at such rate (not exceeding, without the sanction of the company in general meeting, six per cent.) as may be agreed upon between the member paying the sum in advance and the directors.

Transfer and transmission of shares.

18. The instrument of transfer of any share in the company shall be executed both by the transferor and transferee, and the transferor shall be deemed to remain holder of the share until the name of the transferee is entered in the register of members in respect thereof.

19. Shares in the company shall be transferred in the following form, or in any usual or common form which the directors shall approve:

I, A B of , in consideration of the sum of rupees paid to me by C D of (hereinafter called "the said transferee"), do hereby transfer to the said transferee the share [or shares] numbered in the undertaking called the Company, Limited, to hold unto the said transferee, his executors, administrators and assigns, subject to the several conditions on which I held the same at the time of the execution thereof, and I, the said transferee do hereby agree to take the said share [or shares] subject to the conditions aforesaid. As witness our hands the day of Witness to the signatures of, etc.

20. The directors may decline to register any transfer of shares, not being fully-paid shares to a person of whom they do not approve, and may also decline to register any transfer of shares on which the company has a lien. The directors may also suspend the registration of transfers during the fourteen days immediately preceding the ordinary general meeting in each year. The directors may decline to recognise any instrument of transfer unless—

(a) a fee not exceeding two rupees is paid to the company in respect thereof; and

(b) the instrument of transfer is accompanied by the certificate of the shares to which it relates, and such other evidence as the directors may reasonably require to show the right of the transferor to make the transfer.

21. The executors or administrators of a deceased sole holder of a share shall be the only persons recognised by the company as having any title to the share. In the case of a share registered in the names of two or more holders, the survivors or survivor, or the executors or administrators of the deceased survivor, shall be the only persons recognised by the company as having any title to the share.

22. Any person becoming entitled to a share in consequence of the death or insolvency of a member shall, upon such evidence being produced as may from time to time be required by the directors, have the right, either to be registered as a member in respect of the share or, instead of being registered himself, to make such transfer of the share as the deceased or insolvent person could have made; but the directors shall, in either case, have the same right to decline or suspend registration as they would have had in the case of a transfer of the share by the deceased or insolvent person before the death or insolvency.

23. A person becoming entitled to a share by reason of the death or insolvency of the holder shall be entitled to the same dividends and other advantages to which he would be entitled if he were the registered holder of the share, except that he shall not, before being registered as a member in respect of the share, be entitled in respect of it to exercise any right conferred by membership in relation to meetings of the company.

Forfeiture of shares.

24. If a member fails to pay any call or instalment of a call on the day appointed for payment thereof, the directors may, at any time thereafter during such time as any part of such call or instalment remains unpaid, serve a notice on him requiring payment of so much of the call or instalment as is unpaid, together with any interest which may have accrued.

25. The notice shall name a further day (not earlier than the expiration of fourteen days, from the date of the notice) on or before which the payment required by the notice is to be made, and shall state that in the event of non-payment at or before the time appointed the shares in respect of which the call was made will be liable to be forfeited.

26. If the requirements of any such notice as aforesaid are not complied with, any share in respect of which the notice has been given may at any time thereafter, before the payment required by the notice has been made, be forfeited by a resolution of the directors to that effect.

27. A forfeited share may be sold or otherwise disposed of on such terms and in such manner as the directors think fit, and at any time before a sale or disposition the forfeiture may be cancelled on such terms as the directors think fit.

28. A person whose shares have been forfeited shall cease to be a member in respect of the forfeited shares, but shall, notwithstanding, remain liable to pay to the company all moneys which, at the date of forfeiture, were presently payable by him to the company in respect of the shares, but his liability shall cease if and when the company receive payment in full of the nominal amount of the shares.

29. A duly verified declaration in writing that the declarant is a director of the company, and that a share in the company has been duly forfeited on a date stated in the declaration, shall be conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated as against all persons claiming to be entitled to the share, and that declaration, and the receipt of the company for the consideration, if any, given for the share on the sale or disposition thereof shall constitute a good title to the share, and the person to whom the share is sold or disposed of shall be registered as the holder of the share and shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase-money (if any), nor shall his title to the share be affected by any irregularity or invalidity in the proceedings in reference to the forfeiture, sale or disposal of the share.

30. The provisions of these regulations as to forfeiture shall apply in the case of non-payment of any sum which, by the terms of issue of a share, becomes payable at a fixed time, whether on account of the amount of the share, or by way of premium, as if the same had been payable by virtue of a call duly made and notified.

Conversion of shares into stock.

31. The directors may, with the sanction of the company previously given in general meeting, convert any paid-up shares into stock, and may with the like sanction re-convert any stock into paid-up shares of any denomination.

32. The holders of stock may transfer the same, or any part thereof, in the same manner, and subject to the same regulations, as, and subject to which, the shares from which the stock arose might previously to conversion have been transferred, or as near thereto as circumstances admit; but the directors may from time to time fix the minimum amount of stock transferable, and restrict or forbid the transfer of fractions of that minimum, but the minimum shall not exceed the nominal amount of the shares from which the stock arose.

33. The holders of stock shall, according to the amount of the stock held by them, have the same rights, privileges and advantages as regards dividends, voting at meetings of the company, and other matters, as if they held the shares from which the stock arose, but no such privilege or advantage (except participation in the dividends and profits of the company) shall be conferred by any such aliquot part of stock as would not, if existing in shares, have conferred that privilege or advantage.

34. Such of the regulations of the company (other than those relating to share-warrants), as are applicable to paid-up shares shall apply to stock, and the words "share" and "shareholder" therein shall include "stock" and "stockholder."

Share-warrants.

35. The company may issue share-warrants, and accordingly the directors may in their discretion, with respect to any share which is fully paid up, on application in writing signed by the person registered as holder of the share, and authenticated by such evidence (if any) as the directors may from time to time require as to the identity of the person signing the request, and on receiving the certificate (if any) of the share, and the amount of the stamp-duty on the warrant and such fee as the directors may from time to time require, issue under the company's seal a warrant, duly stamped, stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the shares therein specified, and may provide by coupons or otherwise for the payment of dividends, or other moneys, on the shares included in the warrant.

36. A share-warrant shall entitle the bearer to the shares included in it, and the share shall be transferred by the delivery of the share-warrant, and the provisions of the regulations of the company with respect to transfer and transmission of shares shall not apply thereto.

37. The bearer of a share-warrant shall, on surrender of the warrant to the company for cancellation, and on payment of such sum as the directors may from time to time prescribe, be entitled to have his name entered as a member in the register of members in respect of the shares included in the warrant.

38. The bearer of a share-warrant may at any time deposit the warrant at the office of the company, and so long as the warrant remains so deposited, the depositor shall have the same right of signing a requisition for calling a meeting of the company, and of attending and voting and exercising the other privileges of a member at any meeting held after the expiration of two clear days from the time of deposit, as if his name were inserted in the register of members as the holder of the shares included in the deposited warrant. Not more than one person shall be recognised as depositor of the share-warrant. The company shall, on two days' written notice, return the deposited share-warrant to the depositor.

39. Subject as herein otherwise expressly provided, no person shall, as bearer of a share-warrant, sign a requisition for calling a meeting of the company, or attend, or vote or exercise any other privilege of a member at a meeting of the company, or be entitled to receive any notices from the company; but the bearer of a share-warrant shall be entitled in all other respects to the same privileges and advantages as if he were named in the register of members as the holder of the shares included in the warrant, and he shall be a member of the company.

40. The directors may from time to time make rules as to the terms on which (if they shall think fit) a new share-warrant or coupon may be issued by way of renewal in case of defacement, loss or destruction.

Alteration of Capital.

41. The directors may, with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company, increase the share capital by such sum, to be divided into shares of such amount, as the resolution shall prescribe.

42. Subject to any direction to the contrary that may be given by the resolution sanctioning the increase of share capital, all new shares shall, before issue, be offered to such persons as at the date of the offer are entitled to receive notices from the company of general meetings in proportion, as nearly as the circumstances admit, to the amount of the existing shares to which they are entitled. The offer shall be made by notice specifying the number of shares offered, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined, and after the expiration of that time, or on the receipt of an intimation from the person to whom the offer is made that he declines to accept the shares offered, the directors may dispose of the same in such manner as they think most beneficial to the company. The directors may likewise so dispose of any new shares which (by reason of the ratio which the new shares bear to shares held by persons entitled to an offer of new shares) cannot, in the opinion of the directors, be conveniently offered under this article.

43. The new shares shall be subject to the same provisions with reference to the payment of calls, lien, transfer, transmission, forfeiture and otherwise as the shares in the original share capital.

44. The company may, by special resolution,—

(a) consolidate and divide its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares;

(b) by sub-division of its existing shares or any of them, divide the whole or any part of its share capital into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by the memorandum of association, subject, nevertheless, to the provisions of paragraph (d) of sub-section (1) of section 50 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913;

(c) cancel any shares which, at the date of the passing of the resolution, have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person;

(d) reduce its share capital in any manner and with, and subject to, any incident authorised, and consent required, by law.

General Meetings.

45. The statutory general meeting of the company shall be held within the period required by section 78 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

46. A general meeting shall be held once in every year at such time (not being more than fifteen months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting) and place as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, or, in default, at such time in the month following that in which the anniversary of the company's incorporation occurs, and at such place as the directors shall appoint. In default of a general meeting being so held, a general meeting shall be held in the month next following, and may be called by any two members in the same manner as nearly as possible as that in which meetings are to be called by the directors.

47. The above-mentioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings; all other general meetings shall be called extraordinary.

48. The directors may, whenever they think fit, call an extraordinary general meeting and extraordinary general meetings shall also be called on such requisition, or in default, may be called by such requisitionists, as provided by section 79 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913. If at any time there are not within British India sufficient directors capable of acting to form a quorum any director or any two members of the company may call an extraordinary general meeting in the same manner as nearly as possible as that in which meetings may be called by the directors.

Proceedings at General Meeting.

49. Fourteen days' notice at the least (exclusive of the day on which the notice is served or deemed to be served, but inclusive of the day for which notice is given) specifying the place, the day and the hour of meeting and, in case of special business, the general nature of that business, shall be given in manner hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner, if any, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, to such persons as are, under the regulations of the company, entitled to receive such notices from the company; but the non-receipt of the notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting.

50. All business shall be deemed special that transacted at an extraordinary meeting and a that is transacted at an ordinary meeting with the exception of sanctioning a dividend, the consideration of the accounts, balance-sheets and the ordinary report of the directors and auditors, the election of directors and other officers in the place of those retiring by rotation, and the fixing of the remuneration of the auditors.

51. No business shall be transacted at any general meeting unless a quorum of members is present at the time when the meeting proceeds to business; save as herein otherwise provided, three members personally present shall be a quorum.

52. If within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum is not present, the meeting, if called upon the requisition of members, shall be dissolved; in any other case, it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week at the same time and place, and, if at the adjourned meeting a quorum is not present within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting, the members present shall be a quorum.

53. The chairman, if any, of the board of directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company.

54. If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present within fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting, or is unwilling to act as chairman, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman.

55. The chairman may, with the consent of any meeting at which a quorum is present (and shall if so directed by the meeting), adjourn the meeting from time to time and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place. When a meeting is adjourned for ten days or more, notice of the adjourned meeting shall be given as in the case of an original meeting. Save as aforesaid, it shall not be necessary to give any notice of an adjournment or of the business to be transacted at an adjourned meeting.

56. At any general meeting a resolution put to the vote of the meeting shall be decided on a show of hands, unless a poll is (before or on the declaration of the result of the show of hands) demanded by at least three members, and, unless a poll is so demanded, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has, on a show of hands, been carried, or carried unanimously, or by a particular majority or lost, and an entry to that effect in the book of the proceedings of the company shall be conclusive evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of, or against, that resolution.

57. If a poll is duly demanded, it shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of the poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the meeting at which the poll was demanded.

58. In the case of an equality of votes, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, the chairman of the meeting at which the show of hands takes place, or at which the poll is demanded, shall be entitled to a second or casting vote.

59. A poll demanded on the election of a chairman or on a question of adjournment shall be taken forthwith. A poll demanded on any other question shall be taken at such time as the chairman of the meeting directs.

Votes of Members.

60. On a show of hands every member present in person shall have one vote. On a poll every member shall have one vote for each share of which he is the holder.

61. In the case of joint-holders, the vote of the senior who tenders a vote, whether in person or by proxy, shall be accepted to the exclusion of the votes of the other joint-holders; and for this purpose seniority shall be determined by the order in which the names stand in the register of members.

62. A member of unsound mind, or in respect of whom an order has been made by any Court having jurisdiction in lunacy, may vote, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, by his committee or other legal guardian, and any such committee or guardian may, on a poll, vote by proxy.

63. No member shall be entitled to vote at any general meeting unless all calls or other sums presently payable by him in respect of shares in the company have been paid.

64. On a poll votes may be given either personally or by proxy: Provided that no company shall vote by proxy as long as a resolution of its directors in accordance with the provisions of section 81 of the Indian Companies Act, 19*13*, is in force.

65. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing under the hand of the appointor or of his attorney duly authorised in writing, or, if the appointor is a corporation, either under the common seal, or under the hand of an officer or attorney so authorised. No person shall act as a proxy unless either he is entitled on his own behalf to be present and vote at the meeting at which he acts as proxy, or he has been appointed to act at that meeting as proxy for a corporation.

66. The instrument appointing a proxy and the power-of-attorney or other authority (if any), under which it is signed or a notarially certified copy of that power or authority shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than seventy-two hours before the time for holding the meeting at which the person named in the instrument proposes to vote, and in default the instrument of proxy shall not be treated as valid.

67. An instrument appointing a proxy may be in the following form, or in any other form which the directors shall approve :—

Company, Limited.

"I of in the district of , being a member of the Company, Limited, hereby appoint of as my proxy to vote for me and on my behalf at the [ordinary or extraordinary, as the case may be] general meeting of the company to be held on the day of and at any adjournment thereof."

Signed this day of Directors.

68. The number of the directors and the names of the first directors shall be determined in writing by a majority of the subscribers of the memorandum of association.

69. The remuneration of the directors shall from time to time be determined by the company in general meeting.

70. The qualification of a director shall be the holding of at least one share in the company, and it shall be his duty to comply with the provisions of section 86 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

Powers and duties of Directors.

71. The business of the company shall be managed by the directors, who may pay all expenses incurred in getting up and registering the company, and may exercise all such powers of the company as are not, by the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force, or by these articles, required to be exercised by the company in general meeting, subject nevertheless to any regulation of these articles, to the provisions of the said Act, and to such regulations being not inconsistent with the aforesaid regulations or provisions, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting; but no regulation made by the company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if that regulation had not been made.

72. The directors may from time to time appoint one or more of their body to the office of managing director or manager for such term, and at such remuneration (whether by way of salary, or commission, or participation in profits, or partly in one way and partly in another) as they may think fit, and a director so appointed shall not, while holding that office, be subject to retirement by rotation, or taken into account in determining the rotation of retirement of directors, but his appointment shall be subject to determination ipso facto if he ceases from any cause to be a director, or if the company in general meeting resolve that his tenure of the office of managing director or manager be determined.

73. The amount for the time being remaining undischarged of moneys borrowed or raised by the directors for the purposes of the company (otherwise than by the issue of share capital) shall not at any time exceed the issued share capital of the company without the sanction of the company in general meeting.

74. The directors shall duly comply with the provisions of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force, and in particular with the provisions in regard to the registration of the particulars of mortgages and charges affecting the property of the company or created by it, and to keeping a register of the directors, and to sending to the registrar an annual list of members, and a summary of particulars relating thereto and notice of any consolidation or increase of share capital, or conversion of shares into stock, and copies of special resolutions and a copy of the register of directors and notifications of any changes therein.

If at any meeting at which an election of directors ought to take place the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the meeting shall stand adjourned till the same day in the next week at the same time and place, and, if at the adjourned meeting the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the vacating directors or such of them as have not had their places filled up shall be deemed to have been re-elected at the adjourned meeting.

83. The company may from time to time in general meeting increase or reduce the number of directors, and may also determine in what rotation the increased or reduced number is to go out of office.

84. Any casual vacancy occurring on the board of directors may be filled up by the directors, but the person so chosen shall be subject to retirement at the same time as if he had become a director on the day on which the director in whose place he is appointed was last elected a director.

85. The directors shall have power at any time, and from time to time, to appoint a person as an additional director who shall retire from office at the next following ordinary general meeting, but shall be eligible for election by the company at that meeting as an additional director.

86. The company may by extraordinary resolution remove any director before the expiration of his period of office, and may by an ordinary resolution appoint another person in his stead; the person so appointed shall be subject to retirement at the same time as if he had become a director on the day on which the director in whose place he is appointed was last elected a director.

Proceedings of Directors.

87. The directors may meet together for the despatch of business, adjourn and otherwise regulate their meetings, as they think fit. Questions arising at any meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes. In case of an equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. A director may, and the secretary on the requisition of a director shall, at any time, summon a meeting of directors.

88. The quorum necessary for the transaction of the business of the directors may be fixed by the directors, and unless so fixed shall (when the number of directors exceeds three) be three.

89. The continuing directors may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body, but, if and so long as their number is reduced below the number fixed by or pursuant to the regulations of the company as the necessary quorum of directors, the continuing directors may act for the purpose of increasing the number of directors to that number, or of summoning a general meeting of the company, but for no other purpose.

90. The directors may elect a chairman of their meetings and determine the period for which he is to hold office, but if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present within five minutes after the time appointed for holding the same, the directors present may choose one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

[illegible] directors may delegate any of their [illegible]ttees consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit; any committee so found shall, in the exercise of the powers so delegated, conform to any regulations that may be imposed on them by the directors.

92. A committee may elect a chairman of their meetings: if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present within five minutes after the time appointed for holding the same, the members present may choose one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

93. A committee may meet and adjourn as they think proper. Questions arising at any meeting shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present, and, in case of an equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

94. All acts done by any meeting of the directors or of a committee of directors, or by any person acting as a director, shall, notwithstanding that it be afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such directors or persons acting as aforesaid, or that they or any of them were disqualified, be as valid as if every such person had been duly appointed and was qualified to be a director.

Dividends and Reserve.

95. The company in general meeting may declare dividends, but no dividends shall exceed the amount recommended by the directors.

96. The directors may from time to time pay to the members such interim dividends as appear to the directors to be justified by the profits of the company.

97. No dividends shall be paid otherwise than out of profits.

98. Subject to the rights of persons (if any) entitled to shares with special rights as to dividends, all dividends shall be declared and paid according to the amounts paid on the shares, but if and so long as nothing is paid up on any of the shares in the company, dividends may be declared and paid according to the amounts of the shares. No amount paid on a share in advance of calls shall, while carrying interest, be treated for the purposes of this article as paid on the share.

99. The directors may, before recommending any dividend, set aside out of the profits of the company such sums as they think proper as a reserve or reserves which shall, at the discretion of the directors, be applicable for meeting contingencies, or for equalizing dividends, or for any other purpose to which the profits of the company may be properly applied, and pending such application may, at the like discretion, either be employed in the business of the company or be invested in such investments (other than shares of the company) as the directors may from time to time think fit.

100. If several persons are registered as joint-holders of any share, any one of them may give effectual receipts for any dividend payable on the share.

101. Notice of any dividend that may have been declared shall be given in manner hereinafter mentioned to the persons entitled to share therein.

102. No dividend shall bear interest against the company.

Accounts.

103. The directors shall cause true accounts to be kept—

(a) of the sums of money received and expended by the company, and the matter in respect of which such receipt and expenditure takes place; and

(b) of the assets and liabilities of the company.

104. The books of account shall be kept at the registered office of the company, or at such other place or places as the directors think fit, and shall always be open to the inspection of the directors.

105. The directors shall from time to time determine whether and to what extent and at what times and places and under what conditions or regulations the accounts and books of the company or any of them shall be open to the inspection of members not being directors, and no member (not being a director) shall have any right of inspecting any account or book or document of the company except as conferred by law or authorised by the directors or by the company in general meeting.

106. Once at least in every year the directors shall lay before the company in general meeting a profit and loss account for the period since the preceding account or (in the case of the first account) since the incorporation of the company, made up to a date not more than six months before such meeting.

107. The profit and loss account shall show, arranged under the most convenient heads, the amount of gross income, distinguishing the several sources from which it has been derived, and the amount of gross expenditure, distinguishing the expenses of the establishment, salaries and other like matters. Every item of expenditure fairly chargeable against the year's income shall be brought into account, so that a just balance of profit and loss may be laid before the meeting, and, in cases where any item of expenditure which may in fairness be distributed over several years has been incurred in any one year, the whole amount of such item shall be stated, with the addition of the reasons why only a portion of such expenditure is charged against the income of the year.

108. A balance-sheet shall be made out in every year and laid before the company in general meeting made up to a date not more than six months before such meeting. The balance-sheet shall be accompanied by a report of the directors as to the state of the company's affairs, and the amount which they recommend to be paid by way of dividend, and the amount (if any) which they propose to carry to a reserve fund.

109. A copy of the balance-sheet and report shall, seven days previously to the meeting, be sent to the persons entitled to receive notices of general meetings in the manner in which notices are to be given hereunder.

110. The directors shall in all respects comply with the provisions of sections 131 to 136 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or any statute modification thereof for the time being in force.

Audit.

111. Auditors shall be appointed and their dut regulated in accordance with sections 145 and 1 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or any sta tory modification thereof for the time being force.

ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION TO ACCOMPANY PRECEDING MEMORANDUM OF ASSOCIATION.

Number of Members.

1. The company for the purpose of registration is declared to consist of five hundred members.

2. The directors hereinafter mentioned may, whenever the business of the association requires it, register an increase of members.

Definition of Members.

3. Every person shall be deemed to have agreed to become a member of the company who insures any ship or share in a ship in pursuance of the regulations hereinafter contained.

General Meetings.

4. The first general meeting shall be held at such time, not being less than one month nor more than three months after the incorporation of the company, and at such place, as the directors may determine.

5. A general meeting shall be held once in every year at such time (not being more than fifteen months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting) and place as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, or, in default, at such time in the month following that in which the anniversary of the company's incorporation occurs, and at such place, as the directors shall appoint. In default of a general meeting being so held, a general meeting shall be held in the month next following, and may be called by any two members in the same manner as nearly as possible as that in which meetings are to be called by the directors.

6. The above-mentioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings; all other general meetings shall be called extraordinary.

7. The directors may, whenever they think fit, and shall, on a requisition made in writing by any five or more members, call an extraordinary general meeting.

8. Any requisition made by the members must state the object of the meeting proposed to be called, and must be signed by the requisitionists and deposited at the registered office of the company.

9. On receipt of the requisition the directors shall forthwith proceed to call a general meeting: if they do not proceed to cause a meeting to be held within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition being so deposited, the requisitionists or any other five members may themselves call a meeting.

Proceedings at General Meetings.

10. Fourteen days' notice at the least, specifying the place, the day and the hour of meeting, and in case of special business the general nature of the business, shall be given to the members in manner hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner (if any) as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting; but the non-receipt of such a notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting.

11. All business shall be deemed special that is transacted at an extraordinary meeting, and all that is transacted at an ordinary meeting, with the exception of the consideration of the accounts, balance-sheets and the ordinary report of the directors and auditors, the election of directors and other officers in the place of those retiring by rotation, and the fixing of remuneration of the auditors.

12. No business shall be transacted at any meeting except the declaration of a dividend, unless a quorum of members is present at the commencement of the business. The quorum shall be ascertained as follows (that is to say):— if the members of the company at the time of the meeting do not exceed ten in number, the quorum shall be five; if they exceed ten, there shall be added to the above quorum one for every five additional members with this limitation, that no quorum shall in any case exceed ten.

13. If within one hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum of members is not present, the meeting, if called on the requisition of the members, shall be dissolved; in any other case it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the following week at the same time and place; and if at such adjourned meeting a quorum of members is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

14. The chairman (if any) of the directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company.

15. If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present at the time of holding the same, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman of that meeting.

16. The chairman may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn the meeting from time to time and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place.

17. At any general meeting, unless a poll is demanded by at least three members, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has been carried, and an entry to that effect in the book of proceedings of the company, shall be conclusive evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against the resolution.

18. If a poll is demanded in manner aforesaid, the same shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of the poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the meeting at which the poll was demanded.

Votes of Members.

19. Every member shall have one vote and no more.

20. If any member is a lunatic or idiot, he may vote by his committee or other legal guardian.

21. No member shall be entitled to vote at any meeting unless all moneys due from him to the company have been paid.

22. On a poll votes may be given either personally or by proxy: Provided that no company shall vote by proxy as long as a resolution of its directors in accordance with the provisions of section 81 of the Indian Companies Act, 19*13*, is in force. A proxy shall be appointed in writing under the hand of the appointor, or, if such appointor is a corporation, under its common seal.

23. (1) No person shall act as a proxy unless he is a member, or unless he is appointed to act at the meeting as proxy for a corporation.

(2) The instrument appointing him shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than forty-eight hours before the time of holding the meeting at which he proposes to vote.

24. Any instrument appointing a proxy shall be in the following form:—

Company, Limited,

I, , of being a Member of the Company, Limited, hereby appoint of as my proxy, to vote for me and on my behalf at the [ordinary or extraordinary, as the case may be] general meeting of the company to be held on the day of and at any adjournment thereof.

Signed this day of Directors.

25. The number of the directors and the names of the first directors shall be determined by the subscribers of the memorandum of association.

26. Until directors are appointed, the subscribers of the memorandum of association shall, for all the purposes of the Indian Companies Act, 19*13*, be deemed to be directors.

Powers of Directors.

27. The business of the company shall be managed by the directors, who may exercise all such powers of the company as are not by the Indian Companies Act, 19*13*, or by any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force, or by these articles, required to be exercised by the company in general meeting; but no regulation made by the company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if that regulation had not been made.

Elections of Directors.

28. The directors shall be elected annually by the company in general meeting.

Business of Company.

(Here insert rules as to mode in which business of insurance is to be conducted.)

Audit.

29. Auditors shall be appointed and their duties regulated in accordance with sections 145 and 146 of the Indian Companies Act, 19*13*, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force, and for this purpose the said sections shall have effect as if the word "members" were substituted for "shareholders," and as if "first general meeting" were substituted for "statutory meeting."

Notices.

30. A notice may be given by the company to any member either personally, or by sending it by post to him to his registered address.

31. Where a notice is sent by post, service of the notice shall be deemed to be effected by properly addressing, prepaying and posting a letter containing the notice and, unless the contrary is proved, to have been effected at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

SPEECH OF THE HONOURABLE FINANCE MEMBER PRESENTING THE FINANCIAL STATEMENT FOR 1913-1914.

Speech of the Honourable Finance Member

INTRODUCING THE

FINANCIAL STATEMENT FOR 1913-14.

Introductory.

I rise to present the Financial Statement for 1913-14. For the information of those Members who are new to the Council, I may state briefly the procedure to be followed. To-day there will be no debate, but beginning with the 7th March dates will be allotted for the detailed examination of my proposals and the discussion of any Resolutions that may be moved regarding them. Subsequently I shall have to consider what modifications are necessary, either in the light of our discussions or of later information which may become available. The Budget in its final form will be presented on the 20th and the final debate will begin on 24th March.

2. This is the fifth occasion on which the duty has fallen on me of reviewing the finances of India, and it is my good fortune that for a third time I am in a position to bear witness to the material well-being of this country. A year ago I framed my estimates on the assumption of a year of normal seasons and trade, and promising as the outlook may be, that is, in my judgment, the most favourable assumption which in the circumstances of India can be made with prudence. In looking back now over a period, the happenings of which it was then my duty to forecast, I shall have to describe a large improvement on our original estimates. The year that is drawing to a close has proved to be one of prosperity and of plenty, the results of which have easily outrun anticipations consistent with the principle of caution which I have suggested as necessary in our financial prognostications. But there is a shadow in the financial sunshine. While contemplating the general prospects a year ago as excellent, I said the uncertainties of the opium revenue still hung over us. The difficulties which I had then in mind have since then become acute, and we are faced with a loss of revenue which affects materially our financial arrangements in the coming year.

3. I propose in the first place to sketch the main features, agricultural and commercial, of the current year. The year opened well, for the winter rains, beginning in January, had been normal and timely, and the only thorn on the harvest rose was the distress in Kathiawar and some parts of Bombay, where famine, due to insufficient rainfall in the preceding year, had been declared. In the hot weather the auguries were unfavourable. A series of disturbances of the cold weather type continued to pass into India, delaying the establishment of the usual hot weather conditions, and in May there was an almost complete absence on the west coast of the irruptions of ocean winds which herald the advance of the monsoon. Thus the rains were late in beginning and were not established fully in the interior until the 10th of July. Their duration also was unusually short. In September they were very fitful, and they retreated from Northern and Central India a fortnight before the usual date. Stated in this way the history of the most important months in the year from the agricultural point of view may seem disappointing. For four weeks however from the time when it spread over Northern India the monsoon continued in abnormal vigour and yielded abundant rain. A beneficial break of ten days followed, and in the end of August and beginning of September the rain bearing currents again spread over India. For India as a whole the rainfall was little below normal, and, what is of more importance it was well distributed, no tract showing a very large deficiency. It is true that in Bengal and the eastern districts of the United Provinces, the early close of the rains was the cause of no little damage, specially to the rice crop and in portions of the Bombay Deccan the want of rain was severely felt. But there is never a monsoon that can be said without reservation to satisfy our ideals. At the end of November a rain bearing depression, which may justly be termed providential, traversed precisely those parts of the country where rain was needed. In the Bombay Presidency famine relief continued till October, and in three districts small numbers of people are still in receipt of gratuitous relief. In the United Provinces scarcity has been experienced in Mirzapur and a part of the Domains of the Maharaja of Benares, but with small exceptions the retrospect agriculturally is satisfactory. For the winter season we may now anticipate an auspicious close. December, January and two weeks in February went by with scarcely a cloud, and we were beginning to despond when the atmospheric conditions changed and the rain was sent to us, welcome all the more because it had been so long delayed.

4. From the cause, in the seasons, we may turn to the effect in the harvests. The wheat crop of 1911 constituted a record which it would be difficult to equal; but the crop of 1912, if inferior to its predecessor, was in respect both of area and outturn very greatly better than the normal; in the United Provinces, one of the two chief wheat-producing provinces, the outturn indeed exceeded even the harvest of 1911. Rice had also been good; whilst of the other export staples, cotton had on the whole a favourable season except in parts of the Bombay Presidency and Hyderabad, and its total outturn was estimated at no less than 40 per cent. better than in the preceding year. The area under sugarcane has increased and the outturn is expected to be good; whilst jute has also shown considerable improvement. This year's rice crop has suffered to some extent in parts of Bengal and the United Provinces, but elsewhere the season has been not unfavourable and the outturn, though not up to that of 1911-12, should be considerably above the normal average of preceding years.

5. From this review of the agricultural reports I proceed to consider in the trade returns a more definite and statistical test of the year's prosperity. The results are striking. The value of our exports, I said last year, had been the highest on record, but the merchandise we have sent abroad between April and December 1912 exceeded in value by 17½ crores the corresponding exports of 1911. There was a considerable falling off in the case of linseed and raw cotton, but a great trade was done in grain, wheat, rice and barley; the exports of jute increased by 3 crores, and of hides and skins by 1½ crores Nor was the improvement only in raw material; there was a very substantial advance in jute fabrics, in cotton twist and yarn and in tea. How the balance of trade was adjusted I shall show later on. At present I am concerned with merchandise, and under this head I note that our imports also in nine months have exceeded those of the previous year by 14¾ crores. In 1911-12 imports were active in April and May and then eased off in the ensuing four months, as if waiting, I said, upon the monsoon. In 1912-13 the same general tendency is observable; but the activity of April and May was greater and the comparative slackness in the following months less marked than in the preceding year. In the commodities for which we indented on other countries in exchange for our exports, half the increase roughly consisted of textile materials and fabrics generally, and piece-goods in particular; but there have been large increases also of sugar, hardware, machinery, iron and steel and railway plant. Combining both the inward and outward currents of trade, the value of our total seaborne commerce in merchandise during the first nine months of the year amounted to some 296 crores as against 264 crores in the preceding record year. The range of prices has doubtless been high, but I do not know that it is higher than in the preceding year, or consequently that the comparison I have drawn is misleading as an indication of the volume of trade. We know at any rate that railway traffic has been extremely active and on every side there are plain indications of a continuance of the progress and prosperity of the country.

Revised Estimate of 1912-13.

6. The effect of the conditions I have outlined is written large across our figures. The Budget for the current year was prepared for a revenue, Imperial and Provincial together, of £79¼ millions; according to the latest revision of the estimate we now anticipate that we shall receive £87 millions, an improvement of £7⅝ millions, of which £5 millions will be secured from Opium and Railways The aggregate expenditure we think will exceed by only £171,000 that provided in the Budget. Of the net improvement, as will appear even from the figure I have just given for Opium and Railways, the great bulk has accrued in the Imperial account. Out of our revenues however we have distributed large grants to Provinces. After allowing for these grants, the surplus we retain is £3,362,000 as against a surplus anticipated in the Budget of £1,478,000.

Opium Revenue.

7. The position in regard to opium is as follows. The trade with China in Indian opium is governed by the agreement of 8th May 1911, the object of which was to assist the suppression of opium smoking in China by cutting off gradually the Indian supply. The trade, it was contemplated, would cease in 1917; but provision was made for its earlier termination on proof of the extinction of production in China of the indigenous drug. The taxation of foreign and native opium was to be equalised. All restrictions on the wholesale trade in our opium were to be withdrawn, but the stipulations of the Treaty were not to derogate from the force of any ordinances then existing, or which the Chinese Government might in future pass to regulate the retail trade or suppress opium smoking. The Manchu Government gave convincing proof of its sincerity and of its ability to enforce anti-opium measures, and several of the Chinese Provinces were under the terms of the Treaty closed to Indian opium. With the revolution there was undoubtedly a recrudescence of poppy cultivation and an unwarranted interference with the trade in Indian opium. Presently however the central Government asserted itself. Not only were Presidential decrees issued enacting the severest penalties against opium cultivation, but it was ordained that opium smoking was to cease entirely by a given date. The campaign against cultivation had extended to a campaign against consumption.

8. The policy of the Government of India has throughout been correct and simple. We had in our agreement with China a programme of sales from year to year and we have adhered to it. Yet we have had strong inducements to vary our course. The operations of the Chinese authorities would frequently have justified us in denouncing the Treaty or declining to make the further reductions of sales for which the Treaty provided. We were sincerely anxious however to help China towards a great reform. We have not insisted on the letter of the law. None the less we have steadily resisted pressure which from time to time has been brought to bear on us to effect reductions in our sale programme which would have been arbitrary and premature. Applications for the suspension of sales are no new feature in the opium trade. We were familiar with them before any restrictions were placed on exports to China, and their object was obviously to confer the advantages of a strict monopoly on those who happened at the time to be in the possession of opium. This we have properly and consistently refused to do. The action of the Republican Government in China, however, created an entirely new situation. It stopped the outlet for Indian opium. As soon as the situation declared itself, I went to Bombay and met the opium merchants, whose frank and forcible presentation of their case I wish to acknowledge. I made myself thoroughly acquainted with the whole outlook. The representations of the merchants were confirmed by the course which events had taken. In Shanghai and Hongkong which are the markets of our opium in China, trade was reported to be at a standstill. There were no sales or deliveries, and in India at the December auction the price of Malwa opium had dropped to Rs. 722 a chest as against Rs. 1,666 obtained in November and Rs. 2,443 in August.

9. The situation was radically different from any with which we had as yet been called on to deal, and the Government of India took prompt action. With the sanction of the Secretary of State we did four things. The sales of opium for China could not be stopped immediately, as a variation in the programme of the year cannot be made without three months' notice, but we suspended sales from the earliest date which this condition allows. Meanwhile we imposed an upset price which practically resulted in an immediate suspension of such sales. We reduced the quantity of opium to be sold in 1913 for export to non-China markets with the desire to reduce smuggling into China. And lastly, though we had no obligation in the matter, we agreed to buy from the Malwa States the amount of opium by which their exports to China in 1913 may in consequence of this decision fall short of the number of chests which had been assigned to them in our programme.

10. So much for the past. The Government of India clearly have had to deal with a situation created for them and for which they were not responsible. All that it was in their power to do has been done by them. For the future neither I nor anyone else can prophesy, but we cannot conceal from ourselves that China has set herself a task which experience proves to be one of the greatest difficulty—the enforcement of a morality possibly too advanced for popular acceptance. We have dealt generously with China and we have a claim on her for fair treatment. Her reputation for probity stands high among the nations. The Chinaman's word, it is said, is his bond. The new Republican Government, which has yet to establish its position in its own country and in the world at large, will doubtless be jealous in a peculiar degree of its honour and will be actuated by the same spirit of equity and fair dealing which has characterised the policy of the Government of India.

11. In the current year the effect of these events on our revenues has been comparatively small. In the case of Malwa opium I may explain that our receipts consist of a share, first of a fixed pass duty, and secondly of the amounts bid at the auctions for the right of export. For the payment of these bids the merchants are allowed three months' grace, so that the proceeds of sale subsequent to December would in any case have been credited in the coming financial year. As far as the current year is concerned, the revenue from sales of certified opium in January-March would not have exceeded £400,000. On the other hand, as I have said, in earlier months prices were exceedingly high, and the results for the year as a whole are accordingly much above the Budget estimate. The improvement in fact under Bengal opium has been £1,198,000 and under Malwa opium £224,000. This portion of our revenues we propose to treat exactly as in previous years. To enable us to deal systematically with our opium windfalls we fixed in advance some time ago a series of standard figures to represent year by year the revenue which we might expect from our diminishing trade under normal conditions; so much was to be treated as current revenue, while the surplus revenue received, if any, was to be specially treated. For the current year the standard figure is £3,600,000. Our actual revenue is likely to be £5,063,000, so that there is an excess of £1,463,000. Of this sum two-thirds will be retained in our surplus for the discharge of temporary sterling debt. The discharge of India Bills, of which £4½ millions were still outstanding at the time of the last Financial Statement, has been completed; but we have to pay off next year £1¼ millions railway debentures and meet an instalment of £500,000 for the discharge of short-term bonds. The remaining third, which amounts to about £460,000, we propose to distribute in grants for hostels and universities.

Ordinary Revenue.

12. Having reviewed the opium position, I pass to a consideration of our ordinary revenue. Excluding opium, the improvement shown on a comparison with the Budget is £6,191,000, the great bulk of which has been contributed by the railways. In making my estimate under this head, I was cautious and it would ill-befit, in my judgment, a Finance Minister in this country to be otherwise; but I think the most irresponsible critic would have hesitated to predict that the development of traffic would prove so enormous as to constitute a crisis in railway management. The gross earnings have been almost £4½ millions above the estimate. The net improvement is less, because, we have had, of course, to distribute more in the shape of surplus profits paid to companies, and because working expenses have naturally increased. Against the £4½ millions growth in earnings however the increase in working expenses has not been more than £600,000. The percentage of working expenses has been brought down to 49·3, which is a lower figure than has been shown for the last five years. The net receipts are £3⅝ millions better than the Budget. Apart from railways therefore, I have to account for an improvement of £2½ millions. Over a million of this improvement has been secured under the purely Imperial heads of Customs, Mint, Post Office and Telegraph, and Exchange. Under Customs, I find that out of a total increase of £586,000, £353,000 are accounted for under cotton manufactures, manufactured articles and export duties; the first two heads showing the influence of a prosperous year, while under the third the rise in revenue was due to a large demand for rice from other countries, which led to exports not only from Burma but from Bengal. Silver, the imports of which were heavy throughout the year, brought us about £160,000 more than we had anticipated and the revenue derived from sugar was also high. Of a large increase of £326,000 under Mint, the greater part is due to the resumption of rupee coinage, which could not be allowed for in the Budget. Before the profits on coinage are transferred to the Gold Standard Reserve, a charge is made for manufacture, which is credited to the Mint, and the sum thus shown in the current year is £214,000. Finally, so far as these Imperial heads are concerned, the Post Office and Telegraph Department has given us £118,000 more than our forecast, as the result no doubt of active trade and general prosperity, and the same general conditions have credited us with £109,000 under the head of Exchange. Under the shared heads of Stamps and Excise, we have divided with the Provinces an increased revenue of nearly £450,000 and Irrigation receipts also have been better in the aggregate by £142,000.

13. The description I have given of the improvement in our revenues will have impressed on the Council the fact that much the greater portion of it has accrued in the Imperial account. We do not propose however to retain all that has come to us; we intend to make the provinces partners in our good fortune. The distribution of my surplus has given me much anxious thought. I have a large sum of money to dispose of; we are unlikely to have again, for some time, a margin anything like so large as in the present year, and it is all the more necessary to be careful in the distribution of what is in our hands. I state the principle of our decisions very briefly. There are certain relatively small requirements which we intend to meet; but the bulk of the money will go in grants to secure a steady progress in education and sanitation, an object which has the support of both official and non-official opinion. We propose to make the following distribution of funds:—

2½ crores for non-recurring expenditure on education.
1½ crores for urban sanitation.
30 lakhs to Burma for communications.
20 lakhs to Assam for development.
1 crore in aid of general provincial resources.

The last mentioned grant will be distributed at the rate of 12 lakhs to each of the larger Provinces, and 8 lakhs each for the smaller Administrations, and will not be earmarked for any one purpose. It will be devoted to such schemes as each Local Government may deem to be most necessary in view of varying and special requirements. Our ability to make these grants secures important advantages. From the Imperial point of view, they are an anticipation of future liabilities. We have those demands; we might in ordinary course meet them over a more extended period; but we may well doubt whether in the next few years we shall have funds available for distribution, and we take the opportunity, which fortunately presents itself, of paying our contribution in advance. From the point of view of the Provinces, there is a great gain in stability; they are secured in the prosecution of improvements of the most important kind against the fluctuations of Imperial finance. They are, we are assured, ready for the distribution. The great attention which has been paid in recent years to the needs of sanitation and education has led to a systematic review of requirements and preparation of projects generally. So long as there is uncertainty as to the amount that will be available from year to year, progress must be fitful and uneconomical. But now, when they find themselves secured in the possession of substantial sums, the Provinces will be able to make out and adhere to well-considered programmes of development and the systematic application of funds which will thus be possible will certainly make for economy and efficiency.

Expenditure.

14. About the expenditure of the current year I have little to say. I have already mentioned that in the aggregate it is £171,000 more than in the Budget. Provinces have spent £171,000 less than they anticipated, but there is an increase of £342,000 in Imperial charges. The Provincial decrease is accounted for by the inability of Local Governments to spend the full amounts provided. In the Imperial section the important variations are increases of £398,000 under Civil Works and £570,000 under Military services. The rise in Civil Works charges is accounted for by the debit, to the revenue head, of the construction of temporary accommodation for the Government of India at Delhi. In the Military estimates, the additions have been of an obligatory nature; for instance, the increased outlay on food supplies caused by higher prices, the cost of surveys on the North-East Frontier, larger expenditure on the arms traffic operations in the Persian Gulf, and similar items. On the other hand the special allotment made for protective irrigation works outside the Famine Insurance Grant has not been used and there is a large decrease of £480,000 shown under the Education head. This decrease however is nominal. In the Budget a reserve of £528,000 was entered under this head for subsequent distribution. As the distribution has proceeded, grants have been made by assignments diminishing Imperial revenues, and Imperial expenditure has been correspondingly reduced.

Delhi Expenditure.

15. I have completed my review of the current year and proceed to an explanation of the Budget for the ensuing year; but before I do so, there is one subject on which I wish to say a few words, and that is Delhi expenditure. In the discussion which took place in the Council last year, I gave an undertaking that this expenditure would be separately and carefully accounted for, and I own to a feeling of surprise and some indignation that suggestions should subsequently have been made, and they have been made, that the Government of India would countenance a departure from the pledge then given. It is evident that all expenditure of whatever kind connected with the transfer of the Imperial capital to Delhi, could not conveniently or properly be brought under a single head in our accounts. There is, for instance, the administrative expenditure of the new Imperial Province which must be accounted for in appropriate sections as on account of police, law and justice, and so on. Again we have to build a new cantonment, the cost of which can with propriety be shown only in the Military Estimates. Similarly if a diversion of a railway line is found necessary, it must be charged to Railways. The cost of our temporary buildings further, as I have already mentioned, we have charged, under the advice of the Comptroller General, to the revenue expenditure head, Civil Works, and not to the new head of capital expenditure which we have opened for the new Imperial City. I make this explanation because I am anxious that there should be no possibility of misconception on the subject, and I would add that, while the expenditure has of necessity been entered under more than one head in the accounts, care has been taken to make it readily available by prescribing that in each case it should be kept apart under a sub-head of its own. I have arranged further, for the convenience of Hon'ble Members, that all the relevant items of expenditure should be brought together in a comprehensive pro formâ account, and this arrangement will be continued year by year so long as it may be necessary. The form of this account and details regarding it will be found in the memorandum by the Financial Secretary, and I need only mention that the cost of temporary Delhi in the current year will probably be just under 50 lakhs. The discussion of the numerous questions of the first importance involved in the inception of a task of such magnitude has delayed the beginning of the permanent city, and the amount charged to the capital head in the current year is only £155,000, which represents for the most part the cost of land acquisition. We shall soon be in a position however to proceed with the work energetically, and Honourable Members will find that a provision of 2 crores has been made in the capital account for this purpose in the ensuing year.

Budget Estimate for 1913-14.

16. I now come to a new page in our financial history and open the Budget for the year 1913-14. It will be clear that in one matter of grave importance our position has been weakened since I had to undertake the same task a year ago. I referred on that occasion to the uncertainties of our opium revenue; but now we are face to face with a calculation of actual loss. As regards our other sources of revenue, I do not propose to depart from the principle, which I consider to be the right one, of cautious estimating. Indeed it might be said that with every year of prosperity the probability of an approaching reversal of fortune, of unfavourable seasons and trade depression, increases, and that the need for caution is greater therefore now than on previous occasions when I have laid my Budget before the Council. At the same time I have no intention whatever of letting my estimates be influenced by vague forebodings. I hold to what I said two years ago, namely, that in Indian budgeting the only reasonable rule of conduct is to assume that a period of prosperity, once it is established, will continue until we have some clear warning of impending change. At present, apart from opium, our prospects are bright, and in making my estimates I have given full weight to this consideration. Proceeding with these principles in my mind, the calculations I have made give for next year a probable revenue in the aggregate, Imperial and Provincial, of £82,322,000. The aggregate expenditure for which provision is made is £83,850,000. There is thus a difference of £1,528,000, which is distributed in this manner; there will according to our anticipations be an Imperial surplus of £1,311,000, but a deficit of £2,839,000 in Provincial Budgets.

Revenue.

17. I proceed to state the salient facts and figures which lead up to these general results, and in the forefront must be put our opium revenue. Circumstanced as we are to-day, it would be out of the question to build on any anticipations of revenue from certified opium in the coming year. I will not despair of a revival in the opium trade which would restore to us in whole or in part the loss which at present faces us; but it would be wrong, as matters stand, to take into account and make available for expenditure any revenue the receipt of which is so problematical. Further the sales of uncertified opium in the present calendar year have been reduced from 13,200 to 9,000 chests. Accordingly all that I can budget for under the opium head is the value of 9,000 chests of uncertified opium at the moderate price of

Rs. 1,800 per chest or £1,080,000 plus £365,000 for excise and miscellaneous receipts, or a total of £1,445,000. The decrease, as compared with the probable receipts of the present year, is no less than £3,618,000.

18. In the next place, as one of the dominant factors in our Imperial finance, I turn to railways. We are increasing the working expenses next year by £½ million in view of a larger Railway programme, which involves some addition to revenue as well as to capital expenditure, but against this increase on the expenditure side has to be set a decrease of a quarter of a million under payments of surplus profits, which is the result chiefly of the adoption of the financial in place of the calendar year for the distribution. As regards Railway revenue, my estimate is possibly optimistic; it is that the gross receipts in 1913-14 will be £36,754,000 as against the £37,067,000 which we hope to obtain in the current year. In arriving at this estimate I have attempted to hold the balance even between two sets of considerations. No doubt if the present wave of prosperity lifts us a little higher, my estimate will be exceeded. On the other hand the net railway revenue of the current year, according to our estimates, will be £2⅓ millions above the revenue of 1911-12; there was an improvement of £2 millions in 1911-12, as compared with 1910-11 and the figure of 1910-11 was nearly £1½ millions higher than the figure of 1909-10. We may well ask whether the curve is going any higher. When a time of depression comes, there will be a very different tale to tell. In 1907-08 there was a drop of about £½ million, in 1908-09 a drop of £2½ millions. It is easy to be wise after the event, and should fortune once more favour us you may say I was unduly cautious. But I claim to be judged by present prospects, and on the facts I have put before you I am of opinion that no prudent minister would frame an estimate higher than that which I have indicated.

19. An item which requires special mention is the abolition of the appropriations at present made from the land cess in certain provinces. The matter is one which I shall have to explain in some detail, but for the moment, dealing with the revenue account I note that the effect will be that the receipts in 1913-14 under provincial rates and contributions from district boards will be £557,000 less than in the current year.

20. Apart from Opium and Railways, and the appropriations just mentioned, the improvement in revenue which I anticipate is £105,000. The amount would be larger, but for certain reductions which are forced upon me. I cannot arrange for our capital expenditure without a large reduction of our balances, and the estimate of interest receipts in consequence is diminished by £177,000. Again the Mint receipts go down in my forecast by £291,000 because I cannot repeat the item which appears in the accounts of the current year for seigniorage on coinage of rupees. Under Customs also I am bound to take into consideration the rise in the price of silver as likely to affect imports, and, guided by the experience of years when the price was equally high, I must reduce the estimate of receipts from the duty on silver by £160,000. The exports of rice further in the current year have been very large, and a normal estimate for 1913-14 gives a decrease of £102,000 under export duties. Under other heads however I have raised the estimate of customs receipts by £140,000, which is as much as the advance in revenue in the last two years will justify. In other departments also, I take recent experience as my guide, and I advance the revenue from Post Office and Telegraph by £151,000, from Excise by £243,000 and from Stamps by £136,000. Land Revenue also is likely to give about £155,000 more in the aggregate, in consequence chiefly of better collections in Bombay. The result of these and other less important variations is an improvement of £248,000 in the Provincial account and a deterioration of £143,000 in the Imperial account. But we propose from Imperial revenues to make grants, which I shall presently describe, to Provinces amounting to £1,198,000. This compares with non-recurring grants we are making this year of £4,545,000. Thus to sum up, the Imperial revenue account will be £3,618,000 worse under Opium; £594,000 worse under Railways; and £143,000 worse under other heads; while alienations of revenue will be £3,347,000 less. On the whole there is a deterioration of about one million.

Expenditure.

21. The aggregate expenditure I advance from £79,604,000 in 1912-13 to £83,850,000 in 1913-14. The provinces anticipate that they will spend £3,203,000 more than in the current year, the great bulk of the increase being accounted for under education, sanitation and public works. In the Imperial section there appears an increase of £1,043,000. More than half of this increase is accounted for by the expenditure of £560,000 which we propose to incur for the purchase of Malwa opium. Under Civil Departments we have added £132,000 for so much of the grants which we are making for education and other beneficial objects as we need for Imperial outlay in minor administrations or as a reserve for subsequent distribution. A sum of £109,000 has been allotted for Protective Irrigation works outside the Famine Insurance grant. There is an increased provision of £131,000 under Post Office and Telegraph which is due for the most part to the requirements of wireless stations. The administration of the Province of Delhi will, we think, involve an increased expenditure of £60,000. In view of various urgent projects we have agreed to raise the grant for Imperial Civil works by £189,000, but there is a decrease of £300,000 under temporary buildings for Delhi.

Grants to Provinces.

22. The grants for education, relief of cess and other beneficial services, which I have mentioned, are not the least interesting feature in the Budget. When presenting the Financial Statement last year, I said that as in view of expenditure on the new capital at Delhi we should now have three sections in our annual capital programme instead of two, we might reasonably enlarge the conventional figure of a crore which we have generally endeavoured to secure as our revenue surplus. In spite of the loss of opium revenue I find myself in a position to follow this policy, and I have framed my Budget on the basis of a 2 crore Imperial surplus. In spite of the loss of opium revenue, I find it is possible not only to avoid the imposition of new taxation, not only to maintain the present standard of expenditure but to provide a substantial contribution to meet the ever-growing needs of the country. Those needs are multifarious; some are conspicuous and urgent. Education and Sanitation are twins of a phenomenal development. There is agriculture. There is the question of medical attendance and relief. Last but not least, unless we ignore the political organization of the country, there is the development of local self-government. For these interests, we have made due provision. We allot 1 crore for recurring expenditure on education and sanitation, distributing 85 lakhs to the major provinces, assigning 7 lakhs as Imperial expenditure and retaining a reserve of 8 lakhs. We add 10 lakhs to the provision for agricultural expenditure; we allot 10 lakhs for medical relief,—15⅓ out of these 20 lakhs being distributed among the major provinces. These grants require no explanation and I would only say that the recurring grant for education supplements and adds to the value of the large non-recurring grant for the same purpose which we are giving in the current year.

23. Finally we propose to make assignments to Local Governments to enable them to forego the amounts which at present are appropriated for Provincial use from the cess on land. This matter requires explanation. The cess I have mentioned is levied in all Provinces generally at the rate of 5 or 6¼ per cent. on annual value. In Bombay, Madras and the Central Provinces the entire proceeds go to Local Boards. In Bengal and Bihar, however, a one-anna cess is divided into two half-anna portions and while one of these, the "road cess," goes to District Boards the other, the "public works cess" is credited to Government. In the Punjab and the North-West Frontier Province, District Boards have to make a contribution of nearly 20 per cent. of the land cess to Provincial revenues for "General services." In the United Provinces also there are large appropriations though they have a different form in the two portions of the Province. In Agra there is a land cess of 5 per cent. of which about a third is taken by the Local Government to cover the cost of rural police; in Oudh the general cess which goes to District Boards is at the rate of 2½ per cent. only of the annual value while a rate of 3 per cent. is levied separately on account of the cost of village police. The Council will remember that last year a resolution was moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale recommending the appointment of a Committee to enquire into the resources of local bodies. I had to oppose that resolution because the appointment of a Committee did not appear to be necessary or desirable; but I made it plain that the object of the resolution was one with which Government were in accord. The development and encouragement of Local Self-Government is indeed an object as to the desirability of which all are agreed, and it is with this object in view that we desire to increase their resources by abolishing the appropriations which I have mentioned. The consequence however of this abolition will be a loss to Provincial revenues which Local Governments cannot themselves sustain, and I therefore will make them assignments. The manner in which we proceed is as follows. The Local Governments while they take with the one hand appropriations from Local Boards as I have described, with the other hand give them certain subventions. Certain of these subventions, such as those made out of the Imperial grant for primary education will continue to be made to the Boards; others of a general nature which are at present required to provide a sufficient income for certain Boards will be resumed. In Oudh a special adjustment will be necessary; the 3 per cent. village police cess will be abolished and a general cess of 5 per cent. imposed at the same rate as in Agra. Allowing for this modification the net loss to Provinces and consequently the amount we have to make good to them will be in Bengal 25 lakhs, in Bihar 23 lakhs, in the United Provinces 29½ lakhs and in the Punjab 2 lakhs, a total of nearly 79½ lakhs or £530,000. In deciding on the measure which I have now detailed to the Council we have, I consider, given a very substantial proof of our interest in local self-government. Last year in the debate on the resources of local bodies I mentioned the surprising way in which Mr. Gokhale plants seeds of policy which come to quick maturity, and I likened those to the mango seeds of the Indian juggler which covered for a little time from view astonish us presently with the appearance of trees bearing not only leaves, not only buds and flowers, but a goodly crop of wholesome fruit. If I may vary the figure, I should say that the Government of India have their orchards to the cultivation of which they give their best endeavours. Like all gardens these have their disappointments, their inexplicable failures; but none the less some of the crops are good. The present is a goodly basket, as an Indian gentleman might say "from our own garden;" and it contains something more substantial than a Committee.

Military Services.

24. The expenditure for five years is shown in the following table:—

	Gross.					Net.
	Army.	Marine.	Military Works.	Special Defences.	Total.	All Military heads.
1909-10 . . .	18,901,181	461,157	858,342	28,604	20,249,284	19,112,323

25. As stated last year, the Military expenditure of 1912-13 as originally estimated was fixed at a figure below that of any year since 1903-04. After the estimates were closed it became essential to place an order in England for a large number of rifles which has led to an additional payment of £155,000 during the current year. The National Insurance Act involved a payment not in the estimate of about £15,000 on account of the British soldiers serving in India. The demand for working parties of troops in connection with the survey operations in progress on the North-East Frontier entailed unforeseen expenditure amounting to £54,000. The Arms Traffic operations proved more costly by £15,000 than was expected. The prices of food and forage have risen, in spite of the favourable harvests of the year, and account for an increase of roundly £174,000. In view of the favourable financial conditions of the year, additional funds to the extent of about £127,000 were also given to place the army transport on a more satisfactory footing; to allow of the commencement of a reserve of fodder; and for advancing works in progress and for the purchase of stores. The aggregate excess expected is £540,900, the bulk of which has arisen from unforeseen demands and the rise in rates of food and forage.

26. In the coming year there will again be a heavy bill for special services. Provision is made for the continuance of the Arms Traffic operations at a cost of £166,700. The winding up charges connected with the working parties employed on the North-East Frontier are expected to amount to £33,300. On the other hand, the expected retention of Indian troops in China and Persia will continue to effect a saving.

27. Apart from all this, it has been necessary, in framing the military estimates of 1913-14, to take into account the fact that the temporary economies in ordinary expenditure amounting to £101,000, effected in the current year, cannot be repeated next year; and that the National Insurance Act introduces a new annual charge of £21,500. A larger provision of £186,600 for ordinary Home stores has been found necessary, owing to surplus stocks having been largely worked off, higher prices ruling for metals, and to the advance purchases of such stores in 1911-12 not being repeated in the current year.

28. The Schedule grant for 1913-14, amounting to £737,700, shows an increase of £217,600 as compared with the figure adopted in the current year, but it includes £119,000 to meet the final payments on account of the extra rifles which had to be ordered this year, and £106,700 for the acquisition of land and the commencement of building operations in connection with the new military cantonment at Delhi. The balance of the grant will be applied mainly to meeting the primary requirements of the army in the matter of guns, bayonets, swords and accoutrements, and to the continuance of building works in progress, notably in the direction of improving the accommodation of Indian troops. Provision is made on a modest scale for the inception of military aviation in India.

29. In respect of the permanent economies mentioned last year, a further saving has been effected by the disbandment of the Deoli and Erinpura cavalry squadrons. The question of army expenditure generally has been under the consideration of the Army in India Committee, presided over by Field-Marshal Lord Nicholson. Their report, which is expected shortly, will deal with the possibility of effecting further economies in military expenditure. The report of the Committee which examined the question of marine expenditure is still under consideration. The final result is an increase of the net military budget by £552,300 as compared with the current year's budget.

Railways.

30. I have already given in the revenue account some of the more important Railway figures. The results of the present year are remarkable. In 1912-13 we expect the return on the capital at charge to be 5·89 per cent. against 4·48 which was the percentage in 1909-10. If we take the railway revenue account as a whole and set the interest charges, the annuities, sinking fund payments and minor debits, such as cost of land and surveys, against the net earnings, we show a surplus of £5,616,000, the highest in the history of our Indian railways.

31. What I am now especially concerned with is the railway capital account, and I give therefore the figures of railway capital expenditure during the last five years and compare them with the estimate for next year:—

	1908-09	1909-10.	1910-11.	1911-12.	1912-13, Revised.	1913-14, Budget.
	£	£	£	£	£	£

(a) Started in previous years . .	1,366,200	1,482,962	2,055,264	2,403,853	2,781,400	1,875,400
(b) Started in current year . .	146,130	369,291	387,821	452,150	69,900	...
	10,045,071	8,384,694	7,445,928	7,914,393	10,214,100	12,000,000

32. The figures to which I invite special attention are these. The expenditure on capital account in the three years 1909-10 to 1911-12 averaged rather less than £8 millions. In the current year we budgeted originally for a railway programme of £9 millions. In the course of the year however we were able to increase the provision to £10½ millions out of an increase in our balances and other improvements. For the coming year I propose to draw somewhat heavily on our ample balances and am in consequence able to advance the railway programme for 1913-14 to £12 millions.

33. This proves, I think, that I am not unsympathetic on the question of railways. I recognise fully their immense significance as an instrument of general progress, their necessity for the development of trade, their growing and indeed momentous importance to the finances of India; but in this, my last Financial Statement, I cannot refrain from a word of warning. In spite of the reckless utterances of obviously interested critics, I continue to deprecate any departure from a policy of the utmost caution in the matter of Railway Finance. It may be that in the future it will be possible to give more scope to private enterprise and increase through its agency the funds available for railway construction, but for the present I have to regard railways as a strictly business proposition. Our responsibility is all the greater now that they have attained a position of supreme importance in our financial system. It is said that the remunerative character of our railways is beyond question, that our railways are the milch cow of the Government of India, and that I am ungrateful. But what is the position? We are paying in the London market very nearly 4 per cent. for what we borrow. I bear in mind that in the current year the railways have paid us 5·89 per cent. But last year the return was 4·99 per cent., in 1910-11 it was 4·66 per cent., in 1909-10 it was 4·48 per cent.; even in good years in the present state of the money market the margin is a narrow one. Let me remind you that so recently as in 1908-09 our railway system was worked at a net loss to the State. I said at that time that we must never allow our railways to become again, even temporarily, a net burden on the general taxpayer. I repeat that assertion. As matters stand we have in our railways a splendid asset. Let us safeguard that asset. Any admission of doubtful schemes, or failure to count in each case the full cost, any disregard of financial considerations will surely lead to deterioration of a most serious character.

34. I urge that nothing be agreed to in the future which may weaken a position which is essential to the financial prosperity of India and to all the interests which that prosperity serves.

Irrigation.

35. The financial position of our great irrigation undertakings may be gathered at a glance from this table which I present and which brings up to date the information given in previous Financial Statements.

36. On the 31st March 1912, 58,534 miles of main and branch canals and distributaries had been constructed, and by the end of the current year a mileage of 59,000 is expected, commanding over 48½ million acres of culturable land of which probably 23 million acres will actually be irrigated within the year. The net profit according to our anticipations on productive works will be £1,793,300, the net return on capital outlay being 8·81 per cent. or if works still under construction are excluded 10·27 per cent.

37. In addition to the canals in operation there are 59 projects which are either under construction, awaiting sanction or being examined by the professional advisers of the Government. Of these six are Minor Works. The Major Works of which 28 are productive and 25 protective, are designed to irrigate nearly 13 million acres at a total capital cost of about £45 millions, the yield anticipated on the productive works being 7·17 per cent.

38. Of the projects brought forward from the preceding year, I may first refer to the Punjab triple project. The progress of this great work is stated to be satisfactory. The Upper Chenab Canal was opened for irrigation by His Excellency the Viceroy on the 12th April 1912. The Lower Bari Doab Canal will be ready for opening in April next, and it is expected to open the Upper Jhelum canal by the autumn of 1914. It is hoped that the Upper Swat River canal will be ready by April 1914.

39. Two other projects mentioned last year in my Financial Statement, the Sukkur barrage and the Rohri canal, have been submitted for the sanction of the Secretary of State, while progress in the case of the Cauvery Reservoir and Sarda-Ganges-Jumna feeder, which have been very favourably reviewed by the technical advisers of the Government of India, is delayed by the necessity of considering the interests of certain Native States which are affected by these undertakings. During the year the Nira Right Bank canal has also been sanctioned by the Secretary of State at a cost of about 260 lakhs of rupees. It is designed to protect an area of 190,000 acres in the Sholapur district, which above almost all others in India stands in need of protection from drought and famine, and it is the most important project of the protective class which has been undertaken in this country.

40. Of the projects under consideration which have not previously been mentioned the most important are the Kistna reservoir in Madras, the extension of the Gokak canal in Bombay, the Sutlej Valley canals and the Jumna dam project in the Punjab. The Kistna project contemplates the construction of a dam at a cost of 8½ crores to hold up a reservoir with a gross capacity of 163,586 million cubic feet of water. The work if constructed will be the largest of its kind in the world exceeding in magnitude the Assuan dam on the Nile which, as now enlarged, has a gross capacity of 81,224 cubic feet. The Gokak canal extension, which is classed as protective, is to cost nearly 2 crores. The Sutlej Valley project aims at the utilization of the surplus supply of the Sutlej and Beas rivers and it will besides improving the water supply of the several inundation canals now dependent on the Sutlej, extend the benefits of irrigation into the great desert south of the river. It will probably cost 9 crores, while the Jumna dam project, the estimate of which is over 5 crores, provides for the construction of a dam at Koch in the Nahan State to ensure a fuller supply to areas commanded but insufficiently watered by the Western Jumna canal and extend the irrigation from that canal to some precarious tracts in the Umballa and Karnal districts.

Provincial Finance.

41. On the subject of Provincial Finance it is fortunately necessary for me to say but little. Two years ago I described in detail the scheme of permanent financial settlements, which we believe secures for both parties to the contract important advantages. In presenting my last Financial Statement I said that the scheme could not have had a better start than the year 1911-12 had given it. Now another year of prosperity has strengthened the position of the Provinces as well as our own. It is not so long ago that the Provincial authorities took a most gloomy view of their financial prospects. I remember well the spirited attack which was made on the Government of India on the subject of the Punjab settlements, and no year passes in which we do not hear the patriotic pleadings of the Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya and others on behalf of the United Provinces. To all such representations I may have been held to be unsympathetic, but especially in India time brings the answer. The financial position of the Punjab and the United Provinces is very different now from their position even two or three years ago, and in general the Provinces have built up such substantial balances and have a margin between revenue and expenditure so adequate that they are not only well-to-do for the present but are well protected for the future. I must deal however in some detail with the case of the two Provinces, Assam and Burma, to which it is proposed to give special grants. Financially the conditions in these two Provinces are different. Assam at present has only a temporary settlement and in another two years it will be necessary to revise the terms of our agreement on a more permanent basis. Burma already has its permanent contract, and I am satisfied that the contract is essentially a sound one, for it secures to the Province a substantial growth of revenue which will presently supply it with ample funds for its requirements. At the moment, however, it cannot be denied that the province is in poor circumstances and that in spite of the exercise of due economy it finds a difficulty in squaring resources with requirements. But from another point of view there is a strong resemblance between the conditions in these two Provinces. The equipment of both, in the matter more particularly of communications, is far behind that of the rest of India, and their development is a matter for serious consideration. The question is no doubt what rate of progress is desirable, for ultimately both Provinces will find a sufficiency for their requirements in their own resources. But it is clear that unless we come to the assistance of Burma, progress in that Province will be injuriously delayed. The case of Assam is somewhat different because it was given a substantial grant with which to start its existing settlement; but here again it was recognised that the Province might spend this grant during the period of settlement and it would in the usual course be given a second grant at the beginning of the permanent settlement, the terms of which will shortly have to be considered. The reasons for the grants we propose will now be evident. By making these grants we assist the earlier development of Provinces which are extremely backward. We anticipate in the case of Assam a liability which might come on us when unfavourable seasons might make it difficult for us to meet it. And since the improvement of communications must make for an improvement of revenue in which the Imperial Government have a share, it may be added that these grants are in the nature of an investment in the business of the firm by the senior partner, namely the Government of India.

Ways and Means.

42. I have now finished with the Revenue account, the account that is to say that is concerned with the money credited to us as a final receipt and the expenditure which we have agreed should be charged against such receipts, and I turn to the question of our Ways and Means.

43. In the current year our programme provided for capital expenditure of nearly £11¾ millions, of which £9 millions were for railways, £1,416,000 for irrigation, and £1,333,000 for Imperial Delhi. We had to meet railway debentures which fell due to the extent of nearly £1½ millions, and the ordinary drawings of India bonds of £½ a million, and we arranged to repay the whole of the outstanding India bills of £4½ millions. The great bulk of these obligations and requirements we proposed to meet by drawing on our balances; but we decided to raise a loan of 3 crores (£2 millions) in India and another of £3 millions in England, and we hoped to obtain £1,810,000 through railway companies apart from the money which they were to raise for the discharge of debentures. In the last item we have been disappointed, for the capital raised by railway companies has been only £495,000. In other respects our assets have increased very greatly above our anticipations. The greater part of the improvement has taken place in the revenue account with which I have already dealt in detail. This improvement shows itself first in the rise of the Imperial surplus from £1,478,000 to £3,362,000, and secondly in the banking account of the Provinces. Originally we had to estimate for a large net withdrawal by provinces; but they have not been able to work up fully to the scale of expenditure for which they had made provision in the Budget. Their own revenues have been better, and they have received large grants from us, the result of all these changes being that the aggregate provincial account shows now instead of a withdrawal of £1,558,000, a deposit of £4,019,000. On the debit side of our transactions, the most interesting item is the discharge of our India bills. This has now been carried through in accordance with the programme, and it is a matter of very great satisfaction to me that our account has been entirely cleared of these liabilities; our position has by these liquidations been greatly strengthened against the possibility of financial troubles in the future. The capital expenditure on Delhi, as I have already noticed, has been small. On the other hand, canals have taken a little more money than we provided for them in the Budget, and we have been able in the course of the year to make the substantial addition of £1½ millions to the railway programme.

44. In 1913-14 we repeat the provision of £1,333,000 for the new city at Delhi, and we increase the irrigation allotment to £1,467,000. The most prominent feature of the year is however the raising of the provision for the railway programme to no less than £12 millions. The total capital outlay is estimated at £14,800,000. The only other important debits will be, first, the discharge of debt amounting to £1,869,000, chiefly on account of railway debentures which fall due in the course of the year and of the repayment of another £½ million India bonds; secondly the deficit which is estimated at £2,839,000 in the provincial account. Altogether we have to find about £19½ millions and this we propose to do mainly by utilising our balances. We propose to work to a closing balance of about £17 millions, and on that basis we think we can find £11 millions out of balances. Our revenue surplus will give us £1⅓ millions We propose to raise a loan of 3 crores (£2 millions) in India. The Secretary of State will not himself issue any sterling loan, but it is hoped that the capital raised by railway companies will give us £3 millions. We depend to the extent of £1½ millions on our unfunded debt transactions, mainly Savings Banks, which we think will result in a net receipt of that amount, and we draw as usual on the grant for the redemption or avoidance of debt. The distribution of the closing balance at which we aim is that we should hold £12,429,000 in India and £4,442,000 in the Home Treasury. To work to these results after providing for the year's requirements, we estimate that the Secretary of State will sell Council Bills and Telegraphic Transfers on us to the extent of £21,200,000; but in addition he will as usual sell additional bills on India so far as our resources may permit if there is a sufficient demand for them. It will be understood that all my announcements about loans and drawings are subject to the usual reservations; the Secretary of State and the Government of India retaining full discretion to vary the amounts I have mentioned, in any way and to any extent that may be thought advisable.

Exchange, Currency and Gold Coining.

45. From this survey of our Ways and Means I pass to the adjoining territory of Exchange and Currency where there is some interesting ground to be traversed. I shall first sketch the general conditions of the year which are relevant to this subject. I shall describe a resumption of our rupee coinage, and I shall then pass to a consideration of two important steps in the development of our currency policy.

Exchange.

46. From the description of trade conditions which I gave at the beginning of my speech it will be at once surmised that there has been no exchange difficulty in the current year. Taking the value of merchandise dealt with on private account the value of Indian exports between April and December 1912 exceeded the value of imports by 61¾ crores, the excess being about 2¾ crores greater than in the previous year. The outstanding feature of the year is that since the 1st of April last the rate of exchange has never fallen below par, and this is a new thing in our experience. In 1909-10 a rate below 16 pence continued for the first six months of the year. In 1910-11 it lasted from the middle of May to the middle of August. In 1911-12 it held only for two weeks in June and this year it has disappeared. I do not wish to make too much of this feature; but while I remember that there was little employment for money last rains and my friends the bankers will point to the high rates of interest that have recently prevailed, I think a tendency is shown in the facts I have stated, as well as in our figures of rupee absorption and in the traffic returns of railways, to a diminution in the duration and intensity of the slack season and a more even distribution of trade throughout the year which would be very welcome.

47. The balance of trade in our favour, I have said, in nine months has been 61¾ crores. I need not attempt to explain how the whole difference has been equated; but I can account at once for 56¾ crores, for in the settlement of our claims on other countries we imported 12 crores in gold and silver bullion, 18½ crores in sovereigns and accepted 26¼ crores in Council Bills. The sovereigns, I need hardly say, are not imported necessarily for use as coin, but in order to obtain currency in any form that is desired and they are largely turned into rupees. The absorption of gold, it is true, has continued to increase; in the first six months of 1912-13 it was a million pounds more than in the first six months of 1911-12. But that is only one element in the situation. The financing of the wheat trade which I have said was unusually active took two crores of rupees more from us than in the previous year. Jute, so far as currency is concerned, was a record crop, for the demands on our Calcutta Office in four months amounted to 12 crores of rupees, a sum exceeding even the previous record of 1906 and far above the requirements of any intermediate year. This leads me to the question of the coinage of rupees. We have not added to the rupees in circulation for the last five years In November 1907 when coinage stopped we had 28 crores of rupees in hand. Then came the scarcity and the commercial crisis of 1907 and 1908 during which instead of an absorption there was a return of rupees from circulation. By September 1909 we had in our possession no less than 48 crores. Since then there has been a steady absorption. It has proceeded at a rate considerably slower than many anticipated though much as I personally expected, but it has gone on year after year and at the end of last April we had no more than 15 crores in hand. It was certain that in the next few months rupees would return; but it was equally certain that the resumption of coinage could not be avoided. The Secretary of State accordingly began to purchase silver in May last. Since then he has purchased £7,060,000 worth. This silver has yielded 15¾ crores of rupees. 10½ crores passed into our ordinary balances in substitution for the gold used in the purchase, while the remainder, less cost of manufacture representing the profit on coinage, has been credited to the Gold Standard Reserve.

Currency.

48. Having cleared the way by this sketch of the year's history, I can proceed to a fuller discussion of the important currency developments which I mentioned, the first relating to the Gold Standard Reserve and the second to the coinage of gold in India. The first has to do with exchange and the requirements of international trade, the second with our internal currency. That there is a nexus between the two cases is clear, but as regards the nature and extent of this nexus widely different opinions are held. We are familiar with the view that a gold standard is impossible without a gold currency. On the other side it is suggested that the currency in the hands of the people is not to any great extent available when coin has to be sent out of the country in settlement of foreign demands. There is also strong opinion in favour of the view that the support which at times becomes necessary not only in this country but elsewhere against an unfavourable balance of trade can best be found not in the currency in circulation but in strong reserves. I do not intend to enter on a discussion of these rival creeds. I would merely like to say that here in India we have made a great experiment in currency, that the experiment has been successful, and that we are satisfied with our system as at present developed. I recognise however that we must always be ready to strengthen and adjust it as the need arises, and that in carrying out such re-enforcements and adjustments we must attend to experience as well as theory and bear in mind that the conditions in India may in certain particulars be special and stand in need of exceptional treatment. This is the principle which should guide us in considering both the matters which I now lay before the Council. I take first the question of the Gold Standard Reserve. That Reserve has already reached the large figure of £22 millions including £4 millions held in rupees in India. But we have never forgotten that in the troubles of 1907-09 we lost in little more than a year no less than £15 millions sterling, and though we have generally other gold resources on which we could draw, I have always been anxious that the Reserve which is specially earmarked for the support of exchange should be strengthened. I have at the same time felt that it would be an advantage if a larger proportion of this Reserve were held in liquid gold instead of in securities. On these points we have had I think the unanimous support of Indian opinion, but the Secretary of State has not always seen eye to eye with us, and the Council may remember that a year ago I was not sanguine that we should succeed in converting him to our view. We have however succeeded. The Secretary of State has agreed to raise the sterling assets of the Gold Standard Reserve in London to £25 millions and to hold £5 millions of this amount in gold and his decision is gratifying to me as strengthening our defences against the fall in exchange of which there is always a danger in times of adverse trade conditions.

49. On the second development which I have to describe, I fear we cannot hope for the same unanimity of opinion. Yet I feel certain that the two despatches on the subject, which I shall lay, will be read with satisfaction by many both in this Council and outside it.

Gold Coining.

50. In regard to the coinage of gold I may say that the initial selection of any one coin would not in fact definitely exclude another, for while recommending to the Secretary of State the coinage of sovereigns, the Government of India referred to the future possibility, should it be considered advisable, of introducing some other smaller coin such as a ten-rupee piece. The sovereign introduces questions of control which as between ourselves and the Royal Mint are difficult of solution. For this or for any other reason, the final decision may be, to begin with, a special Indian coin, but the experience we should gain in coining an Indian piece may show that it would be worth our while to undertake the additional trouble and expense which would be involved in the coining of sovereigns.

51. On the general question, as I have said, there is much difference of opinion. There are those who seem to regard an institution of a gold mint as a cardinal point in currency policy and expect from it sudden and surprising results. Some are indifferent, regarding a gold mint merely as unnecessary, because they say we already get as much gold coin as we need from abroad, while there are others whose attitude is one of mistrust and condemnation, because they suspect that the establishment of a gold mint implies a radical change in the currency policy of the Government, or because they fear what is called the drain of gold to India. The first to my mind exaggerate the importance of the scheme and are unduly sanguine in forecasting its results. The last, I am confident, are unduly apprehensive.

52. The view taken by the Government of India is a very simple and I think obvious one, and it involves no departure whatever from our currency policy. We have no idea of converting our currency into gold. We are not going to buy gold bars in order to coin them. We cannot force a currency on the people, nor do we wish to do so. All we proposed is that if anyone who has gold wishes to have it coined he should be able to do so. The position is that in this country both gold and silver are established as legal tender currency. But while we can turn silver into coin, we have not so far been able to coin gold. The argument that, in point of fact, we can get by importation as much gold as we can use, is true but it is incomplete. For one thing India itself produces an amount of gold which is not inconsiderable. At present this goes to London, and it may continue to do so, but it is reasonable and it may prove economical that facilities should be given for coining it in this country if at any time the producers find their advantage in that alternative. Again there is a large quantity of gold bullion in the country. Assuming that the necessity arises of converting it into coin, why should it have to be sent 7,000 miles for the purpose? Or who is to say that it may not on occasion be more profitable or convenient to import and coin gold bullion rather than to import sovereigns? On questions of this kind I strongly deprecate an á priori judgment. How any facilities for coining bullion which we give can increase the flow of gold to India I am unable to see. In one form or another India will get precisely the amount of gold which she wants and which she is able to pay for. It may be urged that the use of gold as currency at any rate is for this country a superfluity. But what does this argument assume? It assumes that for India not gold but some other form of currency is the best. On the other hand some authorities assume that a gold currency is always preferable I make neither assumption. I leave it to the people to decide what suits them best, and all I say is that if they find they prefer gold they are just as much entitled to it as any other people in the world. Now when we are considering Indian currency we can no longer, as was the case not many years ago, think only of rupees. Out of the total additions to the currency in the three years ending March 1912 amounting to 65 crores, rupees accounted for only 28 crores. The habits of the people in fact are changing. The last Currency Report of the Comptroller General shows clearly that gold has to an increasing extent established itself in ordinary circulation, while the expansion of our note issues gives evidence of a desire for a handier currency than silver and a readiness to use a higher unit than the rupee. While therefore we do not pretend to know to what extent the facilities for coining gold will be used, we think that there are substantial facts to support the sentiment which has frequently been expressed in this country in favour of our having a gold mint of our own. And even without such support I make bold to say that sentiment is not a thing to be disregarded. The sentiment I mean is not that of any particular race, class or community. India is a great country, not only by reason of past achievements in the highest fields of thought, not only by reason of her enormous population and vast area, but because of her rapidly increasing importance in the world of commerce. I confess I think it is sometimes forgotten how big India is, and her growth in the matters with which I am more particularly concerned outstrips our ordinary conceptions of it. We are all united in this common bond that we are fellow citizens of one great Empire, and the sentiment I have in mind is the sentiment that should be common to all the people of a great and growing country. This mint, you may say, of which we are talking is a little thing. But if there is a feeling that India after all is entitled to its own mints and that those mints should be empowered to turn out any coins that India requires, can anyone say that the feeling is in any sense unreasonable? I cannot of course anticipate the decision that may be reached regarding the denomination of the coin which we should issue, but personally I say that the sentiment which favours a special Indian coin is to me easily intelligible. And I hope that our mints will continue to be Indian in the sense of being free from external control. Our mints may not be the best in the world, but I know of none better. The work they turn out is a credit to the Indian Government, and in saying so, I rely not on my own judgment but on the judgment of experts in Europe who have given me their opinions. This battle of the mints has now lasted for fifteen years. I do not for a moment say that throughout this period the issues have remained the same. The combatants have frequently changed their positions. The composition of the opposing forces has varied, as parties which at one time found themselves in one camp, transferred their allegiance presently to the other. But on the whole, India has fought for a gold mint all these years, and personally I am glad that at a time when my association with the government of this great country draws to a close, the question is being brought to an issue.

53. The Council will appreciate that all I have said in regard to exchange, currency, and the coining of gold is subject to a reservation. I refer of course to the statement made in the House of Commons by the Prime Minister. Mr. Asquith has stated that in the opinion of the Home Government the time has come for an enquiry into (inter alia) questions of currency and finance relating to India by an expert body and preferably by a Royal Commission. I myself believe that our system of currency and finance in India rests on a sufficiently solid foundation. I recognise however that it is the subject of many misunderstandings and of much misconception. A Commission of inquiry will clear the air and by increasing knowledge, it will diminish criticism. I believe that it will be educative rather than destructive. Holding this belief, I await with confidence the result of its deliberations on the currency conditions which I have described and which will now have to be submitted to its judgment.

Retrospect.

54. This is my last year of office, and it is permissible that I should review the administration of the Department the control of which I am about to surrender.

55. When I assumed charge towards the end of 1908, the country, after a decade of remarkable prosperity, had just passed through a period of distressful scarcity. The relapse was one of a kind to which, by reason of its climatic conditions, India has always been subject; but on this occasion its severity was accentuated by a financial stress that dislocated the world's greatest markets. The gravity of the situation is explained in a word when I say that the year 1908-09 ended not with an anticipated surplus but with a deficit of no less than £3¾ millions. From an agricultural point of view, the next year was favourable; but trade was slow in reviving and, as I said when I presented my second Financial Statement, the air of hopefulness, which pervaded the country as soon as a good monsoon had assured the agricultural position, was slow in penetrating the Finance Department. I remember well the difficulties which we encountered that year, the necessity we were under of explaining the situation to the large spending Departments and Local Governments, and calling on them to exercise all possible economies in view of our diminished resources, and their loyal response. In addition, when I came to sum up the experiences of the year and forecast the requirements of the next, I found myself faced with a great drop in opium revenue and the necessity of revising at considerable cost our settlement with Eastern Bengal and Assam, and I was forced to propose additional taxation. In 1910-11 the situation changed. Prosperity returned. Our revenues increased. We were able to expand those activities of Government which depend on money resources.

56. In this brief review I have mentioned the increase of taxation which took place in 1910-11. I do not wish to rake up the ashes of an old controversy, but I can scarcely pass the subject by. Whatever may be said about it, I am unrepentant. I hold this, indeed I regard as res judicata, that the taxation was justified on any reasonable forecast of immediate requirements at the time when it was imposed. I say that its absolute necessity might have been demonstrated at any moment during the last three years if what has now happened in our opium trade had happened previously. But there are other and more general considerations. If we had merely to provide for existing charges, the position would be simple; whenever revenue rose above expenditure, the excess would be cut off by a reduction in the scale of taxation. But India is not a developed country. It is not a country in which any one can accept the current equipment and the current scale of expenditure as sufficient. I am not suggesting taxation up to the hilt; but in view of urgent and legitimate demands I hold that the real question is not whether we could not have done without further taxation but whether the further taxation has in fact been burdensome. Some of our critics seem at times to forget that development has to be paid for. I claim to have established without hardship a broader basis of taxation which has been and will continue to be of benefit to the country.

57. A point I touch on is economy. Simple though this subject be, it seems to be open to misconception. On the one hand, it has been felt that I have been unnecessarily severe in effecting economies, whilst on the other hand, I have been criticised for assenting to a large increase in expenditure. What I mean by economy is neither the hasty reduction of expenditure in a crisis, nor the opposition to new expenditure without regard to its character or object. What I mean by economy is spending your money on good objects and getting your money's worth for what you spend. This object I have kept in view through good report and through bad report, or rather perhaps I should say through good and bad seasons without distinction, and I claim to have been successful in its attainment.

58. As relevant to this subject I mention the department of audit. That department is one with which, through a long experience, I have been familiar, and I know its value. I have endeavoured in this country to demonstrate my belief in it. I have every reason to think that the position of the Comptroller and Auditor General will be substantially improved, that he will be relieved of other financial duties and will be able to devote his whole time to the development of our audit system. I look for a new spirit in the Audit department, a spirit which will bring about a recognition of its true relationship to the Executive, which will ensure hearty co-operation in the work of Government.

59. A more general question is raised when we co-relate the expenditure we charge to revenue and our capital expenditure. There is no doubt a competition between these two classes, a competition which Mr. Gokhale has brought out clearly enough in more than one Resolution. But the principles which guide us in determining the allotments to be made for the various heads of revenue expenditure must equally guide us when we come to the distribution as between revenue and capital expenditure of an accrued surplus. There are enthusiasts for education and enthusiasts for railways. The Government of India have to hold the balance between them and endure the disparagement of both. I have always been opposed to any hard and fast rule. The distribution must be determined on a consideration of requirements at the time of allotments. There is another consideration. It is a mistake to regard our revenue and capital accounts as water-tight compartments; there is always a movement from one to the other. In good years the revenue account supplies the capital; that has lately been the ordinary position. But the movement has sometimes been reversed, and if in the last year or two we have been using our surplus partly to pay off temporary debt, it must not be forgotten that that temporary debt was raised in part to make good a revenue deficit. The outstanding difficulty in Indian finance is its liability to extreme vicissitudes. The true use of surplus money in good years is to be found in the reduction and avoidance of debt. That is not a picturesque policy, but it is the only sound one. Now from this point of view, what have we done in recent years? At Home our borrowings have been small. That may be the result of necessity rather than of choice; but in India where the market has been improving instead of deteriorating my loans have been studiously moderate. In 1909 I raised 2½ crores; in 1910, 1⅓ crores; in 1911, 2 crores; in 1912, 3 crores. The net result of my loan transactions, taking into account discharge of debt, is striking. In the following figures I include both direct borrowings by the Secretary of State and capital raised through Railway Companies.

In 1909-10 there was a net addition of £13 millions;
In 1910-11 „ „ „ of £6½ millions;
In 1911-12 „ „ „ of £1⅓ millions;
and In 1912-13 „ a net decrease of £1 million.

Meanwhile the legitimate demands for non-recurring expenditure—the only demand which could be met from accrued surpluses—of our different departments, more particularly of education and sanitation, have been generously met. A reasonable railway and irrigation programme of capital expenditure has been maintained and while this has been effected, I have at the same time strengthened our position against the possibility of financial troubles by a restriction of borrowings. My restraint in the past will be an asset for my successors in the future.

60. I turn to another element of strength. By the end of 1909 there was practically no gold left in the Government reserve in this country. Since then by the ordinary operations of trade gold has flowed in, till we now hold £19,500,000 in our currency reserve in India. In the same reserve at Home we have £7,300,000; in the Gold Standard Reserve we have £18 millions in gold assets, and we hope, in consequence of the Secretary of State's recent decision, to have eventually £25 millions. At any rate at the moment we have altogether £45 millions in gold and gold securities and that is a bulwark of enormous strength against a fall in exchange. Our currency system seems to be sound. In our English way we have adapted it from time to time to meet requirements as they arose. The result I do not claim is perfect; but we may be satisfied with a scheme if it is practical. It has the approval of economic experts. It has been taken as an exemplar in other countries, and it has the confidence of our business men. If I have to take the responsibility when things go amiss, I am surely entitled to claim a little credit for success. The Indian believes in the efficacy of good intentions. I have meant well by India, and it means much to me in presenting my fifth Budget that I can honestly say that should financial trouble come on her, India is prepared to meet it— —L' India farà da se.

Conclusion.

61. A Financial Statement, the forerunner of the Budget, has to-day been presented, for the first time, in Delhi; restored to her pride of place as India's Imperial city. Through centuries Kings of every race have fought to win or keep her: the blood of men and the tears of women have been freely shed to cement the Empires over which her owners have held sway. But I prefer to think of Delhi, not as the prize of conquest, or the home of conquerors, but as the capital of a contented empire, the abode of peace and prosperity, of wise and prudent counsels. Such I hope she may ever be.

Glorious though she has been, may Delhi rise to glories still greater; the glories—to quote the words of the Viceroy's speech which it devolved on me to read to you in the Diwan-i-Am—of "the peace, happiness and contentment of the millions over whom the King-Emperor exercises sway, the trust and confidence which England has been able to repose on their loyalty, the generous share which she had been able to give to the sons of India in sharing her councils and in shaping the destiny of this great and wonderful country."

It rests largely with you and your successors in this Council to bring our hopes to fruition.

This is my last Budget, and this day practically ends my career in India.

I shall sever my connection with India with profound sorrow; but I rejoice exceedingly that I shall leave her loyal and prosperous.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 6th March 1913, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The first two days of the week were practically rainless, but another depression entered Baluchistan from the west and introduced a period of unsettled weather which lasted up to the end of the week, and gave precipitation in all the rainfall divisions of Northern and Central India, with the exception of Rajputana East and Central India West.

2. Burma.—Rainfall occurred in Tenasserim on most days, and at Mandalay and Maymyo on the 5th.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rainfall was nearly general in Bihar, Chota Nagpur and North Bengal on the 5th, and extended over the rest of the division on the following day.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—In the United Provinces rainfall was local on the 3rd and nearly general on the 4th; in the Central Provinces and Central India East only local falls occurred.

Northwest India.—There was nearly general precipitation in the Punjab on the 3rd and 4th, in the eastern half of Baluchistan on the 1st and 2nd, and in Sind on the 2nd. In the North-West Frontier Province precipitation occurred chiefly in the hills and was nearly general on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd. In Kashmir no precipitation of importance occurred, and in Rajputana and Gujarat only light falls were reported from Bikaner and Ahmedabad.

The Peninsula.—There were only a few falls in the extreme south.

3. The chief daily amounts were as follows:—

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 1st March 1913.

Burma.—Tavoy reports 1·32 inches of rain. Light showers fell in three other districts. Threshing and winnowing of winter rice are almost completed. Agricultural operations for spring and summer rice and miscellaneous crops are progressing normally. The condition of standing crops is good. The price of unhusked rice has fallen further at Rangoon.

Assam.—Slight rain fell in most districts. Ploughing for early and late rice and jute is in progress. Gathering of mustard is nearly finished. Crushing of sugarcane and pruning of tea are proceeding. The average price of common rice is nearly 2 per cent. higher than last week. Cattle disease prevails in Sylhet and Manipur.

Bengal.—During the week light rain fell throughout the Province except in places in the Chittagong division. Preparation of lands for autumn paddy and jute is going on briskly. Harvesting of spring crops and pressing of sugarcane are in progress. Prospects of standing crops are generally good. The average price of common rice for the Province has risen by about 1·5 per cent. as compared with that of the previous week. Cattle disease is reported from Khulna and from parts of Burdwan and Tippera.

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall was fairly general over the Province, the fall being light to moderate. Preparation of land and pressing of sugarcane continue. Harvesting of oilseeds and pulses is going on. Planting of sugarcane has commenced. The recent rainfall has slightly damaged standing spring crops. The condition of standing crops is otherwise good. The price of common rice has generally risen in Bihar and is almost stationary in Orissa and Chota Nagpur. The condition of cattle is on the whole good. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient throughout the Province. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is reported to be good.

United Provinces.—Rain has fallen throughout the Provinces except in Bundelkhand. The fall was fairly heavy in the hills, the eastern submontane districts and in Muttra and light elsewhere. Some damage from hail is reported. Crops are generally in good condition. Peas and gram are being harvested and opium extraction has commenced. Extra crops are being largely sown. Pressing and planting of cane continue. Fodder and water are sufficient. In Mirzapur there are 1,891 persons on test works and 10,790 on ordinary canal works and water works. In the Chakia district of the Benares State there are 1,639 persons on regular works and 2,490 in receipt of gratuitous relief. Cattle disease is still widespread in Bundelkhand; elsewhere it is diminishing. Prices are steady with a tendency to rise.

Punjab.—Sufficient rain has fallen in all districts. The condition of irrigated spring crops is average to good and of unirrigated crops generally fair. Sowings of extra spring crops and pressing of sugarcane continue. The outturn of sugarcane is average to good. Ploughing for autumn crops has commenced. Cattle are generally healthy but fodder is insufficient in places. Prices remain high.

North-West Frontier Province.—Good rain fell throughout the Province improving standing crops. The weather is cool and cloudy. The condition of irrigated crops is good and unirrigated average. Sugarcane and extra spring crops are being sown in Peshawar and Bannu. The condition of cattle is good. Fooder is sufficient except in Dera Ismail Khan. The water-supply is sufficient. Prices are high but slightly falling.

Jammu.—The rain during the week was good. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 9 to 13 and maize from 13 to 20 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is fair. Cattle disease of mild type prevails in the Riasi and Kathua tahsils. Fodder is insufficient in some tahsils.

Kashmir.—Slight rain fell on three occasions during the week and was useful to spring crops. Ploughing and sowing for spring crops are in progress. Prices are normal with a tendency to rise. Cattle disease prevails in some villages of the Kulgam tahsil. Fodder is average.

Rajputana.—The weather is clear and cool. The rainfall in cents was:—Jaisalmer 30 to 73, Bikaner 64 to 114 and Alwar 5. Slight rain fell in Jaipur. Spring crops are being irrigated and are in fair condition. Some damage to crops from hailstorms is reported in Jaipur. Prospects are generally fair. Cattle disease is reported in a few places. Fodder and water are sufficient. Prices are generally high and stationary. The opium crop in Kishangarh is doing well.

Central India.—The rainfall was partial in Gwalior and Bundelkhand. The weather was cool and occasionally cloudy and stormy. The outturn of spring crops is good. Cattle disease prevails in parts of Gwalior, Indore, Bhopal, Bundelkhand and Bhopawar. The fodder supply is good. Prices are normal in Bhopal, above normal in Baghelkhand, fluctuating in Indore and steady elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—During the week Bhandara had 1¾ inches of rain. The Vindhyan, Satpura and Chattisgarh districts and Jubbulpore, Narsinghpur and Nagpur also received light showers ranging from 11 to 82 cents. Harvesting of spring crops continued and prospects are favourable. Fodder continues to be dear and scarce in Wardha and parts of Chhindwara, and dear in Saugor, Akola and Amraoti. Water is sufficient everywhere. Agricultural stock is generally in good condition. Variations in prices are unimportant.

Feudatory States.—Four States had rain ranging from 30 cents to 1¼ inches. The condition of spring crops is generally good. Wheat rose in Udaipur and Jashpur and rice fell in Jashpur by 2 seers per rupee.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in parts of Sind. The rainfall was beneficial. Standing crops are generally in good condition except in parts of Larkana where they have been damaged slightly by frost. Harvesting of spring crops is generally in progress. Cotton picking continues in parts of Nawabshah, Gujarat, the Karnatak, Cutch and Rewa Kantha. The fodder supply is deficient in Ahmednagar. Agricultural stock is generally in good condition and sufficient except in parts of Cutch. The condition of stock is deteriorating in Ahmednagar. Drinking water is generally adequate except in parts of Ahmednagar and Sholapur. Water for irrigation is deficient in parts of West Khandesh, Ahmednagar, Sholapur and Bijapur. Prices are high but generally stationary. The public health is generally good. Grain stocks are sufficient.

The weekly report on the famine and scarcity is as follows:—Distress is deepening in Ahmednagar. Return of emigrants continues. There is no wandering or emaciation. Two kitchens and five poor houses have been opened. The people on relief are generally in good condition. Steps are being taken to organise special measures for weavers and artizans. The public health is generally good. Land revenue suspensions have been granted and takavi advanced freely for fodder and wells. Government grass continues to find a ready sale. Measures for the improvement of the water supply from Government and Local Board grants continue. Four cattle kitchens have been opened from charitable funds. The numbers on gratuitous relief for the week ending the 1st March were:—Ahmednagar 18,358; Poona and Sholapur 1,231. Total 19,589.

Hyderabad.—Slight showers fell in isolated parts during the week. The average fall was 5 cents. Spring crops are fair to good except in parts of the Aurangabad, Bir and Usmanabad districts. Spring crops are being generally harvested. Crops have been damaged by insects in parts of the Raichur and Karimnagar districts. Late rice is being weeded and irrigated in parts. Crops are fair to good. Fodder is being imported into the affected talukas of the Aurangabad and Bir districts. Takavi is being distributed and ordinary works have been increased. The daily average number of labourers on works during the week ending 22nd February was:—8,618. The total number was 60,326. Cattle disease prevails in 9 talukas, fodder scarcity in 19 and water scarcity in 14. Prices:—Wheat 6¼, coarse rice 5¼ and juar 10¾ seers per rupee. White juar is selling in Hyderabad City at 12 seers per rupee. The highest price in districts is 7 seers in Karimnagar and the lowest $24\frac{1}{7}$ seers in Adilabad.

Mysore.—Prices of food grains are generally steady. Markets are well supplied. Standing crops are in good condition. Prospects of the season are good. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—Threshing of rice continues. Prices of food grains are stationary. The public health is fair. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Madras.—The rainfall was light in parts of the Circars and in Malabar. There was no rain elsewhere. Standing crops are fair to good. Harvesting of dry crops, paddy and sugarcane is proceeding with outturn fair to normal. Sowings of dry crops and paddy are proceeding normally in parts. The condition of cattle is generally good. Fodder and water are generally sufficient. Prices are stationary.

POLITICAL.

To

THE MOST HONOURABLE THE MARQUIS OF CREWE, K.G.,

His Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

Delhi, the 26th December 1912.

MY LORD MARQUIS,

It is our melancholy duty to inform Your Lordship that His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General has been wounded by a miscreant as yet unknown on the occasion of Their Excellencies' Entry into Delhi on Monday, the 23rd December 1912.

2. It had been decided to signalize this historic occasion with the stately and measured ceremonial of which we enclose the programme. The day was fine and large crowds had gathered in the sunshine along the whole route. The houses in the Chandni Chowk were packed with people. At 11-45 A.M., about half way down the Chandni Chowk on the way from the Railway Station to the Fort, a bomb was thrown into the howdah of Their Excellencies' elephant. It exploded with terrific force, blowing to pieces the attendant who was standing in the howdah immediately behind Lord Hardinge and seriously wounding the attendant who was standing behind Lady Hardinge. Her Excellency fortunately escaped, but parts of the missile struck Lord Hardinge and inflicted the wounds described in the medical report which we append to this despatch. A boy in the crowd was killed and several of the onlookers were wounded, but complete order was maintained.

3. Their Excellencies did not move in their seats. After recovering his helmet, which had been blown off by the explosion, the Viceroy ordered the procession to go forward. He soon, however, lost consciousness, and was lifted off the elephant and taken in a motor to Viceregal Lodge.

4. When Their Excellencies had departed the procession reformed and continued its progress to the Fort. In the absence of the Viceroy it devolved on the senior ordinary Member of Council, the Honourable Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson, to read His Excellency's reply to the address of the Imperial Legislative Council and his speech in Durbar. At the conclusion of the proceedings in the Dewan-i-am the procession returned through the Chandni Chowk to the Mori gate as arranged. The crowds had not dispersed or moved, and their conduct throughout left nothing to be desired.

5. We have expressed our thanks to Almightly God that Their Excellencies' lives have been spared, and recorded our admiration of their intrepid bearing. We rejoice to be able to inform Your Lordship that His Excellency is making good progress and that his condition does not cause anxiety.

6. The loyal heart of India has been profoundly stirred by this dastardly outrage, and a great cry of indignation and grief has risen from one end of the Continent to another, from the Princes and from the people.

7. We are not yet in a position to formulate any theory as to the origin of the outrage or to weigh its political significance. The bomb, which contained picric acid, is believed to have been thrown from the upper part of the house of the Punjab National Bank. We have called on the local authorities to send us a full report, and Your Lordship may rest assured that no effort will be spared to discover the criminal and the influences behind his nefarious act.

We have the honour to be,

MY LORD MARQUIS,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servants,

(Signed) O'MOORE CREAGH.

Enclosure no. 2.

VICEREGAL LODGE,
DELHI,
The 23rd December 1912.
1-30 P.M.

Medical Report on the condition of His Excellency the Viceroy.

A portion of the projectile struck the back of the right shoulder along the inner border of the shoulder blade. It passed upwards and came out through the skin along the upper line of the shoulder, causing a wound four inches long, exposing muscle and bone. There is no injury to the lungs.

A fragment caused a small wound on the right side of the neck, but this is not serious.

There are also four small wounds caused by nails on the back of the right hip—all these are slight. There has been moderate loss of blood but the shock has been severe and there is some deafness caused by the explosion. His Excellency soon after his injuries lost consciousness but recovered quickly.

The wounds have been dressed and His Excellency is now fairly comfortable.

Surgeon to His Excellency the Viceroy.

No. 20.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor General of India in Council.

MY LORD,

Attempt upon the life of His Excellency the Viceroy.

I have read with interest and deep sympathy the despatch issued by your Council in the Home Department and dated the 26th of December 1912, describing the terrible events of the previous Monday.

2. It is not necessary to enlarge upon the emotions of horror and disappointment which affected the whole of this country at such evidence that the sinister agencies of violence and crime, which it was hoped had been reduced to impotence by stern determination to repress outrage and not less by continued endeavour to satisfy the legitimate aspirations of the people of India, are still ready and able to perpetrate an act so brutal and so senseless.

3. But I am confident that the conviction is here firmly held, the truth of which is entirely confirmed by your despatch, that India as a whole, from the Princes who rule over the Native States to the humblest cultivators of the soil, regards the crime with loathing, being moved not less by resentment at the attempt than by gratitude at its comparative failure.

4. It is a matter for profound thankfulness that Your Excellency was not more gravely injured, and that Lady Hardinge escaped unhurt; but we all deeply deplore the cruel sacrifice of innocent lives. At the same time, I cannot refrain from expressing sincere admiration of the calm courage shown by Your Excellency, and also by Lady Hardinge, in a moment of such sudden peril, courage which was fitly manifested by yourself, and which also inspired the Members of your Council in the resolve to carry through the ordered proceedings of the day as though no such untoward interruption had occurred. We regard this action with pride as being symbolical of the spirit and purpose of British rule in India.

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servant,

(Signed) CREWE.

2. Any objection or suggestion which may be received from any person with respect to the draft before the date fixed as aforesaid will be considered by the Governor General in Council.

DRAFT RULE.

The following rule shall be substituted for rule 1 (c) of the rules published with the Notification in the Finance and Commerce Department No. 5100-S.R., dated the 20th August 1903, regarding the carriage of petroleum in ships to which the Native Passenger Ships Act, 1887, applies:—

"1 (c) Petroleum shall be shipped either in tins enclosed in outer wooden cases or in hermetically sealed iron or steel drums. Provided that oil, fuel, with a flashing point not below 200 degrees Fahrenheit, may also be shipped in sound, well-coopered wooden casks of not more than 50 gallons capacity."

COTTON DUTIES.

The 8th March 1913.

No. 1596-2.—IN exercise of the powers conferred by section 36 of the Cotton Duties Act, 1896 (II of 1896), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to make the following rules regulating the provision of warehouses and the deposit and discharge of goods therein and therefrom.

1. (1) These rules may be cited as the Bombay Cotton Goods Warehouse Rules, 1913.

(2) The application of these rules shall be confined to the Presidency of Bombay.

2. In these rules:—

"Act" means the Cotton Duties Act, 1896;

"Collector" means the Collector of Bombay for the Presidency proper and the Collector or Deputy Commissioner of the District for the Province of Sind.

"Licensed warehouse" means a warehouse licensed under the Act;

"Officer in charge" means the officer appointed under rule 4 to be in charge of a warehouse licensed under the Act.

3. No place shall be licensed as a warehouse under the Act, unless it fulfils the following conditions, namely :—

(a) it shall be enclosed by walls built of brick or stone;

(b) if it includes an upper floor room, the roof shall be well and strongly terraced with masonry or tiled, the rafting in the case of tiled roofs being ceiled with strong cloth, planks or matting;

(c) all windows and ventilators shall be protected by stout iron bars securely fixed in the brick or stone work;

(d) all the entrances into it shall have doors with strong locks, and each door, whether external or internal, shall be fastened by two padlocks;

(e) the entrance doors shall open into a street or other public place so as to be at all times accessible for the examination of the locks and fastenings.

4. (1) The Collector shall appoint an officer to be in charge of every licensed warehouse.

(2) The key of one of the padlocks of every entrance door of a licensed warehouse shall be kept in the custody of the Collector or the officer in charge and the key of the other padlock shall be kept by the licensee.

(3) A licensed warehouse shall be opened and closed only in the presence of the officer in charge who shall be responsible for seeing that it is securely closed and locked.

5. (1) Application for permission to deposit in a licensed warehouse cotton-goods manufactured in the Presidency of Bombay shall be made to the Collector in such form as may be prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority under section 13 (2) of the Act.

(2) No goods shall be deposited in a licensed warehouse unless they are securely packed in hooped bales.

6. (1) The pass to be sent with goods forwarded for deposit in a licensed warehouse shall be prepared in Form H in triplicate specifying the name of the mill in which the goods were produced and of the bonder, the marks, numbers and contents of each package and the warehouse or place in the warehouse, wherein they are to be deposited.

(2) The counterfoil of the pass shall remain with the owner of the goods, the duplicate shall be handed over to the officer accompanying the goods to the warehouse who shall check the goods with the details shown in such duplicate and endorse thereon the result of his checking, and the triplicate shall remain with the officer in charge.

(3) On arrival of the goods at the warehouse the duplicate endorsed as aforesaid shall be handed over to the officer in charge to be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of section 94 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, as applied by the Cotton Duties Act, 1896.

7. (1) When any owner desires to remove any goods from a licensed warehouse he shall present to the Collector a written application for permission to remove them in such form as may be prescribed by the Chief Customs Authority; the application shall be in duplicate and shall contain particulars of the goods to be removed.

(2) The permission which the Collector may grant shall be endorsed on both the original and the duplicate.

(3) The original and the duplicate so endorsed shall be presented to the officer in charge who shall check the goods as they are passed out of the warehouse and permit the removal of such goods only as he finds to correspond to the particulars contained in the application.

(4) On the removal of the goods from the warehouse, the officer in charge shall endorse the fact both on the original and on the duplicate and return the original to the applicant and the duplicate to the Collector.

(5) The return made under section 8 of the Act shall in addition to the particulars required by the rules made under the Act and issued under Notification No. 864-S. R., dated 21st February 1896, mention the quantity and other particulars indicated in the Form referred to in clause (1) above of the goods removed from a licensed warehouse during the month to which the return relates.

8 Every person who enters or leaves a licensed warehouse and all packages and other articles taken into or removed from the warehouse shall be liable to examination by the officer in charge.

9. (1) A separate return made under section 15 of the Act shall be prepared in Form I appended to these rules. It shall be delivered to the Collector each month and contain the particulars indicated in the Form of all the cotton goods produced at the mill which have been deposited in a licensed warehouse during the preceding month.

(2) If no such separate return is made, the return made under section 8 of the Act shall, in addition to the particulars required by rule 7 (5) and by the rules made under the Act and issued under Notification No. 864-S. R., dated 21st February 1896, mention the quantity and other particulars of the goods indicated in the Form H referred to in rule 6 (1) above.

10. The officer in charge of a licensed warehouse shall keep an inward and outward register in Form J appended to these rules.

OFFICIAL HISTORY OF THE CORONATION DURBAR AND OF THE VISIT OF THEIR IMPERIAL MAJESTIES THE KING-EMPEROR AND QUEEN-EMPRESS TO INDIA, 1911-12.

To meet the repeated demands of the public, the Government of India have decided to publish a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911.

This book will be compiled from the official records, and will contain lists of all persons taking part in the celebrations and ceremonies. There will also be numerous illustrations, portraits, maps, plans, etc.

It will be published in two editions, a popular one in a cloth binding at a cost not exceeding Rs. 7-8, and a very limited edition de luxe, which will contain a list of the subscribers, at a cost of about Rs. 250.

A translation of the popular edition will be made in Urdu and possibly in other languages also if the demand is sufficient.

It is expected that the work will be ready for publication in about six months' time, names are still being registered for the various editions and application should be made to the Superintendent, Official History of the Durbar, Foreign Department, Simla.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Bangalore, the 26th February 1913.

No. 11.—The following draft of rules which the Hon'ble the Resident in Mysore proposes to make under section 175 (1) (p) (q) and (s) of the Bangalore Municipal Law, 1897, to regulate the preparation and submission of budget estimates of receipts and expenditure of the Municipal Commission of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore, is published for general information. The draft will be taken into consideration on or after the 1st May 1913. Any objections or suggestions which may be received with respect to the draft rules before the aforementioned date will receive due consideration.

DRAFT RULES.

The President of the Municipal Commission shall, before the end of January in every year, prepare a budget in Forms A and B annexed containing a detailed estimate of the probable receipts and of the expenditure which it is proposed to incur during the ensuing financial year. The estimate shall be accompanied by the subsidiary statements detailed below:—

(i) Statement showing the rates at which taxes, tolls and license fees are levied.

(ii) Statement showing the details by works of the budget estimate of expenditure on public works. This statement should show separately, in the case of works costing not less than Rs. 500.

(A) New works or projects already sanctioned, indicating
- (a) the estimated cost,
- (b) the expenditure already incurred, and
- (c) the expenditure contemplated during the ensuing year; and

(B) New works or projects proposed, indicating
- (a) the estimated cost,
- (b) expenditure proposed during the ensuing year, and
- (c) the expenditure reserved for future years.

(iii) Statements showing details of
- (a) the scale of municipal establishments,
- (b) special allowances,
- (c) pensions and gratuities, and
- (d) expenditure on labour and materials, provided for in the budget.

(iv) Statement showing details of grants proposed for educational and charitable institutions.

(v) Statement in Form C showing budget estimates of receipts and expenditure under heads which fluctuate largely.

(vi) Statement showing the account of the loans as estimated to stand at the end of the next year.

2. The budget shall be prepared in accordance with the rules contained in the Civil Account Code for the preparation of budget estimates of public income and expenditure, and any special orders passed by the Resident on the subject.

3. No items shall be included in the proposed budget estimates except those for which specific sanction or authority exists on the date of their preparation. If there are any items of expenditure which though not sanctioned have been already proposed, or which are likely to be sanctioned and for which provision is considered necessary, these should be included in a separate statement in Form D appended outside the proposed budget estimates.

4. The budget shall be circulated to each Commissioner a sufficient time before the meeting of the Municipal Commission at which it is to be considered.

5. The Commission shall consider the budget at a special meeting to be called for the purpose in the month of February.

6. (1) The budget, as passed by the Commission, shall be submitted to the Resident not later than the 10th March, or such other date as may be fixed by the Resident.

(2) The Resident shall pass such orders on the budget as he thinks fit and may reject or modify all or any of the items entered therein, or add any item thereto.

(3) The Commission shall abide by the budget as approved by the Resident. The Municipal funds shall be appropriated during the ensuing year only in accordance with the budget as thus approved, subject to such transfers and additional allotments as may be sanctioned from time to time by the Resident.

7. (1) The President may at any time prepare a supplemental budget, and shall place the same before the Commission.

(2) If the Commission pass the said budget, it shall be submitted without delay to the Resident, and the Resident may deal with it in the manner provided in Rule 6.

8. (1) The Commission may, with the sanction of the Resident,

(a) raise or reduce the allotments under any head of expenditure in the budget or in any supplemental budget, or

(b) transfer the allotments from one head of expenditure to another:

Provided that the total amount of expenditure as shown in the budget and in any supplemental budget as passed by the Resident is not exceeded.

(2) Every application for sanction to expenditure in excess of budget grants must be made in time for orders to be passed on it by the Resident before the expenditure is actually incurred, and must be accompanied by a statement in Form E, showing how it is proposed to meet the expenditure.

(3) Every increase, reduction or transfer of allotment shall, upon being sanctioned by the Resident, be deemed to form part of the budget.

9. A statement showing the balances remaining unspent on 1st April out of the provision made in the sanctioned budget for the previous year, shall be prepared by the President and furnished to the Residency by the 15th July following.

10. The President of the Municipal Commission shall also submit to the Resident by the 1st November every year a revised estimate (in Form F) of receipts and expenditure, based on the actuals of the first six months of the year.

No. 12.—In exercise of the powers conferred by sections 2, 4 and 10 (2) of the Poisons Act 1904 (I of 1904), as applied to the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore, the Honourable the Resident in Mysore is pleased to make the following rules to regulate the possession for sale, and the sale of certain poisons specified in the said rules in the said Civil and Military Station.

RULES.

I. The following shall be deemed to be poisons for the purposes of these rules :—

Aconite, Nux Vomica, Perchloride of Mercury (Corrosive Sublimate), Cyanide of Potash, Stramonium (Dathura), Arsenic and Sulphides of Arsenic, i.e., Red Sulphide (Realgar), Yellow Sulphide (Orpiment), and Chloroform and its preparations used for the purpose of anæsthetising.

The expressions "sell" and "sale" mean respectively "sell by retail" and "sale by retail."

II. No person shall possess any poison specified in rule I for sale except under a license granted in this behalf by the District Magistrate and no person not possessing any such licence shall sell any such poison.

III. The grant or withdrawal of a license to any applicant shall be at the discretion of the District Magistrate whose decision thereon shall be final. The license shall be granted for the calendar year.

IV. A fee of Re. 1 per annum shall be charged for each license granted under rule II and shall be paid before the grant of such license. The license shall be inscribed on a non-judicial impressed stamped paper of the appropriate value.

V. A license shall terminate on the death of the license-holder.

VI. The District Magistrate may for any sufficient cause revoke or cancel any license granted under rule II.

VII. A license-holder shall effect every sale of poison in person.

VIII. A license-holder shall not sell any poison to any person unless the latter is personally known to him or identified to his satisfaction. He shall not sell any poison to any person who appears to him to be under the age of 18 years or to any person who does not appear to him to be in full possession of his faculties, or to any wandering mendicant.

IX. A license-holder shall not sell any poison of a quantity exceeding one ounce at any one time to any one person.

X. A license-holder shall maintain a register in which he shall enter all sales of poison.

The following particulars shall be entered in such register in respect of each sale, viz. :—

(a) Serial number.
(b) Name of poison.
(c) Quantity sold.
(d) Date of sale.
(e) Name of purchaser.
(f) Address of purchaser.
(g) Purpose for which the poison is stated to be required.
(h) Signature of purchaser and his left thumb-mark (or where purchaser is illiterate, his left thumb-mark.)
(i) Signature of vendor.

XI. A license-holder shall maintain in respect of each poison specified in rule I a stock register which shall contain the following particulars :—

(a) Serial number.
(b) Date.
(c) Quantity received.
(d) Name and address of person from whom received.
(e) Quantity sold.
(f) Balance in stock.
(g) Remarks.

XII. Any Magistrate or police officer of or above the rank of Sub-Inspector, any revenue officer of or above the rank of Amildar or any medical officero for above the rank of Sub-Assistant Surgeon may at any time visit and inspect the premises of a license-holder where poison is kept for sale and may inspect all poisons found therein and the registers maintained under rules X and XI.

XIII. All poisons specified in rule I shall be kept in a separate locked almirah or box which shall have the word "poison" in English and vernacular painted on it in conspicuous red letters. Each small receptacle within such almirah or box shall be marked in paint with the name of the poison contained in it and shall also have the word "poison" in English and vernacular painted up on it in red letters. All poisons should be kept in blue bottles or else a skull and cross bone mark should be put on the receptacles.

XIV. No poison shall be kept otherwise than in securely closed receptacles of glass, tin or earthenware.

XV. When any poison is sold, it shall be securely packed in a packet and every packet sold shall be labelled by the vendor with a red label bearing the name of the poison in the vernacular and the number and date of the entry in the register of sales.

XVI. A license-holder shall not sell powdered white arsenic to any person, unless the same is before the sale thereof, mixed with soot, indigo or Prussian blue in the proportion of half an ounce of soot, indigo, or Prussian blue at least to one pound of the white arsenic and so on in proportion for any greater or less quantity.

Provided that where such arsenic is stated by the purchaser to be required for some purpose for which such admixture would, according to the representation of the purchaser, render it unfit, the license-holder may sell such arsenic without such admixture, in a quantity of not less than ten pounds at any one time.

XVII. When a license-holder also deals in poisons wholesale, the stock maintained for sale as defined in these rules shall be kept entirely distinct from any stock maintained for the purpose of wholesale transactions.

XVIII. The provisions of rules X to XVI of these rules shall apply in the case of Medical or Veterinary practitioners, chemists or druggists vending poisonous drugs specified in rule I.

By order,

P. B. WARBURTON,

First Assistant Resident.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of the Governor General on the 7th March, 1913, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. V OF 1913.

An Act to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of matches made with white phosphorus.

WHEREAS it is expedient to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of matches made with white phosphorus; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the White Phosphorus Matches Prohibition Act, 1913.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India; and

(3) It shall come into force on the first day of July, 1913, with the exception of section 6, which shall come into force on the first day of July, 1914.

Definition.

2. In this Act, "white phosphorus" means the substance commonly known as white or yellow phosphorus.

VIII of 1878.

Prohibition of importation by addition to section 18, Act VIII of 1878.

3. To section 18 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, the following clause shall be added, namely :—

"(v) matches made with white phosphorus."

Prohibition of use of white phosphorus in manufacture of matches.

4. (1) No person shall use white phosphorus in the manufacture of matches.

(2) Any person who uses, or permits the use by any person under his control of, white phosphorus in the manufacture of matches, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

Power of Inspector of Factories to take samples of material used in manufacture.

XII of 1911.

5. (1) Every person who manufactures matches shall allow an Inspector of Factories appointed under the Indian Factories Act, 1911, at any time to take for analysis sufficient samples of any material in use, or mixed for use, in such manufacture:

Provided that any such person may, at the time the sample is taken, and on providing the necessary appliances, require the Inspector to divide the sample so taken into two parts, and to mark, seal and deliver to him one part.

(2) Any person who refuses to permit any such Inspector of Factories as aforesaid to take a sample, in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1), shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

Prohibition of sale.

6. (1) No person shall sell, or offer or expose for sale, or have in his possession for the purposes of sale, any matches made with white phosphorus.

(2) Any person who contravenes the provisions of sub-section (1) may, on complaint to a Presidency Magistrate, Subdivisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class, be ordered to forfeit any such matches in his possession, and any matches so forfeited shall be destroyed or otherwise dealt with as the Magistrate may direct.

OFFICIAL HISTORY OF THE CORONATION DURBAR AND OF THE VISIT OF THEIR IMPERIAL MAJESTIES THE KING-EMPEROR AND QUEEN-EMPRESS TO INDIA, 1911-12.

To meet the repeated demand of the public, the Government of India have decided to publish a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911.

This book will be compiled from the official records, and will contain lists of all persons taking part in the celebrations and ceremonies. There will also be numerous illustrations, portraits, maps, plans, etc.

It will be published in two editions, a popular one in a cloth binding at a cost not exceeding Rs 7-8, and a very limited edition de luxe, which will contain a list of the subscribers, at a cost of about Rs. 250.

A translation of the popular edition will be made in Urdu and possibly in other languages also if the demand is sufficient.

It is expected that the work will be ready for publication in about six months' time. names are still being registered for the various editions and application should be made to the Superintendent, Official History of the Durbar, Foreign Department, Simla.

NOTIFICATION

The 11th February 1913

No. 8668.—In exercise of the powers conferred on them by section 137 (1) (a) and (e) (ix) (m) of the Bangalore Municipal Law, 1897, the Municipal Commission for the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore having made the following Bye-law for the "Registration and control of all Motor Vehicles within the limits of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore" for use in the said Station and published it under this office Notification No 6081, dated 12th October 1912, and the same having been confirmed by the Honourable the Resident in Mysore as required by section 139 of the Law, the Bye-law is hereby notified for public information under section 180 (3) of the said law:—

Chapter III —SANITATION AND OTHER PURPOSES.

Bye-law No 24—Motor Vehicles

Bangalore Municipal Law, Section 137 (1) (a) and (e) (ix) (m)

PRELIMINARY.

APPLICATION OF BYE-LAW

1 This Bye-law shall apply to all motor vehicles for the time being within the limits of the Civil and Military Station, Bangalore

Proviso.—Nothing in this bye-law regarding—

(a) requirements as to construction or equipment of motor vehicles, or

(b) the licensing or qualification of drivers of such vehicles shall apply in the case of any motor vehicle such as is referred to in clause (ii) of section 3 of the Motor Vehicles International Circulation Act, 1912 (XII of 1912), or of any person possessing, using or driving the same, provided that the requirements of any rule made under the said clause and applicable to such vehicle or person are complied with.

DEFINITIONS

MOTOR VEHICLES.

2. (a) For the purpose of this bye-law, the expression "Motor Vehicles" shall include all vehicles constructed to be propelled entirely or partially by mechanical means on roads.

MOTOR CYCLES

(b) The expression "Motor Cycle" means a two, three or four-wheeled cycle propelled by mechanical means, fitted with seats, but without a carriage body and weighing not more than 3 cwts.

SEARCH LIGHT

(c) The expression "Search Light" means a light whose rays are capable of being thrown or projected in any direction independently of the movements of the vehicle to which it is attached.

PROHIBITION TO DRIVE WITHOUT REGISTRATION.

3. After 3 months from the date on which this bye-law comes into force and after the owner has had reasonable opportunity of having the motor vehicle registered under this bye-law, no person shall drive a motor vehicle on a public road or thoroughfare unless it has been registered under this bye-law or any other enactment in force in British India or any Native State, in which case registration under this Bye-law will be unnecessary.

REGISTRATION

REGISTERING OFFICER.

4. The President of the Municipal Commission shall be the Registering Officer.

FEES

5. The fee for registration under this bye-law shall be rupee one for motor cycles and rupee one for all other motor vehicles.

NUMBERING

6. (1) The registering authority shall assign a distinguishing number to each motor vehicle and shall record the name and address of the owner.

(2) The number so assigned shall be shown in white figures on a black ground and shall be affixed by the owner in a prominent position on the front and the rear of the motor vehicle.

(3) The number shall be of not less than $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches in height and shall be perfectly legible.

In the case of motor cycles the number shall be of not less than 2 inches in height.

NUMBERS NOT TO BE OBSCURED

(4) Such numbers shall not be in any way obscured, or rendered or allowed to become not easily discernible at a reasonable distance.

GENERAL NUMBER FOR DEALERS, ETC.

7. (a) In the case of a manufacturer of, or dealer in motor vehicles, a general number may be assigned by the registering officer on payment of an annual fee of rupees thirty, to be used on any motor vehicle when on trial after completion of the running parts or when on trial by an intending purchaser. Provided that such motor vehicle shall not ply for or be let out on hire, unless it has been separately registered under section 3 of the bye-law.

REGISTER TO BE KEPT BY DEALERS.

(b) A manufacturer or a dealer in motor vehicles shall keep in such form as the registering authority may direct, a register showing the name of the driver in charge of each of his motor vehicles when allowed to leave his premises and the hour and dates on which he was in charge of the vehicle.

Such register shall be open to inspection on the demand of any Police officer of or above the rank of Sub-Inspector.

TRANSFER OF OWNERSHIP.

8. Every transfer of ownership shall forthwith be intimated to the Registering Officer by the transferee by a notice in writing signed by himself or his agent.

REQUIREMENTS BEFORE REGISTRATION.

9. Before registering a motor vehicle, the Registering Officer shall be satisfied that it is provided with two independent brakes or other means of stoppage in good working order and of such efficiency that the application of either is capable of promptly stopping the motor vehicle.

SUBSEQUENT DEFECTS

10. If at any time after a motor vehicle has been registered the Registering Officer has reason to believe that it has ceased to comply with the requirements of section 9, or that it is not maintained in such a condition as to prevent danger to the public, he may after notice to the registered owner, direct that the registration be cancelled until such time as the defects are rectified to his satisfaction.

LICENSES.

DRIVER'S LICENSE.

11. No person shall drive a motor vehicle without a license granted or countersigned under this Bye-law

DRIVERS' LICENSES TO WHOM GRANTED

12 (a) A license to drive a motor vehicle may be granted by the President of the Municipal Commission of the Civil and Military Station, Bangalore, to any person over the age of 18 years who in the opinion of the President is competent to drive a motor vehicle, on payment of the sum of two rupees

(b) A license granted under any other enactment in force in British India or Native State may be countersigned, without fee, by the President and shall then be considered equivalent to a license granted under section 12 (a)

BEGINNERS

(c) A Provisional License may be granted to a beginner on application and on payment of the sum of one rupee which will permit of his driving a motor car subject to the condition that a licensed driver be seated by his side such licence to remain in force for a period not exceeding two calendar months from date of issue.

DURATION AND RENEWAL OF LICENSE

13. Every driver's license shall remain in force for a period of twelve months from date on which it is granted, but shall be renewable, and the same provisions shall apply to the renewal of the license as apply to the grant thereof.

REFUSAL TO GRANT OR RENEW LICENSES AND CANCELLATION OF LICENSES.

14 The Licensing officer may refuse to grant or renew a license, or may cancel a subsisting licence; but in all such cases he shall previously give notice to the person applying for the license or its renewal or the holder of the license to appear before him, either in person or by an agent, at a place and time to be specified in such notice and to show cause why the application for the grant or the renewal of the license should not be refused or why the license should not be cancelled for all or any of the reasons specified in such notice and may, after hearing him or his agent, if either of them appears, refuse the application for the grant or renewal of the license or may cancel the license for all or any of such reasons to be recorded in writing and may, where the license is cancelled, require the license-holder to surrender the same within a time to be specified in such requisition

ONLY ONE LICENSE OBTAINABLE

15. No person may obtain more than one license.

TRANSFER AND SURRENDER OF LICENSE

16. The holder of a license shall not lend it to, or allow it to be used by, any other person and shall surrender it on being required to do so under section 14

PRODUCTION OF LICENSE.

17. The driver of a motor vehicle shall produce his license upon demand by any Police Officer above the rank of Constable who is in uniform or produces proof of his office.

DUPLICATE LICENSE.

18. A license lost or defaced may be renewed on payment of rupee one but the duplicate shall bear all endorsements which may have been made by any Magistrate.

SUSPENSION OF LICENSE AND DISQUALIFICATION.

19. (1) Any Court before whom a person is convicted of an offence of exceeding any limit of speed fixed under this bye-law after two previous similar convictions, or of any other offences under this bye-law unconditionally—

(a) may, if the person convicted holds any license under this bye-law, suspend that license for such time as the Court thinks fit; and, if the Court thinks fit, also declare the person convicted disqualified from obtaining a license for such further time after the expiration of the license as the Court thinks fit; and

(b) may, if the person convicted does not hold any license under this bye-law declare him disqualified from obtaining a license for such time as the Court thinks fit; and

(c) shall, if the person convicted holds any license under this bye-law cause particulars of the conviction, and of any order of the Court made under this section, to be endorsed upon any license held by him, and shall also cause a copy of those particulars to be sent to the authority by whom any license so endorsed has been granted

(2) Any person so convicted, if he holds any license under this bye-law, shall produce the license within a reasonable time, for the purposes of endorsement, and if he fails to do so, shall be deemed to have committed an offence under this bye-law

(3) A license so suspended by the Court shall, during the term of suspension, be of no effect, and a person whose license is suspended, or who is declared by the Court to be disqualified from obtaining a license, shall, during the period of suspension or disqualification, be disqualified from obtaining a license

(4) If any person who, under the provisions of this bye-law, is disqualified from obtaining a license, applies for or obtains a license while he is so disqualified, or if any person whose license has been endorsed applies for or obtain a license without giving particulars of the endorsement, that person shall be deemed to have committed an offence under this bye-law, and any license so obtained shall be of no effect

FORGERY

20 If any person forges or fraudulently alters or uses, or fraudulently lends or allows to be used by any other person, any mark for identifying a car or any license under this bye-law, he shall be deemed to have committed an offence under this bye-law.

GENERAL

Driving on the proper side of the Road

21. A motor-vehicle shall be driven in accordance with the rules of the road which require a vehicle to keep on the left of the road except when overtaking horses and other vehicles with the exception of tramcars going in the same direction which should be passed on their right

RECKLESS DRIVING.

22. A motor vehicle shall not be driven in a public street recklessly or negligently or at a speed or in a manner which is likely to endanger human life, or to cause hurt or injury to any person or animal, or damage to any vehicle or property, or which would be otherwise than reasonable and proper having regard to all the circumstances of the case including the nature, condition and use of the street, and to the amount of traffic which is actually on it at the time, or which may reasonably be expected to be on it

SPEED LIMIT

Provided that the President of the Municipal Commission shall have power, subject to the approval of the Hon'ble the Resident, to prescribe that, when passing through a particular locality, street, or village, motor drivers shall not exceed such rate as may be indicated upon notice boards erected at each end of the locality, street or village or exceeding any limit prescribed by these rules

Provided also that the Hon'ble the Resident by notification may prescribe a rate of speed which shall not be exceeded either generally or in any particular locality

PROHIBITION AS TO USE OF MOTOR VEHICLES ON FOOTPATHS IN CERTAIN LOCALITIES.

23 A motor vehicle shall not be driven in any footway nor in any street where such traffic may, for the time being, be prohibited by a lawful order promulgated by any public servant.

POLICE DIRECTIONS TO BE OBEYED.

24. (1) The person in charge of a motor vehicle shall obey all directions of Police Officers posted or stationed for the regulation of traffic at crossings or other places, and shall cause such motor vehicle to stop when requested to do so by any Police Officer in uniform.

ACCIDENT

2. When any accident has occurred to any person or to any animals or vehicle in charge of any person owing to the presence of such motor vehicle on the road and there is no Police Officer present, the driver of such motor vehicle shall, if any person has been injured, render every possible assistance to such person

3 The driver shall immediately report to the nearest Police Station the occurrence of any accident either actually caused by the vehicle or resulting in any manner from its presence on the street, to any person, animal, vehicle or public or private property.

MOTOR VEHICLES TO CARRY HORNS.

25 Every person driving a motor vehicle shall have ready and available for immediate use a suitable horn capable of giving audible and sufficient warning of his approach or position and shall sound the same when approaching cross roads and corners and whenever expedient to prevent danger to any of the public

SIRENS.

26 The use of sirens is prohibited.

MOTOR VEHICLES TO CARRY LAMPS

27 No person shall drive a motor vehicle between half an hour after sunset and half an hour before sunrise, without three lighted lamps of suitable character and illumination affixed thereto, one on either side of the front portion and one at the back of such motor vehicle, the light at the back having a red glass facing to the rear and a white glass at the side thereby illuminating the number of the vehicle and rendering it easily distinguishable

Provided that one lamp shall be sufficient in the case of a motor cycle

Provided also that when a motor-cycle is used in combination with a fore car or side car, two lights shall be carried in such a manner as to indicate the width of the combination.

HEAD LIGHTS

28. (a) The use of head lights which move automatically with the steering is permissible but no acetylene or electric head light shall be permitted unless such light or lights are provided to the satisfaction of the Registering Officer with a cowl or hood which, while concentrating the rays of light on the roadway effectually protects drivers of other road vehicles from the intense glare produced when the lamps are closely approached

(b) The use of search lights is prohibited

MAINTENANCE.

29 No person shall drive a motor vehicle (a) unless it is at all times under full control so as to prevent undue interference with passenger or other traffic and unless it is maintained in such a condition as to prevent danger to the public or to any person occupying the car; (b) unless it is so used that no smoke or visible vapour is emitted therefrom except from some temporary or accidental cause.

STANDING ON ROADS, ETC.

30 No motor vehicle shall be allowed to stand in any street unattended by a person licensed under section 12 unless all reasonable precautions have been taken to prevent it moving.

TRAVELLING BACKWARDS

31. The driver of a motor vehicle shall not unnecessarily cause the vehicle to travel backwards for a greater distance or time than may be requisite for purposes of safety or in order to turn round, and shall, in all such cases, give due warning to every one nearby of his intention to cause such vehicle to move backwards

CUT-OUT, ETC

32. No cut-out, fitting or other apparatus or device shall be used which will allow the exhaust gases from the engine of the motor vehicle to escape into the atmosphere without first passing through a silencer, expansion chamber, or other contrivance suitable and sufficient for reducing as far as may reasonably be practicable the noise which would otherwise be caused by the escape of the said gases

PENALTIES.

33. Any person committing a breach of any of these rules shall, on conviction, be liable to a fine which may extend to rupees fifty.

FORMS.

34. Every application for a license under this bye-law shall contain the particulars specified in Schedule A.

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Indian Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 11th March, 1913 :—

We, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Indian Penal Code and Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, was referred, have considered the Bill, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

2. In order to avoid any possible danger of the provisions of the Bill being misused, we have added two new clauses. The first of these provides for cases of criminal conspiracy to commit offences referred to in section 195 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, and requires the same sanction for prosecutions for conspiracies to commit such offences as is required for prosecutions for the offences themselves.

3. The second clause provides that no Court shall take cognizance of any criminal conspiracy to commit certain offences specified in section 196 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, or to commit illegal acts which are not offences or to effect legal objects by illegal means, save upon complaint made by or under the authority of the Governor General in Council, the Local Government or some officer empowered by the Governor General in Council in that behalf.

4. It further provides that courts shall not take cognizance of criminal conspiracies to commit non-cognizable offences or cognizable offences punishable with less than two years' rigorous imprisonment without the consent in writing of the Local Government or of a District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate empowered in this behalf by the Local Government.

5 We think that these safeguards will satisfactorily ensure that the provisions of the Bill will only be used when prosecutions are necessary in the public interest.

6. We have amended the Schedule so as to make it clear that no case of criminal conspiracy is to be tried by any Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the 1st class.

7. We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require re-publication, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

*NOTE OF DISSENT.

THIS Bill has been introduced and is being dealt with as an emergent measure Its scope should, therefore, in my opinion, be limited to offences which require emergency to be provided against; but as the Bill stands it is extremely comprehensive The word "illegal" used in the definition of a criminal conspiracy is as it is defined in the Indian Penal Code, "applicable to everything which is an offence, or which is prohibited by law, or which furnishes ground for a civil action" This definition would make even a case of civil trespass indictable as a criminal conspiracy and would thus go beyond the law as it prevails in England

It is true that in England indictments for conspiracy extend to almost every possible sort of case; but in India section 121A of the Indian Penal Code has hitherto been the only one section which renders punishable a mere conspiracy to do an illegal act which does not go beyond a conspiracy. In view of the special circumstances of the present situation, I am prepared to support the Bill as amended so far as it extends the law of conspiracy to specified grave offences to which in the opinion of the Government its extension may be necessary to enable the Government effectually to prevent and punish criminal conspiracies directed against the State, or the object of which is to commit murder or dacoity or similar grave crimes; but the proposal so to extend the law of conspiracy that it should cover every criminal offence, everything which is prohibited by law and every cause which furnishes ground for a civil action, stands on a very different footing It has not been urged that such an extension is a matter of pressing necessity. The pros and cons of it call for further deliberation and more detailed examination. Such a proposal should, therefore, be dealt with in the ordinary and regular way by a Bill embodying it being circulated for opinion among the judicial and executive officers of Government and representative public men and bodies and should be considered in the light of the opinions so gathered. To carry this part of the Bill through along with an emergent piece of legislation seems to me to be open to grave objection.

[AS AMENDED BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE.]

A Bill further to amend the Indian Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

XLV of 1860. V of 1898.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1913.

XLV of 1860.

Amendment of section 40, Indian Penal Code.

2. In section 40 of the Indian Penal Code, after the word and figures "Chapter IV", the word, figure and letter "Chapter VA" shall be inserted.

Insertion of new Chapter in the Indian Penal Code.

3. After Chapter V of the said Code, the following Chapter shall be inserted, namely:—

"CHAPTER VA.

CRIMINAL CONSPIRACY.

Definition of criminal conspiracy.

120A. When two or more persons agree to do or cause to be done—

(1) an illegal act; or

(2) an act which is not illegal by illegal means, such an agreement is designated a criminal conspiracy:

Provided that no agreement except an agreement to commit an offence shall amount to a criminal conspiracy unless some act besides the agreement is done to effect the object thereof by one or more parties to such agreement.

Explanation.—It is immaterial whether the illegal act is the ultimate object of such agreement, or is merely incidental to that object.

Punishment of criminal conspiracy.

120B. (1) Whoever is a party to a criminal conspiracy to commit an offence punishable with death, transportation or rigorous imprisonment for a term of two years or upwards, shall, where no express provision is made in this Code, for the punishment of such a conspiracy, be punished in the same manner as if he had abetted such offence.

(2) Whoever is a party to a criminal conspiracy other than a criminal conspiracy to commit an offence punishable as aforesaid, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term not exceeding six months, or with fine or with both."

Amendment of section 195, Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

4. In section 195, sub-section (3), of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, before the words "the abetment" the words "criminal conspiracies to commit such offences and to" shall be inserted.

V of 1898.

Insertion of new section 196A in Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

5. After section 196 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

V of 1898.

Prosecution for certain classes of criminal conspiracy.

"196A. No Court shall take cognizance of the offence of criminal conspiracy punishable under section 120B of the Indian Penal Code, XLV of 1860.

(1) in a case where the object of the conspiracy is to commit either an illegal act other than an offence, or a legal act by illegal means, or an offence to which the provisions of section 196 apply, unless upon complaint made by order or under authority from the Governor General in Council, the Local Government or some officer empowered by the Governor General in Council in this behalf; or

(2) in a case where the object of the conspiracy is to commit any non-cognizable offence, or a cognizable offence not punishable with death, transportation or rigorous imprisonment for a term of two years or upwards unless the Local Government, or a Chief Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate empowered in this behalf by the Local Government has, by order in writing, consented to the initiation of the proceedings:

Provided that where the criminal conspiracy is one to which the provisions of sub-section (3) of section 195 apply no such consent shall be necessary."

Amendment of Schedule II of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

6. In Schedule II of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, after the entries relating to Chapter V, the entries contained in the Schedule hereto annexed shall be inserted.

V of 1898.

Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India, assembled for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE INDIAN COUNCILS ACTS, 1861 to 1909 (24 & 25 Vict., c. 67, 55 & 56 Vict., c. 14, AND 9 Edw. VII, c. 4).

The Council met at the Council Chamber, Imperial Secretariat, Delhi, on Saturday, the 1st March, 1913.

PRESENT:

His Excellency BARON HARDINGE OF PENSHURST, P.C., G.C.B., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., I.S.O., Viceroy and Governor General of India, presiding, and 17 Members, of whom 10 were Additional Members.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT FOR 1913-14.

Introductory.

The Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson: "I rise to present the Financial Statement for 1913-14 For the information of those Members who are new to the Council, I may state briefly the procedure to be followed. To-day there will be no debate, but beginning with the 7th March dates will be allotted for the detailed examination of my proposals and the discussion of any Resolutions that may be moved regarding them Subsequently I shall have to consider what modifications are necessary, either in the light of our discussions or of later information which may become available The Budget in its final form will be presented on the 20th and the final debate will begin on 24th March

"2 This is the fifth occasion on which the duty has fallen on me of reviewing the finances of India, and it is my good fortune that for a third time I am in a position to bear witness to the material well-being of this country A year ago I framed my estimates on the assumption of a year of normal seasons and trade, and promising as the outlook may be, that is, in my judgment, the most favourable assumption which in the circumstances of India can be made with prudence In looking back now over a period, the happenings of which it was then my duty to forecast, I shall have to describe a large improvement on our original estimates. The year that is drawing to a close has proved to be one of prosperity and of plenty, the results of which have easily outrun anticipations consistent with the principle of caution which I have suggested as necessary in our financial prognostications But there is a shadow in the financial sunshine While contemplating the general prospects a year ago as excellent, I said the uncertainties of the opium revenue still hung over us. The difficulties which I had then in mind have since then become acute, and we are faced with a loss of revenue which affects materially our financial arrangements in the coming year

"3. I propose in the first place to sketch the main features, agricultural and commercial, of the current year. The year opened well, for the winter rains, beginning in January, had been normal and timely, and the only thorn on the harvest rose was the distress in Kathiawar and some parts of Bombay, where famine, due to insufficient rainfall in the preceding year, had been declared In the hot weather the auguries were unfavourable. A series of disturbances of the cold weather type continued to pass into India, delaying the establishment of the usual hot weather conditions, and in May there was an almost complete absence on the west coast of the irruptions of ocean winds which herald the advance of the monsoon Thus the rains were late in beginning and were not established fully in the interior until the 10th of July. Their duration also was unusually short In September they were very fitful, and they retreated from Northern and Central India a fortnight before the usual date Stated in this way the history of the most important months in the year from the agricultural point of view may seem disappointing. For four weeks however from the time when it spread over Northern India the monsoon continued in abnormal vigour and yielded abundant rain A beneficial break of ten days followed, and in the end of August and beginning of September the rain bearing currents again spread over India. For India as a whole the rainfall was little below normal, and, what is of more importance it was well distributed, no tract showing a very large deficiency. It is true that in Bengal and the eastern districts of the United Provinces, the early close of the rains was the cause of no little damage specially to the rice crop and in portions of the Bombay Deccan the want of rain was severely felt But there is never a monsoon that can be said without reservation to satisfy our ideals. At the end of November a rain bearing depression, which may justly be termed providential, traversed precisely those parts of the country where rain was needed In the Bombay Presidency famine relief continued till October, and in three districts small numbers of people are still in receipt of gratuitous relief In the United Provinces scarcity has been experienced in Mirzapur and a part of the Domains of the Maharaja of Benares, but with small exceptions the retrospect agriculturally is satisfactory. For the winter season we may now anticipate an auspicious close December, January and two weeks in February went by with scarcely a cloud, and we were beginning to despond when the atmospheric conditions changed and the rain was sent to us, welcome all the more because it had been so long delayed

"4. From the cause, in the seasons, we may turn to the effect in the harvests The wheat crop of 1911 constituted a record which it would be difficult to equal ; but the crop of 1912, if inferior to its predecessor, was in respect both of area and outturn very greatly better than the normal ; in the United Provinces, one of the two chief wheat-producing provinces, the outturn indeed exceeded even the harvest of 1911. Rice had also been good ; whilst of the other export staples, cotton had on the whole a favourable season except in parts of the Bombay Presidency and Hyderabad, and its total outturn was estimated at no less than 10 per cent. better than in the preceding year The area under sugarcane has increased and the outturn is expected to be good ; whilst jute has also shown considerable improvement This year's rice crop has suffered to some extent in parts of Bengal and the United Provinces, but elsewhere the season has been not unfavourable and the outturn, though not up to that of 1911-12, should be considerably above the normal average of preceding years.

"5. From this review of the agricultural reports I proceed to consider in the trade returns a more definite and statistical test of the year's prosperity The results are striking. The value of our exports, I said last year, had been the highest on record, but the merchandise we have sent abroad between April and December 1912 exceeded in value by 17½ crores the corresponding exports of 1911 There was a considerable falling off in the case of linseed and raw cotton, but a great trade was done in grain, wheat, rice and barley ; the exports of jute increased by 3 crores, and of hides and skins by 1½ crores Nor was the improvement only in raw material ; there was a very substantial advance in jute fabrics, in cotton twist and yarn and in

tea How the balance of trade was adjusted I shall show later on At present I am concerned with merchandise, and under this head I note that our imports also in nine months have exceeded those of the previous year by 14¾ crores In 1911-12 imports were active in April and May and then eased off in the ensuing four months, as if waiting I said, upon the monsoon In 1912-13 the same general tendency is observable; but the activity of April and May was greater and the comparative slackness in the following months less marked than in the preceding year In the commodities for which we indented on other countries in exchange for our exports, half the increase roughly consisted of textile materials and fabrics generally, and piece-goods in particular; but there have been large increases also of sugar, hardware, machinery, iron and steel and railway plant Combining both the inward and outward currents of trade the value of our total seaborne commerce in merchandise during the first nine months of the year amounted to some 296 crores as against 264 crores in the preceding record year The range of prices has doubtless been high, but I do not know that it is higher than in the preceding year, or consequently that the comparison I have drawn is misleading as an indication of the volume of trade We know at any rate that railway traffic has been extremely active and on every side there are plain indications of a continuance of the progress and prosperity of the country

Revised Estimate of 1912-13.

"6 The effect of the conditions I have outlined is written large across our figures. The Budget for the current year was prepared for a revenue, Imperial and Provincial together, of £79½ millions; according to the latest revision of the estimate we now anticipate that we shall receive £87 millions, an improvement of £7½ million, of which £5 millions will be secured from Opium and Railways The aggregate expenditure we think will exceed by only £171,000 that provided in the Budget. Of the net improvement, as will appear even from the figure I have just given for Opium and Railways, the great bulk has accrued in the Imperial account Out of our revenues however we have distributed large grants to Provinces After allowing for these grants, the surplus we retain is £3,362,000 as against a surplus anticipated in the Budget of £1,478,600

Opium Revenue

"7 The position in regard to opium is as follows The trade with China in Indian opium is governed by the agreement of 8th May 1911, the object of which was to assist the suppression of opium smoking in China by cutting off gradually the Indian supply The trade, it was contemplated, would cease in 1917; but provision was made for its earlier termination on proof of the extinction of production in China of the indigenous drug The taxation of foreign and native opium was to be equalised All restrictions on the wholesale trade in our opium were to be withdrawn, but the stipulations of the Treaty were not to derogate from the force of any ordinances then existing, or which the Chinese Government might in future pass to regulate the retail trade or suppress opium smoking The Manchu Government gave convincing proof of its sincerity and of its ability to enforce anti-opium measures, and several of the Chinese Provinces were under the terms of the Treaty closed to Indian opium. With the revolution there was undoubtedly a recrudescence of poppy cultivation and an unwarranted interference with the trade in Indian opium Presently however the central Government asserted itself Not only were Presidential decrees issued enacting the severest penalties against opium cultivation, but it was ordained that opium smoking was to cease entirely by a given date The campaign against cultivation had extended to a campaign against consumption

"8. The policy of the Government of India has throughout been correct and simple We had in our agreement with China a programme of sales from year to year and we have adhered to it Yet we have had strong inducements to vary our course The operations of the Chinese authorities would frequently have justified us in denouncing the Treaty or declining to make the further reductions of sales for which the Treaty provided. We were sincerely anxious however to help China towards a great reform We have not insisted on the letter of the law None the less we have steadily resisted pressure which from time to time has been brought to bear on us to effect reductions in our sale programme which would have been arbitrary and premature Applications for the suspension of sales are no new feature in the opium trade We were familiar with them before any restrictions were placed on exports to China, and their object was obviously to confer the advantages of a strict monopoly on those who happened at the time to be in the possession of opium. This we have properly and consistently refused to do The action of the Republican Government in China, however, created an entirely new situation It stopped the outlet for Indian opium. As soon as the situation declared itself, I went to Bombay and met the opium merchants, whose frank and forcible presentation of their case I wish to acknowledge I made myself thoroughly acquainted with the whole outlook The representations of the merchants were confirmed by the course which events had taken In Shanghai and Hongkong which are the markets of our opium in China, trade was reported to be at a standstill There were no sales or deliveries, and in India at the December auction the price of Malwa opium had dropped to Rs 722 a chest as against Rs 1,666 obtained in November and Rs 2,443 in August

"9 The situation was radically different from any with which we had as yet been called on to deal, and the Government of India took prompt action With the sanction of the Secretary of State we did four things The sales of opium for China could not be stopped immediately, as a variation in the programme of the year cannot be made without three months' notice, but we suspended sales from the earliest date which this condition allows Meanwhile we imposed an upset price which practically resulted in an immediate suspension of such sales We reduced the quantity of opium to be sold in 1913 for export to non-China markets with the desire to reduce smuggling into China And lastly, though we had no obligation in the matter, we agreed to buy from the Malwa States the amount of opium by which their exports to China in 1913 may in consequence of this decision fall short of the number of chests which had been assigned to them in our programme

"10 So much for the past. The Government of India clearly have had to deal with a situation created for them and for which they were not responsible All that it was in their power to do has been done by them. For the future neither I nor anyone else can prophesy, but we cannot conceal from ourselves that China has set herself a task which experience proves to be one of the greatest difficulty—the enforcement of a morality possibly too advanced for popular acceptance We have dealt generously with China and we have a claim on her for fair treatment. Her reputation for probity stands high among the nations The Chinaman's word, it is said, is his bond The new Republican Government, which has yet to establish its position in its own country and in the world at large, will doubtless be jealous in a peculiar degree of its honour and will be actuated by the same spirit of equity and fair dealing which has characterised the policy of the Government of India.

"11. In the current year the effect of these events on our revenues has been comparatively small In the case of Malwa opium I may explain that our receipts consist of a share, first of a fixed pass duty, and secondly of the amounts bid at the auctions for the right of export For the payment of these bids the merchants are allowed three months' grace, so that the proceeds of sale subsequent to December would in any case have been credited in the coming financial year As far as the current year is concerned, the revenue from sales of certified opium in January-March would not have exceeded £400,000 On the other hand, as I have said, in earlier months prices were exceedingly high, and the results for the year as a whole are accordingly much above the Budget estimate The improvement in fact under Bengal opium has been £1,198,000 and under Malwa opium £224,000 This portion of our revenues we propose to treat exactly as in previous years To enable us to deal systematically with our opium windfalls we fixed in advance some time ago a series of standard figures to represent year by year the revenue which we might expect from our diminishing trade under normal conditions; so much was to be treated as current revenue, while the surplus revenue received, if any, was to be specially treated For the current year the standard figure is £3,600,000 Our actual revenue is likely to be £5,063,000, so that there is an excess of £1,463,000 Of this sum two-thirds will be retained in our surplus for the discharge of temporary sterling debt The discharge of India Bills, of which £4½ millions were still outstanding at the time of the last Financial Statement, has been completed ; but we have to pay off next year £1¼ millions railway debentures and meet an instalment of £500,000 for the discharge of short-term bonds The remaining third, which amounts to about £460,000, we propose to distribute in grants for hostels and universities

[1ST MARCH, 1913.] [Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.]

Ordinary Revenue.

"12. Having reviewed the opium position, I pass to a consideration of our ordinary revenue. Excluding opium, the improvement shown on a comparison with the Budget is £6,191,000, the great bulk of which has been contributed by our railways. In making my estimate under this head, I was cautious and it would ill-befit, in my judgment, a Finance Minister in this country to be otherwise; but I think the most irresponsible critic would have hesitated to predict that the development of traffic would prove so enormous as to constitute a crisis in railway management. The gross earnings have been almost £4½ millions above the estimate. The net improvement is less, because, we have had, of course, to distribute more in the shape of surplus profits paid to companies, and because working expenses have naturally increased. Against the £4½ millions growth in earnings however the increase in working expenses has not been more than £600,000. The percentage of working expenses has been brought down to 49·3, which is a lower figure than has been shown for the last five years. The net receipts are £3⅞ millions better than the Budget. Apart from railways therefore, I have to account for an improvement of £2¼ millions. Over a million of this improvement has been secured under the purely Imperial heads of Customs, Mint, Post Office and Telegraph, and Exchange. Under Customs, I find that out of a total increase of £586,000, £353,000 are accounted for under cotton manufactures, manufactured articles and export duties; the first two heads showing the influence of a prosperous year, while under the third the rise in revenue was due to a large demand for rice from other countries, which led to exports not only from Burma but from Bengal. Silver, the imports of which were heavy throughout the year, brought us about £160,000 more than we had anticipated and the revenue derived from sugar was also high. Of a large increase of £228,000 under Mint, the greater part is due to the resumption of rupee coinage, which could not be allowed for in the Budget. Before the profits on coinage are transferred to the Gold Standard Reserve, a charge is made for manufacture, which is credited to the Mint, and the sum thus shown in the current year is £211,000. Finally, so far as these Imperial heads are concerned, the Post Office and Telegraph Department has given us £118,000 more than our forecast, as the result no doubt of active trade and general prosperity, and the same general conditions have credited us with £109,000 under the head of Exchange. Under the shared heads of Stamps and Excise, we have divided with the Provinces an increased revenue of nearly £150,000 and Irrigation receipts also have been better in the aggregate by £142,000.

"13. The description I have given of the improvement in our revenues will have impressed on the Council the fact that much the greater portion of it has accrued in the Imperial account. We do not propose however to retain all that has come to us; we intend to make the provinces partners in our good fortune. The distribution of my surplus has given me much anxious thought. I have a large sum of money to dispose of; we are unlikely to have again, for some time, a margin anything like so large as in the present year, and it is all the more necessary to be careful in the distribution of what is in our hands. I state the principle of our decisions very briefly. There are certain relatively small requirements which we intend to meet; but the bulk of the money will go in grants to secure a steady progress in education and sanitation, an object which has the support of both official and non-official opinion. We propose to make the following distribution of funds:—

- 2½ crores for non-recurring expenditure on education.
- 1½ crores for urban sanitation.
- 30 lakhs to Burma for communications.
- 20 lakhs to Assam for development.
- 1 crore in aid of general provincial resources.

The last mentioned grant will be distributed at the rate of 12 lakhs to each of the larger Provinces, and 8 lakhs each for the smaller Administrations, and will not be earmarked for any one purpose. It will be devoted to such schemes as each Local Government may deem to be most necessary in view of varying and special requirements. Our ability to make these grants secures important advantages. From the Imperial point of view, they are an anticipation of future liabilities. We have these demands; we might in ordinary course meet them over a more extended period; but we may well doubt whether in the next few years we shall have funds available for distribution, and we take the opportunity, which fortunately presents itself, of paying our contribution in advance From the point of view of the Provinces, there is a great gain in stability; they are secured in the prosecution of improvements of the most important kind against the fluctuations of Imperial finance. They are, we are assured, ready for the distribution The great attention which has been paid in recent years to the needs of sanitation and education has led to a systematic review of requirements and preparation of projects generally So long as there is uncertainty as to the amount that will be available from year to year, progress must be fitful and uneconomical But now, when they find themselves secure l in the possession of substantial sums, the Provinces will be able to make out and adhere to well-considered programmes of development and the systematic application of funds which will thus be possible will certainly make for economy and efficiency

[Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.] [1ST MARCH, 1913.]

Expenditure

"14 About the expenditure of the current year I have little to say I have already mentioned that in the aggregate it is £171,000 more than in the Budget Provinces have spent £171,000 less than they anticipated, but there is an increase of £342,000 in Imperial charges The Provincial decrease is accounted for by the inability of Local Governments to spend the full amounts provided In the Imperial section the important variations are increases of £398,000 under Civil Works and £570,000 under Military services The rise in Civil Works charges is accounted for by the debit, to the revenue head, of the construction of temporary accommodation for the Government of India at Delhi In the Military estimates, the additions have been of an obligatory nature; for instance, the increased outlay on food supplies caused by higher prices, the cost of surveys on the North-East Frontier, larger expenditure on the arms traffic operations in the Persian Gulf, and similar items On the other hand the special allotment made for protective irrigation works outside the Famine Insurance Grant has not been used and there is a large decrease of £180,000 shown under the Education head. This decrease however is nominal In the Budget a reserve of £528,000 was entered under this head for subsequent distribution As the distribution has proceeded, grants have been made by assignments diminishing Imperial revenues, and Imperial expenditure has been correspondingly reduced

Delhi Expenditure.

"15 I have completed my review of the current year and proceed to an explanation of the Budget for the ensuing year; but before I do so, there is one subject on which I wish to say a few words, and that is Delhi expenditure In the discussion which took place in the Council last year, I gave an undertaking that this expenditure would be separately and carefully accounted for, and I own to a feeling of surprise and some indignation that suggestions should subsequently have been made, and they have been made, that the Government of India would countenance a departure from the pledge then given It is evident that all expenditure of whatever kind connected with the transfer of the Imperial capital to Delhi, could not conveniently or properly be brought under a single head in our accounts. There is, for instance, the administrative expenditure of the new Imperial Province which must be accounted for in appropriate sections as on account of police, law and justice, and so on Again we have to build a new cantonment, the cost of which can with propriety be shown only in the Military Estimates Similarly if a diversion of a railway line is found necessary, it must be charged to Railways The cost of our temporary buildings further, as I have already mentioned, we have charged under the advice of the Comptroller General, to the revenue expenditure head, Civil Works, and not to the new head of capital expenditure which we have opened for the new Imperial City I make this explanation because I am anxious that there should be no possibility of misconception on the subject, and I would add that, while the expenditure has of necessity been entered under more than one head in the accounts, care has been taken to make it readily available by prescribing that in each case it should be kept apart under a sub-head of its own. I have arranged further, for the convenience of Hon'ble Members, that all the relevant items of expenditure should be brought together in a comprehensive pro formâ account, and this arrangement will be continued year by year so long as it may be necessary The form of this account and details regarding it will be found in the memorandum by the Financial Secretary, and I need only mention that the cost of temporary Delhi in the current year will probably be just under 50 lakhs The discussion of the numerous questions of the first importance involved in the inception of a task of such magnitude has delayed the beginning of the permanent city, and the amount charged to the capital head in the current year is only £155,000, which represents for the most part the cost of land acquisition We shall soon be in a position however to proceed with the work energetically, and Honourable Members will find that a provision of 2 crores has been made in the capital account for this purpose in the ensuing year

Budget Estimate for 1913-14.

"16 I now come to a new page in our financial history and open the Budget for the year 1913-14 It will be clear that in one matter of grave importance our position has been weakened since I had to undertake the same task a year ago. I referred on that occasion to the uncertainties of our opium revenue; but now we are face to face with a calculation of actual loss As regards our other sources of revenue, I do not propose to depart from the principle, which I consider to be the right one, of cautious estimating Indeed it might be said that with every year of prosperity the probability of an approaching reversal of fortune, of unfavourable seasons and trade depression, increases, and that the need for caution is greater therefore now than on previous occasions when I have laid my Budget before the Council At the same time I have no intention whatever of letting my estimates be influenced by vague forebodings I hold to what I said two years ago, namely, that in Indian budgeting the only reasonable rule of conduct is to assume that a period of prosperity, once it is established, will continue until we have some clear warning of impending change At present, apart from opium, our prospects are bright, and in making my estimates I have given full weight to this consideration Proceeding with these principles in my mind, the calculations I have made give for next year a probable revenue in the aggregate, Imperial and Provincial, of £82,322,000 The aggregate expenditure for which provision is made is £83,850,000 There is thus a difference of £1,528,000, which is distributed in this manner; there will according to our anticipations be an Imperial surplus of £1,311,000, but a deficit of £2,839,000 in Provincial Budgets

Revenue

"17. I proceed to state the salient facts and figures which lead up to these general results, and in the forefront must be put our opium revenue Circumstanced as we are to-day, it would be out of the question to build on any anticipations of revenue from certified opium in the coming year I will not despair of a revival in the opium trade which would restore to us in whole or in part the loss which at present faces us; but it would be wrong, as matters stand, to take into account and make available for expenditure any revenue the receipt of which is so problematical Further the sales of uncertified opium in the present calendar year have been reduced from 13,200 to 9,000 chests Accordingly all that I can budget for under the opium head is the value of 9,000 chests of uncertified opium at the moderate price of Rs. 1,800 per chest or £1,080,000 plus £365,000 for excise and miscellaneous receipts, or a total of £1,445,000 The decrease, as compared with the probable receipts of the present year, is no less than £3 618,000

"18. In the next place, as one of the dominant factors in our Imperial finance, I turn to railways. We are increasing the working expenses next year by £½ million in view of a larger Railway programme, which involves some addition to revenue as well as to capital expenditure, but against this increase on the expenditure side has to be set a decrease of a quarter of a million under payments of surplus profits, which is the result chiefly of the adoption of the financial in place of the calendar year for the distribution As regards Railway revenue, my estimate is possibly optimistic; it is that the gross receipts in 1913-14 will be £36,754,000 as against the £37,067,000 which we hope to obtain in the current year In arriving at this estimate I have attempted to hold the balance even between two sets of considerations No doubt if the present wave of prosperity lifts us a little higher, my estimate will be exceeded. On the other hand the net railway revenue of the current year, according to our estimates, will be £2⅓ millions above the revenue of 1911-12; there was an improvement of £2 millions in 1911-12, as compared with 1910-11; and the figure of 1910-11 was nearly £1½ millions higher than the figure of 1909-10. We may well ask whether the curve is going any higher. When a time of depression comes, there will be a very different tale to tell In 1907-08 there was a drop of about £¼ million, in 1908-09 a drop of £2½ millions It is easy to be wise after the event, and should fortune once more favour us you may say I was unduly cautious. But I claim to be judged by present prospects, and on the facts I have put before you I am of opinion that no prudent minister would frame an estimate higher than that which I have indicated.

"19. An item which requires special mention is the abolition of the appropriations at present made from the land cess in certain provinces. The matter is one which I shall have to explain in some detail, but for the moment, dealing with the revenue account I note that the effect will be that the receipts in 1913-14 under provincial rates and contributions from district boards will be £557,000 less than in the current year.

"20. Apart from Opium and Railways, and the appropriations just mentioned, the improvement in revenue which I anticipate is £105,000 The amount would be larger, but for certain reductions which are forced upon me I cannot arrange for our capital expenditure without a large reduction of our balances, and the estimate of interest receipts in consequence is diminished by £177,000 Again the Mint receipts go down in my forecast by £291,000 because I cannot repeat the item which appears in the accounts of the current year for seigniorage on coinage of rupees Under Customs also I am bound to take into consideration the rise in the price of silver as likely to affect imports, and, guided by the experience of years when the price was equally high, I must reduce the estimate of receipts from the duty on silver by £160,000 The exports of rice further in the current year have been very large, and a normal estimate for 1913-14 gives a decrease of £102,000 under export duties Under other heads however I have raised the estimate of customs receipts by £140,000, which is as much as the advance in revenue in the last two years will justify In other departments also, I take recent experience as my guide, and I advance the revenue from Post Office and Telegraph by £151,000, from Excise by £243,000 and from Stamps by £136,000 Land Revenue also is likely to give about £155,000 more in the aggregate, in consequence chiefly of better collections in Bombay The result of these and other less important variations is an improvement of £248,000 in the Provincial account and a deterioration of £143,000 in the Imperial account. But we propose from Imperial revenues to make grants, which I shall presently describe, to Provinces amounting to £1,198,000. This compares with non-recurring grants we are making this year of £4,545,000 Thus to sum up, the Imperial revenue account will be £3,618,000 worse under Opium; £591,000 worse under Railways; and £143,000 worse under other heads; while alienations of revenue will be £3,347,000 less On the whole there is a deterioration of about one million.

Expenditure.

"21 The aggregate expenditure I advance from £79,601,000 in 1912-13 to £83,850,000 in 1913-14 The provinces anticipate that they will spend £3,203,000 more than in the current year, the great bulk of the increase being accounted for under education, sanitation and public works In the Imperial section there appears an increase of £1,043,000 More than half of this increase is accounted for by the expenditure of £560,000 which we propose to incur for the purchase of Malwa opium. Under Civil Departments we have added £132,000 for so much of the grants which we are making for education and other beneficial objects as we need for Imperial outlay in minor administrations or as a reserve for subsequent distribution A sum of £109,000 has been allotted for Protective Irrigation works outside the Famine Insurance grant. There is an increased provision of £131,000 under Post Office and Telegraph which is due for the most part to the requirements of wireless stations The administration of the Province of Delhi will, we think, involve an increased expenditure of £60,000. In view of various urgent projects we have agreed to raise the grant for Imperial Civil works by £189,000, but there is a decrease of £300,000 under temporary buildings for Delhi.

[1ST MARCH, 1913.] [Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.]

Grants to Provinces.

"22. The grants for education, relief of cess and other beneficial services, which I have mentioned, are not the least interesting feature in the Budget When presenting the Financial Statement last year, I said that as in view of expenditure on the new capital at Delhi we should now have three sections in our annual capital programme instead of two, we might reasonably enlarge the conventional figure of a crore which we have generally endeavoured to secure as our revenue surplus. In spite of the loss of opium revenue I find myself in a position to follow this policy, and I have framed my Budget on the basis of a 2 crore Imperial surplus. In spite of the loss of opium revenue, I find it is possible not only to avoid the imposition of new taxation, not only to maintain the present standard of expenditure but to provide a substantial contribution to meet the ever-growing needs of the country Those needs are multifarious; some are conspicuous and urgent. Education and Sanitation are twins of a phenomenal development There is agriculture There is the question of medical attendance and relief. Last but not least, unless we ignore the political organization of the country, there is the development of local self-government. For these interests, we have made due provision We allot 1 crore for recurring expenditure on education and sanitation, distributing 85 lakhs to the major provinces, assigning 7 lakhs as Imperial expenditure and retaining a reserve of 8 lakhs We add 10 lakhs to the provision for agricultural expenditure; we allot 10 lakhs for medical relief,—15½ out of these 20 lakhs being distributed among the major provinces. These grants require no explanation and I would only say that the recurring grant for education supplements and adds to the value of the large non-recurring grant for the same purpose which we are giving in the current year.

"23. Finally we propose to make assignments to Local Governments to enable them to forego the amounts which at present are appropriated for Provincial use from the cess on land This matter requires explanation. The cess I have mentioned is levied in all Provinces generally at the rate of 5 or 6¼ per cent on annual value In Bombay, Madras and the Central Provinces the entire proceeds go to Local Boards In Bengal and Bihar, however, a one-anna cess is divided into two half-anna portions and while one of these, the "road cess," goes to District Boards the other, the "public works cess," is credited to Government In the Punjab and the North-West Frontier Province, District Boards have to make a contribution of nearly 20 per cent of the land cess to Provincial revenues for "General services" In the United Provinces also there are large appropriations though they have a different form in the two portions of the Province In Agra there is a land cess of 5 per cent of which about a third is taken by the Local Government to cover the cost of rural police; in Oudh the general cess which goes to District Boards is at the rate of 2½ per cent only of the annual value while a rate of 3 per cent is levied separately on account of the cost of village police The Council will remember that last year a resolution was moved by the Hon'ble Mr Gokhale recommending the appointment of a Committee to enquire into the resources of local bodies I had to oppose that resolution because the appointment of a Committee did not appear to be necessary or desirable; but I made it plain that the object of the resolution was one with which Government were in accord The development and encouragement of Local Self-Government is indeed an object as to the desirability of which all are agreed, and it is with this object in view that we desire to increase their resources by abolishing the appropriations which I have mentioned The consequence however of this abolition will be a loss to Provincial revenues which Local Governments cannot themselves sustain, and I therefore will make them assignments The manner in which we proceed is as follows The Local Governments while they take with the one hand appropriations from Local Boards as I have described, with the other hand give them certain subventions. Certain of these subventions, such as those made out of the Imperial grant for primary education will continue to be made to the Boards; others of a general nature which are at present required to provide a sufficient income for certain Boards will be resumed. In Oudh a special adjustment will be necessary; the 3 per cent village police cess will be abolished and a general cess of 5 per cent imposed at the same rate as in Agra. Allowing for this modification the net loss to Provinces and consequently the amount we have to make good to them will be in Bengal 25 lakhs, in Bihar 23 lakhs, in the United Provinces 29½ lakhs and in the Punjab 2 lakhs, a total of nearly

[Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.] [1ST MARCH, 1913.]

79½ lakhs or £530,000. In deciding on the measure which I have now detailed to the Council we have, I consider, given a very substantial proof of our interest in local self-government. Last year in the debate on the resources of local bodies I mentioned the surprising way in which Mr. Gokhale plants seeds of policy which come to quick maturity, and I likened those to the mango seeds of the Indian juggler which covered for a little time from view astonish us presently with the appearance of trees bearing not only leaves, not only buds and flowers, but a goodly crop of wholesome fruit If I may vary the figure, I should say that the Government of India have their orchards to the cultivation of which they give their best endeavours. Like all gardens these have their disappointments, their inexplicable failures; but none the less some of the crops are good The present is a goodly basket, as an Indian gentleman might say "from our own garden;" and it contains something more substantial than a Committee.

Military Services.

"24. The expenditure for five years is shown in the following table:—

	GROSS.					NET.
	Army	Marine	Military Works	Special Defences	Total	All Military heads
	£	£	£	£	£	£
1909-10 . . .	18,901,181	461,157	858,342	28,604	20,249,284	19,112,323
1910-11 . . .	19,131,780	445,867	900,437	7,987	20,486,071	19,265,042
1911-12 . . .	19,536,546	450,728	909,657	4,706	20,901,637	19,558,580
1912-13 (Budget) . .	19,084,700	447,100	860,500	20,200	20,412,500	19,094,500
1912-13 (Revised) . .	19,608,700	476,800	880,600	15,900	23,982,000	19,635,400
1913-14 (Budget) . .	19,555,900	478,300	949,100	24,500	21,007,800	19,646,800

"25. As stated last year, the Military expenditure of 1912-13 as originally estimated was fixed at a figure below that of any year since 1903-04. After the estimates were closed it became essential to place an order in England for a large number of rifles which has led to an additional payment of £155,000 during the current year. The National Insurance Act involved a payment not in the estimate of about £15,000 on account of the British soldiers serving in India The demand for working parties of troops in connection with the survey operations in progress on the North-East Frontier entailed unforeseen expenditure amounting to £54,000 The Arms Traffic operations proved more costly by £15,000 than was expected. The prices of food and forage have risen, in spite of the favourable harvests of the year, and account for an increase of roundly £174,000. In view of the favourable financial conditions of the year, additional funds to the extent of about £127,000 were also given to place the army transport on a more satisfactory footing; to allow of the commencement of a reserve of fodder; and for advancing works in progress and for the purchase of stores. The aggregate excess expected is £540,900, the bulk of which has arisen from unforeseen demands and the rise in rates of food and forage.

"26. In the coming year there will again be a heavy bill for special services. Provision is made for the continuance of the Arms Traffic operations at a cost of £166,700. The winding up charges connected with the working parties employed on the North-East Frontier are expected to amount to £33,300. On the other hand, the expected retention of Indian troops in China and Persia will continue to effect a saving.

"27. Apart from all this, it has been necessary, in framing the military estimates of 1913-14, to take into account the fact that the temporary economies in ordinary expenditure amounting to £101,000, effected in the current year, cannot be repeated next year; and that the National Insurance Act introduces a new annual charge of £21,500. A larger provision of £186,600 for ordinary Home stores has been found necessary, owing to surplus stocks having been largely worked off, higher prices ruling for metals, and to the advance purchases of such stores in 1911-12 not being repeated in the current year

"28. The Schedule grant for 1913-14, amounting to £737,700, shows an increase of £217,600 as compared with the figure adopted in the current year, but it includes £119,000 to meet the final payments on account of the extra rifles which had to be ordered this year, and £106,700 for the acquisition of land and the commencement of building operations in connection with the new military cantonment at Delhi. The balance of the grant will be applied mainly to meeting the primary requirements of the army in the matter of guns, bayonets, swords and accoutrements, and to the continuance of building works in progress, notably in the direction of improving the accommodation of Indian troops Provision is made on a modest scale for the inception of military aviation in India

"29. In respect of the permanent economies mentioned last year, a further saving has been effected by the disbandment of the Deoli and Erinpura cavalry squadrons The question of army expenditure generally has been under the consideration of the Army in India Committee, presided over by Field-Marshal Lord Nicholson. Their report, which is expected shortly, will deal with the possibility of effecting further economies in military expenditure The report of the Committee which examined the question of marine expenditure is still under consideration. The final result is an increase of the net military budget by £552,300 as compared with the current year's budget

Railways.

"30 I have already given in the revenue account some of the more important Railway figures The results of the present year are remarkable In 1912-13 we expect the return on the capital at charge to be 5 89 per cent against 4 48 which was the percentage in 1909-10 If we take the railway revenue account as a whole and set the interest charges, the annuities, sinking fund payments and minor debits, such as cost of land and surveys, against the net earnings, we show a surplus of £5,616,000, the highest in the history of our Indian railways

"31. What I am now especially concerned with is the railway capital account, and I give therefore the figures of railway capital expenditure during the last five years and compare them with the estimate for next year:—

	£	£	£	£	£	£

"32. The figures to which I invite special attention are these. The expenditure on capital account in the three years 1909-10 to 1911-12 averaged rather less than £8 millions. In the current year we budgeted originally for a railway programme of £9 millions In the course of the year however we were able to increase the provision to £10¼ millions out of an increase in our balances and other improvements. For the coming year I propose to draw somewhat heavily on our ample balances and am in consequence able to advance the railway programme for 1913-14 to £12 millions.

"33 This proves, I think, that I am not unsympathetic on the question of railways I recognise fully their immense significance as an instrument of general progress, their necessity for the development of trade, their growing and indeed momentous importance to the finances of India; but in this, my last Financial Statement, I cannot refrain from a word of warning In spite of the reckless utterances of obviously interested critics, I continue to deprecate any departure from a policy of the utmost caution in the matter of Railway Finance. It may be that in the future it will be possible to give more scope to private enterprise and increase through its agency the funds available for railway construction, but for the present I have to regard railways as a strictly business proposition Our responsibility is all the greater now that they have attained a position of supreme importance in our financial system. It is said that the remunerative character of our railways is beyond question, that our railways are the milch cow of the Government of India, and that I am ungrateful But what is the position? We are paying in the London market very nearly 4 per cent for what we borrow. I bear in mind that in the current year the railways have paid us 5 89 per cent But last year the return was 4 99 per cent, in 1910-11 it was 4 66 per cent, in 1909-10 it was 4·48 per cent ; even in good years in the present state of the money market the margin is a narrow one. Let me remind you that so recently as in 1908-09 our railway system was worked at a net loss to the State I said at that time that we must never allow our railways to become again, even temporarily, a net burden on the general taxpayor. I repeat that assertion. As matters stand we have in our railways a splendid asset Let us safeguard that asset. Any admission of doubtful schemes, or failure to count in each case the full cost, any disregard of financial considerations will surely lead to deterioration of a most serious haracter

"34. I urge that nothing be agreed to in the future which may weaken a position which is essential to the financial prosperity of India and to all the interests which that prosperity serves.

Irrigation.

"35 The financial position of our great irrigation undertakings may be gathered at a glance from this table which I present and which brings up to date the information given in previous Financial Statements.

"36. On the 31st March 1912, 58,534 miles of main and branch canals and distributaries had been constructed, and by the end of the current year a mileage of 59,000 is expected, commanding over 48½ million acres of culturable land of which probably 23 million acres will actually be irrigated within the year The net profit according to our anticipations on productive works will be £1,793,300, the net return on capital outlay being 8·81 per cent. or if works still under construction are excluded 10·27 per cent.

"37. In addition to the canals in operation there are 59 projects which are either under construction, awaiting sanction or being examined by the professional advisers of the Government. Of these six are Minor Works. The Major Works of which 28 are productive and 25 protective, are designed to irrigate nearly 13 million acres at a total capital cost of about £45 millions, the yield anticipated on the productive works being 7·17 per cent.

"38. Of the projects brought forward from the preceding year, I may first refer to the Punjab triple project. The progress of this great work is stated to be satisfactory. The Upper Chenab Canal was opened for irrigation by His Excellency the Viceroy on the 12th April 1912 The Lower Bari Doab Canal will be ready for opening in April next, and it is expected to open the Upper Jhelum canal by the autumn of 1914. It is hoped that the Upper Swat River canal will be ready by April 1914

"39. Two other projects mentioned last year in my Financial Statement, the Sukkur barrage and the Rohri canal, have been submitted for the sanction of the Secretary of State, while progress in the case of the Cauvery Reservoir and Sarda-Ganges-Jumna feeder, which have been very favourably reviewed by the technical advisers of the Government of India, is delayed by the necessity of considering the interests of certain Native States which are affected by these undertakings. During the year the Nira Right Bank canal has also been sanctioned by the Secretary of State at a cost of about 260 lakhs of rupees It is designed to protect an area of 190,000 acres in the Sholapur district, which above almost all others in India stands in need of protection from drought and famine, and it is the most important project of the protective class which has been undertaken in this country.

[Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.] [1ST MARCH, 1913.]

"40 Of the projects under consideration which have not previously been mentioned the most important are the Kistna reservoir in Madras, the extension of the Gokak canal in Bombay, the Sutlej Valley canals and the Jumna dam project in the Punjab. The Kistna project contemplates the construction of a dam at a cost of 8½ crores to hold up a reservoir with a gross capacity of 163,586 million cubic feet of water. The work if constructed will be the largest of its kind in the world exceeding in magnitude the Assuan dam on the Nile which, as now enlarged, has a gross capacity of 81,224 cubic feet The Gokak canal extension, which is classed as protective, is to cost nearly 2 crores The Sutlej Valley project aims at the utilization of the surplus supply of the Sutlej and Beas rivers and it will besides improving the water supply of the several inundation canals now dependent on the Sutlej, extend the benefits of irrigation into the great desert south of the river. It will probably cost 9 crores, while the Jumna dam project, the estimate of which is over 5 crores, provides for the construction of a dam at Koch in the Nahan State to ensure a fuller supply to areas commanded but insufficiently watered by the Western Jumna canal and extend the irrigation from that canal to some precarious tracts in the Umballa and Karnal districts.

Provincial Finance.

"41 On the subject of Provincial Finance it is fortunately necessary for me to say but little Two years ago I described in detail the scheme of permanent financial settlements, which we believe secures for both parties to the contract important advantages In presenting my last Financial Statement I said that the scheme could not have had a better start than the year 1911-12 had given it Now another year of prosperity has strengthened the position of the Provinces as well as our own. It is not so long ago that the Provincial authorities took a most gloomy view of their financial prospects I remember well the spirited attack which was made on the Government of India on the subject of the Punjab settlements, and no year passes in which we do not hear the patriotic pleadings of the Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya and others on behalf of the United Provinces To all such representations I may have been held to be unsympathetic, but especially in India time brings the answer. The financial position of the Punjab and the United Provinces is very different now from their position even two or three years ago, and in general the Provinces have built up such substantial balances and have a margin between revenue and expenditure so adequate that they are not only well-to-do for the present but are well protected for the future I must deal however in some detail with the case of the two Provinces, Assam and Burma, to which it is proposed to give special grants Financially the conditions in these two Provinces are different Assam at present has only a temporary settlement and in another two years it will be necessary to revise the terms of our agreement on a more permanent basis. Burma already has its permanent contract, and I am satisfied that the contract is essentially a sound one, for it secures to the Province a substantial growth of revenue which will presently supply it with ample funds for its requirements. At the moment, however, it cannot be denied that the province is in poor circumstances and that in spite of the exercise of due economy it finds a difficulty in squaring resources with requirements. But from another point of view there is a strong resemblance between the conditions in these two Provinces The equipment of both, in the matter more particularly of communications, is far behind that of the rest of India, and their development is a matter for serious consideration. The question is no doubt what rate of progress is desirable, for ultimately both Provinces will find a sufficiency for their requirements in their own resources But it is clear that unless we come to the assistance of Burma, progress in that Province will be injuriously delayed. The case of Assam is somewhat different because it was given a substantial grant with which to start its existing settlement; but here again it was recognised that the Province might spend this grant during the period of settlement and it would in the usual course be given a second grant at the beginning of the permanent settlement, the terms of which will shortly have to be considered. The reasons for the grants we propose will now be evident By making these grants we assist the earlier development of Provinces which are extremely backward. We anticipate in the case of Assam a liability which might come on us when unfavourable seasons might make it difficult for us to meet it. And since the improvement of communications must make for an improvement of revenue in which the Imperial Government have a share, it may be added that these grants are in the nature of an investment in the business of the firm by the senior partner, namely the Government of India.

[1ST MARCH, 1913.] [Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.]

Ways and Means.

"42. I have now finished with the Revenue account, the account that is to say that is concerned with the money credited to us as a final receipt and the expenditure which we have agreed should be charged against such receipts, and I turn to the question of our Ways and Means.

"43. In the current year our programme provided for capital expenditure of nearly £11¾ millions, of which £9 millions were for railways, £1,416,000 for irrigation, and £1,333,000 for Imperial Delhi. We had to meet railway debentures which fell due to the extent of nearly £1½ millions, and the ordinary drawings of India bonds of £½ a million, and we arranged to repay the whole of the outstanding India bills of £4½ millions. The great bulk of these obligations and requirements we proposed to meet by drawing on our balances; but we decided to raise a loan of 3 crores (£2 millions) in India and another of £3 millions in England, and we hoped to obtain £1,810,000 through railway companies apart from the money which they were to raise for the discharge of debentures. In the last item we have been disappointed, for the capital raised by railway companies has been only £495,000. In other respects our assets have increased very greatly above our anticipations. The greater part of the improvement has taken place in the revenue account with which I have already dealt in detail. This improvement shows itself first in the rise of the Imperial surplus from £1,478,000 to £3,362,000, and secondly in the banking account of the Provinces. Originally we had to estimate for a large net withdrawal by provinces; but they have not been able to work up fully to the scale of expenditure for which they had made provision in the Budget. Their own revenues have been better, and they have received large grants from us, the result of all these changes being that the aggregate provincial account shows now instead of a withdrawal of £1,558,000, a deposit of £4,019,000. On the debit side of our transactions, the most interesting item is the discharge of our India bills. This has now been carried through in accordance with the programme, and it is a matter of very great satisfaction to me that our account has been entirely cleared of these liabilities; our position has by these liquidations been greatly strengthened against the possibility of financial troubles in the future. The capital expenditure on Delhi, as I have already noticed, has been small. On the other hand, canals have taken a little more money than we provided for them in the Budget, and we have been able in the course of the year to make the substantial addition of £1½ millions to the railway programme.

"44. In 1913-14 we repeat the provision of £1,333,000 for the new city at Delhi, and we increase the irrigation allotment to £1,467,000. The most prominent feature of the year is however the raising of the provision for the railway programme to no less than £12 millions. The total capital outlay is estimated at £14,800,000. The only other important debits will be, first, the discharge of debt amounting to £1,869,000, chiefly on account of railway debentures which fall due in the course of the year and of the repayment of another £½ million India bonds; secondly the deficit which is estimated at £2,839,000 in the provincial account. Altogether we have to find about £19½ millions and this we propose to do mainly by utilising our balances. We propose to work to a closing balance of about £17 millions, and on that basis we think we can find £11 millions out of balances. Our revenue surplus will give us £1½ millions. We propose to raise a loan of 3 crores (£2 millions) in India. The Secretary of State will not himself issue any sterling loan, but it is hoped that the capital raised by railway companies will give us £3 millions. We depend to the extent of £1½ millions on our unfunded debt transactions, mainly Savings Banks, which we think will result in a net receipt of that amount, and we draw as usual on the grant for the redemption or avoidance of debt. The distribution of the closing balance at which we aim is that we should hold £12,429,000 in India and £4,442,000 in the Home Treasury. To work to these results after providing for the year's requirements, we estimate that the Secretary of State will sell Council Bills and Telegraphic Transfers on us to the extent of £21,200,000; but in addition he will as usual sell additional bills on India so far as our resources may permit if there is a sufficient demand for them. It will be understood that all my announcements about loans and drawings are subject to the usual reservations; the Secretary of State and the Government of India retaining full discretion to vary the amounts I have mentioned, in any way and to any extent that may be thought advisable.

Exchange, Currency and Gold Coining.

"45. From this survey of our Ways and Means I pass to the adjoining territory of Exchange and Currency where there is some interesting ground to be traversed. I shall first sketch the general conditions of the year which are relevant to this subject. I shall describe a resumption of our rupee coinage, and I shall then pass to a consideration of two important steps in the development of our currency policy.

Exchange.

"46. From the description of trade conditions which I gave at the beginning of my speech it will be at once surmised that there has been no exchange difficulty in the current year. Taking the value of merchandise dealt with on private account the value of Indian exports between April and December 1912 exceeded the value of imports by 61¾ crores, the excess being about 2¾ crores greater than in the previous year. The outstanding feature of the year is that since the 1st of April last the rate of exchange has never fallen below par, and this is a new thing in our experience In 1909-10 a rate below 16 pence continued for the first six months of the year In 1910-11 it lasted from the middle of May to the middle of August In 1911-12 it held only for two weeks in June and this year it has disappeared I do not wish to make too much of this feature; but while I remember that there was little employment for money last rains and my friends the bankers will point to the high rates of interest that have recently prevailed, I think a tendency is shown in the facts I have stated, as well as in our figures of rupee absorption and in the traffic returns of railways, to a diminution in the duration and intensity of the slack season and a more even distribution of trade throughout the year which would be very welcome

"47 The balance of trade in our favour, I have said, in nine months has been 61¾ crores I need not attempt to explain how the whole difference has been equated; but I can account at once for 56¼ crores, for in the settlement of our claims on other countries we imported 12 crores in gold and silver bullion, 18½ crores in sovereigns and accepted 26¼ crores in Council Bills The sovereigns, I need hardly say, are not imported necessarily for use as coin, but in order to obtain currency in any form that is desired and they are largely turned into rupees The absorption of gold, it is true, has continued to increase; in the first six months of 1912-13 it was a million pounds more than in the first six months of 1911-12 But that is only one element in the situation The financing of the wheat trade which I have said was unusually active took two crores of rupees more from us than in the previous year Jute, so far as currency is concerned, was a record crop, for the demands on our Calcutta Office in four months amounted to 12 crores of rupees, a sum exceeding even the previous record of 1906 and far above the requirements of any intermediate year This leads me to the question of the coinage of rupees. We have not added to the rupees in circulation for the last five years In November 1907 when coinage stopped we had 28 crores of rupees in hand Then came the scarcity and the commercial crisis of 1907 and 1908 during which instead of an absorption there was a return of rupees from circulation. By September 1909 we had in our possession no less than 48 crores. Since then there has been a steady absorption. It has proceeded at a rate considerably slower than many anticipated though much as I personally expected, but it has gone on year after year and at the end of last April we had no more than 15 crores in hand It was certain that in the next few months rupees would return; but it was equally certain that the resumption of coinage could not be avoided. The Secretary of State accordingly began to purchase silver in May last. Since then he has purchased £7,060,000 worth. This silver has yielded 15¾ crores of rupees 10½ crores passed into our ordinary balances in substitution for the gold used in the purchase, while the remainder, less cost of manufacture representing the profit on coinage, has been credited to the Gold Standard Reserve.

[1st March, 1913.] [Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.]

Currency.

"48 Having cleared the way by this sketch of the year's history, I can proceed to a fuller discussion of the important currency developments which I mentioned, the first relating to the Gold Standard Reserve and the second to the coinage of gold in India The first has to do with exchange and the requirements of international trade, the second with our internal currency That there is a nexus between the two cases is clear, but as regards the nature and extent of this nexus widely different opinions are held We are familiar with the view that a gold standard is impossible without a gold currency On the other side it is suggested that the currency in the hands of the people is not to any great extent available when coin has to be sent out of the country in settlement of foreign demands There is also strong opinion in favour of the view that the support which at times becomes necessary not only in this country but elsewhere against an unfavourable balance of trade can best be found not in the currency in circulation but in strong reserves I do not intend to enter on a discussion of these rival creeds. I would merely like to say that here in India we have made a great experiment in currency, that the experiment has been successful, and that we are satisfied with our system as at present developed I recognise however that we must always be ready to strengthen and adjust it as the need arises, and that in carrying out such re-enforcements and adjustments we must attend to experience as well as theory and bear in mind that the conditions in India may in certain particulars be special and stand in need of exceptional treatment This is the principle which should guide us in considering both the matters which I now lay before the Council I take first the question of the Gold Standard Reserve That Reserve has already reached the large figure of £22 millions including £4 millions held in rupees in India But we have never forgotten that in the troubles of 1907-09 we lost in little more than a year no less than £15 millions sterling, and though we have generally other gold resources on which we could draw, I have always been anxious that the Reserve which is specially earmarked for the support of exchange should be strengthened I have at the same time felt that it would be an advantage if a larger proportion of this Reserve were held in liquid gold instead of in securities On these points we have had I think the unanimous support of Indian opinion, but the Secretary of State has not always seen eye to eye with us, and the Council may remember that a year ago I was not sanguine that we should succeed in converting him to our view We have however succeeded The Secretary of State has agreed to raise the sterling assets of the Gold Standard Reserve in London to £25 millions and to hold £5 millions of this amount in gold and his decision is gratifying to me as strengthening our defences against the fall in exchange of which there is always a danger in times of adverse trade conditions.

"49 On the second development which I have to describe, I fear we cannot hope for the same unanimity of opinion Yet I feel certain that the two despatches on the subject, which I shall lay, will be read with satisfaction by many both in this Council and outside it.

Gold Coining

"50 In regard to the coinage of gold I may say that the initial selection of any one coin would not in fact definitely exclude another, for while recommending to the Secretary of State the coinage of sovereigns, the Government of India referred to the future possibility, should it be considered advisable, of introducing some other smaller coin such as a ten-rupee piece The sovereign introduces questions of control which as between ourselves and the Royal Mint are difficult of solution For this or for any other reason, the final decision may be, to begin with, a special Indian coin, but the experience we should gain in coining an Indian piece may show that it would be worth our while to undertake the additional trouble and expense which would be involved in the coining of sovereigns

"51. On the general question, as I have said, there is much difference of opinion There are those who seem to regard an institution of a gold mint as a cardinal point in currency policy and expect from it sudden and surprising results. Some are indifferent, regarding a gold mint merely as unnecessary, because they say we already get as much gold coin as we need from abroad, while there are others whose attitude is one of mistrust and condemnation, because they suspect that the establishment of a gold mint implies a radical change in the currency policy of the Government, or because they fear what is called the drain of gold to India. The first to my mind exaggerate the importance of the scheme and are unduly sanguine in forecasting its results. The last, I am confident, are unduly apprehensive.

"52. The view taken by the Government of India is a very simple and I think obvious one, and it involves no departure whatever from our currency policy. We have no idea of converting our currency into gold. We are not going to buy gold bars in order to coin them We cannot force a currency on the people, nor do we wish to do so. All we proposed is that if anyone who has gold wishes to have it coined he should be able to do so. The position is that in this country both gold and silver are established as legal tender currency. But while we can turn silver into coin, we have not so far been able to coin gold The argument that, in point of fact, we can get by importation as much gold as we can use, is true but it is incomplete. For one thing India itself produces an amount of gold which is not inconsiderable At present this goes to London, and it may continue to do so, but it is reasonable and it may prove economical that facilities should be given for coining it in this country if at any time the producers find their advantage in that alternative. Again there is a large quantity of gold bullion in the country. Assuming that the necessity arises of converting it into coin, why should it have to be sent 7,000 miles for the purpose? Or who is to say that it may not on occasion be more profitable or convenient to import and coin gold bullion rather than to import sovereigns? On questions of this kind I strongly deprecate an á priori judgment How any facilities for coining bullion which we give can increase the flow of gold to India I am unable to see In one form or another India will get precisely the amount of gold which she wants and which she is able to pay for. It may be urged that the use of gold as currency at any rate is for this country a superfluity. But what does this argument assume? It assumes that for India not gold but some other form of currency is the best. On the other hand some authorities assume that a gold currency is always preferable I make neither assumption I leave it to the people to decide what suits them best, and all I say is that if they find they prefer gold they are just as much entitled to it as any other people in the world Now when we are considering Indian currency we can no longer, as was the case not many years ago, think only of rupees Out of the total additions to the currency in the three years ending March 1912 amounting to 65 crores, rupees accounted for only 28 crores The habits of the people in fact are changing The last Currency Report of the Comptroller General shows clearly that gold has to an increasing extent established itself in ordinary circulation, while the expansion of our note issues gives evidence of a desire for a handier currency than silver and a readiness to use a higher unit than the rupee. While therefore we do not pretend to know to what extent the facilities for coining gold will be used, we think that there are substantial facts to support the sentiment which has frequently been expressed in this country in favour of our having a gold mint of our own And even without such support I make bold to say that sentiment is not a thing to be disregarded The sentiment I mean is not that of any particular race, class or community. India is a great country, not only by reason of past achievements in the highest fields of thought, not only by reason of her enormous population and vast area, but because of her rapidly increasing importance in the world of commerce I confess I think it is sometimes forgotten how big India is, and her growth in the matters with which I am more particularly concerned outstrips our ordinary conceptions of it. We are all united in this common bond that we are fellow citizens of one great Empire, and the sentiment I have in mind is the sentiment that should be common to all the people of a great and growing country. This mint, you may say, of which we are talking is a little thing But if there is a feeling that India after all is entitled to its own mints and that those mints should be empowered to turn out any coins that India requires, can anyone say that the feeling is in any sense unreasonable? I cannot of course anticipate the decision that may be reached regarding the denomination of the coin which we should issue, but personally I say that the sentiment which favours a special Indian coin is to me easily intelligible And I hope that our mints will continue to be Indian in the sense of being free from external control. Our mints may not be the best in the world, but I know of none better. The work they turn out is a credit to the Indian Government, and in saying so, I rely not on my own judgment but on the judgment of experts in Europe who have given me their opinions. This battle of the mints has now lasted for fifteen years. I do not for a moment say that throughout this period the issues have remained the same The combatants have frequently changed their positions The composition of the opposing forces has varied, as parties which at one time found themselves in one camp, transferred their allegiance presently to the other But on the whole, India has fought for a gold mint all these years, and personally I am glad that at a time when my association with the government of this great country draws to a close, the question is being brought to an issue.

"53 The Council will appreciate that all I have said in regard to exchange, currency, and the coining of gold is subject to a reservation. I refer of course to the statement made in the House of Commons by the Prime Minister Mr Asquith has stated that in the opinion of the Home Government the time has come for an enquiry into (inter alia) questions of currency and finance relating to India by an expert body and preferably by a Royal Commission I myself believe that our system of currency and finance in India rests on a sufficiently solid foundation I recognise however that it is the subject of many misunderstandings and of much misconception. A Commission of inquiry will clear the air and by increasing knowledge, it will diminish criticism. I believe that it will be educative rather than destructive. Holding this belief, I await with confidence the result of its deliberations on the currency conditions which I have described and which will now have to be submitted to its judgment.

Retrospect.

"54. This is my last year of office, and it is permissible that I should review the administration of the Department the control of which I am about to surrender

"55 When I assumed charge towards the end of 1908, the country, after a decade of remarkable prosperity, had just passed through a period of distressful scarcity The relapse was one of a kind to which, by reason of its climatic conditions, India has always been subject; but on this occasion its severity was accentuated by a financial stress that dislocated the world's greatest markets The gravity of the situation is explained in a word when I say that the year 1908-09 ended not with an anticipated surplus but with a deficit of no less than £3¾ millions From an agricultural point of view, the next year was favourable; but trade was slow in reviving and, as I said when I presented my second Financial Statement, the air of hopefulness, which pervaded the country as soon as a good monsoon had assured the agricultural position, was slow in penetrating the Finance Department. I remember well the difficulties which we encountered that year, the necessity we were under of explaining the situation to the large spending Departments and Local Governments, and calling on them to exercise all possible economies in view of our diminished resources, and their loyal response. In addition, when I came to sum up the experiences of the year and forecast the requirements of the next, I found myself faced with a great drop in opium revenue and the necessity of revising at considerable cost our settlement with Eastern Bengal and Assam, and I was forced to propose additional taxation. In 1910-11 the situation changed Prosperity returned. Our revenues increased We were able to expand those activities of Government which depend on money resources.

"56 In this brief review I have mentioned the increase of taxation which took place in 1910-11 I do not wish to rake up the ashes of an old controversy, but I can scarcely pass the subject by. Whatever may be said about it, I am unrepentant I hold this, indeed I regard as res judicata, that the taxation was justified on any reasonable forecast of immediate requirements at the time when it was imposed I say that its absolute necessity might have been demonstrated at any moment during the last three years if what has now happened in our opium trade had happened previously But there are other and more general considerations If we had merely to provide for existing charges, the position would be simple; whenever revenue rose above expenditure, the excess would be cut off by a reduction in the scale of taxation. But India is not a developed country. It is not a country in which any one can accept the current equipment and the current scale of expenditure as sufficient. I am not suggesting taxation up to the hilt; but in view of urgent and legitimate demands I hold that the real question is not whether we could not have done without further taxation but whether the further taxation has in fact been burdensome Some of our critics seem at times to forget that development has to be paid for. I claim to have established without hardship a broader basis of taxation which has been and will continue to be of benefit to the country.

[Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.] [1ST MARCH, 1913.]

"57. A point I touch on is economy Simple though this subject be, it seems to be open to misconception On the one hand, it has been felt that I have been unnecessarily severe in effecting economies, whilst on the other hand, I have been criticised for assenting to a large increase in expenditure What I mean by economy is neither the hasty reduction of expenditure in a crisis, nor the opposition to new expenditure without regard to its character or object. What I mean by economy is spending your money on good objects and getting your money's worth for what you spend. This object I have kept in view through good report and through bad report, or rather perhaps I should say through good and bad seasons without distinction, and I claim to have been successful in its attainment

"58 As relevant to this subject I mention the department of audit. That department is one with which, through a long experience, I have been familiar, and I know its value I have endeavoured in this country to demonstrate my belief in it. I have every reason to think that the position of the Comptroller and Auditor General will be substantially improved, that he will be relieved of other financial duties and will be able to devote his whole time to the development of our audit system I look for a new spirit in the Audit department, a spirit which will bring about a recognition of its true relationship to the Executive, which will ensure hearty co-operation in the work of Government

"59 A more general question is raised when we co-relate the expenditure we charge to revenue and our capital expenditure There is no doubt a competition between these two classes a competition which Mr Gokhale has brought out clearly enough in more than one Resolution But the principles which guide us in determining the allotments to be made for the various heads of revenue expenditure must equally guide us when we come to the distribution as between revenue and capital expenditure of an accrued surplus. There are enthusiasts for education and enthusiasts for railways The Government of India have to hold the balance between them and endure the disparagement of both I have always been opposed to any hard and fast rule The distribution must be determined on a consideration of requirements at the time of allotments. There is another consideration It is a mistake to regard our revenue and capital accounts as watertight compartments; there is always a movement from one to the other In good years the revenue account supplies the capital, that has lately been the ordinary position But the movement has sometimes been reversed, and if in the last year or two we have been using our surplus partly to pay off temporary debt, it must not be forgotten that that temporary debt was raised in part to make good a revenue deficit The outstanding difficulty in Indian finance is its liability to extreme vicissitudes The true use of surplus money in good years is to be found in the reduction and avoidance of debt. That is not a picturesque policy, but it is the only sound one Now from this point of view what have we done in recent years? At Home our borrowings have been small That may be the result of necessity rather than of choice; but in India where the market has been improving instead of deteriorating my loans have been studiously moderate In 1909 I raised 2½ crores; in 1910, 1½ crores, in 1911, 2 crores; in 1912, 3 crores The net result of my loan transactions, taking into account discharge of debt, is striking. In the following figures I include both direct borrowings by the Secretary of State and capital raised through Railway Companies

In 1909-10 there was a net addition of £13 millions;
In 1910-11 " " " of £6½ millions;
In 1911-12 " " " of £1⅓ millions;
and In 1912-13 " a net decrease of £1 million

"Meanwhile the legitimate demands for non-recurring expenditure—the only demand which could be met from accrued surpluses—of our different departments, more particularly of education and sanitation, have been generously met A reasonable railway and irrigation programme of capital expenditure has been maintained and while this has been effected, I have at the same time strengthened our position against the possibility of financial troubles by a restriction of borrowings. My restraint in the past will be an asset for my successors in the future

"60 I turn to another element of strength By the end of 1909 there was practically no gold left in the Government reserves in this country Since then by the ordinary operations of trade gold has flowed in, till we now hold £19,500,000 in our currency reserve in India. In the same reserve at Home we have £7,300,000; in the Gold Standard Reserve we have £18 millions in gold assets, and we hope, in consequence of the Secretary of State's recent decision, to have eventually £25 millions. At any rate at the moment we have altogether £45 millions in gold and gold securities and that is a bulwark of enormous strength against a fall in exchange. Our currency system seems to be sound. In our English way we have adapted it from time to time to meet requirements as they arose. The result I do not claim is perfect; but we may be satisfied with a scheme if it is practical. It has the approval of economic experts. It has been taken as an exemplar in other countries, and it has the confidence of our business men. If I have to take the responsibility when things go amiss, I am surely entitled to claim a little credit for success The Indian believes in the efficacy of good intentions. I have meant well by India, and it means much to me in presenting my fifth Budget that I can honestly say that should financial trouble come on her, India is prepared to meet it.——L' India farà da se.

Conclusion.

"61 A Financial Statement, the forerunner of the Budget, has to-day been presented, for the first time, in Delhi; restored to her pride of place as India's Imperial city. Through centuries Kings of every race have fought to win or keep her: the blood of men and the tears of women have been freely shed to cement the Empires over which her owners have held sway But I prefer to think of Delhi, not as the prize of conquest, or the home of conquerors, but as the capital of a contented empire, the abode of peace and prosperity, of wise and prudent counsels Such I hope she may ever be.

Glorious though she has been, may Delhi rise to glories still greater; the glories—to quote the words of the Viceroy's speech which it devolved on me to read to you in the Diwan-i-Am—of "the peace, happiness and contentment of the millions over whom the King-Emperor exercises sway, the trust and confidence which England has been able to repose on their loyalty, the generous share which she had been able to give to the sons of India in sharing her councils and in shaping the destiny of this great and wonderful country"

It rests largely with you and your successors in this Council to bring our hopes to fruition

This is my last Budget, and this day practically ends my career in India

I shall sever my connection with India with profound sorrow; but I rejoice exceedingly that I shall leave her loyal and prosperous"

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 5th March, 1913.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE INDIAN COUNCILS ACTS, 1861 to 1909 (24 & 25 Vict., c. 67, 55 & 56 Vict., c. 14, AND 9 Edw. VII, c. 4).

The Council met at the Council Chamber, Imperial Secretariat, Delhi, on Wednesday, the 5th March, 1913.

PRESENT:

The Hon'ble SIR GUY FLEETWOOD WILSON, G.C.I.E., K.C.B., K.C.M.G., Vice-President, presiding,
and 59 Members, of whom 52 were Additional Members.

GOLD COINAGE.

The Hon'ble Mr. Gillan: "Sir, on behalf of the Hon'ble the Finance Member, I beg to lay on the table the two despatches* relating to gold coinage in India mentioned in the Financial Statement."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis asked :—

"Will the Government be pleased to state how far the scheme for serial entry and loading of goods, discussed at the meeting of inquiry recently held at Cawnpore by the President of the Railway Board has proved a success, and, if successful, whether it is proposed to carry it out on all the systems of Indian Railways?"

The Hon'ble Sir T. R. Wynne replied:—

"The new system for serial entry and loading of goods is still under trial on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway and it is proposed, later on, to hold a conference of trade and railway representatives to consider whether the system has proved itself a sound one, and, if so, whether any modification in any specific direction is desirable.

"If the general opinion is that the system is a satisfactory one, other railways will be addressed with the view to its adoption."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis asked :—

"Will the Government be pleased to state if there is any proposal before them for an increase in India's annual contribution to the naval defence of the British Empire, and if before any final step is taken the members of this Council will be given an opportunity of submitting their views about any proposed increase in the burden?"

* Vide Appendix A.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief replied:—

"The answer is in the negative."

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mir Asad Ali asked:—

"(a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether any portion of the Imperial Durbar grant of Rs. 50 lakhs a year is to be expended on Muhammadan education?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state what amounts were allotted to different provinces of the Indian Empire?"

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied:—

"The Imperial Durbar grant of Rs 50 lakhs was distributed under general Educational heads as already announced in the Council. The expenditure of any portion of the sums so allotted upon specifically Muhammadan education (as distinguished from education open to Muhammadans in common with other communities) is a matter for decision by each Local Government"

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy Bahadur asked:—

"(a) Is it a fact that the abolition of the practice hitherto observed of keeping memorandum in currency offices of the numbers of currency notes valued at Rs 50 and over reported to be lost or stolen has created a sense of insecurity in the minds of the people respecting the use of currency notes?

(b) Has Government considered the question whether the abolition of the former practice is or is not likely to facilitate encashment of lost or stolen currency notes and thereby create an impression that thefts of currency notes may be commited with impunity?

(c) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they have received any communications indicating that their present action has had the support of the Indian Commercial Community of any Province?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they propose to re-introduce the former practice?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Gillan replied:—

"(a) The Government are unaware that the abolition of the stopped note list has had the effect suggested

(b) If the Hon'ble Member will refer to the Resolution No. 523-F, dated the 12th November 1912, a copy of which is laid on the table, he will see that the question referred to was fully considered.

(c) The answer is in the negative.

(d) The answer is in the negative"

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy Bahadur asked:—

"(a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether schemes for the canalisation of Tulley's Nullah in Calcutta and the construction of a direct canal connecting the Madaripur Bheel route with the river Hooghly have been submitted to this Government by the Government of Bengal?"

[5TH MARCH, 1913.] [Rai Sita Nath Roy; Sir Robert Carlyle; Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar; Sir Reginald Craddock; H. E. the Commander-in-Chief; Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis.]

"(b) Is it a fact that a direct canal would considerably shorten the journey and minimise the risk which a journey by the Sunderbans or the outer route entails, and would greatly reduce transport charges and facilitate transport of jute and other commodities from Eastern Bengal to Calcutta?"

"(c) Do the Government propose to sanction the above schemes?"

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Carlyle replied :—

"The schemes referred to in question (a) have not yet been received by the Government of India.

Questions (b) and (c) cannot be answered until the schemes have been received and considered."

The Hon'ble Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar asked :—

"Will Government be pleased to state whether they propose to publish the latest despatch of the Secretary of State for India on the question of the growth of an independent medical profession in India?"

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock replied :—

"The Government of India do not propose to publish the despatch to which the Hon'ble Member apparently refers."

The Hon'ble Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar asked :—

"Will Government be pleased to state what are the recommendations of the Committee presided over by Admiral Slade on the Royal Marine?"

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief replied :—

"The recommendations are being considered by Government, and while in this stage no useful end would be attained by publishing them."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis asked :—

"Has any report been submitted by the Town-planning experts, Captain Swinton and others, on the location of the new Imperial capital? If so, will Government be pleased to lay on the table a copy of the report?

(2) Will the Government of India be pleased to make a statement about the duties which these experts are performing since their return from England this cold weather?

(3) Have any references been made or are any references proposed to be made to the Committee of Architects consisting of Messrs Baker and Lutyens? If so, will Government be pleased to furnish the Council with a statement of such references? Do Government propose to consider the advisability of associating with these architects an European architect of Indian experience and also a qualified Indian with necessary experience?

(4) Is it a fact that there is a widespread feeling among all His Majesty's subjects in India that the dominating feature of the new capital should be oriental style?

(5) Will Government be pleased to state whether any opportunity will be afforded to this Council for discussion before any decision is arrived at in respect of the site and architecture of the new capital?"

[Sir Robert Carlyle; Rai Sita Nath Roy; Mr. Clark.] [5TH MARCH, 1913.]

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Carlyle replied:—

"(1) The Government of India have not yet received a final report from the Town-planning experts.

(2) The experts have been and are engaged in considering various alternative sites and lay-outs for the new city.

(3) The Government of India have not framed definite terms of reference to the Committee of Architects. Mr. Lutyens is associated with the Town-planners and both he and Mr. Baker, with the assistance of Sir Swinton Jacob, an architect of much experience in the design and construction of buildings in this country, will submit designs for two buildings of importance and will advise the Government of India on the designs of all other new buildings and on any other matters regarding the new Capital that may be referred to them.

(4) The question of the style of the architecture of the new city, as the Hon'ble Member is doubtless aware, has formed the subject of considerable discussion, both in England and in India, in the course of which various opinions have been expressed. The best available advice will be taken in regard to all architectural questions, and all local conditions affecting them will be fully considered before any final decision is arrived at.

(5) Government do not propose to put forward the question of the site and architecture of the new Capital for discussion in their Legislative Council."

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy Bahadur asked:—

"(a) Is it a fact that cases of theft of postal articles have largely increased of late?

(b) Will the Government be pleased to lay on the table a statement of such cases of theft for the last five years ending with the year 1912, and the amounts of loss sustained thereby?

(c) In the event of there being a considerable increase in the numbers of such thefts, do the Government propose to appoint a committee to inquire into the matter with a view to devise means for providing safeguards against such thefts in the future?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark replied:—

"Government have no reason to believe that cases of theft of postal articles have largely increased of late. They regret that no statistics showing the number of cases of theft of all classes of postal articles are available. A statement, however, has been prepared and is laid on the table showing for the last five years the number of registered and insured articles stolen or damaged and the amount of compensation paid. The statement does not include unregistered articles as no record of losses in such cases is possible. It includes not only cases of theft by postal officials and others, but also cases of loss or damage caused by negligence, accident and highway robbery. The Post Office does not keep a separate record of cases of theft.

"The statement shows that while there has been an increase in the percentage of cases of loss, or damage to, registered articles, there has been a decrease in the case of insured articles.

"The value of inland registered and insured articles is not declared at the time of posting. The amount of loss sustained by theft cannot therefore be stated; but if the total amount of compensation paid is taken as a guide, the value of the contents of the articles lost was comparatively insignificant.

[5TH MARCH, 1913.] [Mr. Clark; Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar; H. E. the Commander-in-Chief]

"In the circumstances Government do not consider that there are grounds for the appointment of a special committee of inquiry."

The Hon'ble Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar asked:—

"Will Government be pleased to make a statement informing this Council as to what progress has been made in the matter of the proposed amalgamation of the Indian Post and Telegraph Departments?

Have Government matured any scheme upon the subject and, if so, will they be pleased to state whether they propose to place it upon the table before finally adopting it?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark replied:—

"I propose to explain to Council what progress has been made in the matter of the proposed amalgamation when I introduce the head of Posts and Telegraphs in the discussion of the Budget on the 7th instant, on which occasion it will be possible to deal with the matter more fully than in reply to a question; and in these circumstances perhaps the Hon'ble Member will not object to waiting for the more complete statement which I shall then be in a position to make."

The Hon'ble Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar asked:—

"Will Government be pleased to state whether the Committee, presided over by Field Marshal Lord Nicholson on the Indian Army has finished its labours, and whether its report has been received by Government? If not, will Government be pleased to state whether it will be in a position to give this Council information as to the probable financial effect of its recommendations before the discussion of the Budget in March next?

"Will Government be pleased to state the estimated cost of the Committee during the current financial year?"

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief replied:—

"The answer to the first portion of the question is in the negative.

The cost of the Committee during the current financial year is estimated at £15,000."

THE INDIAN COMPANIES BILL

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark :—" Sir, I beg to present the Report of the Select Committee on the Indian Companies Bill. It is not our general practice at this stage in the passage of a Bill for the Member in charge to discuss its progress, and I do not propose to take up the time of the Council by any reference to the various amendments made in the Bill which are set forth in the Report, and which will be considered by Council when the Bill comes up for final discussion on the 18th March But I think it will be of assistance to Council if with your permission, Sir, I say a few words of explanation on one matter I refer to the paragraph in their Report in which the Committee deal with the proposals relating to Directors and Managing Agents which I adumbrated in Council when moving for the Committee on this Bill I want to make it quite clear what the effect of the Committee's recommendations will be. The Committee have unanimously accepted the principle that there is room for the imposition of certain wholesome restrictions in connection with the management of companies by Managing Agents in this country; they think on the one hand that the clauses submitted to them provide a reasonable measure of disclosure and secure to a reasonable extent the principle that directors of a company should be independent from the Managing Agents; and, on the other hand, they see no ground to suppose that these provisions would impose any undue restrictions on legitimate transactions. They consider, however, that in view of their intrinsic importance, and as they have not been formally before the country, they should be circulated before taking their place in the Company law of the land They therefore have not included them now in the Bill, but they have taken the opportunity of recording their view that the ultimate incorporation in the law of such provisions is highly desirable

"Government have made no difficulty about accepting this view They have always recognised that these clauses stand on a different footing to the rest of the Bill in that they have been introduced at a later stage without that previous circulation which is a part of our usual legislative procedure when dealing with important and not exceptionally urgent measures While this Council has every right to consider itself representative of India, we cannot yet press the theory of representative Government too far, and when Hon'ble Members ask that important provisions of this kind which have not been before their constituencies by the usual method of circulation or publication, should be submitted to those constituencies, Government have no desire to stand in the way. It happens also that in this particular case there is no great difficulty about the matter, though it involves a somewhat cumbrous procedure The clauses are complete in themselves, and cannot be said to be an absolutely essential part of the general body of Company law It is therefore easy enough to publish these clauses for examination and consideration, and to incorporate them subsequently in the law, either as they now stand, or if experience so indicates, with suitable modifications Probably it will be possible to do so before the main Bill, which will be passed into law this session, actually comes into operation, so that the whole law—that is, the main Bill based on the English law, together with such clauses as may be incorporated hereafter relating to Managing Agents—would come into force at one and the same time We have found it necessary to allow a fairly long interval between the passage of the main Bill and the date when it comes into operation, in order to set up satisfactorily the necessary machinery for working the Act It is particularly important to strengthen registration in this country in view of the larger powers and responsibilities which have been placed on Registrars, and machinery must be created for that purpose We have also to take up with Local Governments the question of the training of auditors, and there are other minor matters to arrange The Committee therefore have decided to recommend that a year should be allowed between the passage of the Bill and the date of its coming into operation which will be on the 1st of April, 1914 I see no reason why these clauses relating to Managing Agents which will now be published for criticism, should not be passed into law during next cold weather, and, as I have said, incorporated in the Company law before the end of the financial year. Government could not have agreed to the re-publication of the

[5TH MARCH, 1918.] [Mr. Clark; Sir Reginald Craddock.]

Bill as a whole. No adequate grounds have been shown for its re-publication, and it would be preposterous without such grounds to postpone the passage of a measure which is very necessary to India, with the obvious corollary that the date of its coming into operation would also have had to be postponed. The present arrangement avoids this necessity and at the same time enables the new clauses to be published before they become law.

"There is just one other thing which I should like to say about these clauses before we part with them for this session In the last few days they have been violently attacked in certain quarters, and Government have been criticised for venturing to bring them forward in this Committee I do not complain of that; nor am I concerned now to discuss or to defend the merits of the clauses themselves. It is enough for me that they will be published with the imprimatur of an exceptionally strong Committee which is representative of legal experience in different parts of India and of widespread commercial interests both European and Indian But it is difficult not to see a certain significance in the fact that these attacks all emanate from one quarter and that what is greatly exercising Calcutta appears to leave Bombay and other commercial centres unmoved. Within the last week or ten days, three of the great Chambers of Commerce in India have held their annual meetings, and it is at least remarkable that neither in Bombay nor in Cawnpore, where there are also Managing Agents whose interests can hardly be much less important than those in Calcutta, whose honour we may well suppose to be just as sensitive, was there any animadversion on these proposals I cannot help connecting this circumstance with another—that when I offered only a few days ago to go down to Calcutta to talk over these clauses and other amendments in the Bill, the offer was met in a way which amounted to something very like a refusal to discuss them with me. Yet I think discussion at that point might very possibly have brought about an arrangement which would have enabled these provisions, as well as the rest of the Bill, to be passed into law without further delay, and would have saved Council some trouble and inconvenience in the future I cannot but regret, Sir, that it should have been thought desirable to take up this attitude It is not fair to Government, nor is it even business-like Government's one wish in this matter has been to work in co-operation with the commercial community They have had no desire, as I have explained repeatedly, to throw any slur on any person or body of persons If I may speak of myself, I am fortunate enough to have many friends in business circles in this country, some of them friends of a standing far older than my time in India, and I should no more dream of casting any shadow of doubt on their probity than I should expect them to doubt mine But nobody will deny that there are abuses in connection with these agencies; and in these clauses we have endeavoured to make a very modest beginning towards meeting them We have had no desire to impose unnecessary or harassing restrictions To avoid this, we have spared no pains in consulting commercial opinion before framing these amendments, and I think members of the Committee will testify to my readiness, both on these clauses and throughout the Bill generally, to accept the views of the commercial representatives wherever Government could possibly do so I take no special credit for this; it was the only prudent and reasonable course; but we can truly say that we have done our best on our side to bring about a satisfactory solution, and in return we had a right to expect that we should be met in something of the same spirit."

THE INDIAN CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock :—"Sir, I beg to introduce a Bill to amend the Indian Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, and to move that it be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr Syed Ali Imam, the Hon'ble Maharaj-Kumar Gopal Saran Singh, the Hon'ble Mr. Monteath, the Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis, the Hon'ble Mr. Ebrahim, the Hon'ble Mr. Rayaningar, the Hon'ble Mr Malaviya, the Hon ble Sir William Vincent, the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler, the Hon'ble Mr.

Kenrick, the Hon'ble Mr. Kesteven, the Hon'ble Mr. Meredith, the Hon'ble Mr. Walker, the Hon'ble Major Blakeway, the Hon'ble Mr. Das, the Hon'ble Maharaja Ranajit Sinha and myself with instructions to report by the 11th instant.

"It has devolved on me to introduce in this Council a Bill further to amend the Indian Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure and to move that it be referred to a Select Committee

"This Bill is intended to introduce into the Criminal Law of India a new offence, the offence of criminal conspiracy Now when it is sought to introduce a new law, especially a law which creates a new offence, the first and most important consideration is a clear comprehension of the purpose and scope of the proposed law. When the purpose and scope of the new law have been made clear—for until this is done, it is obvious that no opinion of any value can be formed upon it,– the next point that will arouse questioning will be, is this law necessary? That is the question of principle which the Council have to decide to-day. Thirdly, there remains for consideration, the question whether the proposed law, as drafted, succeeds in fulfilling the object that it has in view, or whether it is open to adverse criticism on points of detail on the ground that it either fails to secure its object, or that it entails other undesirable consequences. It is for this last purpose that I am moving that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee.

"To-day, however, I am only concerned to explain exactly what the proposed Bill is intended to effect, and to ask the Council to approve of the principle that this Bill is necessary, leaving for subsequent examination, according to our usual practice, the precise drafting which is best calculated to give effect to the principle when it has received the approval of this Council.

"The text of this Bill was published 8 days ago, and the most important clause in it is clause 3, which proposes to add to the Indian Penal Code a new section, 120(a) containing the definition of criminal conspiracy. All the rest of the Bill is subsidiary to that definition I will read clause 3 The new section 120(a) will be as follows, according to clause 3

'When two or more persons combine and agree to do or cause to be done, (i) an illegal act, or (ii) an act which is not illegal by illegal means, such agreement is designated a criminal conspiracy, provided that no agreement except an agreement to commit an offence shall amount to a criminal conspiracy, unless some act besides the agreement is done affecting the object thereof by one or more parties to such agreement'

Explanation –'It is immaterial whether the illegal act is the ultimate object of such agreement, or is merely incidental to that object'

"The Council will observe that there are several ingredients in this new offence. In the first place, to constitute a conspiracy, it requires the combination in agreement of two or more persons, and to make that conspiracy criminal requires either that the object in view or the methods employed should be illegal The word 'illegal' is defined in section 43 of the Indian Penal Code as being 'applicable to everything which is an offence or which is prohibited by law, or which furnishes ground for a civil action.' Although by this definition the term 'illegal' includes things which are offences and things which are illegal, but not offences, the Council will observe that this Bill contemplates a distinction between an agreement to commit an offence, and an agreement of which either the object or the methods employed are illegal but do not constitute an offence. In the case of the former, the criminal conspiracy is completed by the act of agreement; in the case of the latter, there is a further agreement required before the offence is complete, namely that some act must be done by one or more of the parties to the agreement to effect the object thereof. There must in such cases be what is commonly termed an overt act.

"Similarly, the punishment provided for a criminal conspiracy may be more severe if the agreement is one to commit a serious offence, and will ordinarily be less severe if the agreement is to commit an act which is not a serious offence, or an act which, although illegal, is not an offence That is the law to which I am asking the general consent of the Council at this stage.

"I will now pass on to explain why it is not only expedient but necessary that this offence of criminal conspiracy should be included in the Indian Penal

[5TH MARCH, 1913.] [Sir Reginald Craddock.]

Code With a few small exceptions, the criminal law of India is based on the criminal law of England, and though the offence of conspiracy may, to a large extent, be new to the law of India, it is a very old law indeed in England. The original law of Conspiracy in England goes back at least to the time of Edward I, when the Ordinance of Conspirators was promulgated in 1305. It has formed part of the common law of England, and during succeeding centuries has developed under the interpretation of judges from being a law originally to deal with conspiracies to promote false and malicious indictments, into a law which includes conspiracies for the doing of any criminal offence, and also conspiracies to do injuries to third persons

"A comparatively recent exposition of the law is to be found in Quinn v. Leatham, 1901, in which Lord Brompton ruled that an offence consisted not merely in the intention of two or more but in the agreement of two or more to do an illegal act by legal means, or a legal act by illegal means. The result of this development of the law has been to render a purpose an offence which is criminally punishable when concerted by several, which would only be an actionable wrong if entertained merely by an individual.

"As was said by the Queen's Bench in Scott versus Brown, 92, 'this distinction rests on the very solid ground that though every wrong may not be dangerous to the public, yet every coalition to promote wrong is manifestly of that character,'

"The development of the Law of Conspiracy in England illustrates a most important truth which has a very significant bearing on the present circumstances of India and on the modern developments which have taken place in this country. In a crude state of society men resort to sudden violence to attain their ends. They may coalesce rapidly to form a mob following like sheep at the instigation of a few leaders, or they may combine themselves into a criminal gang whose objects and means of subsistence are a particular kind of crime; but as society develops, co-operation and combination among evil-doers assume much more insidious shapes. On the one side there may spring into existence secret organisations and secret conspiracies animated by dangerous designs; on the other, men put their heads together to gain their ends by crooked and devious means by which they seek to coerce the free will, and interfere with the liberty, of individual citizens. Education and intelligence among the evil-minded, from which no society, whether it be in Europe or whether it be in Asia, is free, merely bring into use more intelligent means, including even the perversion of the law itself, towards the ruin of an enemy. The crude conspiracy of engaging a few men to way-lay and beat or murder an enemy is supplemented by something more cunning, with more elaborate precautions to conceal the design, more secret methods for carrying it out, and better organization for escaping when it is carried out The greater the success which is achieved, whether it be gained by better organisation, by more effective methods of silencing witnesses or informers, or or by hiding even the nature of the wrong under the cloak of legality, the greater becomes the danger to the peaceful citizens and to society at large Conspiracies of this kind may be aimed directly at the State and be frankly revolutionary in character; or they may be actuated by hostility to the State, but be carried out merely to the loss and danger of private individuals; or they may be entirely unconnected with the State and be entered upon merely for the gratification of personal spite, or to secure unlawful gains from private individuals or from the public at large. The more complex the state of society, the more elaborate its laws, the more subtle and dangerous become the methods open to the evil-minded for victimizing and persecuting the innocent.

"In addition to conspiracies to do personal violence of various kinds, there may be conspiracies to defraud, conspiracies to levy blackmail, conspiracies to defame, conspiracies to ruin, all of which may be levelled against individuals by unscrupulous persons combining together. The English law makes such conspiracies per se penal; the Indian law does not. And it is this serious flaw in the Indian Penal Code that this Bill, for which I ask the whole-hearted support of this Council, is designed to remove.

[5TH MARCH, 1913.] [Sir Reginald Craddock.]

"The Council will certainly wish to know how such an omission came to be made in the Indian Penal Code, and whether it was deliberate or unintentional. Old records of that time throw no clear light upon this point, but from the fact that although the Penal Code became law in 1860, on the very morrow of the mutiny, it did not render penal, as such, even a revolutionary conspiracy against the State,—an omission which ten years later was rectified by the enactment of section 121 (a), it seems to be extremely probable that conspiracy per se was not made a separate offence in the Indian Penal Code originally because it was thought that the law of abetment contained in Chapter V of the Code would be sufficient to secure the punishment of conspirators. The enactment of section 121 (a) proved that it was not sufficient, but, while this omission in the Indian Penal Code of 1860 was corrected by the Amending Act of 1870, so far as conspiracies against the State were concerned, in regard to all other offences and in regard to conspiracy as generally known to the English law, the omission has remained uncorrected to this day, and the time is more than ripe for this omission to be rectified without any further delay. The law of abetment is contained in section 107 and the following sections of the Indian Penal Code. It is as follows —It contemplates three alternative methods; (1) instigation, (2) conspiracy, and (3) aid But in the case of abetment of conspiracy, some act or illegal omission must take place in pursuance of the thing which is abetted. It is true that abetment of the commission of an offence, including abetment by way of conspiracy, is ordinarily punishable even if that offence is not actually committed, but some further step must have been taken than the mere agreement towards the commission of the offence before conspiracy will constitute an abetment. If it does not constitute abetment, the law can take no cognisance of it. Thus, if a band of conspirators were surprised or overheard plotting the crime of murder, but they were caught before there was time for any of them to put into execution any of the steps necessary for the act, however guilty their intentions, however diabolical and well-conceived their plot, they will have committed no offence in the eyes of the law Not only this: but even if with the clearest evidence of conspiracy such as I have described above, the actual crime was committed by some third person, it would be impossible to bring the conspirators to book unless it was possible to show by evidence the connection of the man or men who carried out the crime with those conspirators So that, a band of conspirators may carry out a series of crimes with complete impunity if they took care to employ others whose connection with the conspirators could not be established. Again, you may have the most indubitable evidence that a band of men had agreed together to murder any class of subject; many murders may have occurred, but the actual perpetrators might not be caught or traced; yet, unless it could be shown that one of the band had actually taken any steps in the prosecution of the common object of that conspiracy, the conspirators would not come within the clutches of the law. In England, the mere conspiracy to commit murder is punishable with ten years' penal servitude: in India, it is not an offence at all. It is within the knowledge of this Council that of recent years such conspiracies have come into existence It is impossible for the Government to disclose all that it may know of their continued existence, but that it has the knowledge that they do exist, this Council must take on trust Surely the Council needs no argument from me to convince them that this is a state of things which cannot be tolerated a day longer than is necessary. I go further and I say that even if the events of the past few years had shown no evidence of the existence of criminal conspiracies the assimilation of the law of India to the law of England, the removal of this flaw in the Indian Penal Code would be a precautionary measure of the utmost importance, and, just as it is with murder, so it is with other offences The punishment for conspiracy per se may properly vary with the gravity of the crime contemplated, but to allow wicked conspiracies for the commission of offences to be undertaken with impunity is dangerous alike to the interests of the State and to the interests of the individual There are many heinous crimes short of murder for which men may plot together; to burn down houses, to injure or maim men or cattle, to destroy property, to kidnap minors, to bring false charges, these are all serious crimes to which the considerations that I urge in respect of murder apply in a greater or less degree: and I cannot imagine for a moment that any Member of this Council will shrink from supporting this Bill so far as these are the objects which it has in view.

"I next come, Sir, to that section of criminal conspiracy as defined by the Bill, which deals with cases which are not in themselves offences under the criminal law. In respect of these we have considered it wise and proper to make the law less stringent than is the case in England. Conspiracies to do illegal acts or legal acts by illegal means when neither the object of the conspiracy nor the means to be used constitute an offence, under the English law requires no overt act to make the offence complete. In this Bill it is provided that an overt act is necessary to make such conspiracies criminal. In the case of these conspiracies, the wrong to be inflicted, if committed by a single person, would merely be illegal As long as it is a case of a private wrong between two individuals, the party aggrieved can be left to his civil remedies; but when the wrong is inflicted upon him by a combination of his neighbours or his enemies, or by a class of persons acting against a member or members of another class, the consequence may become so serious as to require the intervention of the State with power to punish not only because such a conspiracy may lead to acts of lawlessness and conduce to a breach of the peace, but also on account of the great importance of protecting the individual in the exercise of his private rights as a citizen The ordinary civil law may suffice to protect him against one opponent, but he may easily be driven to surrender his lawful rights by a combination of many opponents There may be a conspiracy to wrong a man in the exercise of his trade or profession, a conspiracy to deprive him of his common rights, and a conspiracy on the part of one sect or class to cause persistent annoyance to another sect or class; these are all instances of conspiracies which it is desirable to render punishable by law if once they go beyond the stage of mere agreement There are many other ingenious devices for coercing and annoying an unpopular person or a member of another creed, to which the great diversities of race, class and creed that prevail in India render India peculiarly liable Such minor persecutions are bound to lead to bad feeling, and must eventually tend to serious crime, and it is of the utmost importance that the State should have the power of stepping in at an early stage to check such combinations before they assume serious proportions or entail serious consequences It is not a rash assertion to make that in India many crimes that are committed have had their origin in ill-feeling engendered by wrongs of this type, and the records of our police-stations and our criminal Courts are full of wrongs reported in which a resort to the civil Court is the only remedy that can be suggested No one desires to punish conspiracies to do private wrong with the same severity as conspiracies to commit serious offences, and the Bill therefore provides for no more than a maximum penalty of six months' imprisonment with the option of a fine in cases which fall within the category that I have just described.

"The point that I wish to impress upon this Council is that these petty persecutions may possibly lead to petty crime, from petty crime to organised crime, and from organised crime to a state of terrorism and demoralisation, which is subversive of all peace and justice and is harmful to all interests, public and private. What this Bill is intended to do is to confer on the authorities power to check these movements in their earliest stage of persecution and wrong-doing before their other and more serious consequences shall have time to ensue. My firm contention is that the principle of this Bill is a right principle, and the powers it confers are urgently necessary in the interests of peaceful and quiet government. I do not for one moment admit that these powers were not necessary fifty years ago when the Penal Code first came into force; but even if they were not necessary then, they are necessary now. If they were, as I contend, necessary even then, they are doubly necessary now. The more complex social life becomes, the more safeguards are required. The law of conspiracy is the counterpoise to the growing risk that both the private individual and the State may find themselves confronted more and more by unscrupulous and dangerous combinations, or by combinations which may at any time become dangerous. Sir, I am not asking this Council to agree to a law which has been imported from a barbarous or semi-civilised country. It is not because India is backward that I am asking the Council to accept this Bill. It is rather because India is developing so rapidly that I ask this Council to accept it. It is not because Indians have an extra dose of original sin or any special inherent wickedness, that I press this Council to agree to this Bill. Rather I would urge upon you the advisability of making good that flaw in your penal law, the removal of which will assimilate, though with somewhat less stringency, the law of India to a law which has been found most necessary and most salutary in so advanced and law-abiding a country as England—a law which has been interpreted and administered by a succession of the most eminent English Judges, and the soundness of the principles of which have been affirmed and re-affirmed by the greatest among them from a period which extends from some centuries back up to the present day.

"If the motion which I am moving is carried in this Council, it will be possible afterwards to examine in detail the provisions of this Bill and to see if there are any flaws and blemishes in it, or if there are any safeguards required to prevent its abuse; but subject to this examination on behalf of Government, I stand firmly on the ground that this Bill is a necessary Bill, a wise and prudent measure, and that the public safety demands that this provision should be included in the criminal law of this land without delay And, it is because it embodies in the Indian criminal law the law which has stood the test of long experience in England, that I ask this Council to agree to the principle of this Bill without the formality of a prior reference to the Local Governments and the public. Sir, I beg to introduce this Bill to amend the Indian Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, and to move the motion which stands in my name."

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjee : —"Sir, I beg to move the amendment which stands against my name. It runs in these terms—'that preparatory to the Bill being referred to the Select Committee it be circulated to public bodies and the High Courts for their opinion" Sir, in this connection I desire to call attention to Rule 19 of our Rules for the introduction and publication of Bills. Rule 19 says that when a Bill is introduced, or on some subsequent occasion, the Member in charge of it shall make one or more of the following motions :—

(a) that it be referred to a Select Committee

That is the motion that is now made

(b) that it be taken into consideration by the Council either at once or at some future date to be then motioned, or

(c) that it be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereof

"The rule lays down three kinds of procedure, and it is open to this Council to adopt any of them. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has recommended the procedure under clause (a). I recommend the adoption of the procedure under clause (c) It is for the Council to decide which they will prefer. It seems to me, Sir, that the procedure I suggest is the more suitable in view of the contentious character of the Bill and in view of the fact that by following such a procedure the Select Committee before submitting its Report would be in a position to obtain the views of the different public bodies representing different public interests and looking at the matter from different points of view It seems to me that in a case of this kind, where controversy is likely to be keen and acute, the possession of the amplest information would be a distinct advantage to the Select Committee. The object of my amendment is to give the public time for the fullest discussion of this measure. As I have already observed, this measure is likely to give rise to animated discussion. Already in the public prints a note of dissent has been raised. Time, Sir, is a factor—an important factor—in allaying the acerbities of heated controversies. With the lapse of time passions subside, feelings disappear and the truth appears in the cold, clear, colourless atmosphere of pure reason. The Government may be right or the Government may be wrong. If the Government be right a full discussion of the measure will only strengthen their position. If the Government be wrong, a full discussion of the measure will lead to a modification of their attitude. For a great and responsible Government like ours cannot persist in an error when that error has been discovered. Thus, Sir, look at the matter from whatever point of view you please, it seems to me that it is wise, it is desirable and even necessary that the fullest opportunity should be given to the public for the discussion of this measure. Sir, in this connection I am reminded of the circumstances associated with the enactment of the Vernacular Press Act of 1878. That measure gave rise to very considerable agitation The irritation caused by it was largely due to the suddenness with which it was sprung upon an unwary public and the precipitancy with which it was rushed through this Council. One fine morning in the month of April, 1878, the people of Calcutta rose from their beds and found in the newspapers that a Bill was to be introduced that day for the better control of the Vernacular Press Before the sun had set, it had become the law of the land I do not for a moment suggest that anything of the kind has been done in connection with this measure, for we have had a week's time for its discussion. All the same I plead for time—reasonable time—for the consideration of this important Bill, and recommend that it be circulated among public bodies and the High Courts for their views thereon. Apart from these general considerations, I take my stand upon official precedent and practice in analogous cases.

"Under the terms of the English law to which the Hon'ble Member has adverted in the course of his observations in another connection under the terms of the English law, even a petty bye-law affecting a particular local area cannot become operative, cannot receive the assent of the Local Government Board unless and until it has been published in the newspapers and the local public have had an opportunity of considering it The same practice prevails with more or less modification in this country While in the case of bye-laws affecting local areas such latitude of discussion is allowed to the local public, may I not claim with some confidence at the hands of this Legislative Council that the same facilities and the same opportunities should be given to us in connection with a Bill of a highly controversial character affecting the population of a great and vast Empire? Sir, it is an elementary principle of procedure that it is incumbent on those who propose a law, specially a law of this kind imposing a restriction, that they should make out their case The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has referred to three points, which he thinks and all of us agree with him in thinking that it is necessary to establish before the fullest justification can be found for this Bill In the first place, it should be shown that there have been new developments, secondly, that the existing law cannot cope with these developments, and lastly that the present Bill supplies the deficiencies of the existing law Now, Sir, with regard to new developments, I confess that the statement of the Hon'ble Member in charge is exceedingly meagre and scanty We are asked to take it on trust that the situation is such that a law of this kind has become necessary. Well, Sir, I have great faith in the Government of India, great confidence in the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, but surely around this table we are called upon to give an intelligent vote upon information which is supplied to us Sir, for my part I am not prepared to give a vote on any matter which I have not thoroughly tested by evidence which I consider sufficient. I cannot think that I shall be adequately and conscientiously discharging my duty in this Council unless I feel on any question that may be brought before us by the Government that the fullest and amplest details are placed before us, so that the vote that we may record may be approved by our judgment and may be in accordance with the dictates of our conscience Sir, in 1908, I admit there were dangerous combinations, but since then things have taken a turn and a turn for the better There has been a distinct improvement in the attitude of public opinion, in the temper of the public in regard to the Government and the measures and the servants of the Government. Barring the recent deplorable incident, which has convulsed the country from one end to the other and has filled it with horror and detestation, the shame and humiliation of which I confess we have yet to atone for and yet to wipe out, Sir, barring this incident I ask where is the evidence to point to the existence of dangerous conspiracies? With all my admiration for the sleuth-hound sagacity of the Criminal Investigation Department, I am not prepared to accept its ipse dixit. In no part of the civilized world is the testimony of the thief-catcher considered to be decisive of the guilt of the thief. Sir, I find that when Governments are in a tight corner confronted with horrible crimes which they are not able to explain and the clue to which they cannot obtain, they are apt to fall back upon the conspiracy-theory.

"I was in London in 1909 and I remember the storm of indignation which was aroused by the murder of Sir Curzon Wyllie The Prime Minister from his place in Parliament declared that it was due to a conspiracy. Before many weeks had elapsed the statement had to be withdrawn, as it was proved in the highest Court of law, by evidence that was incontrovertible that the misdeed was the act of a half-demented young man brooding over his imaginary wrongs, having no friends, no associates, no colleagues. Sir, on this occasion I may perhaps be allowed to refer for a moment to a statement which has, more than once, appeared in the newspapers, responsible organs of public opinion, and which has more than once been referred to in our Legislative Councils. It has been said in connection with these cases that the Indian public do not help the authorities; that they stand aloof and do not give such information as might lead to the detection of the crime Sir, if there is any truth in this allegation, it implies the gravest reflection upon the honour, the credit, the loyalty and the citizenship of the great community to which I belong. I desire to record my protest against it with all the emphasis that I can command and with a full sense of my responsibility as a Member of this Council These conspirators, these pests of society, are a class apart, they form a class by themselves, mixing with no one, holding communion with no one We know nothing of them. They know nothing of us. They burrow away underground, away from the light of the sun and the gaze of the public Never was the truth of this statement more strikingly illustrated than by the incidents which have been disclosed in connection with what is known as the Wari trial in the Dacca District In this case the son of a Deputy Magistrate, a trusted and honoured servant of the Government, who at one time was Additional Magistrate of Dacca, was charged with the illegal possession of arms and ammunition and with complicity in one of the dacoities in Eastern Bengal His parents, his brothers, and the members of his family, living in the same house, under the same roof, in daily and hourly contact with him, knew nothing of these extraordinary proceedings; and when they came to know of them, it was too late, the young man had been entangled in the meshes of a great crime. The father deposed against the son. The poor man nearly broke down in Court, tears trickled down his cheeks, his evidence was interrupted by sobs But he concealed nothing, he extenuated nothing He spoke the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, a father deposing against his son, signing away his freedom for a number of years; and yet we are told that the Indian public do not co-operate with the authorities in ferreting out these dens of crime and iniquity. Whatever weaknesses we may have, sympathy with murder is not one of them, and the doctrine of pity and compassion preached in the morning of the world by one of the most illustrious of our race has sunk deep into our hearts and has become the abiding heritage of our race.

"Sir, I cannot admit for a moment that sufficient cause has been made out to show that there have been new developments to justify this Bill. Assuming that the Bill is justified on this ground, where is the evidence to show that the existing law is inadequate to meet the requirements of the situation? Has there been any report by any competent Court, any complaint that the present law is inadequate? If there have been any cases, I hope the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill will be able to refer to such cases, if there have been cases where persons who ought to have been punished have not been punished by reason of the absence of a law such as is now proposed to be enacted, will the Hon'ble Member refer to such cases in support of his measure? Then again in regard to the alleged insufficiency of the present law and of the sufficiency of the Bill which it is proposed to enact, the opinion of the High Courts is of the utmost value. The High Courts command the unstinted reverence of the public and are in daily contact with the administration of justice. The opinion of the High Courts if in support of this Bill would be a source of enormous strength to the Government; the opinion of the High Courts in opposition to the Bill must lead to its modification. In any case I earnestly hope that the Hon'ble Member will see his way to accept at least this part of the suggestion which I have made, viz., that before the Select Committee makes its final report, the High Courts may be consulted with regard to the Bill.

"Sir, we have been told—and the Hon'ble Member in charge has laid special stress upon this point—we have been told that this is a part of the English law We are asked to accept it and even to welcome it as an approximation to the law of England. Sir, I have the greatest respect for the law of England. England has furnished models of jurisprudence to the rest of mankind; England is the legitimate successor of Rome in the domain of Empire and of legislation. Nothing has contributed so much to the greatness of the English people, to the stability of their institutions, as the marvellous system of English law and the noble institutions by which they are administered. To say that a particular law is borrowed from the English law is indeed a great recommendation in favour of it. But, Sir, if we are to have a part of the English law, let us have the whole of it; let us have it with the English safeguards; let us have it with the eager solicitude for justice and the liberty of the subject which forms the crowning feature of every part of the English legal system. In England this law is administered with the aid of juries; in our country it will be administered without the aid of juries. When we have the rough, let us have the smooth; when we have the English restrictions, let us have the English safeguards.

"And, Sir, notwithstanding the very learned explanation of the history of conspiracies which the Hon'ble Member has placed before this Council, I hold in my hand the opinion of two very learned Judges condemning the expansion of the law of conspiracies. Sir, I am no lawyer, but there is the fact that distinguished legal authorities hold that the law of conspiracy is a dangerous law, that it is out of the run of the ordinary law; and I cannot help feeling that its expansion is fraught with peril to the subject. In the words of Fitzgerald, J. in the Irish State trials of 1867 :—

'The law of conspiracy is a branch of our jurisprudence to be narrowly watched, to be jealously regarded, never to be pressed beyond its true limits. For, in the prudent words of the greatest of American Judges, it was more safe that punishment should be ordained by general laws formed upon deliberation, under the influence of no resentments without knowing on whom they are inflicted, than that it should be inflicted under the influence of those passions which a trial seldom fails to excite, and which a flexible definition of the crime or a construction that would render it flexible, might bring into operation.'

"Sir, I do not know whether I am entitled to enter into details, but the law seems to me to be fraught with serious risks An agreement entered into by two or three persons to commit any offence under the Penal Code or any local or special Act, however trivial may be the offence, is criminal conspiracy. Here a civil wrong is magnified into the proportions of a criminal offence. I am afraid, Sir, the provisions of this law would be taken advantage of for the purpose of satisfying private grudge and spite. Let me take two or three illustrations. Suppose A and B combine to persuade C who has entered into a contract of service with D not to perform his contract, and C in consequence does an act in repudiation of his contract. D may charge A and B with criminal conspiracy. It is a civil matter, but it is magnified into the proportions of a criminal offence Take another case, and this is a class of cases which frequently occurs in the eastern districts of Bengal. A and B combine to erect a hut, we shall say, or settle a tenant on a newly-formed chur which they believe is an appurtenant to their estate."

The President:—"I am afraid I must interrupt the Hon'ble Member. I am anxious that he should adhere to the point which is now before the Council which is the circulation of the Bill As soon as his amendment has been voted upon, it will be open to the Hon'ble Member to discuss the main principles of the Bill"

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee:—"Very well, Sir, I will drop this part of my observations Just one other matter which I want to refer to in this connection. The Schedule of the Bill is exceedingly vague and elastic, and is liable to be attended with serious results Sir, the offence of criminal conspiracy is to be a cognisable offence or is to be a non-cognisable offence according to the object with which the conspiracy is formed, and the police is armed with the power of arresting in the case of a cognisable offence. Now, how are the police to know whether in a particular case the object of the conspiracy is a cognisable or a non-cognisable offence? Take the Dacca Conspiracy case. In that case, after months of deliberation, the learned Judges of the High Court discovered the objects of the Anusilan Samiti. This Bill leaves the power of detecting the objects of a conspiracy which in one case took months on the part of High Court Judges to discover, the power of determining whether a case is cognisable or non-cognisable to the police, and this seems to me, Sir, to be a dangerous innovation which will arm the police with powers liable to grave abuse.

"One word more and I am done. It seems to me, Sir, that this Bill is in direct conflict with the principles and the policy which have been laid down by His Excellency the Viceroy Nothing, Sir, has so effectually touched the hearts of our people or enthralled their imagination as, if I may be permitted to say so without impertinence or irreverence, the calm, the noble, the dignified bearing of His Excellency in the crisis of the tragedy and ever after. Despite the shock to his feelings, the bitter disappointment which he must have felt, he declared that his feelings towards the people of India remained unchanged and unchangeable and that his policy would undergo no transformation. Sir, what is the basic principle, the key-note of that policy? The words conciliation and co-operation are written deep on every line of that policy I venture to think that if this Bill be passed into law, it will seriously interfere with the steady progressive development of that policy, create a sense of mistrust and add to the unrest where it exists. My educated countrymen would feel a sense of abatement of that confidence which has hitherto been reposed in them by the Government Sir, trust begets trust; mistrust, or even a show of it, engenders suspicion. Sir, the Government of India has recently filled its armoury with formidable weapons for the suppression of crime They have not touched the conspirators The arm of the law is not long enough to reach them Is it wise to add to them and create a feeling of alarm and anxiety in the minds of the loyal, the peaceful, the well-behaved section of the community and they form the majority? In 1908, a law of this kind was not felt to be necessary. It seems to me that the present law is absolutely without the semblance of a justification If we could persuade ourselves to believe that a law of this nature would be useful in the interests of peace and orderly progress, we should unhesitatingly accord it our support But, Sir, repressive measures have been tried in India and they have failed, as they have failed everywhere. Conciliation is the sovereign remedy and it is already bearing golden fruits.

"Lord Hardinge will go down to posterity as the pacifier of India. I pray that nothing may be done to interrupt the fruition of that beneficient policy which will for ever be associated with his honoured name, or mar the glory of an achievement which will place him in the front rank of Indian Viceroys, by the side of the Bentincks, the Cannings and the Ripons of Indian fame.

"With these few words, I beg to move the amendment which stands in my name"

The Hon'ble Malik Umar Hayat Khan:—"Sir, I cordially welcome this measure and thank Government that they have taken steps towards checking this extraordinary and new crime by amendments of the old law. It is premature now to go into the details of the Bill, as it may be altered in the course of Select Committee. I had long ago contemplated of bringing in a new Bill to check the new movement of sedition, but I did not bring it forward as people might have accused me of bringing in a Bill when they thought that the situation had changed. I actually drafted a rough sketch of a Bill to check sedition which is perhaps a little more severe than the Bill which is now put before the Council

"The fears of the Members who may say that the present change in law can be abused though however natural may it be, I think it is more fanciful than practical Such Hon'ble Members should remember that the law of capital punishment is already in existence But no one can say that that law is being abused, and how can one say of these very ordinary amendments introduced, that they will be abused to prejudice an accused when the provisions of the Bill will be enforced by the same authorities who administer the old and previous law If the present authorities are capable to administer one, they are equally capable to administer the other If these authorities are incapable, then they are incapable for exercising any legal powers at all I hope that the Select Committee will see that, when they mean to have the law effective for certain purposes, it is such that it meets the requirements for which it is contemplated The Government of which we are a part should not legislate for to-day, but they should also do so to check the crime which is likely to come into existence in future

"Finally, I would like to add that if conspirators plan for taking a life, and do their best to do so, they ought to receive the same punishment of the same nature specially for political crimes, as any big movement resulting from it will involve thousands of innocent people who did not intend to get involved, and thousands of lives will be lost uselessly. It is for this reason that I hold them more responsible I would like the same sentence for a man who puts up another as a tool to commit a crime as for the criminal himself.

"With these few words I support the motion before the Council"

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis:—"Sir, I do not oppose the reference to Select Committee; not that I am unaware of the comprehensive nature of this Bill, or of the risk that there undoubtedly is of its abuse in the hands of the subordinate Police, but in the exceptional state of things caused by the recrudescence of anarchy and other political crimes, Government might be excused for seeking wider legal powers of control and punishment Government, it seems, have come to the conclusion that the law of conspiracy requires revision in the light of the facts revealed in the course of investigations of such crimes. The statements made in Council to-day by the Hon'ble the Home Member will disarm extreme opposition to an amendment of the law of conspiracy Primâ facie there is a case for amendment That the amendment has taken the present form must be due to causes which must have been well considered by Government And when the English law supplies the precedent very strong reasons founded upon facts alone could justify any serious opposition to the underlying principle of the Bill One will look in vain for such reasons in the history of the past few years, streaked as it is with innocent blood

"But while I do not object to the principle of the amendment, I cannot but feel that modification of the Bill in several particulars is necessary in the interests of the great Indian community, peace-loving and law-abiding, which has nothing to do with political crime and which abhors anarchy as much as the Government do These changes, I have every hope, the Select Committee will make, and ampler safeguards against misapplication will in the end be provided in the Bill. The facts that this measure has been introduced only after such diabolical, but happily abortive, attempt on the life of the august and respected Head of the Supreme Government and that indiscriminate arrests have not followed the outrage, prove, if anything, Government's anxiety to spare the people all avoidable trouble and harassment. And so considerate a Government can well be expected to make the weapon harmless to the inoffensive public.

[Sir Gangadhar Chitnavis; Mr. Ghuznavi.] [5TH MARCH, 1913.]

"I hope that the amendment of the Criminal Law now proposed will be one of those measures which will not be put into operation except under sheer necessity, and that it will remain on the Statute-book only to be used in extreme measures to prevent exceptional crimes against public safety. I believe if such measures are wanted by the executive, any delay in legislation is likely to be prejudicial to the interests of good government I accordingly wish that necessary amendments safeguarding public interests may be put in, but the powers required should be forthwith given I do not agree with those who think that the people do not willingly co-operate with the authorities in tracking political offenders. I know there is a general desire among them to co-operate with Government in eradicating the evil These political crimes are detested by the general public as much as by the authorities, and as a member of that large public which abhors such crimes, I give the present Bill my humble support"

The Hon'ble Mr. Ghuznavi :—"Sir, I have no hesitation in supporting the principle of the Bill which is about to be introduced in this Council by the Hon'ble the Home Member I am sure we all regret that, during the very first sessions of this Council held in the new Capital of India in this historic city of Delhi which is yet destined perhaps to eclipse her former glories, it should be found necessary to introduce a measure of this kind; yet the exigencies of the times are such that no blame can be attached to the Government of India for forging a fresh weapon to be kept in the legislative armoury to cope with the requirements of the case This country has unfortunately for the last few years witnessed the results of many dangerous conspiracies which have cast a stain on her fair fame, and which, if they could have been dealt with while they were being hatched, would have come to nought and would have preserved her name untarnished But with the law as it stood no action could be taken with regard to such conspiracies It is to deal with such nefarious plots that I understand this Bill is chiefly and primarily intended. It is no use disguising the fact that the new measure will make our law more stringent and more drastic than it is, but facts are stubborn things and we have to look them squarely in the face and to prepare the drug to suit the disease During the latter end of Lord Minto's régime repressive measures were enacted one after the other till they culminated in the Press Act which roused a storm of indignation wrongly or rightly throughout the country While the very first acts of his successor, I say, were those of clemency and reconciliation And it was hoped that with the change of policy a change would come over the land But alas, bombs and revolvers are still in the air Burglaries and dacoities perpetrated by those who ought to know better are still apace. And this morning's telegram brings us yet another news of the circulation of seditious leaflets in the erstwhile capital of India When we consider that all those culminated in the most dastardly and detestable crime perpetrated on the historic occasion of His Excellency's State Entry into this city, in the attempt against the person of the direct representative of our most gracious Sovereign which sent a thrill of horror and indignation throughout the length and breadth of this country, language, Sir, wants to break through all conventional bounds No one, Sir, I say, who is on the side of law and order will hesitate for one instant to support Government in its present legislative attempt It is now abundantly clear that there is an infinitesimally small section that nothing will conciliate We are convinced however that they are a microscopically small set of crazy, isolated, anarchical maniacs, and it is to reach these that the long arm of the law has to be made still longer.

"The law of conspiracy as it stands at present can only be put into operation against any one who conspires to wage, or to attempt to wage war, or to abet the waging of war against the King-Emperor or conspires to deprive the King-Emperor of the Sovereignty of British India or any part thereof or conspires to overawe by means of criminal force or show of criminal force the Government of India or any Local Government This Sir, exhausts the whole list. It will therefore be seen clearly that the existing law is inadequate to deal with present day developments. Again the law under abetment as per section 107 of the

[5TH MARCH, 1913.] [Mr. Ghuznavi; Mr. Madhu Sudan Das.]

Indian Penal Code is equally inadequate for it requires association for an object which must be a criminal offence, added thereto there must be an overt act or illegal omission Hence there is no remedy in the Indian Penal Code at present against offences which are the outcome of latter day developments Such being the case, I can assure you, Sir, that the Mussalmans of Bengal, whom I have the honour to represent, have firmly resolved since that fatal day when every Mussalman lip uttered a prayer for His Excellency's speedy recovery and at the same time a curse on that miscreant who threw that cruel bomb to co-operate most whole-heartedly with the Government, not only in word but in deed in any measure or measures which the Government might take to completely eradicate this evil which was hitherto foreign to the soil of India.

"Sir, there is, however, another side to this picture In the Statement of Objects and Reasons it is stated that what was intended was merely to bring our law into conformity with the law of England But India, Sir, is not England. There are conditions here which do not prevail in that happy island home And I am afraid if the Bill, as it stands at present is passed into law, it would not only be confined to a legitimate use as a constitutional weapon in the hands of the authorities, but I am afraid it will lead to many abuses. Persons will be found both among private individuals as well as subordinate officials who to serve their own ends or to feed fat their own grudge or enmity would turn this Act into an engine of oppression often of the innocent. I, therefore, venture to hope that when this Bill comes up for consideration before the Sub-Committee it will be found to introduce ample safeguards and it would be possible to amend it and mend it in such a way that abuses of the kind indicated may not be possible With your permission, Sir, I would like to make just one or two suggestions here to illustrate my meaning In section 120 A, sub-section (1) the words 'an illegal act' are to my mind extremely vague If in the place of those words the following are substituted, namely, 'an offence which is punishable with death, transportation or rigorous imprisonment for a term of two years or upwards', I am inclined to think that they would meet all those cases which we all have in view If that were not possible, I would urge the consideration of the advisability of altogether omitting sub-section (2) of clause 120 B. If even this is found not possible, then I would urge that the 'illegal act' mentioned in sub-section (1), clause 120 A, be defined to state which acts would be considered illegal for the purposes of this Act I mean a schedule such as would show that the 'illegal act' for the purposes herein mentioned would include (1) offences against the Government, (2) offences against public order, (3) offences against the person, a sort of schedule which is to be found for instance in Halsbury's Laws of England.

"Lastly if the Bill were to remain as it is, then I would urge the consideration of the advisability of enacting this measure provisionally for a limited period after which, according as conditions then prevail, this Act would be repealed or re-enacted

"With these words, Sir, I beg to support in principle the Bill before us."

The Hon'ble Mr. Madhu Sudan Das :—"Sir, the motion which has been put before the Council by the Hon'ble Mr Banerjee, asks this Council to refer the matter to the High Courts and to the public generally, for eliciting their opinion. My Hon'ble friend has very clearly in his speech set before us the questions which are really at issue in the present stage of the discussion. He has brought the real cardinal questions, as it were, to a focus. The first question is this,—(I almost quote his words as I took them down) — Has there been any new development in the state of things in this country which requires new legislation? During my Hon'ble friend's speech he said that such a state of things did exist in 1908 ; since then things have become better, things are quiet; so that Sir, we have it that in 1908 there was sufficient reason and a state of new developments which would have justified new legislation. The only question is, whether the facts that have transpired during this interval—between 1908 and this day justify the inference that that state of things has disappeared, the storm has cleared up and the state of society is calm and normal. My Hon'ble friend also has referred to what he calls,—'except that one deplorable incident in connection with the outrage in Delhi.' Sir, I was present here on the 27th January when His Excellency, from his seat there, made a remarkable speech My Hon'ble friend refers to the conciliatory policy of Lord Hardinge I saw something more in that remarkable speech. I saw the Viceroy of India classing himself amongst the fellow-subjects of the Empire and giving expression to his love for India, and an earnest desire to raise India from her present fallen condition But when that speech came to that part of it which referred to his sufferings during several weeks and to an appeal to us Indians to restore India to her lost fame,—that part of his speech, Sir, made me hang down my head with shame I saw the hand which was in a sling,—the hand which was stretched forth to give a lifting hand to India—to raise her to a higher position,—had been bitten, as the hand was bitten in the fable by the snake, that tried to feed it in order to save it from starvation

"That may be one deplorable incident, but that deplorable incident, one though it be, has a great significance. But is it a fact really that we have had only one incident since 1908. Have there not been more incidents during this interval in East Bengal? So the question is that between 1908 and this day there is no evidence to show that the state of society has so changed that there is no justification for legislation at the present day Legislation of such a character would have been perfectly justifiable in 1908. The next question is whether this law, this Bill, which is now before this Council, is calculated to remedy the existing evil. Of course many suggestions have been made in the shape of amendments I don't think they are in order. The only question of course--(as I have been informed that I am on the Select Committee I should not like to have a sort of prophetic soliloquy on what my views are likely to be;) what form the legislation should take. This much is certain that while there should be an attempt on the part of this Council to strengthen the hands of the Legislature to adopt such measures,to pass such laws as will put down offences of this nature, at the same time it should be the part of the Legislature to see as much as possible that innocent persons should not suffer on this account Of course it will be generally said against the Bill and it has been said that it will arm the Police with greater powers than they now possess; but the state of society is such now that whatever powers the police may possess--however great may be the power of the police—the police have not been able to bring to justice the criminals who have committed some of the most dastardly crimes in India, so that the police are powerless against a certain class of criminals, and it is really the intention of the Legislature to reach that class of criminals. My Hon'ble friend says that these crimes form a class by themselves; my Hon'ble friend says that these criminals form a class by themselves. If they do so what is necessary is that some power should be given to some authority in order to ferret them out of their hiding-places, bring them into the light of the law Courts and send them to the place where they ought to be in order that they may be removed from surroundings where they are dangerous to society at large. The Hon'ble mover of the Resolution has referred to certain remarks made by some Judges. Be sure that if this English law is introduced in this country, or I should say, translated into this country, we shall have no doubt the safety which the remarks of English Judges always have provided in the application of this law. The remarks that he quoted from certain Judges go no further than this, that very great care should be used in the application of this law, and those safeguards can only be secured in the law Courts in the careful sifting of evidence. In the construction of the substantive law those safeguards cannot be done away with by this Council. If this Council adopts the English law, the law will certainly be interpreted here as it has been interpreted always in England. I have no recollection at the present moment but I think it was a case decided in 1891—it was in one of the cases—a later decision—in which one English Court laid down a very learned interpretation of the law so as to safeguard the interests of persons who may be brought into the clutches of the law by malice, fraud, etc The only point of importance in this discussion is as to whether this Bill ought to go to the High Court for its opinion. If this Bill in its provisions were of such a character that they were quite novel, that they had no existence in any Code, that they were altogether unknown, certainly it would be very desirable that such a piece of legislation should go to the High Court for their opinion as to whether it would conflict with any existing law, or whether it would conflict with any known principles of law which have been recognised through ages to safeguard the interests and safety of the people The High Court cannot certainly be in a position to know the danger which this new development has created for society. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill who introduced it, and the Hon'ble gentleman who moved the amendment both agree that if there is a new development a new law is necessary If it is a new development it calls for a new law, and the High Court cannot be in a position to have any information as regards the new development—its nature, its extent, or to what extent it is a danger to society. Certainly of course it will be for the Select Committee to make such safeguards as shall prevent an abuse of the provisions of the Bill. I am sorry therefore on those grounds I cannot support the amendment."

[5TH MARCH, 1918.] [Mr. Madhu Sudan Das; Rai Sita Nath Roy Bahadur; Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar; the President; Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee; Sir Reginald Craddock.]

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy Bahadur :—"Sir, with your kind permission, I desire to make a few observations regarding the Bill before us I deplore—"

The Hon'ble Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar :—"Sir, may I call attention to your ruling that the amendment should be disposed of first, and that the principles of the Bill should be dealt with afterwards"

The President :—"Mr Vijiaraghavachariar has quite correctly interpreted my ruling. I have endeavoured to impress upon the Council that the subject-matter for discussion at present is the amendment moved by Mr. Surendranath Banerjee I found, however, that as everybody had prepared a speech on the Bill, it would entail nearly everybody in this Council being called to order the moment he got up to speak. My ruling was absolutely clear and I shall be very glad if Members will observe it If the Hon'ble Member proposes to speak on the main subject of the Bill itself, he should wait until the amendment has been dealt with and then make his speech"

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy Bahadur :—"I bow to your decision, Sir"

The Hon'ble Mr. Surendranath Banerjee :—"Am I entitled to a reply?"

The President :—"Yes"

Sir Reginald Craddock :—"Sir, with reference to your ruling, I propose to reserve any remarks I may have to make by way of reply on the general principle of the Bill until this amendment has been disposed of, and therefore I would like to safeguard myself if I give no answer at this moment to certain criticisms by the Hon'ble Member who moved the amendment. I reserve my right in that respect to reply at a later stage But for the present I will only confine my remarks to the question of urgency, it is the one on which the amendment is based. At present I am glad to find that there has been no support of this amendment, and therefore perhaps it is unnecessary for me to go into the matter at any great length, but as the Hon'ble gentleman who moved it has still to reply, I think I had better say what I have to say on the question of urgency and not rely too much on the fact that Hon'ble Members who have spoken have expressed already their support of the principle of the Bill and their unwillingness to agree to the amendment.

"Now the proposal (to postpone the consideration of the Bill) is not one that the Government can accept. It is in no sense a tentative measure. It is in no sense an experiment. It is merely a case of filling in an obvious gap in the criminal law for which there are the best precedents and the highest authority in the law upon which the Indian Penal Code is based. Now what can be gained by waiting a year? To begin with the High Courts are always very reluctant to express any opinion as to the administrative necessity of a measure They may, it is true, criticise the details of a draft, but on the administrative necessity they are almost invariably unwilling to express any opinion Now it seems scarcely likely that if we are to wait for a year which, if we accepted this amendment, would be the amount of delay entailed, that Local Governments and High Courts will tell us that crimes of this kind ought not to be punished The proposed law is really comprised in a single definition, and is based on the English law as expounded by English Judges. It is not a case therefore in which a great deal of circulation, discussion and opinion are necessary preliminaries What did Sir James FitzJames Stephen say?—'If you find a gap in your criminal law, stop it as soon as you find it, in a quiet time if possible, in troubled times if you must'

"Because our predecessors have not filled up this gap, are we to hesitate and wait a year when we are convinced that it ought to be filled up at once? It is not merely because of the dastardly outrage of the 23rd of December that the Government have put forward this Bill It is because the continued existence of the spirit, of which that outrage was the outward manifestation, is the surest indication to us that the matter is one that will not brook any delay. The spirit which plotted the many crimes committed in Bengal during the period of unrest, the spirit which planned the murder of Mr. Jackson at Nasik, of Mr Ashe in Tinnevelly, the spirit which inspired the murder of so many faithful servants of Government, and of those men who, through fear or penitence, gave information to the State,—that spirit is still alive in the land. It might certainly have been hoped that the generous reforms which were devised by Lord Minto and Lord Morley, that the gracious visit of His Majesty a little more than a year ago, would have exorcised this demon of anarchy. Even at that time of general peace and rejoicing that spirit of anarchy was not wholly subdued On the eve of the great Durbar a trusted servant of the Government lost his life by the pistol of the assassin After that there was a temporary lull, but it proved temporary. In May there was a dacoity committed by bands of young men in the Backergunge District In July two more dacoities of the same kind occurred in Backergunge and Dacca; in September Head constable Rati Lal Roy was shot in Dacca Shortly before the outrage at Delhi, there was discovered a recrudescence of conspiracy in Bengal, an instance of which the Hon'ble Mr Surendra Nath Banerji himself has given, in which a father found that his son was mixed up in these conspiracies and did his duty in giving information. On the 17th December the house of an informer at Midnapur was blown in by a bomb which was identical in composition with the bomb thrown at the Viceroy six days later. Three weeks after that a man suspected of having given information regarding conspirators was murdered in cold blood in the streets of Comilla. During the following weeks two more serious dacoities have been committed by organised bands in Dacca and Mymensingh Twelve young men are at present under arrest for having made preparations to commit a dacoity, but in their case the matter is still subjudice.

"Sir, when a spirit of this kind is still abroad are we to defer the passing of a measure simply for the purpose of a discussion which will be almost entirely academic? Are we to allow evil conspirators to pursue their dark designs with the knowledge that they can escape punishment so long as they can find tools whose connection with their conspiracies cannot be established, while we give them a year's grace and are merely discussing when the result of the discussion can already be foreseen?

"I would go further and I would say that it is in the highest interests of these young men and men like them that the promptest steps should be taken to check this form of crime How many of these young men have been led away by false advice and false adjurations to combine themselves for crime in the name of pseudo-patriotism, which brings ruin and shame to the young men themselves and to their families. Sir, had the lull which followed the Royal Visit proved to be a final subsidence of anarchy and anarchical crime then even the need for this legislation would not have been less, though it might have been less urgent. But, as it is, the urgency is plain to all who read the signs of the times and who desire the welfare of the State and of the country. The gap in the Penal Code was filled up as regards the State in the year 1870, and it remains for us to fill it up without delay in regard to society. Sir, I do not wish to revive any of the bitter memories of the time of unrest, but every Member of this Council must know full well that that was a time in which every kind of persecution, petty and grave, was launched against those who served the State honestly and declined to associate themselves in movements which had for their objects the coercion of individuals, and hostility towards the State and the authorities Such a time might at any time recur, and it is incumbent upon the Government to provide against such a recurrence without delay.

"It is undeniable, as I have already pointed out in my former speech, the first steps to crime may begin in petty persecutions of this kind; crimes may originate in the infliction of civil wrongs; and it is the duty of Government to take its measures promptly not only that the victims of these crimes, of these persecutions may be protected betimes, but that the persecutors themselves may be subjected to checks before they have time to take the further steps which will lead them into crime and shame and disaster

"Sir, as I have already said, there are other points upon which the Hon'ble Mr. Banerji criticised the principles of the Bill, and upon these I reserve my answer until the main motion comes up For the present, I trust that the Council will accept what I have said as to the urgency of this measure and the necessity of not delaying this matter for yet another year"

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee:—"I desire to repeat what I have already observed, viz., our sense of horror and detestation at the crimes to which the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has referred, and our eager desire to co-operate with the Government in all legitimate measures the Government may take for their suppression But our difficulty, at least my difficulty in the matter, is this that we do not think that a Bill like this is likely to reach the conspirators. Sir, you have tried measure after measure with a view to punish these conspirators, but you have not been wholly successful I do not admit that there has been no sensible improvement in the position. I think there has been, and I believe that if Mr. Morshead's last report on the Police Administration is carefully perused—there was an article on it in the 'Indian Empire' on Saturday last—it will be found that in that part of Bengal which suffered most from the excitement and the unrest, there has been a distinct and sensible improvement Improvement or no improvement, the position which I take up—and I believe it is the position shared by many of those who think with me—is that this is not the way to put down these unhappy developments What is needed, Sir, is more of detective ability in the police I fear, Sir, and the remark has been made elsewhere, that murder is one of the safest crimes to commit in Bengal I know of cases of murder—"

The President:—"The Hon'ble gentleman is discussing the merits of the Bill He will have an opportunity of doing that presently"

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee:—"Sir, I was just trying to point out that there was no need for the urgency which was referred to by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill My contention is that, as the situation has steadily improved, the question of urgency has disappeared, and I venture to submit that my remarks are perfectly relevant"

The President:—"The Hon'ble Member is not entitled to question my ruling. If his remarks had been relevant, I should not have called him to order."

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee:—"Very well, Sir. I submit, however, that as our Statute-book has been without any such law for such a length of time, it seems to me that a year's delay would not make any difference, especially in view of the steady improvement in the situation. Sir, I may refer the Hon'ble Member in charge to Mr Lovet Fraser's book on Lord Curzon In that book he discusses the question of anarchical developments here and elsewhere, and he says that when anarchy has taken a hold anywhere it stays there for sometime: it is got rid of slowly, step by step; its complete disappearance is not at once to be expected Therefore we must to some extent rely on the invisible forces of time, the invisible forces of public opinion, the social forces which are all operating with the Government, all operating with the loyal, the dutiful section of the community for the complete eradication of this evil which we all deplore. Therefore, Sir, I think no great harm would be done if six months' time were given for the circulation of the Bill and the High Courts were consulted thereon.

"I do not know whether I would be in order in referring to some of the observations made by my friend to my left and my friend behind."

The President:—"The speaker on the Hon'ble Member's left did speak on the main question, and I did not like to stop him for the very reason which I have already indicated; but I hope that the Hon'ble Member himself will do his best to support my ruling and reserve any observations which he has to make on the main question till such time as the main question comes up He will then have an opportunity of saying all he has to say."

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee:—"Very well' Sir."

The Council then divided and the result was as follows:—

Ayes—2.

The Hon'ble Mr. C Vijiaraghavachariar, the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee.

Noes—57.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, the Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson; the Hon'ble Sir Robert Carlyle; the Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler; the Hon'ble Mr Syed Ali Imam; the Hon'ble Mr Clark; the Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock; the Hon'ble Mr Hailey; the Hon'ble Sir T R Wynne; the Hon'ble Mr Meugens; the Hon'ble Mr Ghuznavi; the Hon'ble Raja of Mahumdabad; the Hon'ble Raja Kushalpal Singh; the Hon'ble Mr Saunders; the Hon'ble Sir Henry McMahon; the Hon'ble Mr Wheeler; the Hon'ble Mr Enthoven; the Hon'ble Mr. Sharp; the Hon'ble Mr Porter; the Hon'ble Sir E D Maclagan; the Hon'ble Mr. Gillan; the Hon'ble Major-General Birdwood; the Hon'ble Mr. Michael; the Hon'ble Surgeon-General Sir C P. Lukis; the Hon'ble Mr. Gordon; the Hon'ble Mr Maxwell; the Hon'ble Major Robertson; the Hon'ble Mr Kenrick; the Hon'ble Mr. Kesteven; the Hon'ble Mr. Kinney; the Hon'ble Sir Wm. Vincent; the Hon'ble Mr. Carr; the Hon'ble Mr. Sree P. Rama Rayaningar Venkataranga Bahadur; the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mir Asad Ali Khan; the Hon'ble Sir Ibrahim Rahimtoola; the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Rustomji Jehangirji; the Hon'ble Mr Fuzulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim; the Hon'ble Mr. Macpherson; the Hon'ble Raja Saiyid Abu Jafar of Pirpur; the Hon'ble Mr Maude; the Hon'ble Mr Madhu Sudan Das; the Hon'ble Maharaj Kumar Gopal Saran Narain Singh of Tikari; the Hon'ble Mr. Qumrul Huda, the Hon'ble Mr Arthur; the Hon'ble Major Brooke Blakeway; the Hon'ble Mr Jinnah; the Hon'ble Malik Umar Hayat Khan of Tiwana; the Hon'ble Raja Jai Chand of Lambagraon; the Hon'ble Sardar Daljit Singh of Jullundur; the Hon'ble Mr. Meredith; the Hon'ble Mr. Walker; the Hon'ble Rao Bahadur V. R Pandit; the Hon'ble Sir G. M Chitnavis; the Hon'ble Mr Arbuthnott; the Hon'ble Srijut Ghanasyam Barua; the Hon'ble Mr. Eales; the Hon'ble Maung Myé.

So the motion was rejected.

[5TH MARCH, 1913.] [The President; Mr. Jinnah.]

The President :—" It may be convenient for Members to know, in case they have not understood, that it is now open to any one to speak on the main question, either for or against the proposed Bill."

The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah :—" Sir, I want first of all to put it before the Council very clearly that nobody more readily would respond to the appeal that has come from the Hon'ble Home Member than I would; also I wish to express that nobody condemns in stronger terms the misdeeds of which a long list was given to us a few minutes ago by the Home Member I also wish to express that every attempt on the part of my countrymen to undermine the authority of Government and to disturb the law and order in my opinion deserves the strongest condemnation and the highest punishment Those men who have a desire to undermine the authority of the Government; those men who have a desire to disturb law and order, are in my opinion the biggest enemies of my country and my people They are to-day doing the greatest harm to the cause of India Sir, why is this measure brought before this Council to-day? It is brought because of the doings of some of my countrymen Repressive measures that have been brought in in this Council have been brought because of the misdeeds of some of our countrymen. I remember, Sir, in 1910, when the Press Bill was introduced at Calcutta, much as we felt that a severe blow was going to be dealt at the liberty of the Press, much as we felt that our most prized liberty, namely the liberty of the Press, was going to be curtailed, our hands were tied, our mouths were closed by the misdeeds of some of the misguided men who belong to our country, and we almost as a body, non-official Members, realised and felt that the Government were bound to take certain measures to maintain order and law and reluctant as we were we felt that, although we were losing what we prized most, namely the liberty of the Press to a certain extent, we not only supported it, but we supported it with every power that was in our possession.

"Sir, I believe in criticising Government I believe in criticising Government freely and frankly, but at the same time I think that it is the duty of every educated man to support and help the Government when the Government is right On this occasion I feel that having regard to the history of political crimes, my hands are tied, my mouth is closed, and my countrymen, who are responsible for these deeds are responsible to-day for my position, which I occupy in this Council at this moment Let those men who still have these misguided ideas, let those men who have these hallucinations realise that by anarchism, by dastardly crimes, they cannot bring about good government, let them yet realise that those methods have not succeeded in any country in the world, and are not likely to succeed in India Let those men yet realise before it is too late, and before they bring their country into a position which may be most regretted by every patriot who feels for and loves his motherland: let them yet realise that those are not the methods Sir, if I may say so, I represent a class, an educated class and Young India in this country Representing the modern India and the young educated class in this country, I feel that I am expressing their sentiments on this occasion, and I feel that there is a large body of men who feel exactly as I am feeling to-day The Hon'ble the Home Member said, we have got cause, we have considered our position, and we ask the Council to take us on trust, and support Government Having regard to the position that I have described, I have no alternative, Sir, but to take the Government on trust on this occasion. I therefore think, Sir, that so far as the principle of this Bill is concerned, I am not in a position to resist it With regard to the merits of this Bill, I wish, Sir, to make certain observations This Bill, as the Hon'ble Home Member said, is nothing but the English law I beg to take the opportunity of pointing out to the Hon'ble Member few things especially for him to consider, and I have no doubt that in Select Committee the members who will be on the Select Committee will consider the few suggestions that I wish to make to-day. I shall not be here any more in this Council, therefore I shall not be able to take any part in the various stages through which this Bill will go: and therefore I draw the most earnest attention of the Hon'ble the Home Member and the members who are on the Select Committee to consider those suggestions that I shall make. The first suggestion that I wish to make, and which is an obvious error, that occurs often. It is made, not only in this case, but speaking from experience, in several cases when you come to enact a Statute following or copying English Statute or law which is distributed in and covered by different Statutes or branches of law. You have to be most careful when you are copying English law as you propose to do in the present case. Sometimes you come to enact a Statute and you are dealing with substantive law, but along with the substantive law you have the law of procedure or evidence, and while you are rectifying and amending or enacting the substantive law, you lose sight of the law of procedure or evidence, and when it comes to be worked actually in a Court of law, there is almost an impasse, and the result is almost startling. A very recent case from that point of view arose in Bombay with regard to the Indian Companies Law that will perhaps interest the Hon'ble Member in charge of the commercial portfolio. It was with regard to the position of the secured creditor, whether he should be allowed to prove for the full amount of his claim or debt or not. The English Companies Act of 1862 was enacted and afterwards there came the Judicature Act of 1875, which altered the position of the secured creditor. But when we came to enact our law of 1866, the Indian Companies Act, we took it bodily from the English Act, having lost sight of the Judicature Act of 1875 and when we came to amend it in 1882, we were still asleep, having lost sight of the Judicature Act of 1875 again, and we only woke up when the present Bill which is pending came up before the Council the other day, and that was because when the English consolidated Act came into force in 1908, the section in the Judicature Act was incorporated in substance in the English Act. Therefore, Sir, with regard to this Bill now, I point out the provisions embodied in section 10 of the Indian Evidence Act which have most important bearings on the Bill under discussion.

"The substantive law is laid down in clause 120 A. That any agreement between two or more persons to do or cause to be done an illegal act, that agreement per se is a conspiracy; or an act which is not illegal, but by illegal means such an agreement is designated a criminal conspiracy. When you come to consider the rule of evidence in India, section 10 of the Evidence Act is a most important section to bear in mind, because in the English law of evidence as laid down, you will find it different. It lays down clearly that no evidence is admissible to prove the offence against the accused, unless some act, omission or declaration, something done or written by one or other of the conspirators was done in furtherance of the common object or purpose, viz., 'conspiracy' 'In furtherance'—those are the words to which I wish to draw the attention of the Hon'ble Member; whereas in the Indian Evidence Act you will find that the words are 'in reference' instead of 'in furtherance.' Now, clearly you are changing the substantive law in India and bringing it into line with the English law. But it will leave the Indian law of evidence untouched, and I submit it will lead to very great hardship and danger. Remember, that when you are enacting a penal Statute your object is to arrest the evil—your object is to punish the guilty. But, Sir, legislating as we are doing in this Council for 300 million of people, you must not forget your responsibility to the innocent and the law-abiding subjects of His Majesty. Such cases have the greatest claim to your consideration. Therefore I say, while you are bringing this law into line with the English law, follow it strictly in all its bearings. I will only refer to that section 10 just to show that—it says this:

'Where there is reasonable ground to believe that two or more persons have conspired together to commit offences, etc., anything said, done or written by any one of such persons in reference to their common intention at the time when such intention was first entertained by any one of them is a relevant fact as against each of the persons believed to be so conspiring as well for the purpose of proving the existence of the conspiracy, as for the purpose of showing that any such person was a party to it.'

"The Hon'ble the Home Member has pointed out, and very rightly pointed out, conspiracy in India per se is not an offence except under section 121 A, and therefore unless something was done in furtherance of the common intention it was not an offence. But this Bill now goes much further. Now, Sir, the English law of evidence in cases of conspiracy to which I would like to draw the attention of the Hon'ble Member is laid down in Taylor on Evidence. I give a reference to paragraphs 590, 591, and 593 There you will find,—I do not wish to weary the Council because really this is a highly technical subject, and I daresay it is not very interesting to most of you here; but I only wish to draw the attention of the Hon'ble Member that there he will find very clearly laid down that any act, omission or declaration or something said, done or written by one of the conspirators, before it can be admitted as evidence against the accused conspirator it must be in furtherance of the conspiracy Then there is another point to which I wish to draw the attention of the Hon'ble Member. It is this: the explanation to clause 120-A of the Bill seems to me to go much beyond the English law, and is likely to create mischief when you come to interpret that clause I entirely agree with the Hon'ble Member that without this explanation the law as reproduced in clause 120-A is substantially the English law; but the explanation in my opinion goes a little further, and it might and will, I think, create the greatest mischief if left as it stands now, and I am of opinion that this explanation should be dropped Then the third point is with regard to how the prosecution should be launched Remember, if you pass this Bill you are really making conspiracy an offence, although it may not be an offence against the Government, the State or the King, in the sense, namely, of undermining Government or the authority of Government, and therefore you are going much beyond those offences which are known as offences against the State or Government. A criminal breach of trust or theft and many other offences are covered by this Bill If A and B agree to commit a theft in the house of X, the moment they agree to do that and nothing more by way of overt act, and if you can prove they agreed, then simply because there happen to be two or more persons who agreed to that effect is conspiracy and an offence and they are certainly punishable by this Bill Therefore you are going far beyond your purpose, which is to punish offences against the State or Government. I take it that the main object of this Bill is really to reach those cases which are strictly speaking offences against the State, and the Act ought to be restricted to those offences You will find the practice in England in such cases laid down in Halsbury's Laws of England I am reading from the 'Laws of England,' Volume X, page 292, paragraph 602, which says it is the duty of the Attorney-General to institute prosecutions for crimes which have a tendency to disturb the peace of the State or to endanger Government Therefore the prosecution is really instituted in England by the Attorney-General and not by any private or irresponsible person Therefore I earnestly draw the attention of the Government to this point, Sir, that when you are undertaking a prosecution of an offence which is directed against the State or the Government, it must have the previous sanction of a responsible body before such a case can be launched against any citizen; and in my opinion either it must be done with the previous sanction of the Advocate-General or with the previous sanction of the Local Government or the Government of India, and not otherwise.

"Therefore I say that this safeguard is absolutely necessary. The main object of this Statute as I said before is to deal with offences against the State. When you are dealing with a Bill of this character I submit, Sir, that two or more persons is much too small a number It cannot be a conspiracy of any importance in which there are only two persons connected You will generally find in conspiracies that are of any really serious character there are more than two persons, and therefore I say the number of two is much too small and is likely to cause mischief in practice You have got the definition of an 'unlawful assembly', and there you find mention of five or more persons. Therefore I say that you should increase the number to five or more persons I think you will find that in the case of certain serious offences in England a conspiracy of three or more persons is referred to. Here it ought to be at least five or more persons and not only two. These are the suggestions I would make, namely section 10 of the Evidence Act to be considered, then you have the explanation to clause 120 A, then you have the manner of prosecution. It should not be allowed unless it has the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, or the Advocate-General. Then I say that the number should be five or more persons and not as it stands now at two.

"With these remarks, Sir, I will again say that this is a very serious moment—a moment at which I do not think it would be right for us to in any way embarrass the Government, but there is one thing which I wish to say that just as there are in India certain people who are responsible for a great deal of mischief so you have certain people who claim to be supporters of or belong to the rank and file of Government who are also responsible for a grat deal of mischief I wish to draw attention to what I read in a newspaper the other day, and that is an extract from the London 'Times,' a paper that calls itself the leading paper in Europe The heading is 'Congress Party and Sedition' 'drastic proposals offered' I will read an extract and the Council will allow me to ask how a paper of this standing, a paper of this character should allow an article so ill-considered or so ill-advised and calculated to hurt the feelings of many of us in India who I assure you, Sir, are as anxious to maintain the authority of the Government of India and are as anxious to maintain law and order as any Member of the Government present here The article is levelled against those stalwart men, those patriots who head the Congress and have been serving their country I say, Sir, that I am proud that I belong to the Congress party That such an article should be written with these insinuations and these aspersions is likely to cause as much mischief as any thing that I can think of. The article runs as follows:—

CONGRESS PARTY AND SEDITION

DRASTIC PROPOSAL OFFERED.

Strong comments on "Times" Article

'A London cablegram says:—An article in the March number of the Round Table on the Delhi outrage, argues that 'as the Nationalist leaders' opposition to the Government influences the extremists in the direction of political crimes, the leaders themselves must seek out the sources of conspiracy and prevent their further activity, otherwise the Government may be compelled to say that if political murders recur all representative institutions must be suspended'

'The Times says:—'The threat of suspension is obviously impossible It would not be fair to ask the constitutional politicians of India to join in a hunt for the criminals but it is reasonable to tell them that they cannot for ever evade responsibility, if by opposition they even unconsciously foment disorder, which finds expression in crime They must either modify their attitude or do something more than express pious horror when outrages occur By precept and active influence they must set themselves to create a strong feeling of antagonism to conspiracy and must inculcate the duty of helping the Government to detect the offenders. Should they continue to fail in these responsibilities, the verdict must go against them, and anyhow it may be safely said that there can be no further extension of political reform in India while anarchism remains unextirpated'

"The Times adds:—We are not satisfied that the duty of repressing crime in India is at present efficiently performed, though whether the fault lies chiefly with India or England is open to question The fact that India is only now bringing its law of political conspiracy into line with Britain, shows that the element of precaution has been lacking. Much more might have been done if the police had been better supported [illegible] attacks, if criminals had been caught red-handed and received swift and sharp punishment, if the scandals of interminable political trials had been summarily rectified, and if foolish and mistaken clemency had been less frequent"

"Now, Sir, the threat is held out to us that we must find out the culprit If we do not find out the culprit our political institutions must be suspended."

The President:—"I am very loth to interrupt the Hon'ble Member but he has quoted a document which is not a Government document, and one which in no way pledges the Government or the policy of the Government."

The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah:—"Yes, Sir, I know that, but I only wish to point out that there is this kind of mischief going on. My appeal to Government is this—I want the Government to take and give expression to this view, that just as you wish us to co-operate with you, just as you expect us to stand by you, in the same way you must stand by us and condemn those who are creating this mischief Just as you condemn those among us who are guilty of misdeeds, just as you expect us to join and co-operate with you in condemning our own men who are guilty of misdeeds so you must condemn your men who are also guilty of misdeeds That is a point which I wish to make clear and that is the reason why I am drawing the attention of the Council to the writings of what is known as the leading journal in England. With these remarks I have no alternative but to support the principle of the Bill and I trust it will emerge from the Select Committee in a manner that it will not go beyond the English law, and that the safeguards I have indicated will be provided for."

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy :—"Sir, with your kind permission I desire to make a few observations regarding the Bill before us.

"I deplore that it should have been found necessary to so widely extend the scope of original conspiracy, and it is indeed very unfortunate that occasions should have arisen to make the mere agreement between two or more persons to commit an offence, however trivial, though it may not be followed by an overt act or to do an act though not illegal by itself by illegal means indictable But however we might have on occasions other than this differed from the principles of the Bill, however much we may deplore the occasions which have brought forth this Bill, we are bound to bend our will to the exigencies of the situation and to humbly bow to the decision of the Government. In view of the detestable, dastardly and extremely deplorable outrage on the person of His Imperial Majesty's Viceregent who has done so much to conciliate and humour all classes of people and who has been so indulgent even to the anarchists themselves

"In view of the numerous other heinous crimes hitherto committed and in view more particularly of the numerous political dacoities already committed and which are still being committed almost every week in different parts of Eastern Bengal, from which I have the honour to come, and in view of the desirability of arming Government with plenary powers for effectively stamping out these heinous and despicable crimes, we, as loyal subjects, are bound to give our humble support to the Bill But, before concluding, I beg leave, with your kind permission, to make a suggestion which I trust and hope may be acceptable to the Government My suggestion is that it may be found possible to limit the scope of the proposed amendment to all State offences, as defined in Chapter V of the Indian Penal Code or at least to such offences as are exclusively triable by a Court of Sessions; and I particularly pray that the operation of this Bill when it is passed into an Act may be to limit the operation of the Act to three years in order to allow Government an opportunity of judging how the Act works With these few words I beg to support the Bill But, at the same time, I find that there is not one Indian lawyer included in the Select Committee. The suggestions made by the Hon'ble Mr Jinnah are indeed very reasonable, especially the one regarding the mere agreement between two or more persons which should make them liable to punishment. It should be, as suggested by him, that, in order to complete the conspiracy, it must be a conspiracy of four or five persons, as defined in the Indian Penal Code in the case of unlawful assembly. I also beg to suggest that the offence of conspiracy should not be launched without sanction from the Government I therefore wish that an Indian lawyer, a non-official Indian lawyer, should be included in the Select Committee"

The Hon'ble Mr C. Vijiaraghavachariar :—"Sir, I beg leave to make a few remarks on the principles embodied in the Bill before us. Short as it is, I think this Bill is a most important measure. It is a substantial addition to the Indian Penal Code and it fundamentally modifies its principles. A very competent critic, Sir James Stephen, has pronounced the Indian Penal Code as the most remarkable and as the most enduring monument of Lord Macaulay's works. Then having regard to the very careful examination and revision of the draft Code by Sir Barnes Peacock in its final stages in the

[Mr. C. Vijiaraghavachariar] [5TH MARCH, 1913.]

Council of the Governor General, he says "It is an ideal Code drawn by a Bacon and settled by a Coke" It is this ideal Code which the Hon'ble the Home Member proposes to alter. It has stood the test of 50 years and has been the admiration of the civilised world and its provisions have been copied more or less in several countries. It has thus become a venerable institute. I am entitled to ask for some reason stronger and more convincing than a mere statement that Government has information which justifies it in starting this measure and starting it so suddenly. I do not deny the soundness of the ex parte judgment formed by Government, but having regard to the fact that we have no access to the materials on which that judgment rests, I am entitled to raise the question whether this subjective necessity is really identical with the objective necessity of the situation I do not merely complain that the public has not been taken by Government into its confidence before it has found it necessary to start this piece of highly dangerous legislation But I beg leave to state there is absolutely no evidence disclosed to us that would justify the remarks made in the Council to-day connecting the measure before us with the dastardly outrage that took place here on the 23rd December last The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has not stated anything to-day to warrant such remarks I beg to decline to associate myself with these views so easily put forward In dealing with this measure, therefore I would deprecate any allusion to this most deplorable incident If it was only possible for the country to have foreseen it, millions and millions of people would have sacrificed themselves, if that was necessary to avert that outrage But I repeat my question and ask what connection is there between this Bill and outrage? Let us take this test Let us suppose that this law had been originally embodied in the Indian Penal Code Would the Hon'ble the Home Member go so far as to say that the present political situation would have been saved? Would he say, would any Hon'ble Member rise and say that if Lord Macaulay had not omitted this, Bengal and India would have been saved from anarchism and outrages; That is a fair way of putting the question. I think I believe that it is futile to entertain a sanguine hope of getting rid of anarchism, if it still prevails in this country, by adding more and more to its repressive laws I submit that such a policy is the outcome of lack of imagination, and if it is permissible for me to say so, is not consistent with high statesmanship

I shall now proceed to a very superficial examination of the provisions of this Bill I would only draw attention of the Hon'ble Members to two or three points The Hon'ble the Home Member has rightly emphasised the necessity for a clear comprehension of the provisions of the Bill. I will try. Firstly it is claimed that the measure before us has been entirely borrowed from the Common Law of England. We all know what the Common Law of England is. It is distinguished from the Statute Law being a creature of Parliament It is a mixture of Celtic and Anglo-Saxon customs moulded by Norman lawyers, not very sympathetic always, and developed subsequently by English Judges often driving a Coach and four through the ancient customs in order to adapt them to the varying conditions of society from time to time: It is exceedingly doubtful whether conspiracies in England were merely Civil injuries or Criminal offences as well before the time of the Star Chamber But certain it is that it was under the auspices of the Star Chamber that this branch of the Common Law of England was formally established as a substantive Criminal Law From that time forward it began to be extended in various directions and Sir James Stephen says that it became, henceforth, a new head of law capable of indefinite extension I am quoting without the book.

The conspiracy branch of the English Common Law has not yet been codified. Several attempts were made from time to time to codify the criminal branch of the Common Law and several commissions were appointed for the purpose An observation made by one such commission is very interesting It is to the effect that the criminal branch of the Common Law is so defective a system that it can be reformed only by being entirely taken to pieces and a new system reconstructed out of the materials thereof. This observation occurs in a letter of the commission addressed to Lord John Russel. The Macaulay commission approved of this observation Now it is this common law a portion of which we are called upon to borrow and to codify It is the characteristic of the common law of England that there are no uniform and authoritative definitions of the offences dealt with by it Criminal conspiracy in England is usually defined as a combination and agreement of two or more persons to do an unlawful act by unlawful means. Again the word "lawful" has not been precisely defined. Sir James Stephen says that the word implies immorality coupled with injury to the public The Bill avoids the use of the word "unlawful" and substitutes the word "illegal" And this word "illegal" is defined in the Indian Penal Code and comprehends three things as the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has rightly pointed out. An illegal act is either an offence, or an act forbidden by law or an act which can be made the basis for a civil action It is thus clear that an unlawful act and an illegal act are not always synonimous and identical What is unlawful may not be always illegal, and what is illegal may not be always unlawful I believe therefore that the similarity between the English Law and the proposed law is not as great and complete as it is claimed on behalf of the measure before us. I submit that on the whole the proposed law is much more comprehensive than the the corresponding English law While the latter is very flexible, our measure proposes a very rigid law I am not sure that a combination and an agreement to commit civil injuries is invariably an indictable offence under the common law Lord Ellenborough declined to consider that an agreement to commit a civil trespass is an indictable conspiracy The Bill before us might well have added a few cases by way of illustrations I beg permission to illustrate the law before us by one or two hypothetical cases Suppose the Hon'ble the Home Member and I – I hope the Hon'ble Member will not resent this illustration – walk along the road and see a ruffian about to insult a lady not far away from us; next suppose that I propose to run and knock the fellow down and to protect the lady; I take it that the Hon'ble Member would easily agree that my proposal is right and proper But to knock down that ruffian under the circumstances would be an illegal act, because while our law gives the right of private defence as against offences relating to property and affecting the body, there is no right of private defence conferred by our Law, by the exercise of which one could protect the lady against the rude insult But instead of insulting her, if the fellow threatens to pick her pocket and rob her, our law allows that we can go and knock him down. If, in spite of our law the Hon'ble Member and I run to protect the lady, we certainly commit an offence under the law. But this act on our part would not, I submit, be unlawful but it would certainly be illegal, because the act would be an offence under the proposed law as the agreement to run and protect the lady would be an offence We need not actually run and protect the lady As no overtact is necessary in such a case, the mere agreement to protect is an offence, punishable with six months' imprisonment under the coming law This is illustration No 1 Next let us suppose that the Hon'ble Member and myself were on our way to attend a meeting of this Council, and that if we take the usual road we find we shall be late So to be here in time we agree to take a short cut across a private man's field, and we propose to jump over the hedges, and we do so, and reach the Council meeting in time This won't be an offence under the common law of England, but it would be an offence under the coming law in this country, for our action in jumping over the fences and walking across the field of a private owner though not an offence is certainly a civil trespass and the owner can maintain an action against us for damages An agreement to do this illegal act would thus be an offence, if the Council passes this measure into law It is not even necessary to convert the agreement into an offence that we should actually jump over the hedges and cross the fields If we both run some distance towards the hedge of the field it would be enough, for such running with the intention to cross the field is an overt act which is all that the new law demands to make the agreement penal I do not think that I need multiply illustrations These two illustrations clearly show how much more comprehensive and far-reaching is the proposed law than the Common Law of England.

[5TH MARCH, 1913.] [Mr. C. Vijiaraghavachariar.]

[Mr. C Vijiaraghavachariar.] [5TH MARCH, 1913.]

The Hon'ble the Home Member makes a point of the fact that the Indian Penal Code omitted to include the conspiracy law when it was first enacted 50 years ago, and says that he in vain looked into the ancient records and papers to find out how the omission occurred And he is of opinion that the omission was accidental and not intentional I am sorry to be obliged to contradict the Hon'ble the Home Member and I do so without the book and subject to subsequent verification The omission was clearly intentional and avowed. As well as I can now remember there is passage some where in the report or notes of the Macaulay Commission, but which we can easily detect to be in the language of Lord Macaulay In that passage Lord Macaulay makes a clear distinction between political offences and the other offences for the purpose of making mere conspiracies penal offences Almost all the other offences are based upon this principle, namely that mere criminal intention and preparations do not constitute any penal offence until they reach the stage of an attempt to commit the intended offence The Macaulay Commission while recognising the soundness of this principle, makes an exception in the case of political offences The commission say that in the case of a man committing offences other than political, his danger begins the moment he commits the crime successfully while in the case of a rebel or any one committing a formidable State crime his immunity is always almost secured from the moment of his success; hence Lord Macaulay says that in the case of State crimes he has made mere designs, consultations and preparations not matured into attempts, offences under the Penal Code The principle clearly is that in State crimes both policy and necessity demand that the intending criminal should be secured by law long before he completes the plan enabling him to commit the offences successfully It is thus clear that the omission from the Indian Penal Code of any provision as to conspiracies in the preparatory stage, except when those conspiracies were formed in view to commit State offences, was intentional, well considered, and not accidental, as the Hon'ble the Home Member would make us believe. The Penal Code was most carefully prepared It was 25 years in the making It was begun in 1835 and passed in 1860 The draft code prepared by the Macaulay Commission was subjected to the scrutiny of another Commission Before it was introduced in the Legislative Council constituted under the Act of 1853 it was referred to a Select Committee of the Council After it was read as 1st time and a 2nd time in the Council it was again referred to another Select Committee, and the Select Committee's report was considered by the whole Council resolving itself into a Committee and the deliberations lasted many days I call special attention of the Hon'ble Members to the fact that during all the time the outrages of 1857 were going on, the draft Penal Code was in the hands of the Select Committee of the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations The further and entire consideration of the whole Code was after the mutiny during a period of two or three years and it was finally passed in 1860. The Government thus had an immense and even a provoking opportunity to embody in the Indian Penal Code the law now proposed for our adoption or any portion of it The successor of Lord Macaulay, at this time was Sir Barnes Peacock, the distinguished Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Calcutta And it cannot be pretended that Sir Barnes Peacock was ignorant of the Conspiracy Branch of English Common Law Besides, be it remembered that in those days it was the Criminal Law of England that was administered in the Presidency towns Thus in these circumstances to say that Lord Macaulay and Sir Barnes Peacock were ignorant of the nature of the Conspiracy Law of England and hence did not consider whether it ought to be imported into the Indian law or not, is too great a demand upon our credulity The next important stage in the history of the penal legislation of India was in the seventies, when Sir James Stephen was the Law Member Then certain important amendments were added to the Indian Penal Code Of the portions thus added was 121 (A) of the Indian Penal Code. We all know that this section embodies the law as to conspiracy to commit certain State offences Sir James Stephen says in his speech that he was personally responsible for the introduction of this section. And we all know that Sir James Stephen is the author of several standard works and a great authority on the English Criminal Law. Besides, he gave important reasons for introducing the provisions of this section 121 (A) and among the reasons he especially alluded to the serious conspiracies which led to the Indian Mutiny of 1857, and to the Wahabi conspiracies that had been recently formed in several villages owing to the preaching of jehads. Sir James stated with very much warmth that it required no arguments to justify the extension of the conspiracy law as embodied in the provisions of section 121(A) in the light of the serious conspiracies on these two occasions Could it be seriously maintained that Sir James Stephen did not consider on this occasion the desirability of introducing in the Penal Code the remaining portion of the conspiracy law of England ? It is thus conclusively clear that the authors of the Indian Penal Code and the Government and the legislature have hither to intentionally omitted the introduction into the system of criminal law of this country the whole of the English Law of Conspiracy, and they must have had excellent reasons for the omission, seeing that the framing and perfecting of the Indian Penal Code and its further amendment covered a period of exceptionally serious conspiracies. I am unable to accept the statement that the conditions to-day are different from and worse than the conditions in 1857 and 1870.

" I would trouble Hon'ble Members in calling attention to one more point To meet the present conditions special provisions have been enacted and made during the past six or seven years and made permanent part of the Indian. Statute Book And I have not heard one word of explanation as to the effect of the working of these enactments upon the dangerous conspiracies and modern conditions, alleged to exist. It would have been more satisfactory if the Hon'ble the Home Member had told us how the existing law in all its various forms has been unable to reach the particular persons and the particular forms of crime he has in view in asking for the enactment of this measure. Some days ago I requested the Hon'ble the Secretary to the Council to furnish me with information touching this legislation I asked for information touching the subject of dangerous conspiracies and modern conditions mentioned in the statement of Objects and Reasons It has not been found possible as yet to furnish the information to me, and I have not even had the benefit of a reply In all these circumstances I desire to state that unless a strong case is made out, that a Law like this would really help the Government in putting down fresh crimes, I submit that the proposed measure is not merely inexpedient but worse than useless

" So far as the deplorable Delhi outrage is concerned I venture to submit that, far from accentuating the present political situation it has tended greatly to improve it. If it is ever true that God in his inscrutable providence hides a smile behind a frown, it is specially true in the present instance. Many a prince and many a president of republics who came to violent ends or who are threatened with violent ends might, if that be possible, well have envied the misfortune that befell Lord Hardinge. By his calm and courageous suffering as well as by his adherence to his benevolent policy in ruling over the country, he has done an enormous service to our Sovereign and the country, but which he is not conscious of He has thereby evoked a degree of loyalty in India which has not been, I fear, thoroughly comprehended and appreciated, and that loyalty continues to grow in volume and intensity. I protest therefore emphatically against any attempt, however faint, at connecting this measure, repressive and far-reaching in consequences, with the outrage. The outrage itself is still under investigation How far the investigation has progressed, whether any reliable clue towards finding out the culprits has been obtained, and whether all the circumstances connected with the actual commission of the offence have been traced, are all kept and very rightly kept still a secret. The Government is not in a position to disclose what is the degree of certainty reached in the course of the investigation, still pending, as regards the origin and development of the plot which culminated in the deplorable outrage even though the culprits themselves may not be reached While therefore I desire to deprecate any attempt to connect his measure with the Delhi outrage on the one hand, I venture to submit, on the other hand, that the introduction of this legislation is most inopportune. It is calculated to prejudicially affect the fast and further growth of national loyalty. There are one or two minor points on which I need not dwell particularly. The Bill, as it is, is capable of improvement in the drafting and in the provisions The punishment provided for the new offence is the same as the punishment provided for the abetment of the principal offence. This is not clear to me. There are two sets of punishments provided for the abetment of an offence. Successful abetments are more severely punished than unsuccessful abetments I do not understand therefore which punishment is intended for a conspiracy to commit the offence under the Bill I surely do not believe that the intention of Government is to wait and see whether any crime flows from the conspiracy and then award suitable punishment. There is also the question of sanctions for the prosecution of the new offences I shall be told that all these points will be attended to during the further progress of the Bill in the Select Committee and in the Council. Perhaps, these defects and reservations are intentional, for I am aware that side by side with the reforms of the Legislative Councils a strategic policy has been developed by the Secretariat. Now every Government measure, and every controversial measure specially, is composed of two parts, the kernel and the shell. The kernel is what the Government wants and it is enclosed in a shell for the Non-official Members to bite and to scrape and do what else they can with it This is a process in which the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill very often co-operates. He often thanks us, Non-official Members, very warmly for our assistance in pointing out the defects and retires, after accepting our amendments as to these defects, I do not say with mock humility but with dramatic humility. In the measure before us, there is the usual kernel and shell well combined I am pretty sure the shell will be allowed to be knocked out. The question is what should be our attitude as regards the kernel which the Government ultimately desires to have out of this Bill And that kernel is that an agreement to commit any one of the three sets of the acts is an offence; and these three sets of acts are: all acts amounting to an offence under the existing criminal law of the land whether it be the Indian Penal Code or any special or local law; secondly, all acts prohibited by law; and, thirdly, all acts which would furnish matter for basing civil actions upon It will thus be seen the proposed law takes us a long way beyond the existing English conspiracy law. I am sorry, I am compelled by every consideration to oppose it. If the Bill confines itself to conspiracies to commit offences of a political nature, that would have been a different matter. But as it is, it will place innumerable people in the country in the hands of the police and informers, and it would be sorry consolation to be told, as we are told now and then, that those who inflict the suffering upon us would be our countrymen, too. We must not forget that the administration of this law will be in the hands of a machinery which is absolutely imperfect and greatly unreliable when compared with the machinery existing in England for the administration of criminal justice. While thus the machinery and the safeguards for securing the liberty of the subjects is different and inadequate when compared with the corresponding administrative agency in England, it is of no use to say that the proposed law is similar to the law in England, which, by the way, is not quite accurate. Again this similarity argument should not be carried too far. Will the Hon'ble the Home Member and the Government of India think of recommending for introduction into England some of our laws such as the Deportation Law, the Punitive Police Law, the Seditious Meetings Law, and the Press Law? The Parliament that would attempt to enact any such law would be the last parliament in England. The talk about equality between Englishmen and Indians in relation to criminal law is somewhat novel and startling. For the purpose of knocking us down we are told that we are simply equal to Englishmen, but when we cry for anything like equal privileges we are reminded that the conditions in India are totally different from the conditions in England. We ask you to let us enter the Civil Service from India, from Bombay. You say "no." You say that such few of us as are able may enter in viâ London. London is the political purgatory for an Indian to enter into the heaven of the Indian Civil Service. And when these pilgrims return to India, some of whom equipped with political indulgences for entering the Civil Service, returning viâ Paris it may be, some germs perchance travel into India in their wake, and if these germs germinate and produce novel and dangerous conditions here and there, now and then, Government in revenge for its own sins accumulates repressive laws and subjects the teeming millions to those laws. I respectfully beg to enter my humble but firm protest against this kind of profession of equality between Indians and Englishmen. The vaunted equality begins at the wrong end You would not only not let us into the Civil Service but you would not let us enter the army or navy either, in defence of the country and the Empire"

Sir A. McMahon:—"Sir, I rise to a point of order. Is the Hon'ble Member in order in dealing with these points?"

The President:—"I can quite understand that at first sight the Hon'ble Member may appear to be travelling outside the question, but I think what the Hon'ble Member is endeavouring to show is that the argument in regard to this particular Bill is not used in other cases and that therefore it should not be used as an argument in regard to this particular Bill, and taking that view I do not think I can move the Hon'ble Member out of order."

The Hon'ble Mr. C. Vijiaraghavachariar:—"Thank you, Sir, you have stated the object of my remarks clearly. While the Bill professes to deal with special and emergent conditions, the provisions are intended as a permanent addition to the Indian Penal Code This is not a short special measure devised to meet a particular political situation and to be of a temporary nature. On the other hand, it is not only to be permanent but of so wide and comprehensive a scope that it is impossible to conceive that it is the outcome of a simple desire to meet the special present political situation Sir, having regard to all the circumstances I have urged above, I venture to submit that the measure before us is at once most dangerous and most inopportune."

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee:—"Sir, I feel tempted for a moment to analyse the sort of support which has been accorded to the principle of the Bill Sir, what is the principle of the Bill? The principle of the Bill, so far as I have been able to make out, is an addition to the permanent law of the land in respect of the offence of conspiracy which further is to include all crimes whether against individuals or the State Now what is the sort of support that this principle has received at the hands of those Members who have supported the Bill? My friend on the left says that the Act ought to be a temporary measure. My friend, Mr Sita Nath Roy, says the same thing My friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah, says that the scope of the Bill ought to be restricted, and that it ought to be confined only to State offences. Therefore, Sir, we have got these three distinct positions in the matter of the support of the Bill. The Hon'ble the Home Member wants it to be a permanent part of the Statute of the land The supporters want it to be provisional. The Hon'ble the Home Member wants the law of conspiracy to affect all offences The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah wants it to be confined only to State trials, and further, according to him when any trial is to be started under this law, the sanction of Government, as in State trials, must be obtained. Therefore if you analyse the measure of support that has been accorded to the Bill, it seems to me to dwindle into proportions which reduce it to the vanishing point. The arguments which we have urged against the Bill and the principles of the Bill remain unanswered, and to me they seem unassailable, and therefore once again, Sir, I desire to record my protest against the principle of the Bill."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kenrick:—"Sir, we have listened with interest, and possibly with some amazement, to those who oppose this Bill. After the statement of principles and objects of the Bill by the Hon'ble the Member in charge, it is difficult to understand how any one who sincerely desires to serve the interests of order can find any argument against this measure. Personally, I have listened with care, but I confess without success, to discover any objection raised which might prove unanswerable.

Such objections as have emerged from the lips of the various speakers who have opposed the Bill I will endeavour to face and to answer. Of course it is obvious that this measure certainly demands full and careful consideration, calm discussion, and I will add plain speaking I would therefore ask the Council to consider with me calmly and if possible, judicially, the facts justifying the Bill, the principles underlying the proposed legislation, and, lastly, whether there is any real substance in any of the objections raised by the opponents of the measure Now, in a word, the justification of this measure is the absence of the English law of conspiracy from the Indian Penal Code. On the one hand, its absence has been found to be a defect in coping with organized crime of a serious character in this country. On the other hand, the common law of conspiracy in England has been proved by actual experience of more than two centuries to be of the utmost value and benefit to the State and to the public; for I would ask you to recollect that the interests of the Government and of the people are coincident in the prosecution and suppression of crime.

"Now whether, as seems probable, this branch of the Common Law of England relating to conspiracy was potentially available in the Presidency-towns before Lord Macaulay's Penal Code of 1860 I do not think we need stop to consider It probably was a branch of the Common Law potentially available in the Presidency-towns But, as I said, we need not specially consider it, for what we have to face and consider are the facts and the needs of the present day Now to start with some clear conception of this Bill I assume that every Member here, even the most virulent opponent of the Bill, will accept it as an axiom that it is the imperative duty of Government—of every civilised Government—to protect to the utmost of its ability the liberty of the subject by the suppression of organised crimes, whether crimes of violence or crimes against property That such organised crimes unhappily are only too prevalent in this country at the present time, and that they are increasing rather than diminishing the columns of the daily Press make notorious Take, for instance, the appalling number and frequency of dacoities, carefully organised gang robberies in Bengal It is a matter of common knowledge, and it is a matter to be deplored by every one Now consider what this means: each one of these many dacoities, to take this illustration alone, involves deliberate organisation, planning, plotting, agreement, combination, confederation, conspiracy. Yet the Hon'ble Member who first opposed this Bill said: 'I fail to find any evidence of dangerous conspiracies'. He has only got to study the columns of the Press and he will find weekly, if not daily, accounts of the most atrocious and disastrous crimes in various parts of Bengal, every one of which involves agreement and conspiracy Strange, indeed, it is, or so it appears, to me, that the Indian Penal Code provides no means for the prosecution of such crime while it is in the stage of conspiracy Yet, obviously, it is to the advantage of the community that an agreement or conspiracy to commit such crimes should be capable of being prosecuted at the earliest stage before, if possible, it has culminated in actual preparation or attempt Remarkable indeed it seems, in the face of frequent and systematic crimes which are the outcome of combination and agreement, that conspiracy, as a substantive offence, finds no place in the criminal law of India.

"It being conceded that the welfare of the people, as well as of the Government, involves the preservation of order and the suppression of crime, it necessarily follows that to afford this protection, the State must be armed with an adequate Penal Code. Now, I would remind Hon'ble Members here that in England the Common Law, in particular the Common Law of Conspiracy, has been amplified from time to time by judicial interpretation so as to meet new conditions and exigencies On the other hand, in India the Codes, as you are all aware, can only be adapted to expanding conditions, or novel or developing conditions of society by legislation It is for this reason that the Government propose to amend the Penal Code by the inclusion of a modified form of the English Common Law of Conspiracy. I say a modified form because there are certain respects in which the provisions fall short of the Common Law of Conspiracy. I ask the Council to recollect that this is no mere experimental legislation. It is a valuable branch of our Common Law. It has been formed in England by the wisdom of centuries, and it has long stood the actual test of experience, so that this cannot be stigmatised as experimental or tentative legislation. And after centuries of experience in no way has it been found in England to be subversive of the liberty of the subject, which, indeed, it, as the rest of the criminal law, is designed to protect.

"Approaching this matter with any understanding of it and with some sense of proportion, it must be realised that this Bill merely introduces a branch of criminal law which has long figured in what is admittedly the most enlightened and humane juridical system which the world has ever seen, a system which it is scarcely necessary for me to remind you all is characterised by its vindication of, and regard for popular rights Yet this Bill it is which has raised an opposition of more or less impassioned oratory and protest It has evoked apprehension—or expressions of apprehension--as to the safety and liberty of the subject in this country if it passes into law. It has been described by a leading journal of Bengal in its issue of the 1st of this month—a journal, I believe, not altogether unassociated with a certain Hon'ble Member who has opposed this Bill to-day—as 'an additional weapon in the armoury of repressive measures.' An additional weapon in the armoury of repressive measures! And if the speeches of some Hon'ble Members here to-day have any meaning, not only do they ask the Council to regard this as a repressive measure, but they ask us to consider it as an oppressive measure.

"Well, if it be repressive to prohibit seditious conspiracy against the Crown and other criminal conspiracies against the subjects of the Crown, then this may be described as a repressive measure It is repressive of crime. Only in that sense can it be described as repressive, only in that just and proper sense, and in no sense, with any regard to propriety, can it be described as oppressive.

"The article to which I have just referred asserts that 'the mischief-makers will not be touched,'—and I make reference to this article because it may be taken to represent the views of a section of the Press, and presumably the views of a certain section of the public, and certainly it also crystallizes the views which have been again expressed here by the Hon'ble Mr. S. N Banerjee. The article says that 'the mischief-makers will not be touched' and adds, somewhat to the detriment of its argument, that 'the arm of the law has seldom been long enough to reach them' Surely if that be so, it demonstrates the need for legislation I accept the phrase that 'the arm of the law has not been long enough to reach them.' Then surely it is incumbent on a wise Government to extend that arm of the law so that it shall be able to reach them effectively.

"There is only one other matter in that article that I was going to mention' The article continues, 'it will be the innocent, the peaceful, the loyal citizen who will feel that he is not trusted' Now that is a sample of the mental pabulum on which the people are fed."

The President:—"Order, order, I must ask the Hon'ble Member to address himself to the remarks made in this house and not to the remarks made in a newspaper."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kenrick:—"Certainly, Sir, I bow to your ruling, but I was putting this forward as an expression of opinion on the Bill from a certain section of the Press as representing the views of a section of the public. It was for that reason I ventured to refer to these remarks, but I pass on merely with this observation; I would remind those who oppose the Bill that the liberty of the subject can best be protected, and, indeed, can only be protected by an adequate Criminal Code.

"Now let us consider the arguments that have been adduced here against this Bill. The main objection urged, as I understand, is that the existing law is sufficient and that a law of conspiracy is unnecessary in India. Secondly, it is said that the law of conspiracy is unsuitable to India; and, thirdly, we have had the old argument as to the imperfection of the Police in India, or the subordinate police. Now, apart from the cogent facts of recent history, the first two objections are directly refuted by the views of Sir James Stephen. That eminent English judge and jurist, who was Law Member of the Council, had, of course, personal experience of India Now if you turn to the third volume of his 'History of the Criminal Law,' you will see that he refers to the Indian Penal Code and he discusses it with all that breadth of knowledge for which he was distinguished He says this in regard to the Code: 'The Indian Penal Code may be described as the criminal law of England freed from all technicalities and superfluities systematically arranged and modified in some few particulars—and they are surprisingly few—to suit the circumstances of British India,' and he points out this in regard to the particular matter which we have now got under discussion He points out that 'a mere conspiracy to wage war was not an offence under the Code unless some act or illegal omission was done in pursuance of it' He mentions that an Act amending the Code was passed when he was Law Member which asserted in the Code the substance of the English Treason Felony Act, and he adds significantly, 'it was found to be required by circumstances' Well that, at any rate, would be a complete answer to the argument of one of the Hon'ble Members that this Criminal Code should be accepted as a whole as it is without amendment The section to which Sir James Stephen referred was of course section 121A, which embodied the offence of conspiracy to wage war against the Crown, or attempts to commit that offence. Now that, namely, conspiracy to wage war against the Crown, is the only offence of conspiracy under the Code There have been, as we are all aware, in recent years successful prosecutions under that particular section; but the section has been found not to go far enough Conspiracies to commit offences or to do acts prejudicial to the State or to the public, or to individuals, are left untouched by the Code With regard to this Sir James Stephen observed:—'The law relating to riots and unlawful assemblies is very full and elaborate, but it is remarkable that the Penal Code contained no provision at all as to seditious offences not involving an absolute breach of the peace It says nothing of seditious words, seditious libels, seditious conspiracies, or secret societies,' and he continues that 'the additions made in 1870 provided to a certain extent for the punishment of such offences, but they did so very imperfectly' These are the words of Sir James Stephen, that the additions of 1870, that is section 121A of the Code constituting the offence of conspiracy to wage war against the Crown are not sufficient That is the Code is admirable so far as it goes, but the legislation is imperfect Well, I submit with confidence that a defect, and such a defect, of the Indian Penal Code, pointed out by a jurist of such eminence as Sir James Stephen would alone justify the amending legislation which is at present before this Council.

"Elsewhere in that same 'History of Criminal Law' Sir James Stephen makes this observation He says: 'In the present day the law of seditious conspiracy is of greater practical importance than the law of seditious libel. Political combinations are so common, and may become so powerful, that it seems necessary that a serious counterpoise should be provided to the exorbitant influence which, in particular circumstances, they are capable of exercising.' Although he points that out, that the law of seditious conspiracy is of greater practical importance than other branches of the law, we have in the Indian Penal Code no element of the law of seditious conspiracy other than the one offence of conspiracy to wage war against the Crown Any combination of circumstances falling short of that extreme act but which, nevetheless, are in every possible sense offences against the State, are not so by law at present in India. And when he says, as I just told you, that political combinations are so common and may become so powerful that it seems necessary that a serious counterpoise should be provided to the exorbitant influence which, in present circumstances, they are capable of exercising, I say that that advice is as applicable in India as it is in England, if, indeed, local conditions do not indicate an even greater need here for such a counterpoise. Notwithstanding that there is no law of seditious conspiracy in India, with the sole exception of section 121A relating to waging war against the Crown.

"In England, the application of the law of conspiracy to political and seditious offences dates from the 18th century. It was elaborately discussed and enunciated by the House of Lords in an important case, O'Connel's Case in 1844 when Chief Justice Tindal delivered the opinion of the whole of the Judges of England before the House of Lords In that case it was definitely laid down by the House of Lords that the crime of conspiracy is complete if two or more agree to commit an illegal thing, that is a wrongful act not necessarily amounting to a crime, and if there is seditious intention, the offence is that of seditious conspiracy.

[5TH MARCH, 1913.] [Mr. Kenrick.]

"In that case to which I am referring the accused were charged, among other matters, with conspiracy with the intent to raise discontent and disaffection among the subjects of the Crown, and to stir up hatred and ill-will among various classes of Her Majesty's subjects Under the existing law in India such an offence would escape prosecution

"Passing now from the law of seditious conspiracy—I have only sketched it as shortly as possible to show the points on which the English law is more effective in dealing with organised crime than the law here in India—I desire to emphasise the fact that the utility of the Bill which we are now considering is by no means confined to what in India are termed political offences. That law of seditious conspiracy will certainly be introduced by this measure, but it has a far wider range of utility, and probably few, if any, here are aware of the practical utility, the practical value of the English law of conspiracy in its application to various classes of crime It ranges, as I have said, over the whole field of criminal law Conspiracy to commit a crime, under the English law, is in some sense analogous to an attempted crime, but there is this distinction, that the offence of conspiracy is complete when the agreement of two or more conspirators is formed, as the agreement to commit the crime, and before any attempt to commit the crime is actually made, before even any preparation is made to commit the crime which is the object of the conspiracy And to any reflecting individual it is apparent that this should be so That in a right and properly constituted system of law the agreement with intention to commit an offence, if demonstrated and proved by the evidence which is required in the Courts, should constitute an offence which is capable of being prosecuted and punished, no one can doubt To realise the full value of the common law as to conspiracy involves of course a familiarity not only with the English text-books upon criminal and constitutional law, but also a familiarity with the practice in English Assize Courts and other criminal courts in England. But to demonstrate the utility of the proposed legislation it is only necessary for me to mention the more important instances of the application of the law in the English Courts

"A conspiracy to commit any crime, that is, an offence punishable by law is a substantive offence punishable like any other misdemeanour at common law, with a maximum of two years' imprisonment There you immediately get a distinction between the Bill which in the ordinary course provides merely a maximum of six months' imprisonment for other than specific classes of conspiracy, and the English common law, which imposes a penalty of two years. There are some classes of offences, the offence of conspiracy to commit murder, punishable by ten years' penal servitude, and yet, as the Hon'ble Member in putting this Bill before the Council pointed out, there is no similar provision in the Indian law whatever It will fall within the Indian law and will constitute a substantive offence so soon as this Bill is passed

"Passing from the first class of conspiracy which I have referred to the conspiracy to commit any crime which constitutes in itself a substantive offence, another class of case the prosecution of which is perfectly familiar in Assizes in England, is the case of conspiracies to cheat and defraud Instances of this would be the agreement of two or more persons to defraud the public or to defraud any person or any class of persons Within quite recent years this branch of the law has been before the Courts in two or three very important prosecutions—important in the public interest—namely, the prosecution of certain Poor Law Guardians for conspiracy to defraud the rate-payers These prosecutions, which were of the most vital importance in the interests of public morality, would not have been possible in this country. They now, under the Bill which is before this Council, could be prosecuted if we had the same crime in this country, and it might of course occur that a combination of persons might agree to defraud the rate-payers. That is only an illustration. Other instances of a conspiracy to defraud would be afforded by conspiracy to obtain money by false pretences, conspiracy by the promoters of a company to cheat and defraud by false pretences those persons who might buy shares in the company, and so on. Now none of these offences—the subject is such that I could give you any number of illustrations, but I refrain from doing so because one is anxious to make the points as short as possible—none of these offences can be prosecuted under the present law, unless, indeed, they come within the law of abetment, or, in other words, unless there is some act which it can be proved has been done in pursuance of the conspiracy However clear the evidence which is available to demonstrate the fact that the conspiracy exists, it could not be prosecuted.

"Another very important branch of the law of conspiracy is that dealing with conspiracies which are comprised under the head of conspiracy to defeat justice This comprises conspiracy to do anything to obstruct, prevent, pervert or defeat the cause of justice, such as agreement to pervert the cause of justice by perjury; an agreement by two or more individuals, or conspiracy to accuse any person falsely of any crime, or to prevent witnesses from giving evidence in the cause of justice; all these come into the same category They would seem obviously to be matters which should be offences under any Penal Code so as to be capable of being prosecuted. They are not so here.

"Conspiracy in restraint of trade forms another class. This consists of any agreement between two or more persons to do or procure to be done any unlawful act in restraint of trade. This, however, is subject to special considerations which I do not propose to discuss at this stage.

"Now the last class of conspiracy to which I want to draw the attention of Hon'ble Members is the conspiracy to injure individuals by wrongful acts not amounting to crime Thus conspiracy to injure, coerce or molest an individual, or to prevent him from carrying on business is indictable. If two or three agree among themselves to inflict injury, or to procure injury to be inflicted, upon a third party, that in the English law is a conspiracy; but it is not a conspiracy capable of being prosecuted here That branch of the law of conspiracy has been considered in very important cases in England, but I do not think it is necessary for me to weary the Council by referring to them in detail.

"It was accepted as recently as 1881 in the case of the Queen versus Parnell and others that it was a criminal conspiracy where two or more persons agree among themselves to injure, coerce or molest an individual in such circumstances that an injury done by any one of those means would not be a crime, but would be simply an injury not amounting to crime I refer to this because it will require a little explanation for the Council to appreciate it A wrong inflicted by a combination of persons assumes a formidable and aggravated character, because though you may assert your rights against one individual you cannot defend your rights against a number of persons who combine to inflict a wrong upon you. In the case to which I have referred, following earlier decisions of the House of Lords, it was considered that even a lawful act carried out by unlawful means—that is to say, where two or more persons agree to effectuate their object by unlawful means—is conspiracy. As this forms a branch of the law as introduced by the Bill before Council it might be desirable to give an illustration of what is really meant by it. The common illustration is this: supposing an individual has a right to certain property, and two or more persons agree to support that right Their action is so far proper. But if these individuals are willing to support him—agree to support him—by unlawful means, as by the production of fabricated evidence, then there is an indictable conspiracy. Now that concludes my very brief review of the various classes of crime which are prosecuted in English Courts under the head of conspiracy. The very variety of the subject-matter of prosecutions shows the utility of the law in England. As I have already pointed out, in none of these cases can a prosecution be instituted under the existing law of this country. The absence of any means of prosecution for such a large variety of offences constitutes undoubtedly a great defect in the otherwise admirable Penal Code of this country, and the proposed legislation will do nothing more than remove that defect. The effect of it, as you have heard, will be to bring the law of conspiracy in India into line with the English law in some respects, though even when this Bill has been passed the law in India will be less stringent than the law in England.

"I want to refer to certain arguments which have been used against this measure. One Hon'ble Member raised the point as to the imperfection of the police here in India. Well, it may be that the subordinate police here are still below the standard of efficiency and integrity which has been attained in the West. Assuming that to be so, is that any sound reason why the substantive criminal law of the country should not be improved? And I would remind you that the danger of false charges, if there is any danger, is no greater than under any other provision of the Indian Penal Code. No legislation can remove altogether the possibility of corrupt action by unscrupulous individuals. The existing law of abetment which already obtains under the Indian Penal Code would facilitate to the same extent as the proposed law of conspiracy any unscrupulous action. Then, as to sanction. There seems to be some misunderstanding as to the prosecution of an offence of conspiracy, and, indeed, I think it was said by the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah that in England prosecutions in respect of conspiracy against the Government can only be instituted by the Attorney-General. I think I am right in my recollection of what he said as to that. Now that proceeds upon a misunderstanding—a very pardonable misapprehension of the law of England. It is perfectly true that in England the Attorney-General ex-officio has the right of instituting prosecutions and in a peculiar way—that is, by filing a criminal information, which is a means of putting a man upon trial for certain offences, including the said offence of conspiracy, or indeed any misdemeanour at common law, without adopting the ordinary course of indictment, under which the individual before he comes for trial must be sent for trial on an indictment found by a Grand Jury. So the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah in saying that in England conspiracy prosecutions can only be instituted by the Attorney-General is not correct. The real explanation is that conspiracy prosecutions may be, and, indeed are, instituted on indictment in the ordinary way, but in the case of common law conspiracies the Attorney-General has the additional power by ex-officio information of putting a man upon trial without being indicted at all.

"With regard to the suggested safeguard put forward, I think also by the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah, that it would be desirable that there should be a sanction by the Government, I have only got to point this out, that in the case of any prosecution for conspiracy under section 121 (A) the sanction of the Government is already required under another section of the Code as antecedent to prosecution for that class of conspiracy.

"Another suggestion made by the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah was that two persons only should not be regarded as being capable of the offence of conspiracy, but that five—he suggested the number five—should be substituted for two. Well, to put in five as an arbitrary number in place of the definition of the common law of England would be an entire innovation, and an unjustifiable innovation. It would undoubtedly have the effect in certain cases of defeating the very object of this measure, i.e., the introduction of the ordinary common law of conspiracy under which any two or more individuals who come to a common agreement as to the commission of a crime are capable of being prosecuted as conspirators.

"There is one other point which I think is rather a matter to be dealt with when the Bill arrives before the Select Committee, as I have no doubt it will,

and that is, the suggestion made also by the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah, regarding the law of evidence in conspiracy cases I could explain the matter here, but I think it would be taking up the time of the Council, and I think it would be more properly dealt with in Select Committee than here He referred to the well-known section 10 of the Indian Evidence Act, which provides for particular rules of evidence in conspiracy cases

"Speaking popularly, the effect of this section of the Evidence Act is to introduce into India the English law of evidence applicable to any cases of conspiracy, in other words, again speaking popularly, it makes admissible in cases of conspiracy evidence that would not be admitted in ordinary cases; that is to say, the acts, doings or words of any one of the conspirators in relation to the subject-matter of the conspiracy The English law and the Indian law are rendered closely similar by section 10 of the Evidence Act There is, however, a slight difference between the two which I need not trouble the Council with. All I can say is that at present, as regards section 10 which the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah suggested might require alteration, I venture to think he has overlooked the fact that in the prosecution of cases under section 121 (A) in the case of conspiracy to wage war against the Crown, that section has been and is of use. This matter of the law of evidence under section 10 is one which would be more properly dealt with in Select Committee.

"Well, Sir, I will advert to the fear expressed by the Hon'ble Member in opposition to the Bill that this addition to the Penal Code will prejudicially affect the liberties of the subject. I venture to think that if the subject is approached with a serious conception, it will be seen that on the contrary this measure will tend, far from curtailing or infringing the liberty of the subject, to protect them in the best sense It will facilitate the prosecution of cases of organised crime which at present are beyond the reach of the law in India To say that alone, should be sufficient to justify this legislation, which, if administered in accordance with British judicial traditions, I have no hesitation in saying will be of undoubted benefit to the community. For these reasons, Sir, I have every confidence in asking the Council to send this Bill to Select Committee and ultimately to pass it."

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam :—"Sir, the lucidity with which the principle of the Bill that is before the Council has been discussed and put forward by the Hon'ble the Home Member is sufficient in itself for me not to have taken any part whatsoever in the debate to-day Since those principles were put forward, Hon'ble Members have further considered the law of conspiracy and distinguished that law as it exists in India from the one that exists in England Under these circumstances, and at this late hour, I do not propose in addressing the Council to take up the line that aims at an exhaustive and elaborate criticism on the law of conspiracy I refrain from doing so because it is possible that hereafter I may have to place in a concise form before the Council such aspects of the law of conspiracy as may conceivably be left obscure even after the Report of the Select Committee has been presented here, should the motion that is before the Council be accepted In the circumstances, I will very shortly confine myself to a very few observations upon this important Bill. The first and foremost thing to consider is, that any reference that has been made to the English law and any argument that has been advanced on the consideration that the law of England is now in some form or another being introduced into India are not put forward under the plea that because it is the English law therefore its acceptance by the Indian legislature is a matter of necessity or of obligation. The Hon'ble Mr. Vijiaragavachariar opposite put forward with some warmth his argument when he referred to certain things that he thought were given on the plea that they were in England and that other things were withheld without the same plea receiving any consideration. The Hon'ble Member in his address suggested that because it was the law in England, therefore it should be forced upon us is not a good reason. But the reference to English jurisprudence is intended to serve only one purpose, and that purpose is that the Bill as put forward before this Council is something that is not unfamiliar, a law which is not novel The proposition as advanced is not an invitation to the Council to take a leap into the unknown. What is urged is that a law similar to this is in existence elsewhere, and that, as a matter of fact, it has worked well in another country, the sole object of the suggestion that the Bill is framed considerably upon the principles of the English law of conspiracy lies in the consideration that this law has been enforced with advantage in a great and civilized country The next point to which I would like to allude very briefly is that the expansion of the law of conspiracy, as at present contained in the Indian Penal Code, is in no way a departure as has been apprehended from the principles of a Code which is the handiwork of one of the greatest lawyers of the world and a great genius My submission before the Council is that the Bill cannot for a moment be regarded as a reflection on or as if it were bringing to light any unconscious omission in the handling of the law of conspiracy by such an illustrious lawyer and statesman as Macaulay, one whom I revere as a great predecessor of mine in the office that I have the honour to hold. But what is suggested and what is placed before the Council for consideration is that whatever may have been the reasons for his not having transplanted in India in its entirety the law of conspiracy as it existed in his days in England, the time has or has not come to consider and see whether that law may or may not largely be applied to India now in order to cover certain new conditions. The law of conspiracy that the Government proposes to introduce by this Bill, as has been said already, is not exactly on the lines on which the law exists in England; it is in a much modified form that the Bill has placed it before the Council

"If the object of an agreement between two or more persons is the commission of an offence mentioned in section 121-A of the Indian Penal Code the existing law is common to both the countries The Bill provides for no change so far as that goes It only aims at carrying the same principle a little further by applying it to all offences Their agreement to commit a crime would therefore become a criminal conspiracy, but the Bill takes leave of the English law when it deals with cases where the object or the means to effect that object is or are only a civil wrong Here unlike the English law the Bill imposes the condition of an overt act or illegal omission. This is a very important reservation which has been made with some purpose.

"What is that purpose? The purpose is no more than that the law that we make for India should apply to Indian conditions, otherwise a wholesale importation of the English law might have been effected, and that would have been easy But those who have the responsibility to legislate have realised that each country has got its own conditions, and the law of that country must have a strong correlation to those conditions Therefore, at the time that the Indian Penal Code was originally framed this law was not in existence, and since then, when later on, the amendment in the form of section 121 (a) took place, the requirements of the country presented no such difficulties as at present, and so only that which was absolutely necessary was done. There was no departure in 1871 no more than there would be a departure to-day if this Bill is accepted and passed by the Council The whole question therefore is, is or is not there a demand for legislation? As to that I am very glad to find that the Hon'ble Mr Jinnah, who certainly was perfectly right in claiming to represent young educated Indians and who to my knowledge has always been absolutely frank in his criticism and ever bold, has in the Council without the slightest hesitation asserted that he does feel that the principle of this Bill is a perfectly valid and correct one Why does he say so? He says so, because he feels that in India at present law and order that we are all bound to uphold stand in danger of disturbance.

"This legislation therefore is a measure that will give us strength to overcome the difficulties presented by the present situation. Arm the Government with the necessary power and make it possible that we might thus meet them squarely. The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah in this connection made certain suggestions and, I am glad to find those suggestions were not at all such as touched any of the principles of the Bill. As a matter of fact, I find that the Council in the various speeches that have been made by Hon'ble Members, so far as the principle of the Bill is concerned, is practically agreed. Suggestions have come from one quarter or another in regard to details only. Excepting the Hon'ble Mr Vijiaraghavachariar who totally refused to accept the principle of the Bill and the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerji, as far as I can see, there is a sense of agreement as to the principle of this Bill. Now in this expanded Council, we have got Hon'ble Members who represent very large constituencies, and it seems to me that any indication on their part of a disposition to accept the principle of the Bill is a fair criterion by which to judge and say that there is something wrong in the country, and that that wrong must be removed in the interest of the safety and the prosperity of India. Therefore, it seems to me that it is not at all too much to say that here is a Bill which really is not at all a departure from any principle of law; it is a Bill to meet the unfortunate circumstances of the country, and as such has got a fair claim on the acceptance of the Council.

"I will not at all refer at present to any of those matters that have been urged regarding some details, such as subjecting prosecutions to previous sanction, the territorial application of the new law and its place on the Statute-book only for a time. These are all matters that may be fairly considered in Select Committee, and, as Chairman of the Select Committee, all I can say is that any proposals that are made in that Committee will receive at my hands and I have not the least doubt also at the hands of the Hon'ble Members who will sit in that Committee the fullest and most careful consideration

"Before I close my observations, I should just like to mention something about this Select Committee that was said by my Hon'ble friend, Rai Sita Nath Roy Bahadur. Probably it was a mistake or perhaps the Hon'ble Member did not look into the Agenda We have done our very best to give non-official lawyers representation on that Committee. The Hon'ble Member will observe that my Hon'ble friend Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, who is a lawyer of repute and long standing, will be on that Committee My Hon'ble friend will also see that the Hon'ble Mr. Dass, who is himself a lawyer of considerable experience, will also be on that Committee. And when the Hon'ble Member said that there was no Indian lawyer at all on that Committee, I began rather to wonder whether the Chairman of that Committee could claim to be a lawyer. Therefore, it seems to me that, taking the Bill as it stands there is nothing in it which is repugnant on principle, and so far as the Select Committee goes, there is not much to discourage us. It is perhaps a difficult measure, perhaps it is a measure that may at first sight appear to have the terrors of the unknown. But when you examine it carefully you see that it really promises to be of service to the country, and that its principle is sound. I submit, Sir, that the Bill deserves the support of the Council.

"With these observations, and abstaining absolutely from embarking upon any disquisition upon the law of conspiracy, I beg to support the motion."

Sir Reginald Craddock:—"Sir, I do not desire to detain the Council long in summing up what has been said on both sides"

"In so far as the law is concerned my original speech introducing the Bill contained a concise statement of it. To that additions have been made by the speeches of my Hon'ble Colleagues the Law Member and the Hon'ble the Advocate General, and I do not want to touch on the law of the matter again, beyond saying that, to sum up, the position is that there is a gap in our criminal law. It is expedient to fill that gap, and we have the English precedents to show how that gap should be filled. That the general principle of the Bill has found acceptance with Hon'ble Members is shown from the very fact that, by a large majority, they have rejected an amendment even to postpone the Bill until it could be circulated. By those votes they demonstrated as clearly as they could their approval generally to the principle of the measure, although some of them reserved a final opinion as to details. That was what I had invited them to do because I said that details of drafting, details of safeguards and details of the removal of anomalies that might arise, would all be carefully considered in Select Committee. Consequently it may be said that there are only two Hon'ble Members in this Council who are opposed to the Bill on principle.

"Now it seems to me that there is a considerable fallacy underlying the main grounds of their opposition. They put forward such pleas as this, that if the law as we suggest it should be made, had existed for 50 years, can we prove that these outrages would not have occurred? No, Sir, I cannot prove that these outrages would not have occurred, nor can any Hon'ble Member prove that; because it is impossible for us to say what would have been the effect on society of the existence of a law which enables certain things to be punished; it is impossible to say what mitigating effect or what effect in reducing the amount of crime such a provision of law would have had But what I can say is that, although this law may not render any easier the detection of conspirators, it will certainly tend to the prevention of conspiracy, because it will enable conspirators, when they are detected, to be punished when they cannot be punished now. And I care not, Sir, I care not to urge in this Council that the omission then made in the law was intentional or unintentional. It seems to me that that matter is irrelevant. The point is whether that omission in the law ought or ought not to be corrected now. I do not wish to discuss any further the principles of this law, or to quote in support various dicta of eminent jurists and judges which show and dwell on the importance of, making preparations for crime criminal at as early a stage as possible if you wish to prevent it There are many dicta and many able treatises which explain the principles on which this law is based.

"I will now refer only to some of the side objections that have been taken by the opponents of this Bill It is said that our desire to pass this Bill contravenes the solemn words of His Excellency the Viceroy in his speech at the opening of the Council in Delhi in which he indicated that, even after the attempt made on his life, he was not going to deviate from the path of progress which he had set before himself. But, Sir, the path of progress does not connote any tenderness to crime or criminals, nor can the assimilation of the Indian law to the law which prevails in England be regarded as any deviation from the path of progress. Indeed no State can progress along the path of peace and prosperity whose tranquillity is liable to be disturbed for want of adequate machinery to cope with those who conspire against society.

"The last objection taken was that this law will open the door to police oppression. In so far as there is a new offence created, power is given to investigate that offence and to take all necessary action for the prosecution of the offenders, but the Bill creates no special procedure; it bestows no drastic powers, which are not to be found in the Code of Criminal Procedure in the case of cognisable offences Conspiracy by this Bill is merely put on the same plane as abetment, and objections which might be based on the powers of the police to investigate conspiracy would be equally applicable in the case of the law of abetment. That is to say, if we put it in the shape of an example, if under the existing law A instigates B to murder C, the police have the power to search his house, arrest him, investigate the case and so on, even if B had never murdered C; but if A and B conspire to murder C, then, under the present law, the police would not have had these powers; but under the law now proposed they will. It seems to me entirely absurd to suggest that this small change, important in its results, but small in the matter of the powers that it gives, is going to upset society in any way or increase appreciably the dangers of misuse of law which is possible under any system of criminal procedure.

"If the argument that crime should not be punished because charges may be falsely laid were to prevail against the benefits to society from the punishment of crime, why then the vast majority of offences which are defined in the Penal Code would have to be expunged from the Statute-book and there would be an end of law and order throughout the land.

[Sir Reginald Craddock; Mr. Clark.] [5TH MARCH, 1918.]

"Mr Vijiaraghavachariar took up a point and elaborated it with some detail, that while we were anxious to take a law from England in order to 'knock them down,' in other respects we denied to this country the benefits of the English law Well Sir, I do not know how this law wants to 'knock them down.' It does not want to knock down law-abiding persons like the Hon'ble Member, or any law-abiding person in this country What it is aimed at is conspirators, and to 'knock down' conspirators ought to be considered a favour and a benefit by all those who desire the protection of the law and the peace of society.

"It has been finally said by the Hon'ble Mr Surendra Nath Banerji that this is the sort of measure that creates mistrust. Well, Sir, I do not know what kind of mistrust he is referring to. Does he wish us to conciliate conspirators by putting trust in them in the vain hope that they will abandon their designs, or does he wish us to conciliate the law-abiding generally by allowing conspirators to prey on society for a little longer? It seems to me, Sir, that the surest way for the Government to win the trust of the people is to convince the people that they will be protected from the lawless in the exercise of their rights And it seems to me that the best way in which the law-abiding can win the trust of Government is to show Government that they will support it in its measures against the lawless There is one kind of trust which I for one do not want to encourage one kind of trust which ought to be rudely shaken, and that is the trustfulness of the criminal that, owing to the weakness of the Government, its long arm cannot reach far enough to catch him.

"Sir, I have nothing more to add to all that has been said by Hon'ble Members on the subject of this Bill It has been most gratifying to find the support that the Council generally have given to the principle of this measure, and I have only to ask you, Sir, that the question may now be put to the Council."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE WHITE PHOSPHORUS MATCHES PROHIBITION BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark:—"Sir, I move that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of matches made with white phosphorus be taken into consideration.

"No amendments of any importance have been made in the Bill during its passage through Committee Council will remember that when I introduced the Bill, the Hon'ble Sir Charles Armstrong asked that the dates on which it was to come into operation should be postponed for another twelve months on the ground that the understanding arrived at last year had not been fully appreciated by merchants and that contracts had been entered into ahead for a considerable period The Hon'ble Member was unfortunately unable to be present at the meetings of the Committee in order to make good his case; but I had a letter addressed to the Bombay Chamber of Commerce pointing out that Government could not properly depart from last year's understanding unless a very strong case were made out, and suggesting that they should supply us with much fuller and more specific information on the subject The reply which we received cannot be said to have been conclusive, and, in these circumstances I scarcely felt justified in asking the Committee to alter the dates of the Bill, and the Committee unanimously agreed that no further postponement should be given"

The motion was put and agreed to

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark:—"I beg to move, Sir, that the Bill to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of matches made with white phosphorus, as amended, be passed".

The motion was put and agreed to.

[5TH MARCH, 1913.] [Mr. Jinnah.]

THE MUSSALMAN WAKF VALIDATING BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah:—"Sir, I move that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to declare the rights of Mussalmans to make settlements of property by way of wakf in favour of their families, children and descendants, be taken into consideration.

"In moving this, Sir, I have only got to deal with a very few points, and all that I have to say is with regard to the objections that have been raised by the different provinces, particularly the High Court Judges, the District Judges and non-Mussalman opinion. The one objection which has been urged against the Bill is the question of public policy. Now, the answer to that, Sir, is a very simple one, and as I have already explained in my speech when I introduced the Bill, what we have got to do is to administer the Muhammadan law to the Mussalmans, and therefore to introduce the question of public policy which is foreign to the Islamic jurisprudence, to my mind, is outside the question, and there is no such thing as public policy of any kind, so far as Muhammadan jurisprudence is concerned, to which the provisions of this Bill are in any way opposed. I therefore give that simple answer to that point.

"Another point was that we must protect the creditors, and with regard to that, as the Council knows, the Bill, as it was originally introduced, contained certain clauses, which were intended to prevent fraud against creditors. Those clauses, when they came to be considered in Select Committee, we on careful consideration, found it very difficult to maintain without in any way infringing upon the personal law that governs the Mussalmans in this country. That being so, it was after very careful consideration, decided by the Select Committee unanimously that the registration clauses should be dropped. But so far as this point—and this is the second point and the only point really with which we are concerned—and the criticisms are concerned, it seems to me, Sir, that the Muhammadan law, as it stands to-day, provides certain safeguards against fraud upon creditors. The fraud upon creditors may be divided into two parts: first, a fraud which may be practised when the wakf is created: so far as that part of the law is concerned, there are safeguards, as I said already, in the Muhammadan law. Then, with regard to the frauds which may be practised upon the creditors after the wakf has been actually created, it seems to me that we have got already the Registration Act, which lays down that every wakf that is made in writing must be registered, and that notice by virtue of its being registered is a sufficient safeguard to that extent. No doubt a Muhammadan may may make an oral wakf, and in that case it may prejudice the creditor to a certain extent. The answer to that is, that that is Mussalman law and you cannot over-ride the Mussalman law. If you compel the Mussalman to make wakf in writing and in no other manner, you are, to that extent, over-riding the Mussalman law, and therefore I for one am not prepared to accept any provision which is in any way likely to over-rule or affect the personal law of the Mussalmans. A man stands in a very serious position indeed if he makes an oral wakf when he comes to prove it in a Court of law, and therefore now-a-days people do not make oral wakfs. Thus, the apprehended fear is so very small, whereas, in order to rectify that fear the danger of infringing upon the Mussalman law is so great, and taking the two considerations the one over-balances the other to such an extent, that I felt that I could not possibly have that provision.

"One word more, Sir, and I have done; and that is this,—that my Hindu friends must remember that although one of these provisions, viz., the last provision which I have mentioned, the regulating of oral wakfs, is the only danger, so far as I can see. With regard to that, my Hindu friends must also understand this, that it affects the Mussalmans to a much greater extent, it prejudices them to a much greater extent than it would the creditors who may happen to be Hindus; for this reason, that it will depreciate the Mussalman's title to the property to a great extent. Therefore, remember, Sir, that in not being able to accept this provision or this suggestion, viz., to prevent the Mussalmans from making oral wakfs, the fear being very small, I am not only guided by this fact, that my Hindu friends will suffer, but the Mussalmans will equally suffer: if not more therefore, we would certainly like if we could possibly do it, to have this provision in our own interest because otherwise it certainly depreciates the title to moveable property so far as the Mussalmans in this country are concerned. Therefore my Hindu friends will, I know, sympathise with me that I am tied down by my law to such an extent that although to a certain extent that I am unable to alter it. And the position of the Government is still more difficult because by their Charter they have undertaken and pledged themselves to administer the Muhammadan law to the Mussalmans and the Hindu law to the Hindus, and therefore, these being the difficulties in our way, we had eventually to abandon the registration clauses.

"With these remarks I hope and am confident the Council will pass this Bill unanimously. I will only say one word more, Sir, and that is this: I wish on my own behalf and on behalf of the Muhammadans of India to express our sincere gratitude to His Excellency the Viceroy and his Government for the manner in which they have received and treated this Bill in this Council.

"It has made us feel that the Government in this matter has acted as if it was our Government in every sense of the word. Their spirit, their feeling, their help have enabled me to pilot this Bill through the Council. I trust the Government will always make us feel that it is our Government, and if we have got a reasonable complaint, a reasonable grievance to put before you fairly and properly, you will meet us fairly and properly; and I trust that in other matters that may come hereafter before this Council or outside the Council, the Government will extend the same spirit and the same attitude towards us."

The Hon'ble Malik Umar Hayat Khan:—"Sir, on the 17th February, on the motion that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee when I addressed this Council, I said that I desired to defer expressing a definite opinion on the measure until I had more completely ascertained the views of the Muhammadans of the Punjab in regard to it. I have now received opinions from various leading members of the community in the Province which I represent, and I am in a better position now to state that the Bill meets with their approval.

"The real question in issue is whether Wakfs-ul-Aulad are permitted by Mussalman law and the answer to this question must, I think, be in the affirmative, provided that there is an ultimate, if remote, dedication, to the poor or for some other charitable purpose of a permanent character. Some people apprehend that under the Bill wakfs which are not in accordance with the ordinary Mussalman law of inheritance will be created and there are, it must be admitted, dangers that wakfs might be created under the Bill which may favour particular members of a family unduly; but, as I understand the Bill under consideration, it is based on the sacred books and is in no way opposed to them, and therefore it must be approved by all good Muhammadans. The statement that the Bill accurately represents the Mussalman law is one which I could defend if necessary with texts from various sacred books, but I doubt if it is advisable to occupy the time of the Council now in this way. Every man has two great obligations to perform, and after a man has done his duty to his fellowmen, he has a right to dedicate other property to charity. It is for this reason that in the case of testamentary wakfs a man is only allowed to leave one-third of his property for religious or charitable purposes including the benefit of particular descendants, while the remaining two-thirds is reserved for the payment of his debts and for the benefit of his legal heirs. This principle of Muhammadan law is not, as I understand it, affected by the Bill as now amended. In this view therefore holding as I do that the Bill is in accordance with the basic principles of Islamic jurisprudence, I think that I shall not be justified if I did not vote in favour of it, the more so as I find that it is approved by men of light and leading in the Mussalman community of the Punjab. Accordingly I support the motion before the Council."

[5TH MARCH, 1913.] [Mr. Mir Asad Ali; Mr. Fuzulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim.]

The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Mir Asad Ali :—" With your permission, Sir, I wish, as a representative of the Mahomedans of the Madras Presidency, to support this important Bill which was introduced on the 17th of March, 1911, by the Hon'ble Mr Jinnah As the Hon'ble Members are aware, the Mahomedans of India as a community have for a long time held strong views as to the difficulties created by the Privy Council decisions which this Bill is intended to overcome.

" Representations in various forms have been made to the Government, clearly indicating that Mahomedan opinion in the country has been gathering in volume and strength against what is considered to have been an innovation in Islamic jurisprudence. Opinions of Mahomedan lawyers and Ulamas of considerable repute have almost unanimously ranged themselves against the doctrine enunciated by the Privy Council Apart from individuals, public bodies and institutions like the Moslem League and many others have pronounced strongly in favour of restoring the Mahomedan law on the subject to the position which it occupied before these decisions were given

" I desire, therefore, on behalf of the Mahomedans of Madras to express the sincere gratitude of my community to the Imperial Government for its sympathetic attitude towards the principle of this Bill, and I venture to think, Sir, that the Wakf Bill, when passed into law, will be an abiding proof of statesmanship and wisdom of the British Government in its undoubted desire to preserve intact to the different communities of India the observance of their religious laws and institutions I may also offer a word of congratulation to the Hon'ble Mr Jinnah who has taken such a leading part in this important measure, and who by his self-sacrificing labours has done a valuable service to his community "

The Hon'ble Mr Fuzulbhoy Currimbhoy Ebrahim :—" Sir, the introduction of this Bill marks an important step in the annals of Legislation in India In the first place, it shows the practical value of the wise and liberal provision, giving non-official Members the right of introducing measures of legislation in the enlarged Legislative Council In the second place, it offers the strongest refutation of the apprehension entertained in some quarters on the occasion of the enlargement of the Council, that the increased facilities would tend to promote only political activities Experience has shown that so far from this being the case, the expanded Councils have roused the social consciousness of the people in a remarkable manner This Bill, when passed into law, will have far-reaching effects on the fortunes of the Islamic community of India I especially welcome it as a proof of the earnest desire of non-official Members to promote beneficial and wise legislation and to co-operate with Government in the improvement of the social and economic condition of the people While welcoming the Bill, I congratulate my Hon'ble friend Mr. Jinnah on his success in piloting through the Council a measure so rich in its immense possibilities of good to the Moslem community. This is the first legislation undertaken and enacted at the instance of a non-official Member, and I am sure Mr Jinnah has earned the warmest gratitude of his co-religionists for devoting his time and energy to the study of the complicated subject of Wakf, and for bringing the Bill to such a happy termination This measure is calculated to place on a satisfactory basis the institution designated in the Islamic system as Wakf-alal-Aulad While declaring the true law, that is, the law laid down by the Founder of Islam, it provides adequate safeguards against fraud. It recognises a principle which is of supreme importance to the Mussalmans, as it will prevent their impoverishment by the transfer of their estates into other hands The Founder of our Faith ordained a division of property among the heirs of the deceased owner; and at the same time with his wonderful and divinely inspired genius, he laid down a rule which provided a remedy against the consequences of infinite sub-divisions among a succession of heirs.

" The decision of the Privy Council was considered a blow at the institution, and by this measure it is sought to reverse the effect of the principle laid down by their Lordships. This Bill meets with the approval of not only the reformers but of orthodox people also, and as it is for the greatest good of the Moselm society and in accordance with the religious sentiments of the community, I beg to support it most cordially"

The Hon'ble Mr. Qumrul Huda:—"Sir, after the learned speeches delivered on this Bill in this house just prior to its being referred to the Select Committee, almost all of us were convinced that as far as the principle of the law of wakf-alal-aulad—settlement of property in favour of one's own children and descendants and ultimately for the benefit of the poor—was concerned all doubts were removed and there were no two opinions about it The Hon'ble the Law Member in supporting the Bill had concisely but lucidly placed the history of such wakfs among Mussulmans But to my regret and surprise I find that still there are one or two among the Mussulmans who are in doubt as to the truth of the correctness of this well-established principle of Mussulman law of wakf. It is more surprising to notice that some members of my own community are still not willing to join us whole-heartedly on this point Therefore, Sir, I may be excused were I to traverse again the ground which was well-trodden on the last occasion It is an admitted fact that there is not a word about wakf in the Koran. But this is also admitted that the observance of Mussulman religion and law does not depend solely and wholly on the Koran alone. The Prophet's words and acts have great reverence in the eyes of a Mussulman They are held in reverence second to none but the ordinances of the Koran The Prophet's sayings and the acts done by him have reached us in collections known as Hadises, i e traditions Mussulmans have reverence for these collections next to the Koran alone Bokhari's collection of Hadises are regarded the most authentic and genuine Bokhari himself says that institution of wakf rests on the foundation of Hadis, and both moveables and immoveables are fit subject-matter of wakf He (Bokhari) dates this institution from the time of the Prophet himself He relates that the Prophet created a wakf of his own property and advised his companion (afterwards Khalif) Abu Bakar to make a wakf of his garden. Bokhari, Fathul Quadir, Hidaya. Durra Mukhtor, Fatawa Alumgiri and many other authorities support the principle of wakf-alal-aulad The principles of wakf laid down in these works have not only been accepted as true and correct, but have been acted upon by the Mussalmans for the last over 1300 years. In Turkey and Egypt there are Government Departments of Wakf Wakf-alal-aulad to this day is prevailing and is customary in Turkey, Egypt, British African Colonies, French Possessions in Africa, Morocco and Persia In India, such wakfs are recognised valid by law in Hyderabad, Bhopal and other Mussulman States. Need I repeat that all the Provincial Governments of India are in favour of the principle of this Bill barring Bengal and Bombay These two do not oppose the Bill because the settlement in wakf in favour of the descendants are invalid in Mussulman law but on public policy and other grounds Sir, this is for the Government and this Council to judge whether this is a fit case in which Government should intervene in the enjoyment of the religious right of a community on the ground of public policy I have only to submit, Sir, that the enjoyment of this right of ours is neither inhuman, nor immoral, nor it affects adversely to the interest of any other community living in India.

"It has been said of this Bill that when enacted it will interfere with the sacred Mussulman law of inheritance as ordained by the Koran. How this baseless fear crept into the imaginative but timid mind of some people, one cannot understand As a friend I tell them plainly that it is a phantom of their own creation which is haunting them. This Act will be only a permissive Act. It will concern only to those who are to create a settlement in wakf in favour of their descendants and ultimately for the benefit of the poor. It will have nothing to do with the rest of the world When this Bill by its saving clause—section 5—has exempted any custom or usage prevalent in any locality or among Mussulmans of any particular class or sect, how can it be expected to attack the sacred law of inheritance sanctioned by the Koran.

"A criticism against the present form of the Bill is that it is not in declaratory form I must confess, to me this charge appears to be vague The Bill begins with declaring the 'rights of Mussulamans to make settlement of property by way of wakf in favour of their families, children and descendants' If by its not being declaratory is meant that it should have declared this much only that certain decisions of Privy Council on the Mussulman law of wakf were erroneous, I am afraid it must have left the Mussulman community in mid-sea Is it not wise and better to lead the community to shore than to leave it bewildered at sea? Any such declaration alone would have hardly been of any good to the community or of any advantage to the Courts

"To some minds doubts have arisen as to the position of wakfs-alal-aulad created before the existence of this Act Though this Bill does not contain a retrospective clause, it may reasonably be admitted that such wakfs should be governed by this Act This Bill establishes the correct principles of the Mussulman law of Wakf When once those correct principles are enacted, they should be applied to all such wakfs whether they were created before or after this Act.

"Before I sit down, I congratulate the Hon'ble Mr Jinnah for successfully steering this Bill to this final stage The whole Mussalman community of India are grateful to him for the benefit and good he has done to it by having this disability removed "With these few words, I strongly support the Mussalman Wakf Validating Act".

The Hon'ble Mr. Ghuznavi:—"Sir, I was waiting to know whether the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy would move his amendment, because if he intends to move his amendment, I should like to speak after he has finished."

The President:—"The proper time for dealing with the amendment is when the amendment is put

The motion was put and agreed to

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy:—"Sir, I do not like at such a stage when the Bill is nearly ready for being passed into law to stand in the way of my Moslem brethren At the same time I congratulate them on the singular unanimity of views they have displayed on the subject. I also congratulate the Government on the magnanimity it has shown in giving sanction to a project of creating wakfs, some of which were questioned by the Privy Council At the same time I beg to urge Government that, in giving sanction to the Wakf Bill, it does not overlook the interests of the other communities."

The President:—"Is the Hon'ble Member going to move his amendment"?

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy:—"No, Sir."

The President:—"Then he is out of order in discussing the question."

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy:—"I wish to make a suggestion."

The President:—"It is open to you to move your amendment if you think fit. If not, I will proceed with the further stage of the Bill"

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy:—"I do not intend to."

The President:—"Then the amendment falls to the ground."

The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah:—"I beg to move that the Bill to declare the rights of Mussalmans to make settlements of property by way of wakf in favour of their families, children and descendants, as amended, be passed I have nothing more to say."

[Mr. Ghuznavi; Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar.] [5TH MARCH, 1918.]

The Hon'ble Mr. Ghuznavi :—"Sir, with your permission I should like to express my gratitude to my Hon'ble friend Mr. Sita Nath Roy for having withdrawn his amendment, and I should also like to add my quota of approval and support to the Bill as it has now emerged from the Select Committee There is nothing in it to which I can now take objection At the time when this Bill was referred to a Select Committee, I took the privilege of criticising it at some length, and I desire with your permission to express my thanks and obligations both to my friends the Hon'ble Mr Jinnah and the Hon'ble the Law Member for having given their careful consideration to the points I then raised as well as to those which I raised subsequently, and for having amended the Bill with regard to them. But there is one and only one matter which I should just like to mention, and it is this: On both the occasions referred to above, I urged the desirability of the necessity of making a provision in this Bill for the validity of wakfs already created and existing; in other words a retrospective clause. I have since been explained and am now firmly convinced that since this is nothing more and nothing less than a declaratory Act stating what our own Islamic law of wakf actually is as interpreted by our own Ulemas and jurists from Bokhari down to Moulana Shibli of our own times, it is quite unnecessary and superfluous to add a clause of that nature For as this is no new law or no new Act that we are enacting, and as the Supreme Legislature is doing merely for English and Indian Judges what Bokhari and the rest of them did for our Kazis, it stands but to reason that any wakf of future or past has to be interpreted ipso facto by the British and Indian Judges according to the correct version which is now laid down by the Supreme Legislature under your benign auspices.

"One word, Sir, and I have done, and that is to thank my friend on behalf of the Bengal Mussalmans for the care and skill and the assiduity with which he has piloted this all-important measure.

"Our thanks and gratitude are no less due to the Government of India for having redressed this long-standing grievance of the Mussalman subjects of His Majesty who holds sway within the British Empire over the largest Moslem Empire now extant in the world, inasmuch as India has since the very beginning of British rule been a land of Darul Islam for British Indian Mussalmans."

The Hon'ble Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar :—"Sir, I wish cordially to support the motion before us and I desire to explain my reasons why I shall vote for it I am sorry that I have to differ from the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah and all the others that agreed with him that the measure before us is absolutely Mohammedan law The volume of opinions collected on the circulation of the Bill reveals a state of things which it is most interesting to study It is a sort of poetical license to claim that there has been unanimity of opinion as to the merits of the Bill It will be seen from the collection of these opinions that Hindus, Mohamedans and Englishmen, that judges, pleaders and laymen, have taken very different views as to the decisions of the judicial committee of the Privy Council upon this important branch of Mahomedan law. The question is simple. It is whether a settlement by way of wakf made by a Mussalman in support of himself, his family and descendants, with a very remote provision in favour of the poor in the event of all his descendants becoming extinct, is or is not a charitable disposition within the meaning of the Mohamedan law. Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council have held that it is not. They refused to accept that such a disposition was Wakf and contemplated by the prophet as a charitable endowment when there is no self-denial involved in the disposition. Thus when so many eminent authorities including distinguished Mussulmans differ from each other, it is open, to use a well-known pharse "when doctors differ, it is open to a patient, especially a chronic patient to take sides and to claim to have a voice of his own." Exercising this right I have no hesitation in making my choice. I venture to agree with their Lordships of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and believe that the decisions arrived at by them after considerable and elaborate arguments before them and after a most careful examination of all the authorities on the subject, remain correct and sound, and that it is impossible successfully to assail the position established by those decisions. Therefore I take it that the Law that is now proposed cannot be seriously claimed to be a Law by way of Legislative correction of erroneous decisions arrived at by the Privy Council. In my humble view it is not Mahommedan Law but a new law altogether. I consider it is absolute fiction to say that the proposed law is Wakf, as much a fiction as the fiction of loss of service as a basis for actions for seductions but without the same reason or excuse. But it is immaterial for me whether it is Mahommedan Law or a new law altogether. There is a growing feeling amongst the advanced party of our Mussalman friends and fellow-subjects whose motto is "excelsior" that they should have a law of primogeniture of an enabling kind. I most cordially sympathise in this new spirit. I had a talk with one of my enlightened Mussalman friends only very recently. He is against this Bill on the ground on which it purports to rest and he distinctly told me that it is not Mahommedan law; but all the same he likes it because it would enable the Mussalmans to secure, if they like, to provide for a special devolution of their property. He told me that England was conquered by Angles, Saxons and others because of the law of primogeniture under which all but the eldest sons were left unprovided for; I said England, I beg pardon, I meant the country called England since. Now where these disinherited and unprovided Mussalmans will go in search of lands to conquer my friend did not inform me, nor can I quite imagine. Perchance it may be in the far south where a new continent looms which is going to be named after our Gracious Sovereign. If our Mussalman fellow-subjects desire to colonise that land I wish them success. Be all this as it may, I am sure I am right in my view of this new feeling. That this is not Mahommedan law but a new law based on the fiction that it is Mahommedan law is borne out by the speech of my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Ghaznavi made the other day when the Currimbhoy Ibrahim Baronetcy Bill was before the Council. He said that if the Wakf Bill had been passed earlier that Baronetcy Bill would have been unnecessary. That is to say a Mussalman can dexterously use this law like the law of primogeniture and hand down his property tied up for ever descending to his posterity in the line of his eldest son or any other son. I was talking to another Mussalman gentleman, and I decline to say whether he is a Member of this Council or not, on this subject. He very facetiously told me that he was not at all sure that the settlement would always be in favour of the eldest son and his descendants. He seemed to think that the youngest wife of the Wakif would have the best of it in the scramble. That is no reason for me to withhold my consent. It is immaterial for me to consider whether this law would benefit the eldest son or the favourite son of the youngest wife.

"Nothing shows more clearly that the advanced party of the Mahommedans do not themselves treat this measure as Mahommedan Law than the attitude they have judiciously taken in view to pilot this legislation through; among those whose opinions had been invited on the Bill is a distinguished Mussalman gentleman who, while holding that courts of justice are wrong in their interpretation of the Law of Wakf, deprecated interference of the Legislature and suggested an attempt at a revision of the current of decisions by the Privy Council, itself now that the Right Hon'ble Mr. Amir Ali, who advocates this popular view, is a distinguished Member of it. But the forward party of our Mussalman friends have been as shrewd as they have been enthusiastic; they know full well the scope of the influence of the Right Hon'ble Jurist on Mahommedan Law. They are aware that the influence of the Right Hon'ble Mr. Amir Ali would not in the least affect English judges. English judges are unbending and sternly independent and they still continue to act on the divine doctrine: Let justice be done though the heavens fall. The Right Hon'ble gentleman's influence in other quarters is an undoubted and settled fact. He may capture "The Times"; he may capture the India Office; and he may capture the Cabinet, but he may not capture the English judges. Hence our Mahommedan friends, conscious of the nature of their case, did not think of accepting the suggestion somewhat gilelessly made of getting the Privy Council to revise its own series of decisions. And they have wisely gone to the Government and have wisely come to this Council.

[Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar.] [5TH MARCH, 1913.]

I welcome this new spirit. I welcome this new enthusiasm and I also welcome the shrewdness throughout apparent. But let us not blind ourselves to the real facts and imagine that it is Mahommedan personal law that we are declaring and enacting. It is a law of a primogeniture under the name of wakf. But for the name of wakf, Mahommedans are not entitled to have this power of disposition of property under their personal law. Very much like the Hindu Law, the great Prophet has directed division of one's property into innumerable portions. As I said before, the Bill embodies a law of primogeniture and it does offend the law as to perpetuity. But we have such special laws which are a departure from generally recognised principles of law. There is the law of primogeniture and entail in England which offends against the law of perpetuities. In India we have special laws, such as the Impartible Zemindari Act, the Punjab Land Alienation Act, and others, all of which more or less tie up properties and offend against the general law In these circumstances I am able to welcome this new spirit on the part of our fellow Mussalman subjects. It augurs well not only for the Government but also for Hindus that advanced Mussalmans should evolve this new spirit and this new attitude They belong to a community who are not only intensely religious but also believe that man has been created for the sake of religion and not religion bestowed upon him for his guidance in his progress towards his destiny here below. Now the enlightened new leaders of such a people practically say "save us from our religion," but say so in the name of their religion It is a most wholesome attitude and I desire to accord my hearty welcome to it

"A word or two as to the details of the Bill. There is one disquieting provision in it. Clause 3 provides that, where the Wakif is a Hanafi Mussalman, he could make a wakf and settle his property for the maintenance of himself and his descendants and also for the payment of his debts out of the income of the property dedicated and I do not know how this provision has come into this Bill at all. As far as I know and I have read the whole volume of literature on the Bill including the speeches made by the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah and others in this Council no question has arisen as to its nature and no doubt has been created in reference to it in consequence of any decision of a court of justice. Then how does it come in ? This clause is either a Mahommedan law or it is not. If it is Mahommedan law how does it happen to come into this Bill as no doubts appear to have been entertained about it owing to any decisions by courts ? But if it is not Mussalman law how and why has it found its place there I therefore respectfully submit that the Bill is not an expression of real Mahommedan law As regards this Bill considered exclusively in reference to the debts of the Wakif, no doubt the secured creditors are safe But as to his unsecured creditors I fear I cannot accept the statement of the Hon'ble Mover in its entirety that they are also quite safe On this point there are considerable doubts It is exceedingly difficult to say and more difficult to prove that in creating a wakf the settlor necessarily intended to delay or defraud his unsecured creditors I, therefore, maintain that this provision is a disquieting one Yet I am willing to accept the argument of the Hon'ble Mr Jinnah that it is somewhat self-acting If it is found that Mussalmans under the name of wakf largely take to defrauding their creditors they are sure to suffer in credit not only from Hindu creditors from all other creditors as well, Jewish, English and others The Mussalmans are a commercial and a most enterprising people in India and they are most unlikely to impair and endanger their credit by abusing their powers as to creating wakf

I notice that when leave was asked for the introduction of this Bill in this Council Government declared that its attitude was one of benevolent neutrality. We all know that but a thin partition wall divides benevolent neutrality from active co-operation and by the time the Bill was introduced in the Council after previous circulation, the benevolent neutrality easily became active co-operation and now I am glad to find that every Hon'ble Member is prepared to vote for it. As I am not against the provisions of the Bill, while I believe it is not Mahommedan Law, I am not called upon to ask pardon of my convictions in supporting this measure. Moderating myself to the temper of every one I desire to support this Bill. It is a great thing to be in harmony and I congratulate this Council and Government on the courageous harmony in respect of this legislation."

The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Rai Bahadur:—"Sir, I do not at this stage like to strike a discordant note, but at the same time I must point out to the Government and also appeal to the sense of justice of the mover to see that the Government, as the custodian of the rights and privileges of different classes of people does not abandon its duty to see that, in passing this Bill, the interests and rights of other classes of people are not injuriously affected. And I beg to point out, Sir, that though I have not ventured to move the amendment that I propose to move, as wakf may be created simply by word of mouth, it will open a wide door—kindly pardon me if I use such an expression—it will open a wide door to frauds Mahommedan gentlemen, for instance the Hon'ble Mr. Shamsul Huda and other honourable gentlemen and Judges of the High Court and District Judges, have all unanimously been of this opinion that if a wakf is to be created, it must be created by an instrument in writing witnessed by two or more persons and specially registered That is the unanimous opinion of distinguished Mahommedan gentlemen and of the Civil District Judges. Here are the views of several distinguished Judges, and even of Sir William Vincent when he was acting as District and Sessions Judge of Mozufferpore and of Mr Chapman, the Legal Remembrancer to the Government of Bengal I need not take up the time of the Council by going through the quotations which I hold in my hand, but I should like to read the opinion of the Hon'ble Moulvi Syed Shamsul Huda, while he was acting as Honorary Secretary, Bengal and Provincial Moslem League. His opinion is as follows:—

'They however consider it desirable that every settlement of property by way of wakf should be in writing and registered'

"Otherwise there would be no protection. This is the unanimous opinion of every District Judge There would be no protection to would-be purchasers of property from Mahommedans Suppose a Hindu or a European or a member of any other community purchases property from a Mahommedan, and a few years after his death his son turns round and says that the property was a wakf one and produces his own tenants who are under his clutches, as witnesses to support his statement that the wakf was created by words of mouth by his father, and he shows that he was in possession of the property as mutwali and not as proprietor

"Under these circumstances of course I do not raise any objection to the passing of this Bill what but I do say is that if, after the working of this Act for some years, we see that the interests of other classes are prejudicially affected, then we should be allowed to approach Government for the modification of the Act to give protection to those classes in matters where they require protection, that is, that wakfs shall be created by instruments in writing and be duly registered

"With these observations, I beg to support the Bill."

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee:—"As a Hindu Member of this Council, Sir, I feel that I ought not to be giving a silent vote, especially in view of the observations which have fallen from some of the Members who have gone before me I desire to associate myself thoroughly with the congratulations which have been offered to the Hon'ble Mr Jinnah for his successful pilotage of the Bill. It is worthy of note, and the fact has been referred to, I believe, by more than one Member, that this is the first time that a law has been added to the Statute-book on the initiative of a private Member. It is still more worthy of note that the honour and the distinction is claimed by a Muhammadan non-official Member of this Council It is an object-lesson which I trust will not be lost upon the representatives of the Hindu community. Sir, I confess I am not able to follow my Hon'ble friend opposite through the mazes of his legal arguments. Sir, it is enough for me and for most laymen, I think, to know that the Government want this Bill and the Muhammadan community want it. That, I think, ought to settle the controversy. I am very glad that my Hon'ble friend Rai Sita Nath Roy has withdrawn his amendment. When the Muhammadan community want a particular Bill in a particular form, when they are practically unanimous about that matter, and when the Government has extended its approbation to their proposal, I think it is not for us, as representatives of the Hindu community, to stand athwart their path and say to them 'this amendment you shall accept' or 'that amendment you shall not accept.' I am very glad indeed that my friend has seen his way to withdraw his amendment. I accord my most cordial support to the Bill"

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam:—"Sir, the Hon'ble Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar has discoursed upon this Bill in a strain that reminds me of the man who adopted a child but for a very long time dwelt upon its ugliness. I don't intend to enter again upon the controversy as to whether this Bill is or is not consistent with the provisions of the Muhammadan law, as on the day this Bill was referred to Select Committee I had put forward a number of authorities showing that those were the provisions of the Muhammadan law. But I do not for a moment question the right of the Hon'ble Member, Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar, or for the matter of that, any other Hon'ble Member to have his own views on the subject. On behalf of Government, however, I may say that it is satisfied—has been satisfied—on the evidence that came before it, that the Bill embodies the provisions of the Muhammadan law. As a matter of fact, the reason why the Government gave its sanction to the measure was that finding it to be consistent with the provisions of the Muhammadan law, and there having been a demand from the Musulman community for its recognition, the Government saw no objection in meeting the wishes of the Muhammadans when it was possible to do so

As regards the work of my Hon'ble Colleague Mr Jinnah in regard to this Bill I should very much like in this Council to testify, from my personal knowledge, to the great amount of assistance and help that he has given us right through, and especially in the Select Committee in which I was presiding and now that the Bill has reached that stage when soon—perhaps in a few minutes—it will be passed, I wish, on behalf of myself, and, if I may say so on behalf of my colleagues, to express our satisfaction at the manner in which Mr Jinnah has rendered help to us in piloting this Bill through; and at the end I wish to add one word of congratulation to Mr Jinnah in that although he is not the first non-official member who has been able to introduces a private Bill in this Council, as has been assumed by the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee, at any rate he is the first non-official Muhammadan member to do so, I am glad to find, and the record of Council proceedings will show it that another Hon'ble Member, a non-official Hindu Member, brought in a private Bill, viz., the Anand Marriage Bill, which became the law of the land some years ago."

The Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah:—"Sir, first of all I must thank Hon'ble Members who have spoken of me in very kind terms, and I also thank the Government and the Hon'ble Law Member who has expressed his kind feelings towards such work as I may have done in this matter: but I specially and particularly welcome the congratulation from my old and revered friend, the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Banerjee, who represents a volume of opinion in Bengal, and, coming from him as a Hindu, I particularly appreciate it and I wish to thank him very much for it. With regard to his support, I feel most grateful to him

"With regard to the Hon'ble Mr. Vijiaraghavachariar, I must say that the Hon'ble Member to-day happens to be in a mood of opposition While opposing the provision of the Bill, the Hon'ble Member was good enough to wind up by supporting it While finding fault with the provisions of the Bill and saying that the Mussalmans are getting a law which is going to give them a system of primogeniture, he supported it I now appeal to the Hon'ble Member; his suggestion was that we want to do these things under the guise of the fiction of Mussalman Law; we do not want to face the Privy Council; although we have got there the Right Hon'ble Mr. Amir Ali, we are afraid to face the Privy Council because of the English Judges. Really I appeal to the Hon'ble Member and his experience. He knows perfectly well that never in the history of the Privy Council has that tribunal ever revised its judgment. And Sir, is it right for a lawyer of his experience to tell me why is it that I do not go to that tribunal which has already decided this point and ask for a revision ?

"Then the Hon'ble Member criticised, very firmly and said that this Bill was not the Mussalman law, that the Privy Council decision was the Mussalman law. Well, with very great respect for him, he is entitled to his opinion. Every man is entitled to his opinion. With very great deference, I may point out to him that the highest authorities, Mussalman and English Jurists of eminence, have declared, with the utmost deference for that great tribunal, the Privy Council, that their decision is not in accordance with Mussalman law. The whole of my community, with a few exceptions,—for whom, also, I have respect, because each man is entitled to his own opinion—are of opinion that the Privy Council decision is not the correct exposition of the Mussalman law. Therefore, Sir, our only remedy was to appeal to the Government, appeal to the legislature, and the Government have come to our rescue. That ought not to excite any jealousy; that ought not to excite any envy of any kind whatever, that ought not to entitle any one to say that by these circuitous methods we get a system of law, namely primogeniture, and not Mussalman law.

"However, I do not wish, Sir, to go into these details because the Hon'ble Member has given me his support I appreciate the support he has given, no matter the manner in which he has given it Then he says with regard to clause 3, how does that clause come in at all? I have explained to the Hon'ble Member myself, and if he looks up any text-book on Muhammadan Law, he will find that what is reproduced in clause 3 is nothing but Muhammadan law, namely, that one of the purposes recognised by Mussalman law as purposes for which you can make a wakf is if a man happens to be Hunufia for his own support, maintenance or payment of debts—that is a purpose for which he can make a wakf, and the Privy Council decision was that if you postpone the dedication to charity for a certain period—and if the dedication to charity is proposed to be given at any period too remote—then that wakf is invalid Therefore if a Hunufia Mussalman makes a wakf for payment of his debts, and if this clause is not inserted, the Privy Council decision will stand and you have only got to take it to any Court of law to set aside the wakf. Therefore, it is absolutely essential that this purpose, which was so to say over-ridden by the decision of the Privy Council, must be specifically mentioned in the clause to show that it is a purpose for which you can make a wakf. Then the last point was the point about creditors. Well I have already told the Council as to what the position is The Hon'ble Mr. Sitanath Roy Rai Bahadur had amendments about this on the Agenda List which he was good enough to withdraw. Now I can only assure the Hon'ble Member that so far as the first amendment is concerned, I have not the slightest doubt in my own mind, and I appeal to any lawyer, that secured creditors cannot be affected by the making of a wakf after the security is given. The only question, as I pointed out, is the question of unsecured creditors, and if a man while he is making his wakf is in an insolvent condition, and he makes his wakf in order to defraud, defeat or delay his creditors, then I say without any hesitation that that wakf will be set aside by any Court of law under Muhammadan law. If you can prove that the wakf is created in order to defeat the creditors, or defraud the creditors or delay the creditors, you have only got to prove that and the wakf will be set aside. There is the Provisional Insolvency Act and there is the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act. If a man in any way goes against those provisions, the Court of Bankruptcy will set aside his wakf. But the difficulty that does arise—and I do recognise that there is a difficulty—and that is in the case of testamentary wakf or an oral wakf, that is to say, the wakf may have been made when the man was in a perfectly solvent state and not intended to defeat, defraud or delay his creditors; but an oral wakf perfectly good at the time it was made. His heirs may suppress the fact of any wakf having been made and dispose of the property as they like. A second or third generation may come up and attempt to prove that an oral wakf had been made I say if a man comes to a Court of law after one or two generations and attempts to prove an oral wakf, I appeal to you—not as lawyers but as men of common sense—what Court of law would accept such proof; and the consequence will be that he will never succeed in proving the wakf. But that small danger is there, and the danger affects Mussalmans a great deal more than any other community.

"It affects Europeans but Europeans as a rule do not purchase or deal with immoveable property That danger is there, and very small danger though it be it affects us much more seriously than other communities, because as the Hon'ble Member admitted very frankly it depreciates the title to Mussalman property. Our difficulty is how are we to override the provision of Muhammadan law which empowers a Mussalman to make an oral wakf. We are unable to do it, and therefore what little apprehension there may be among the other communities I ask them to that extent to bear with us who are suffering along with the others to a much greater extent. One word more and I have done. Before I sit down I wish to offer my personal thanks to the Hon'ble the Law Member for the most able and valuable help he gave me in the Select Committee to get this Bill through, and in that I include our able Secretary Sir William Vincent who gave us equally valuable help in the matter before the Select Committee, after the Select Committee and during the Select Committee"

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 7th March, 1913.

APPENDIX A.

No. 110 OF 1912.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

ACCOUNTS AND FINANCE.
MINT.

To

THE MOST HONOURABLE THE MARQUIS OF CREWE, K.G.,
His Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

Simla, the 16th May 1912.

MY LORD MARQUIS,

WE have the honour to lay before your Lordship a proposal to open a gold mint in Bombay for the coinage of sovereigns.

2. Before setting forth the reasons which have led us, after much anxious consideration, to make our present recommendation, it would be as well to summarise briefly the more recent phases which the particular question of coining gold at the Indian mints has undergone

3. It is, we think, an indisputable fact that the establishment of a gold currency was regarded as the logical and natural sequence of the closing of the mints to silver, and as the necessary accompaniment of the establishment of a gold standard. The report of Lord Herschell's Currency Committee of 1893 spoke of "familiarising the public with the use of a gold currency," and in a subsidiary note Lords Farrer and Welby added their view that the reforms then recommended would not be complete until gold was made full legal tender, which consummation, they contemplated, might be effected either by the free coinage of gold in India, or by the free reception by the Indian Government of English and Australian sovereigns Lord Lansdowne's Government were, in fact, in favour of coining sovereigns in India almost simultaneously with the closing of the silver mints, and in their despatch of 15th August 1893 they put forward definite proposals for the coining of sovereigns at the Indian Mints with the letter I under the Queen's effigy. Lord Kimberley, however, in his despatch, dated the 12th October 1893, pointed out that, if the gold coin of India was to be the sovereign, it would be necessary to obtain an Act of Parliament declaring the coins issued from the Indian Mints to be legal tender within the United Kingdom, and he anticipated considerable opposition to the passing of such a measure until some evidence had been given of India's ability to accumulate a reserve of gold.

Paragraph 152.

4. The Indian Currency Committee of 1898, better known as the Fowler Committee, regarded the throwing open of the Indian Mints to the unrestricted coinage of gold as a prominent feature of the currency policy recommended by them. In paragraph 54 of their report they said :—

"We are in favour of making the British sovereign a legal tender and a current coin in India. We also consider that, at the same time, the Indian Mints should be thrown open to the unrestricted coinage of gold on terms and conditions such as govern the three Australian branches of the Royal Mint. The result would be that, under identical conditions, the sovereign would be coined and would circulate both at home and in India. Looking forward as we do to the effective establishment in India of a gold standard and currency based on the principles of the free in-flow and out-flow of gold, we recommend these measures for adoption."

5. This recommendation was accepted without qualification by your Lordship's predecessor, Lord George Hamilton, who, in his despatch No. 140, dated the 25th July 1899, requested the Government of India to make preparations for the coinage of gold. A lengthy correspondence then ensued, of which the following is a brief summary :—The Government of India put forward definite proposals for establishing in the Bombay Mint a branch of the Royal Mint for the coinage of sovereigns. A proclamation to effect this object was drafted, and received the approval of the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury. Meanwhile, difficulties had arisen regarding a number of administrative details connected with the establishment of the proposed branch Mint. These difficulties occasioned much correspondence between the Secretary of State, the Treasury and the Government of India, and the latter expressed their willingness throughout to carry out the requirements of the authorities of the Royal Mint. In May 1901, the Mint authorities expressed themselves as satisfied, but the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, for the reasons given in their letters Nos. 8239, dated 22nd May 1901 and No 10489, dated 9th July 1901, copies of which were forwarded with Lord George Hamilton's despatch No. 130, dated the 26th July 1901, invited the Secretary of State to reconsider the whole question. They admitted that the original decision to coin sovereigns in India was a wise one, as indicative of the determination of the Government of India to adhere to a gold standard and of their intention to take practical measures to establish it They pointed out, however, that subsequent experience had shown that the gold standard was already firmly established in the public confidence, that sovereigns were being readily attracted to India whenever required, and that there was no reason for believing that the position of the gold standard in India would be strengthened, or public confidence in the intentions of the Government of India confirmed, by the mere provision of machinery for the manufacture of gold coins in the country They further pointed out the practical difficulties in the way of the establishment of a branch of the Royal Mint in India, an arrangement which they described as anomalous, and likely in practice to give rise to inconvenience and possible friction.

6 Upon receipt of the views of the Lords Commissioners, the Government of India decided, for the time being, not to persevere with the proposals. In their despatch of 25th December 1902 they refrained from expressing any agreement or disagreement with the reasons advanced by the Treasury. But they had ascertained that the chief Indian Mining Companies had made arrangements for the regular sale of their gold outside the country, and that they were unlikely to alter those arrangements at an early date. In the absence of an assurance that a steady supply of Indian gold would be available for minting Lord Curzon's Government preferred to drop the scheme at the same time expressing their willingness to revive it should conditions change

7. No public explanation was given in India of this sudden recession from what had hitherto been regarded as an essential feature of the currency policy inaugurated in 1893 and definitely established on the recommendations of the Currency Committee of 1898 Spasmodic suggestions have since been put forward from time to time for various developments in our gold currency, but it was not until last year, when a resolution was moved in the Imperial Legislative Council by Sir Vithaldas Thackersey, that the Government of India were formally invited to revive the proposals which had so nearly reached fruition a decade previously, and to embark on the coinage of gold. The discussion thus started has been vigorously taken up by the press and by commercial interests both in India and England, and the whole subject has been thoroughly ventilated in a manner which makes any special reference to mercantile bodies in this country unnecessary

8 We consider, therefore, that the time has come for the revival of the scheme which was accepted by Lord George Hamilton and was only dropped as we have shewn upon subsidiary considerations It is true that there has been no subsequent change in the position as regards the output of the Indian gold mines. It is also true that sovereigns are readily imported from Egypt, Australia, and England, whenever the balance of trade is strongly in India's favour. But, in other respects, the position is now greatly different from that of 1902. Our currency system went through its first serious trial in 1907-08, and, although the crisis was safely tided over, the lesson was brought home to us that we must vigilantly aim at strengthening our gold position. In the second place, the past ten years have been marked by a change in the complexion of Indian affairs, which is little less than revolutionary The very habits of the people at large have been affected, and nowhere is this change more striking than in matters relating to currency In previous discussions a doubt has frequently been expressed whether the sovereign would ever be popular in this country, but the conservative spirit, which it was thought would be opposed to the introduction of a new coin, has, in recent years, been greatly weakened. There can be no question that gold is now being taken with increasing freedom in payment for agricultural produce. So much is obvious from statistics, and there are strong indications also that gold is replacing silver in the hoards of the people. In the case of the sovereign then, the antipathy to change which has commonly been attributed to the Indian people has weakened perceptibly, and the same inference is to be drawn from the striking expansion in our note circulation which has followed the removal of circle restrictions and which demonstrates both the desire of the people for a handier form of currency than silver, and their readiness to work with a higher unit than the rupee. It is in this change of the popular attitude to currency matters, that we find the chief justification for reconsidering our future course.

9. There is, moreover, particular reason why we should undertake this reconsideration now. Since 1902 there has been a very large net addition to the Indian currency, in silver, gold and paper taken together. In 1908 there was a check in the absorption of the silver portion of that addition; but this has now passed away, and, although it is too early yet to form any definite estimates, it seems probable that we are now on the eve of a demand for further expansion, in the form of a fresh coinage of silver Every increase to our silver currency adds to the weight of our responsibility for maintaining the gold value of the rupee, and any method which by encouraging an increase in the effective circulation of gold will lighten that responsibility has the strongest claim on our consideration.

10 We submit, therefore, that the time is opportune for examining afresh the question of coining gold in India. Before however reviewing, in the light of present conditions, the arguments for and against the specific proposal put forward by the Government of India in 1899, we think it very necessary, in view of certain misapprehensions which have been current from time to time—particularly since the discussion of the subject was revived a year ago—to state definitely what that proposal was, and what it was not.

11. It has been represented that the scheme would entail vast borrowings by the Government of India for the purchase of gold, which would be coined and forced upon the people Gold coins would be substituted for rupees on a colossal scale and forced into circulation The value of silver would drop many points and, it is said, a panic would seize the people, who would sell their silver ornaments and silver hoards at any sacrifice. At the same time Government would be spending, on the purchase of gold and in interest upon its coinage loans, huge sums which it ought to devote to education, sanitation, railways and irrigation. Taxation would be increased Gold coins would disappear as soon as they issued. Our exchange position would not be a whit the stronger, and at the end the whole country would be greatly impoverished.

12. Consequences of this kind, however, have no relation to the proposal of the Government of India That proposal was and is merely to open one of the Indian mints (preferably that at Bombay) to the free coinage of sovereigns, the authorities of the Royal Mint being given such control over the operations as His Majesty's Government may consider to be necessary. To the mint would be attached a gold refinery, enabling us to deal with ornaments and alloyed gold in any form and also to receive raw gold from the Indian mines should that at any time be offered to us The mint itself would be, at any rate at first, on a small scale. We propose that it should be open to any one who brings gold bullion for manufacture into sovereigns, and that the bullion or assay should be paid for at the same rates as by the Royal Mint in London, no seignorage being charged for the coining. Sovereigns would not be issued except in payment for bullion so tendered, while worn and uncurrent sovereigns, wherever manufactured, would be withdrawn and re-coined in accordance with regulations similar to those in force in the United Kingdom.

13. That is our proposal, and we need hardly point out that it involves neither the raising of a loan, nor the purchase of an ounce of gold, nor the coining of a single sovereign except from bullion that is voluntarily brought to the mint for the purpose It does not involve the forcing of gold into circulation or the withdrawal of silver from circulation, or the disturbance of the ordinary course of our recognised and established currency procedure.

14. Neither, in proposing to open a gold mint is it our intention to induce thereby an increased flow of gold to India. Indeed were that our purpose we recognise that it would certainly fail. The gold which we receive in India comes to us in settlement of our credits abroad. Its amount can be increased only by an increase in the volume of India's exports, or by a decrease in the volume of India's imports other than gold and the currents of trade are not affected by the establishment of a mint. The people may, and we believe they will, use the sovereign more extensively as a medium of exchange; but the aggregate inflow of gold will, so far as we can see, remain unaffected.

15. We trust that we have now made clear to your Lordship the nature and scope of our proposal. We have now to consider what we imagine to be the chief objections which may be advanced against it. It may be urged that the scheme would be ineffective, or that it is unnecessary, or that it would be extravagant, if not actually harmful.
